As to the financial proposals I do not pretend to have grasped thoroughly the Prime Minister's plan. It is proposed, however, to give Ireland a bonus of £500,000. The Prime Minister says that we ought to be liberal with Ireland. I am willing to be liberal, but when there is a division between the two countries a little less generosity and more justice is not out of place. What is this £500,000 supposed to be for? It represents a capital of £17,000,000, and why ought this country to give to Ireland £17,000,000? The only reason which I can conceive is the confession that we have been beaten and must pay this amount as a sort of war indemnity. Surely those concerned in framing this bill are not deficient in ingenuity, ability, zeal or duty. Why, then, have they done no better than produce such a bill? Because they have attempted an almost impossible task. [Cheers.]

A Federal Government or a Colonial Government may be good, the British constitution as it stands may be good; but this bastard combination of three is ludicrous and impossible.

In regard to the British Empire you all know that, although in the process of founding beyond the sea great communities of our own race and blood, we cannot count upon these communities in every stress to form a part of the effective strength of the United Kingdom. The time may come when, unless they can find some method of binding themselves in constitutional relations to the Mother Country, the thread of common affection and common sentiment may be severed. [Hear, hear.] Do not let us then within the United Kingdom itself endeavor to bring about a state of things which we see will be so severally productive of national weakness. Ireland is in the process of being united to Great Britain more closely in the bond of common national affection than ever before. The land agitation began in 1889 under the guidance of an able politician who postponed perhaps for a generation, perhaps even longer, the full consummation of our wishes. Although a great harm was thus done, although our children and grandchildren will still feel the effect of revolution in Ireland and betrayal in England, still I think the country and the House have the power to say now: This process shall go no further. Much as they have suffered in the past from vacillation they will at all events now put an end to this project, absolutely impossible of execution in its details, and even worse in the general principles by which the Prime Minister, under the cloak and guise of drawing together in closer harmony the different parts of the United Kingdom, intends to found institutions which must tend ever and ever as time goes on to separate them in temper, in mind, and ultimately in nationality. [Repeated Unionist cheers.]

In the House of Lords yesterday Lord Salisbury asked the Rt. Hon. and Most Rev. Edward White Benson, Archbishop of Canterbury and Primate of all England, whether the tone of the Government directed to the Church Commission to deal with Welsh diocese was such as if the Suspensory Bill was already a law.

The Archbishop, in reply to Lord Salisbury's question, read letters showing that the assignment of certain funds of the diocese of St. Asaph's had been suspended.

Lord Salisbury thereupon proceeded to make a furious attack upon the Government. He declared that Mr. Gladstone's administration was guilty of a serious transgression of the constitution. The action taken in regard to the Irish Church afforded no precedent in this case. The robbery of the church afforded no precedent in this case. The robbery of the Church of Ireland had been followed by the robbery of landlords and the proposed mutilation of the State. It was indecent on the part of the Government to attempt by private action to anticipate a decision of the Legislature.

Mr. Gladstone, Lord Salisbury added in significant terms, was the first British Prime Minister since the Restoration who had the reputation of striking down the Church of England. The present was a turning point in English history. [Cries of Hear, hear.]

The Government aimed to mutilate an institution that was older than the dynasty or other institutions of the country. Surely it was a matter of decency for the ministry to refrain from trying to obtain preliminary approval of a revolutionary policy by secret action through exercising its influence upon the church commission over which the Government had no authority. [Hear, hear.]

The Earl of Kimberley, a Liberal peer, asked the House to discuss the matter when the Welsh Suspensory Bill was introduced.

Lord Ashbourne (Conservative) denounced the action of the Government as a gross breach of the constitution.

Lord Herschell, Lord High Chancellor, denied that the Ministers had influenced the Church Commission. The strong language used by the opponents of the Government was out of place in view of the relations between the Government and the commission.

The House then adjourned.

The Irish parliamentary party, at a meeting specially summoned after the delivery of Mr. Gladstone's great speech, cordially accepted the new Home Rule constitution as a satisfactory scheme of Irish national self-government, subject to endeavors in committee to improve the proposed financial arrangements, and to have the time shortened wherein the land question is to be withheld from the Irish National Legislature.

FOR AND AGAINST.

Comments of the British Journals on the Home Rule Bill.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Daily News: "It is utterly childish to call the bill a separatist measure. The double chamber arrangement is infinitely better than the proposal of 1886. The retention of Irish members at Westminster is the most likely part of the bill to excite keen resistance."

The Times: "Those whom Mr. Gladstone failded to convince in 1886 will not be converted now by a less powerful and less persuasive appeal. The speech indeed was marvelous for a man of 84 years. But if he has shown that he can still bend the bow of Ulysses his most uncritical admirers will hardly refuse to confess that he no longer sends the arrow straight to the mark. The exclusion of the Irish members from Westminster, the very corner stone of Mr. Gladstone's policy of 1886, has disappeared. The most indulgent will fail to discern the faintest sign of finality in the scheme, and his omission of any reference to the land question until questioned on the subject indicates plainly how he has artificially restricted his view. The proposed Upper Council is an exceedingly doubtful protection for the minority. The most fertile source of quarrel will be the financial proposals." The Times denounces the retention of the Irish members at Westminster and ridicules the notion that they can sit in two parliaments simultaneously. "This beautiful provision enables the Irish to have absolute control of both English and Irish legislation unfettered by the illusory veto that is proposed."

The Graphic: The prospects of the bill are not rosy. The measure bristles with difficulties. A controversy is likely to rage over the veto power and the retention of the Irish members at Westminster. The latter proposal is undoubtedly the weakest part of the bill.

The Chronicle: The retention of the Irish members at Westminster is according to our judgment one important feature that makes the Home Rule bill acceptable to both England and Ireland. Although the present bill is a great improvement on the bill of 1886, and those opposing it ought to produce some alternative plan of their own.

The Standard: The measure is impracticable and impossible. If passed it would never work. The device of the retention of the Irish members at Westminster is such a palpable absurdity that Gladstone himself could not attempt to treat it seriously. The speech, however, was a personal triumph.

The Dublin Freeman's Journal: Whilst open to improvement, the bill is altogether not a good water-tight measure.

The Irish Times: Seven years have failed to teach Mr. Gladstone respect, either of the rights of the Irish minority or of the facts of history. Ulster says simply it will not have it.

The Dublin Express: 'It is mostly a mere repetition of the former bill. Where it differs it is more complex and impracticable. The suggested safeguards are most illusory.'

'The Irish Independent: 'No definite opinion can be expressed until the text of the bill is before the public, especially as Mr. Gladstone's method is unusually involved. On the points of police and finance, the bill seems especially bad and justifies Parnell's account of his interview with Gladstone.

The comments of a score of leading Provincial dailies show that the Unionists have no disposition to give the bill any quarter.

Michael Davitt, anti-Parnellite, in an interview, said the bill was more democratic and practicable than the bill of 1886, although he would personally prefer a single chamber. He was satisfied Mr. Gladstone would carry the bill.

The Parnellites expressed hesitant approval of the bill, though they are dissatisfied with the proposal to retain the land under English jurisdiction for three years.

It is generally admitted the bill will be allowed to pass the second reading with little or no opposition and that the real fight will be reserved for the final stage.

THE CATTLE EMBARGO.

Scotland Sends Deputations Asking Its Removal.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Lord Aberdeen yesterday introduced a deputation of 80 representatives of the public bodies of Forfarshire, Glasgow, Dundee, Aberdeen and Perth to Hon. Mr. Gardner, the President of the Board of Agriculture. They urged the removal of the restriction on Canadian cattle exported to Britain.

Mr. Gardner, in replying to the deputation, firmly supported his officials and said whether the disease found among the Canadian cattle landed at Dundee last year was "cornstalk," pleuro or the other pneumonia, it certainly was contagious. Mr. Gardner was, therefore, compelled by law to apply the schedule and, moreover, he could not remove the schedule till satisfied that Canada was free from the disease.

He added, encouragingly, that he hoped the decision would not be much longer delayed. But he would await further advices respecting the condition of the Canadian herds, and also the intentions of the Canadian Government regarding the importations of cattle from the United States.

In explaining this latter statement Mr. Gardner said he understood that settlers' cattle were admitted to the Northwest from the United States free of quarantine. The law compelled him to be assured that the Canadian herds were absolutely secure. He would gladly and anxiously weigh further evidence.

He referred to the fact that the United States also demanded free entry into Britain for their cattle, but in the cargoes landed from 18 States 41 beasts were found to be diseased.

A LADY KILLED.

By a Runaway Team of Horses in Halifax.

HALIFAX, N.S., Feb. 15.—Miss Lynch, daughter of Peter Lynch, the well-known lawyer and historian, was among the audience at a concert given by the Orpheus Club last night.

As she was returning home in company with several other ladies a runaway team dashed into them.

The shaft of the sleigh caught Miss Lynch under the chin and killed her instantly.

Miss Lynch was about 40 years of age, and well-known in society circles in this city.

DIED SUDDENLY.

An Aged Farmer Tumbles Over With a Fatal Pain.

NORWOOD, Feb. 15.—John Kidd, sr., of Dummer, a prominent farmer of Peterboro' county, died very suddenly at his residence this evening. He was in apparently good health all day and drove the mail as usual to Norwood. Shortly after arriving home he tumbled over, complaining of a severe pain in his stomach, which had troubled him on previous occasions.

He was removed to the house and died in a few minutes before anything could be done to relieve him. The deceased was about 76 years of age and had lived continuously on his farm in Dummer township for 60 years.

Canada and Hawaii.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—In view of the statement made in the Dominion Parliament that Hawaii was to be one of the landing stations of the proposed cable from British Columbia to Australia surprise is expressed that Canada has made no protest to the British Government against the United States assuming a protectorate over the Hawaiian Islands. No communications have passed as yet and the British Government is left to assume that Canada acquiesces in the mooted protectorate.

NORWOOD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The following are the officers of the newly organized fire brigade :—

Captain.—Robert Patterson.
Sec.-Treas.—Lewis Kirkpatrick.
Branch Men.—Jas. Fraser, Fred Pearce.
Members.—Robert Richardson, Adolphus Greenbank, David A. D. Fraser, Wm. Rutherford, Stanley Hendres, Lewis McGregor, Chas. Woods, Frank Haddon.

As soon as the weather becomes warm the brigade intend practising so as to be prepared for an emergency.

The East Peterboro County Loyal Orange Lodge met here on Tuesday afternoon last, W. Bro. Joseph Harrison in the chair. A large number of members were present. A resolution was passed urging the delegates from this county to do all in their power towards having the next session of the Provincial Grand Lodge, Ontario east, meet here. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year :—

County Master.—Bro. Joseph Harrison, South Dummer.
Deputy County Master.—Bro. John Herring, Norwood.
Chaplain.—Bro. W. H. Dafoe, Norwood.
Financial Secretary.—Bro. Stewart Scott, South Dummer.
Recording Secretary.—Bro. David Andrews, Norwood.
Treasurer.—Bro. J. C. Caskey, Blairton.
D. of C.—Bro. J. McQuigge, Blairton
Lecturer.—Bro. J. G. McAlpin, Blairton.
Deputy Lecturer.—Bro. S. Scott, Belmont.

The officers were installed by P. C. M. Bro. A. Smith, Warsaw. The lodges were not urged to attend any particular demonstration on the 12th of July. The next annual meeting will be held in Norwood.

One day last week, while Mr. David Andrews, of Asphodel, was cutting wood near Rotten Lake, Dummer, the axe slipped and cut his right foot at the ankle.

Rev. S. Vantassel, of Campbellford, occupied the pulpit of the Baptist church on Sunday evening. He preached a very practical sermon. Rev. W. H. Stevens, the pastor, occupied the pulpit of the Campbellford church.

The Rev. J. P. McEwen, of Toronto, delivered a very interesting lecture in the Baptist church on Thursday evening. His subject was "Missions."

We were informed by an employee of the Norwood foundry that they are manufacturing a large number of stoves this winter. He also said they had steady work all the year round.

Cumming's woollen mill is closed down for the winter months.

A large number of the sporting fraternity attended the Hastings races last week. On their arrival home in the evening the town was kept very lively by the action of some rowdies who attended the races.

The concert given by the band in the town hall on Thursday evening last was one of the best ever given here. Mr. Chas. O'Reilly occupied the chair. A dialogue entitled "The Haunted House," was ably rendered by Messrs. D. M. Hunter, Richard O'Connor and J. Masterson. Miss Fry delighted the audience with a violin solo. Mrs. A. B. Richardson and Miss Ida Brethen sang "I can't leave the old folks at home" and it was greatly appreciated by the audience. Miss Lillie Scott, the well known reader, delighted the audience with a very select reading. Messrs. C. N. Callander and Alfred Finlay, fairly captivated the audience by their singing. Miss Francis Pettigrew gave an excelleut exhibition of club swinging. Mrs. C. W. Waters delighted the audience with a recitation. She will always be welcome to a Norwood audience. The proceeds of the concert were in aid of the poor of the village, of which there are quite a number.

The Postmaster General's report gives the postal revenue for Norwood at $2,337.24. Laprairie, Lachine and West Farnham, in Quebec, with revenues as follows, $401.02, $820.33, and $522, can have post office buildings costing from $15,000 to $50,000, but Norwood with from three to five times tho revenue, has to put up with a rented building. It's a little queer that the Government has not bought up East Peterborough by a public buildingor something else. May be the settlers in Dummer and the "faithful" in Norwood will petition the government to build a canal from Stoney Lake, through Rotten Lake to Norwood creek, and build a bridge for every son of the faithful.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered in the Methodist church on Sunday. There were nearly one-hundred and fifty communicants. Rev. G. W. McColl, of Havelock, and the pastor, Rev. W. Buchanan, exchanged pulpits in the evening. Mr. McColl's sermon was a masterly one.

The East Peterborough Reform Association will meet in Metcalfe's block, not the town hall as advertised, on Wednesday, the 22nd. Let all the Reformers of the riding be present and do all in their power for the good of Liberalism in this county. Down with corruption and annexation!

Mr. Thos. Fraser, clerk of the Division Court, informed your correspondent that the Division Court to be held on Wednesday, 15th, will be the largest for a number of years.

A number of our young people intend attending the Keene carnival. The main attraction is the mile race between Johnston Paudauch, of Hiawatha, J. McIntyre, of Keene, and David Frazer, of this place. They are all sure that Dave will be the champion of East Peterborough.

The Sunday School at Thistlethwaite's gave a very successful concert on Friday evening. Mr. Wm. Thistlethwite occupied the chair. The programme consisted of short addresses, readings, dialogues, recitation and musical selections. The proceeds amounted to the tidy sum of $20.

At the meeting of the Quarterly Board of the Methodist church on Monday afternoon, a resolution of condolence was extended to Mrs. D. F. Gee and family in their loss by the death of the Rev. D. F. Gee.

The Trustee Board of the Norwood Methodist church met on Monday. Mr. W. Udy was re-engaged as sexton for the ensuing year. Miss Nellie Sperry, of Peterborough, was re-engaged as organist with an addition to her salary of $50. Miss Sperry has performed her duties in a very creditable manner, and the trustees are to be congratulated on their success in securing her as organist for another year.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian Church have decided to meet on Sunday evening at 8.30 instead of Monday evening.

Mr. C. W. Waters has purchased a very fine thoroughbred St. Bernard dog. C. W. is a great admirer of the canine tribe.

Mr. H. Squires of Castleton was in town last week.

Mrs. C. N. Callander is very ill.

Mrs. J. C. Brown, of Peterborough, was in town on Saturday.

Mr. Wm. Hendren, of Peterboro, was in town on Sunday.

Miss E. Pearce is visiting friends in Port Hope.

Miss Finlay, of Rapid City, Manitoba, who has been visiting her uncle, Reeve Finlay, left for home last week.

Mr. Thos. Fraser returned from visiting friends in Bracebridge last week.

Root and Branch,

the poison in your blood, however it may have come or whatever shape it may be taking, is cleared away by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a remedy that rouses every organ into healthful action, purifies and enriches the blood, and through it cleanses and invigorates the whole system. Salt Rheum, Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Enlarged Glands, and the worst Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, are perfectly and permanently cured by it.

Unlike the ordinary spring medicines or sarsaparillas, the "Discovery" works equally well at all seasons. All the year round and in all cases, it is GUARANTEED, as no other blood medicine is. If it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back. You pay only for the good you get.

Isn't it safe to say that no other blood purifier can be "just as good?"

If it were, wouldn't it be sold so?

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOUR COLUMN.

"FOR CHRIST AND THE CHURCH."

[All communications intended for this column must be marked "Christian Endeavour" and sent to Box 113, Peterborough, not later than Friday previous to date of issue.]

Topic for week beginning Feb. 19th, "Hindrances, how to meet them," Neh. 4.9, Phil. 4.13.

MISSIONARY MEETING.

Nevertheless we made our prayer unto God, (Neh. 4.9.) Nehemiah knew that in order to overcome the opposition of Sanballat, and to successfully regain the broken down walls of Jerusalem, he must on his side be able to say "God and Nehemiah." Without divine assistance, he was convinced, the weak must stop, so he ordered that daily prayer be made unto heaven that their enemies might be discomfited and that the work might go on. Are we as wise? There is not a single duty we have to perform, no matter how light it may be, which we may undertake with any hope of success without prayer. Prayer links us with the divine plan. Prayer makes us followers of an invisible leader. Prayer creates in us a confidence in the righteousness of our cause that no amount of opposition can overthrow. Prayer keeps open the channel through which omnipotence can achieve for us the victory. Prayer is the first essential in the equipment of every successful worker. And set a watch against them day and night, (Neh. iv, 9). God could have done it all without Nehemiah's help, had he so chosen, but in this case he wanted Nehemiah to realise that there was something for him to do also. He set a watch. Here again we see the wisdom of the Hebrew general. Do we keep an eye on the enemy as well as a heart toward God? Hindrances accumulate when Christians are off their guard, Jesus said, Watch and pray. Watching is useless without prayer, prayer is useless without watching.

"I can do all things through Christ," (Phil. iv, 13.) Paul knew neither fear nor discouragement; his sufficiency was in Christ. That is where ours must be. Let us put it, Christ can do all things through me. It is He, after all, who does the work. He alone should have the glory. Oh, that He might be magnified in our lives! Do hindrances rise or opponents face us? He will give the victory. Let our hearts be unswervingly loyal to Him.

VISITING.—We spent a very enjoyable evening on Jan 23th, at Bethel church with a number of the Lakefield Endeavourers. They were invited out to give us an evening's literary entertainment, which they consented to do, and did in a very high sense of the word. Our church, which seats about two hundred, was well filled. This was encouraging. The programme though well worth 25c., was free. A collection, which amounted to $4.31 was taken up for the missionary fund. This is Christian Endeavour work, or rather the fruitage. Visiting in this way furnishes considerable pleasure for both societies, gives stimulus to the, workers, broadens our ideas, improves our methods and manners, and creates a greater sympathy among our ranks.

We began our society Nov. 22nd, and now have about thirty members. We have literary meetings alternate Wednesdays with the regular church prayer meeting, and our religious meetings one in two weeks, on Sunday evening. This work among our young people fills a place that was long open, not only to Endeavourers, but to the works of Satan, in overthrowing our young church members. These meetings furnish work for all, and by work and exercise come strength, skill and results along the line of our work. This column is a means of help in the work, and we wish it, and its conductor much success.

STEWART R. PAYNE,
Pres. of Bethel E.L. of C.E., Warsaw.

CONSISTENT ENDEAVOUR.

The demands for greater activity in Christian work, and for more faithful and persistent endeavour, are pressing enough; but far more so is the call for consistent Christian living on the part of every professed follower of the Lord Jesus Christ. We need not recall the sad fact, which is only too true to-day, as it has been in all ages, that tremendous injury is wrought to the cause of Christ by the unworthy lives of many of those who profess (whether truly or not) to be His disciples. "Walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called" is an exhortation repeated in various forms several times in the New Testament, and we doubt if it was ever needed more than it is in this age and in this country, where it is fashionable to belong to the church, and it is easy, comparatively speaking, to be a Christian. The fires of persecution in the early days of Christendom purged the church from those who were not sincere, and produced a type of Christian that is too rare in these days.

The Christian life does not consist of attending church and prayer meeting, or even of what we call active Christian work: but rather of following Jesus Christ, whom we own as our Saviour and Lord. We are His representatives on earth; we are "witnesses," "ambassadors," "the light of the world"—shining for Him. Let us in all we do remember our responsible position, and strive to do nothing which would be unworthy of His ambassadors, to go nowhere that we could not witness for Him. If we do so, those who meet us will not be able to say that our inconsistencies kept them away from Christ.

While this obligation is equally binding on all Christians, it is, in a sense, especially so on the members of the Christian Endeavour Society. Have we not pledged ourselves in a very definite manner to "do whatever He would have us do"? This part of our pledge is a most solemn vow, and perhaps is too often forgotten. But the eyes of the world are upon us, watching to see if we are faithful to our vows; and the more our society grows and attracts attention, the more it becomes "a city set on an hill, the greater will be the responsibility of each member to walk worthily of his Lord and Master.

The prayer-meeting should be, and is, a source of much spiritual refreshment and blessing, and the committees provide means for employing all the members in that definite service which is necessary for growth in grace. The unions and conventions have done much good in prompting fellowship and furthering the work in all its branches; but if there is open inconsistency in the lives of the active members, all these influences will be offset.

We would simply exhort each of our readers, "take heed to thyself," more than ever before. Shall we not all pray, at the opening of this new year, for the power of the Holy Spirit, which alone will enable us to live that consistent Christian life that draw others to Christ?

The Advertising.

Of Hood's Sarsaparilla is always within the bounds of reason because it is true; it always appeals to the sober, common sense of thinking people because it is true; and it is always fully substantiated by endorsements which, in the financial world would be accepted without a moment's hesitation.

For a general family cathartic we confidently recomend Hood's Pills.

THE WORLD

Never Had Such a Blessing Before!

MOST MARVELLOUS RESULTS!

Lives Are Saved Every Day!

A prominent and wealthy resident of Toronto recently said: "When I feel run down, nervous, weak, or have an attack of rheumatism, I invariably use Paine's Celery Compound, and I am quickly restored to health and vigor. It is truly the best remedy ever given to the sick and suffering. I have tried other medicines and physicians' prescriptions, but none give the magical results that I get from Paine's Celery Compound. The world has never had such a blessing before; and from what I have heard, the great remedy surpasses the expectations of all who use it."

A few extracts from a letter received from Mrs. E. A. Kitchen, of Paris, Ont., will help the doubtful to decide. Mrs. Kitchen says: "I informed you some time ago that I was unable to get out of the house, and that my sufferings were so terrible that no human tongue could describe them. After using Celery Compound I can go out to church on Sundays, and walk to town at any time. I must honestly acknowledge that there is no other remedy that I know of that could have brought about the same satisfactory results. It suits me exactly, and nothing could induce me to take any other. My nervous sufferings, neuralgia and insomnia have all succumbed to the wonderful powers of Paine's Celery Compound. I fervently say, God bless you and give you long years of success in doing good."

HON. PRESIDENT.—His Lordship the Bishop of Peterborough.
HON. VICE-PRESIDENT—A. C. Dunlop, Esq.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE "IN IT."

A Life Agent called at a friend's place one day,
HE WASN'T IN IT;
He had seen "the bore" coming and shut down his way
HE WASN'T IN IT;
He had heard so much said, he was tired and sick
Of insurance and agents—'twas all a blank trick,
When one's coil must be shuffled to win it,
HE WASN'T IN IT.

A bit of a draft blew o'er his bald head,
HE WAS IN IT;
Pneumonia sent him straightway to his bed,
HE STAYED IN IT;
His doctor made of it a "quite special" case,
To save him for running still more of life's race,
But the grave took some chances to win it,
AND HE'S IN IT.

When approached by a gent for insuring your life,
GET RIGHT IN IT;
It's the right thing to do for your children and wife,
THEN STAY IN IT.
Remember that fires take your goods "out of sight,"
And that accidents happen each day and each night.
While insurance protects every minute,
IF YOU'RE IN IT.

A Bank Manager's Opinion.

HE IS "IN IT."

The General Manager of one of the leading banks in Canada, writing to a personal friend, says:—"I have no hesitation in saying that I place the CANADA LIFE upon the highest platform. It is in my opinion carefully, economically and honestly managed; its Reserve Funds are well invested; its rates of Premiums are low, and its future is, I think better assured than a great majority of Companies. I have my own life insured in the Company for a round amount, and would not hesitate to increase the amount of my policies should I decide upon taking out further insurance."

A Government Insurance Actuary's Opinion

On the Relation between Ordinary and Tontine Service.

It is frequently assertedby Companies whose business is nearly all tontined, that although the CANADA LIFE may and does pay large ordinary profits, yet it cannot compare so favourably on a long term distribution or tontine period, and that in the end better results can be obtained on a tontine policy in a large American Co. than on an ordinary or tontine policy in the CANADA LIFE. To prove the absurdity of this statement, the following piece of common sense is quoted from Mervin Tabor, late Actuary of the Illinois Goverment Insurance Department. In his well known book, "The Three Systems of Life Insurance," he says: "A company that gives large dividends on the ordinary kind of policies, can give much larger on the same kinds when Tontined, and a company that pays but meagre dividends on the usual forms, adopting perhaps the Tontine system to "cover up" its small surpluses, cannot be relied on for large returns of surplus under the Tontine Forms of Insurance."

The CANADA LIFE does not "cover up" its Quinquennial profits as some Companies do, but publishes them throughout the country.

It can and does surpass other Companies on Quinquennial profits. It should and will surpass them on Tontine profits.

WHY TO BE "IN IT."

BISHOP HAWKE'S REASON:—"I claim that Life Insurance is not only a humane, but I might say a Christian Institution."

LORD LYNDHURST'S REASON:—"A Policy of Life Insurance is always an evidence of prudent forethought. No man with a dependent family is free from reproach if not insured."

WHEN TO BE "IN IT."

The younger, the cheaper. Therefore insure when young. Besides by insuring in the CANADA LIFE now, you will share in three years' profits.

WHERE TO BE "IN IT."

The best place to be "in it" is in the Company that gives the best returns for the least money, consistent with absolute security. Therefore, in order to be "in it," choose the Fruit Growers Association.

The meeting of the association will be held at the town council chamber on Wednesday the 22nd at 10 o'clock. Not only members but all farmers and others interested in fruit growing are invited to be present. Addresses by men like Mr. Craig of Ottawa and Mr. Woolverton of Grimsby, are worth listening to, and the subject is one that should attract attention. There is money in fruit growing properly attended to, and like other subjects more light is wanted on it. We hope to see a very large meeting.

A Sunday School Entertainment.

At the Auburn mission church on Friday evening next a fine Sunday School entertainment will be given. The entertainment will begin at 8 o'clock and a good programme will be rendered. The Y.M.C.A. quartette and the Y.M.C.A. band will favour with splendid selections. There will be an in interval of ten minutes during the programme, when bags laden with good things will be distributed. The citizens of the neighbourhood are requested to turn out and encourage the Sunday School work in that district. Admission 15c. Children not members of the school, 10c.

The Bank of Toronto's New Premises.

The interior work and fittings for the Bank of Toronto's new premises at the corner of Hunter and George streets, are progressing apace. The bank authorities expect to be installed in their commodious and elegant new home about the latter part of next week. The furniture, desks and fittings were all beautifully designed by Mr. Belcher, architect, and supplied by Mr. D. Belleghem, who has finished the work in a strictly first class manner. The counters, desks, etc., are made of cherry and present a bright and inviting appearance, thoroughly in keeping with the other improvements and renovations that have taken place.

Departed for the Queen City.

Mr. C. W. Bunt, for the past four years cutter in Hall, Innes & Co., dry goods store, left for Toronto at 5.45 last evening, where he has accepted a remunerative situation with Messrs. Ham & Co., the the well known Yonge street merchant tailors. Before his departure the clerks in the dry goods department presented him with a handsome meerschaum pipe and case. The lady employees of the millinery department, notwithstanding Mr. Bunt is is a benedict, so universal was his popularity, showed their esteem for his many excellent qualities by presenting him with a pair of gold cuff buttons, suitably engraved with his monogram upon them. Mr. Bunt thanked his many friends for their kindess and evidence of good will.

36-6d MISS ARMSTRONG.

REEVE McAULEY'S RESIGNATION.

As will be seen by our Havelock correspondence, Mr. A. McAuley, reeve of the newly incorporated village, has resigned the position of reeve on the grounds that the demands of his business connections will not admit of his giving that attention to the duties of the position which it demands. Naturally this decision is a blow to Havelock, which depended very largely upon Mr. McAuley's experience in municipal affairs and his general abilities, to set the municipality upon its feet, in a corporat sense. Not only in Havelock but in the county council will Mr. McAuley's absence be felt. In the latter his ability, devotion to duty and grasp of business, made him one of its most valued members, and his worth was recognised, for at the last session he was a leading contestant for the position of warden. Mr. McAuley will leave the council with an excellent record, and his geniality and pleasant personal qualities will long remain pleasant memories to his late associates in the council. We are given to understand that Mr. McAuley's decision is final and that business demands put it entirely out of his power to reconsider his resignation.

Mr. J. C. Williamson, of Toronto, representing the order of Canadian Home Circles, is in town, organizing a branch Circle in Peterborough. This society is a friendly, benevolent and beneficiary one, and is one of the few that admits ladies into the circle with all the advantages of their gentlemen friends. It is also the cheapest insurance in the Dominion, the average annual cost for $3,000 benefit, including all lodge dues, age 30, about $16.80. If 24 years of age the annual cost would be about $12.18. It is purely Canadian and is deserving of a large membership. Mr. Williamson will be in town for a few days, and any person desiring fuller information may obtain same from Dr. Carmichael or Chief Rossel.

YOUNG PEOPLE ENJOY THEMSELVES.

Successful Entertainment Held in St. Andrew's Church under Y. P. S. C. E. Auspices.

A pleasant social and entertainment was held in St. Andrew's church Sunday school rooms last night. There was a large company of young people present and two hours were very enjoyably spent. Mr. R. M. Russell, president of the Y.P.S.C.E. occupied the chair in a fitting manner, and the programme opened with a well rendered selection by the Y. M. C. A. band, under the leadership of Mr. Wholton. The band numbered thirteen pieces and their playing showed cultivation and taste. Rev. Mr. MacWilliams followed in prayer, after which Miss Weddel sang a solo with good taste. Misses Huebeck and Sherlock sang a duet, "Beautiful Lake Geneva" with sweet effect. Miss Eva Carey recited in good form. A quartette by Misses Heubeck and Sherlock and Messrs. Squirer and Wesley was particularly well rendered and merited applause. Rev. Mr. MacWilliams followed in a neat speech and put all in good humour. The Y.M.C.A. band closed the programme by another creditable selection. Refreshments was the next number on the programme and all attended faithfully to this event. During the evening a large number viewed with unfeigned interest and delight the large number of curios on exhibition consisting of ancient corns, Indian relics, weapons of war, mounted animals, etc., kindly lent by friends of the society. Hence the social took its name—a curiosity social.

CRISP CURLING CHRONIQUES.

What is Going on at the Rink Where Curlers Most do Congregate.

The return match between the two Lakefield quartettes for the oysters came off again yesterday afternoon and in a fourteen end game resulted in George Boucher's quartette being once more successful by 5 shots. Hence skip McNeil's exchequer was depleted another time to liquidate his insolvency for the bivalves. Following is the result:

W H Robertson,	G Howson.
W Snowden,	V McGill,
D Belleghem,	A W Strickland,
A McNeil, sk 8	G Boucher, sk.....13

At the rink last night, three rinks, all composed of and skipped by legal gentlemen, played against the outside world or three other rinks from the Granites. The ultramundanes were on the whole successful in defeating their opponents by some four shots. Fourteen ends were played by each rink. Following are the the results:

Messrs. A. McNeil and D. Belleghem, skips, will play a match at the rink this evening for the bivalves.

At a meeting of the curlers held last night at the rink it was decided to play the return match with Lindsay on Tuesday next. Two rinks will go to the Scugog City while two will come from there here. Messrs. Rutherford and Boucher will compose the former skips who will go to Lindsay while Messrs. Attrill and Ferguson will play here.

Arrangements were also concluded for the return match with the Toronto Granites who will, it is expected, play here on Thursday week, Feb. 23rd, six rinks strong. The Toronto's and Prospect Parks will play later on. The matter of sending a couple of rinks to take part in the great bonspeil contest at Whitby which occurs to-morrow and Friday was left with Mr. S. gradually growing worse. Three years ago I got down so low that I could scarcely walk. I looked more like a corpse than a living being. I had no appetite and for five weeks I ate nothing but gruel. I was badly emaciated and had no more color than a marble statue. Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended and I thought I would try it. Before I had finished the first bottle I noticed that I felt better. suffered less, the inflammation of the bladder had subsided, the color began to return to my face, and I began to feel hungry. After I had taken three bottles I could eat anything without hurting me. Why, I got so hungry that I had to eat 5 times a day. I have now fully recovered, thanks to MARRIED MEN'S "MAIDEN" EFFORT.

It Was a Great Success.

The "married men's social" in the school room of the Charlotte street church on Tuesday evening was a gratifying success. Considering the slippery, sloppy weather there was a good attendance. The tea table, laid out with great taste and repeatedly filled and emptied, were arranged and waited on by the "married men" in a manner that showed what latent capabilities the lords of creation command. The tables were finely decorated with cut flowers and the dais and piano that stood thereon were covered with blooming flowers. In fine all the decorations and arrangements for the evening's entertainment were made with a taste and completeness which the ladies will find it difficult to equal, and which on this occasion turned them emerald with envy. The programme, furnished entirely by married men, was introduced by Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., in a humourous speech, and consisted of an excellent essay read by Mr. J. W. McKay and fine vocal solos by Mr. Stier, Mr. A. L. Davis and Mr. J. Crane; recitations by Mr. — Moore and Mr. J. Nugent, and short addresses by the pastor, Mr. Yokome and the chairman. During the evening the better halves heard some wholesome home truths, which will form the subject of many a jolly five o'clock tea gossip. The entertainment was on the whole most enjoyable, the financial outcome being handsome and the programme presented seemed to give satisfaction. The Gentlemen's Aid Society is to be heartily congratulated upon the signal success of the first entertainment produced under their auspices.

Note this fact! The original prices of our clothing is invariably rated low, and as we sell for cash, the profit is naturally lower—much lower—than a credit profit. COBOURG VS. PETERBOROUGH.

THE HOME TEAM WIN IN AN EXCITING GAME.

There was Great Enthusiasm—High Tension—Six Goals to One was the Score—Peterborough Captures the District Championship—A Well Played and Hotly Contested Combat—Coming Engagements.

The third game of the season between Cobourg and Peterborough hockey aggregations came off at the Charlotte street rink last night and resulted in an overwhelming victory for the home team, by a score of 6 goals to 1. The visitors arrived in town on the 5.12 o'clock and repaired to the Grand Central Hotel, where supper was partaken of. At seven o'clock notwithstanding the drizzling rain and storm a large company of Peterborough's best people hied themselves to the rink to witness what proved to be the most exciting and brilliantly played game which has taken place here this season. It will be remembered that in the first game of District No. 2, Eastern League Ontario Hockey Association, played at Cobourg some weeks ago, the home team easily downfell their opponents by a score of 7 goals to 2. In the return match played here a week ago last Saturday night the tussle resulted in a tie, each side scoring two goals and the battle was not carried to a climax owing to the ex-University town's players having to catch the train. Mr. Wm. H. Bradbourn, secretary of the club, received a communication from the secretary of the Ontario Hockey Association a few days ago enjoining that another or third game be played in order to dispose of the issue. The match was ordered to be played at Peterborough and it came off last night in fine style and amid wild exultation. As the opposing hosts faced each other at 7.15 o'clock last night before Referee A. Knowlson, of Lindsay, the personnel was as follows:—

Cobourg.		Peterborough.
W Delaney	goal	T H Dumble
W A Fenwick	point	A Sawers
A Grierson	cover point	W B Carmichael
H Pearse	right wing	W J Montgomery
F D Kerr	right wing	H E C Wonham
Geo Brown	left wing	W Phelan
H Holland	left wing	J Parson
C N Gill	goal judges	H Phelan

At the face off the puck was sent spinning up in Cobourg's territory by a brilliant rush of Peterborough forwards, and there it was kept the greater part of the first half. Wonham made a couple of star shots for the uprights, which had it not been for the agility and expertness of W. Delaney, Cobourg's splendid goal keeper, would have scored. The defense of Cobourg were putting up a much better game than their forwards, especially Fenwick, as cover point, excelled himself by his many creditable checks. The forwards of the visitors were not doing united work or good following up, and their citadel was stormed many times in consequence. The excitement for the first fifteen minutes was feverish, and the rink resounded with all sorts of shrieks and cheers—a deafening uproar prevailing which was increased when at the end of fifteen minutes vigorous playing Montgomery, who never did better work in his successful career as a hockeyist, made an unerring shot for the posts and the rubber glided through with lightning rapidity. The remaining fifteen minutes of this half was a repetition of the first, except that the interest grew even more keen, the play sharper and the rushes more desparate. At the end of another ten minutes the home aggregation scored its second goal. It was captured by Wonham and Phelan in a rush. Parson scored the third goal three minutes later. Just before half time was called Wonham shot the puck on goal but in the scrimmage which ensued one of the goal posts was broken, and although the rubber clean through the goal, the judge refused to call it a game. Brown and Kerr are worthy of special mention for their great combination play in the first half.

In the second half, after a ten minutes rest, the boys went at it again with a vim and a vengeance. Kerr was struck in the ear with the puck but happily was not knocked out, and after a brief interval the affray proceeded. The Cobourgs were doing better work now, and made things glow around Peterborough's goal. Carmichael and Sawers, however, were equal to the occasion and were not to be buffeted. Once again by a magnificent rush down the rink Parsons scored by a side shot, increasing Peterborough's score to 4. Two minutes later Wonham by a capital effort did the necessary and made the score five. The ex-Universities then secured their only game during the contest. This was taken by Pierce after some tremendous forward work by the visitors. A wild cheer rent the air but the supporters of Cobourg had no thought that they would win, although many were of the opinion they would even up the score a little. Montgomery once more showed his prowess and ably assisted by Wonham who was a true gladiator, another goal was seized and the few minutes remaining availed nothing and when the referee's whistle sounded the result stood 6 to 1 in favor of Peterborough.

The Peterborough's accordingly capture the championship of District No. 2, and well have they earned their title, for the players have been doing active persevering work during the past few days. The Cobourgs took defeat with good grace and the game throughout was marked by the most friendly feelings, very little rough play being indulged, no body checking and comparatively few fouls and offside plays being made.

THROWS DOWN THE ICE.

Every man of the Peterborough's did his be stand all share in the honours alike.

Mr. A. Knowlson, better known among his coterie of hockeyists as "Buccy," performed the very often thankless duties of referee in a highly satisfactory and thoroughly impartial manner.

After the game was over a prominent Cobourg player remarked to a reporter: "We have been beaten fairly and outplayed all around. We have, however, been doing no practice at all since we played here last."

The next game of the Peterboroughs will be with Winnipeg's champion hockey club on Friday night next at eight o'clock. This will be the event in hockey circles of the season and is the talk of the sports.

Upper Canada College boys sent a telegram this morning asking for a game here on Saturday night. They are exceedingly anxious to come and will be accommodated by the home team.

The Peterboroughs will go to Kingston on Tuesday night next to play Queen's College, the redoubtable champions of Group No. 3, Eastern League Series. Queens has an untarnished record, but the home boys think they can do up the collegians.

If Peterborough defeats Queen's University, they will play the champion Toronto rink.

Last nights hockey struggle is the talk of the town to-day, and the boys are being warmly congratulated on all sides for their signal victory.

The merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla is proven by the many wonderful cures it is accomplishing. It is just the medicine for you.

NORTH GALVESTON, TEXAS,

Is an Industrial City on Galveston Bay, near the Gulf of Mexico. In 1890, Galveston Bay was selected as the deep water and land locked harbour of the southern coast, and for the improvement of which Congress appropriated and are now expending $6,200,000, and an application has recently been made for a further grant of one million dollars to fully complete the work. This vast expenditure was rendered necessary for the purpose of affording a direct outlet to the seaboard, for the products of twelve of the most productive states of the union, representing about twenty millions of the American people, where millions from land and millions from water meet, in a latitude affording one of the finest climates in the world, on a situation unsurpassed for elevation, beauty and extent, owned by men of unlimited means, filled with enterprise, and men who know not failure in any undertaking. A "RUN-DOWN" and "used-up" feeling is the first warning that your liver isn't doing its work. And, with a torpid liver and the impure blood that follows it, you're an easy prey to all sorts of ailments.

That is the time to take Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, to repel disease and build up the needed flesh and strength, there's nothing to equal it. It rouses every organ into healthful action, purifies and enriches the blood, braces up the whole system, and restores health and vigor.

For every disease caused by a disordered liver or impure blood, it is the only guaranteed remedy. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back.

GOOD SATIN.

Florette Gives Directions How to Tell It.

I saw and sketched a lovely evening dress of sapphire blue velvet shot with old gold, having the front of the skirt and bodice draped with very pale maize. There was feather trimming around the decollete neck of the same shade, and broad passementerie trimming at the bottom of the skirt at the sides, which extended up the front and narrowed to a point at the waist, as shown. A blue gauze fan with gilt handle completed the costume.

Satin is admitted for evening gowns and even for afternoon house dresses, but it is a foolish mistake to think that anything but the very best satin will look well. Do you know how to tell good satin? It is not sure nor safe to judge by the price. Very little satin is all silk. To test it, burn a little. If the smell produced is most awful, the satin is good. But if the odor is in no way unusual, you are being taken in, if you believe it the best. Maybe you think if burning is the only difference it is not worth while, but it isn't the only difference. Satin that is every thread silk will keep its lustre and regal stiffness to the last. Other satin will not, and that is a vital difference. In the lighter colors, and in white and black, the best is imperative.

When very heavy satin is used, don't seam the breadths together as usual, but let the selvages lap over each other and show. The satin will then hang unwarped in the train, and wrap about the body, its lustre uncrossed by twisted lights. Then, too, the quality of the satin makes instant appeal. In the front you may let the breadths hang loose. Wear a skirt of satin shrouded in gauze under the loose breadths. The effect is rich and unique. The breadths being loose the silken quality of the wrong side gets full credit, and if you have put your money into it you might as well get the credit.

FLORETTE.

ONLY A LITTLE WOMAN.

But Thackeray, the Englishman, Was Big and Kind-Hearted.

A Scotchman who came to this country young, prospered here, married here, but has often visited the old country, making in all nearly a hundred voyages, went abroad in 1851 with his young wife. That was the year of the great world's fair when the Crystal palace dazzled the eyes of the visitors whose wonderful tales spread the marvel far and wide. When the Scotchman reached London all the talk was of the coming opening of the Crystal palace. The royalties were to be there in great force, to say nothing of mere celebrities. Only those were admitted who held season tickets, these tickets costing something like $50. It seemed a big price to pay for a single sight of even so unusual a show, but the Scotchman was determined that his wife should not lose the chance—it might never come to her again. So he bought a ticket and sent her on opening day to the Crystal palace with some English friends.

Great was the crowd, and the young American woman was a person of unlucky shortness of stature. Tiptoe her best she could not see a thing over the mass of heads all turned in one direction. The procession of royalties swept in, but it was not for her. Bitter tears of disappointment filled her eyes that after so much cost and trouble she was to be completely balked.

A big Englishman stood near her with the kindliest of eyes. He saw it all at a glance.

"Permit me, madam," the Englishman said, and with his strong hands he encircled her waist and lifted her up above the heads of everybody as easily as if she had been a little girl. He held her there quite a time, his arms not seeming to know a tired feeling, telling her who everybody was, royalties and celebrities alike. When he at last put her down she had had a much better view than three-fourths of the tall people who were present. In reply to her thanks he simply said:

"It is always a special pleasure to do a favor for an American."

She was sure he was himself distinguished, but the friends who were with her did not know him. She described him to all the English people whom she met, but could get no clue to his identity. So she came back to America ignorant who the kind hearted Englishman was.

Some years after in Brooklyn she went with her husband to Plymouth church to hear a lecture by a celebrated Englishman. The moment he appeared on the stage she turned to her husband and exclaimed,

"That's he! That's my Crystal palace Englishman!"

It was Thackeray. After the lecture, the husband and wife had the pleasure of meeting him, again acknowledging their obligations and entertaining him at their own home.—Christian Union.

Why It Was.

Husband—"Why do your clothes cost you a hundred dollars more this year than they did last? Aren't things cheaper?"

Wife—"Yes, dear, that's just it. There are so many more bargains."

A Lucky Find.

Hazel—"How many overcoats have you, anyway? That isn't the same one you had yesterday, is it?"

Nutte—"No. I couldn't find mine when I came out. This one belongs to my sister."

Looked So.

"My girl is neither beautiful nor young," said Downes. "But she is as good as gold."

"Ah! It's the gold you're after!" said Bigbee.

Thrifty.

Lulu Japonica.—Why did Ethel and George elope?

Charity Ball.—Her father gave them what the wedding would have cost to begin housekeeping with.

Don't waste time, money, and health, trying every new medicine you may see advertised in the papers. If the cause of your trouble is in the blood, liver, stomach, or kidneys, take Ayer's Sarsaparilla at once and be sure of a cure. Take no other.

Reduced to a Science.

The treatment of disease is now almost reduced to a science. A scientific product of medical skill for the cure of all blood diseases from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore, which has held popular esteem for years and increases steadily in favor, is Burdock Blood Bitters. Its cures prove its worth.

A Cure for Constipation and Headache.

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache in one night. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c. a package.

Delay is Dangerous.

When the kidney's are out of order delay is dangerous. Any disease may follow and become so well established that months of suffering will follow. A gentle tonic like Dodd's Kidney Pills is always acceptable to the kidneys and protects them from disease. They are a kidney food.

Small sugar-coated Burdock Pills do not gripe or sicken. They are mild and effectual.

MEXICO'S BIG LOCOMOTIVE.

A Double-Ender of 120 Tons Weight to Climb Tropical Mountains.

The biggest and most powerful railroad locomotive in the world, according to Locomotive Engineering for January, will soon be running on the Mexican Central railroad. It was constructed at the Rhode Island locomotive works, with a couple of like companions. The monster weighs 120 tons when in working order and was built to climb steep grades in the mountains of Mexico and to drag heavy loads around sharp curves safely.

The engine looks like a couple of locomotives of the "mogul" pattern backed up together, with the two cabs joined. It is an odd form, and was constructed after a design by Superintendent of Machinery F. W. Johnstone of the Mexican Central, who realized that a special style was necessary for the work to be performed on his railroad. The idea was to secure a motor with flexibility sufficient to go round the sharp curves with least frictional resistance. This flexibility is gained by securing the driving wheels in a truck which is free to move in a line different from that followed by the main frames.

The cylinder and boiler in the Mexican Central Goliath are carried on the main frames separate from the driving-wheel truck. As the cylinders are not in line with the driving wheels in rounding curves it is necessary that a special method of transmitting power from the cylinders to the crank pins should be employed. This is done in a very ingenious way through levers that transmit the power and compensate for the varying distances between the piston and the crank, due to the swiveling of the driving wheels. But for this compensating arrangement it would be necessary to give the engine so much cylinder clearance that the loss of steam would be very great. The power-transmitting levers are seen at the back of the cylinders, connected at the top by a short link, and the bottom ends pinned to the front end of the main rods. There are two of the latter, one connecting with a crankpin, the other with a return crank. The piston transmits motion to the back one of the two levers, and that gives motion to the front lever, which is fulcrumed securely to the frame near its center.

The engines are compound, with annular cylinders, the high-pressure cylinder being in the middle and the low-pressure cylinder outside. The high-pressure cylinder is 18 inches in diameter and the low pressure 28 inches. The stroke is 24 inches. It is calculated that the cylinder capacity of each pair of cylinders is equal to a 19x24 simple engine.

The boilers are of Otis steel, 9-16 inch in thickness, and carry 160 pounds of steam to the square inch. They are 54½ inches in diameter and have 201 two-inch tubes, 15 feet 9½ inches long. The fireboxes are of the Belpaire type, 56 inches long and 56 inches wide.

The arrangement of working is that the valve motion of the two engines is operated by one screw reverse lever.

In the new locomotive the engineer sits on one side of the cab with all the necessary apparatus for working the double ender within easy reach. On the other side the fireman pours in the fuel through side doors. A coal passer is necessary to aid him.

The Fashionable Kind.

Brassey: What drove the poor fellow crazy?

Keeper: He was an architect, and went crazy trying to construct plans for a three-cornered summer-house with 17 gables.

An Open Secret.

She—'If so much was to be gained by it why didn't he make a secret of his marriage?"

He—"He decided it would be impossible. You see the girl was bound to be in it."

Explained.

"The Venus of Milo is only a bit of symbolism," said Hawkins. "Venus is the goddess of love as opposed to Mars, the god of war, and naturally appears unarmed."

To Make Rose Salve.

To keep the lips from chapping in cold weather rose salve is delicious. It is made as follows: Mix three ounces of oil of almonds and half an ounce of alkanet; let them stand in a warm place and strain. Melt one ounce and a half of white wax and half an ounce of spermaceti with the oil, stir it till it begins to thicken and add twelve drops of attar of roses.

Consumptives, Cheer up!

You are not going to die if you will but exercises a little common sense, and spend a paltry sum. You may be very feeble now, sitting bolstered up in the big arm-chair, but you may now throw up your hat or bonnet, and shout for joy! Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil will save you if you take it according to directions. What you need is good new blood and rebuilt tissues. If you take Miller's Emulsion you will gain from five to ten pounds of flesh with each bottle. There is no use wasting words. A hint should be enough to a consumptive of the fact that Miller's preparation of Cod Liver Oil SAVES. In big bottles, 50c. and $1, at all Drug Stores.

Couldn't Keep on His Feet.

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 31st, 1892.

To the Peterborough Medicine Company:

GENTLEMEN,—If there is any medicine in the world that I pin my faith to it is Membray's Kidney and Liver Cure. In my business I have to stand on my feet a good deal. About a year ago my back began to give out, weakening pains set in across my kidneys, I felt tired all the time and could hardly stand up to my work. I began to lose strength and at last had to give up work altogether. A customer advised me to try your cure which I did. Before half the bottle was used, I felt the pains and weakness leaving me and to-day I enjoy good health and can bear fatigue and work all right. One bottle was all I used.

ALF. HASKILL, barber.

PHYSIOLOGY OF TEARS.

Different Emotions Result in a Flow of the Briny Drop.

Fear, grief and joy, to say nothing of pathos and anger, bring tears to the eyes. They are said to come from the heart, and this is true, for no one ever reasoned himself into weeping without a first appeal through the imagination to some emotion. Tears, according to the Asclepiad, are the natural outlet of emotional tension. They are the result of a storm in the central nervous system, giving rise to changes in the vascular terminals of the tear-secreting glands. These changes induce profuse excretion of water and weeping results.

In a mild degree some excretion is always in process, to bathe the eye and clear it of foreign matter. The controlling center is at a distance, though the secretion may be kept up by the small trace of saline substance that is present in the tears themselves. The lachrymal glands lie between the nervous center and the mucous surface of the eyeball. Tears afford a good illustration of the way in which nervous fibres are capable of conveying to a secreting organ exciting impulses from both sides of a gland lying in their course. Afferent and efferent communications bring about a similar result. Internal nervous vibrations and external excitation or reflex action cause a flow of tears. In both instances the exciting impulse is a vibration. Niobe, "all tears," and the unfortunate pedestrian with a minute particle of steel from the rail of an elevated road in his eye are unwilling exponents of a similar process. They weep the same kind of briny fluid, in exactly the same way, though from widely different causes. Imagination is at times sufficient to excite the nervous system into the production of tears without external aid or reflex. Writers and readers of good fiction weep over it alike, and the actor loses himself so entirely in the exigencies of dramatic art that he sheds real tears and the audience sheds tears with him. Of a truth the man who never weeps has a hard heart, and the quality of his intellect may also be questioned.

Emotion then, affection, grief, anxiety, incite to tears; not pain nor discomfort. The pangs of maternity are tearless, though the influence of ether or chloroform may cause some emotional dream that results in weeping. In the earlier days of surgery patients might scream and utter such pitiful cries as to sicken the bystanders, might even faint with pain yet there were seldom any tears. These being pure waves of emotion and a relief to the heart, are almost powerless to mitigate pain. Perhaps one who weeps from pain does so from unconscious though selfish pity—in other words from emotion. For the tearful, change of scene, mental diversion and outdoor life are the best remedies. The author quoted objects to alcohol as fearfully injurious. It disturbs and unbalances the nervous system, keeps up a maudlin and pitiful sentimentality and sustains the evil. Alcohol is the mother of sorrow. An opiate, however, prescribed at night, soothes and controls and really disciplines rebellious nerve centres. Sleep cures tears. And so does time, the restorer. Persons subject to many and repeated griefs forget how to weep, and the old as compared to the young are almost tearless. Tears have their value in the life of humanity, not as tears but as signs. They show that grief centres are being relieved of their sensibility, and that the nervous organization is learning how to bear up against sorrow.

Aphorisms.

Three things are known only in the following way—a hero in war, a friend in necessity, and a wise man in anger.—Arabic.

A liar would be brave toward God, while he is a coward toward men; for a lie faces God and shrinks from man.—Montaigne.

Look on the bright side of life. Think of its pleasant things. Bear its unpleasant things patiently. Remember that the mercies of life greatly exceed its ills, and that often these ills are mercies in disguise.—Lavater.

Find out whether your guest wishes to have a clock or not; some people cannot sleep without its familiar tick, while others are disturbed by it, for this reason a stationary clock is not to be recommended as part of the spare room furnishing; it is better to have a small one, which may easily be removed.

Advise your guest of the breakfast hour, ascertain at what time she will wish to be called, and also whether she wishes the maid who wakens her to bring hot water.

Do not urge her at breakfast time, or at any other meal, to partake of everything upon the table; nothing is more vulgar than this insistance upon people eating whether they wish to or not.

Do not insist upon her spending all her time in sightseeing; try and arrange the details of her visit so that neither she nor you shall be tired out when the time comes for her to take her departure.

When that day comes, if it shall happen that she is to travel upon a train which has neither dining or buffet cars, prepare her a dainty little lunch and pack it in a box which, after it is emptied, may be easily disposed of.

Not a Particle.

A feature worth noticing in regard to Burdock Blood Bitters is that it does not contain one particle of poisonous matter. It cures and cures quickly without the use of any injurious ingredients. B.B.B is a purely vegetable specific for dyspepsia, constipation, bad blood, headache, billiousness and all diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels and blood.

When in Despair.

When in despair of being cured of lung troubles, there is still a hope, and a strong hope of perfect cure in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This medicine cures even after all others have failed, and no one suffering from coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, hoarseness, etc., need despair of cure while Norway Pine Syrup is obtainable.

THE BUDGET SPEECH.

A Reduction of the Duties on

COAL OIL AND BINDER TWINE

Other Reductions to be Considered.

The Export Duty on Logs Will Not Now Be Re-imposed, But May Be Later On —Mining Machinery Still Exempted— Preferential Trade a Big Plank in the Conservative Platform — Cartwright Condemned the Policy of the Government as Presented—Large Increase in Exports.

OTTAWA, Feb. 15.—The Budget Speech of the Hon. Mr. Foster, Minister of Finance, delivered yesterday, was one of the very best of its kind ever heard since Confederation. The galleries were packed on the four sides of the chamber. Nearly every member was in his seat.

Lady Thompson and Miss Thompson and the wives and daughters of a great many ministers and members filled the Speaker's gallery, while in the Senators' gallery there was a goodly attendance of the old gentlemen and their lady friends.

Mr. Foster's speech occupied exactly two hours and 20 minutes, the last hour of which was devoted to the tariff, its effect upon the country, and the proposed revision and present amendments brought down by the Government.

Mr. Foster is a slight man in his 46th year, weighing less than 140 pounds, with a small, well-shaped head covered with fine brown hair, not often cut but always well brushed, and a mustache and half-pointed beard, and spectacles of a high power always on his nose.

He wore a black morning coat, stood up quite erect in his place and is very free and easy on his feet in addressing the House. His voice and cut and manners are all flavored with his early occupation of teacher. He has a well-pitched voice, and his address is marked by a frequent emphasis on many of his words.

During the course of his speech Mr. Foster was loudly cheered by his followers, and especially when he took a shot at his opponents across the way. The Opposition listened in good temper, and gave him, as like everyone in the House, an attentive hearing.

Mr. Foster opened by reviewing the revenue and expenditure for the past year, which had resulted very nearly as he had forecast in March last. The revenue had been $36,021,871, a decrease from the previous year of $1,657,439.

He went over the increases and decreases which had taken place in imports, the most noticeable of which was the remarkable increase in the quantity of sugar imported, which was 345,418,483 pounds, or an average of about 70 pounds for every man, woman and child in the Dominion. All the duty collected on sugar was $77,828, but if the duty had not been almost abolished in 1891 and the old doctrine had been maintained, the duty would have amounted to $3,418,918, so that, even allowing for the increase in excise duties, the decrease of taxation had been about four and three-quarter millions, or about 90 cents per head of the population.

It was the fashion, he said, to pretend that taxation was lower under the Mackenzie regime, but on the articles of tea, coffee and sugar alone there had been a saving to the people of $6,833,000, from what it would have been had the duties remained as they were under Mr. Mackenzie.

Turning to the expenditures he said that they showed an increase of $422,327, but this was entirely caused by the long session of 1891, which had cost $1,209,876, as compared with an expenditure of $396,486 the previous session. He added, amid laughter from the Conservative side, that the Government had no control over the length of the session and had given no occasion for it.

From 1887 to last year the expenditure had been kept almost at a dead level, and it would not have increased last year but for the long session. This was the best answer to the charge that the Government was rolling up the expenditure.

With regard to the debt he pointed out that for several years there had practically been no increases, but the reduction of the revenue by the removal of sugar duties had caused an increase of $3,322,403 last year. For the current year he estimated that the revenue would be over $37,000,000 and the expenditure about $36,000,000; but this may be increased by the expenditure on quarantine stations.

Turning to the commerce of the country he regretted that the statistics relating to internal trade were not more complete and hoped that the new Minister of Trade and Commerce would do something in the way of improving these statistics. In foreign commerce, however, the increase had been the largest ever known.

In round numbers the exports in 1878 amounted to $79,000,000, in 1891 to $98,000,000 and in 1892 to $114,000,000. The percentage of increase in 1892 was the largest ever known. He then entered into details of the export trade, showing how greatly the trade with Great Britain had increased, as well as the trade with Germany, France, the West Indies and other countries. Trade with the United States had decreased, and this he attributed largely to the McKinley tariff. He dwelt at some length on the development of our trade with Great Britain, and pointed out the great increase which had taken place in our exports of cheese, bacon, eggs and other articles to that country.

At 47 minutes past 4 he turned his attention to the tariff, saying that no man with his eyes open could deny that the tariff was attracting great attention. There is a good deal of agitation on the subject and a good deal of discussion. He reviewed the three propositions of free trade, revenue tariff and moderate protection, pointing out why the latter was best suited to Canada.

With regard to preferential trade within the empire, he said that the idea of preferential free trade between all the islands and countries embraced within the British Empire was a very seductive one, but he doubted whether it was one which could be carried out immediately. If it could be brought about he thought it would be the highest, greatest and grandest achievement ever accomplished in the world's history. It was so great an idea that it would be well for Canada to hold herself in a position to take advantage of it should it ever become practicable.

Parliament was already pledged to the principle of preferential free trade, and many leading thinkers in Great Britain were becoming impressed with its importance. It did not appear as if it was immediately practicable, but still changes of opinion sometimes came very swiftly, and it was well to be prepared.

Coming to the question of tariff changes, he said in effect that the Government proposed to make a thorough investigation of the subject during summer, and if any changes were found necessary they would be proposed next year. There were a few items, however, which it was proposed to deal with this year.

With regard to the export duty on logs he said that question would be examined during the summer, but clearly indicated that if the duty was reimposed no respect would be paid to any conditions which had been incorporated in timber limits sales.

With regard to coal oil it had been decided to let the duty of seven and one-fifth cents per imperial gallon remain, but to remove the incidental protection in the way of importation in bulk, duty on barrels and inspection, which was estimated to amount to about two cents a gallon.

With regard to binder twine the duty was reduced from twenty-five per cent. to twelve-and-a-half per cent. The present exemption from duty of mining machinery was extended for three years.

Sir Richard Cartwright spoke for about an hour and a half, replying to Mr. Foster and criticising the policy of the Government, which he strongly condemned. In conclusion he moved the following amendment:

"That the present customs tariff bears heavily and unjustly upon the great consuming classes of the Dominion and should be at once thoroughly reformed in the direction of freer trade, and that the amount of taxes collected be limited to the sums required to meet the necessities of government efficiently and economically administered."

Hon. Mr. Haggart moved the adjournment of the debate.

Sir John Thompson moved that the debate be continued from day to day. Carried.

The House adjourned at 10 o'clock until Thursday.

CLEARING SALE

—OF—

MEN'S, YOUTHS' AND BOYS' SUITS AND OVERCOATS.

Big Reductions in the Price of all kinds of Ready-Made Overcoats.

We utterly annihilate Profit, entirely ignoring Cost, for the next Six weeks. It's like finding money. This sale will eclipse any offer of the entire season. It is the result of several causes—lateness of season, the over-stocked condition of our Overcoat Department, but mainly the necessity of turning our stock into money.

500 WINTER OVERCOATS.

The Cream of our $15 and $18 Overcoats go for $13.
Our $12 and $14 Ulsters go for $10.
Our $10 Black Worsted and Melton Overcoats go for $8.
Our $8 and $9 Overcoats go for $6.
Our $4.50 Overcoats go for $3.50.

We do this not for love of our customers, nor for fun; but because it's hard to sell Overcoats now—because we must sell them now or carry them over until next winter. Our regular prices, as you know, are fully 25 per cent. lower than Clothing is usually sold at, but to make this an unprecedented sale, we entirely ignore cost for the next six weeks. DROP IN AND SEE US. Shrewd buyers will shop early.

SMALLEY ON GLADSTONE.

The Correspondent has Been Disappointed.

[Below is given the views of Mr. Gladstone and his Home Rule bill from an extreme anti-Home Rule standpoint. Where so much credit is given, the forced attempts to minimise Mr. Gladstone's great effort, and his bill must be regarded as an example of the wish being father to the thought. This opinion is interesting as embodying the very worst that can be urged against the present Home Rule measure.]

LONDON, Feb. 16.—It was 3.45 when Mr. Gladstone rose to introduce his second and last Home Rule bill. At 6 o'clock he had finished. He spoke to a sympathetic House and a listening world. He had with him the expectations of a great English party and the eager hopes of a majority of the Irish people. He had, when he entered the House, the reception of a king. The resounding cheers of his supporters swelled through the chamber as I never heard them before. They rose again in the same chorus of coming triumph as he began his speech. When he ended there were cheers; but what a contrast to those which greeted him first! There was still thr note of personal loyalty to a great chief, but the enthusiasm and confidence were audible no more.

The House had given him throughout its best attention on both sides. It was at first, on his own side, joyful and more than hopeful; it became, as he went on, strained and anxious; it deepened into perplexity and ended, not certainly in despair, but in a visible discouragement. His followers were disappointed in the speech as an effort of oratory, and even as an effort of exposition. They were puzzled by his account of the bill, copious on many minor points, strangely meagre on those which are vital to the measure, or where they were labored, as on the retention of the Irish members at Westminster, strangely lacking in clearness.

He spoke from more voluminous notes than I ever saw him use, and his reference to them was constant; yet, even with this help, he seemed overtaxed. He was very far from being the Gladstone of other days; he was not even the Gladstone of the earlier days of this very session. The ever-youthful buoyancy had vanished, the noble head was bowed, the figure never quite erect, the face ashen white. The voice came faint and far. Often and often it was impossible to catch what he said.

The surprise was the greater because at the beginning the tones had been full and strong, and the music of them was as varied and matchless as ever, the cadences rising and falling with all their old beauty. Before the exordium, just half an hour long, was over, the voice had begun to fail, and from that time on it grew thin, sinking sometimes to a whisper which hardly reached across the table. The force and splendor of the great orator's speech were gone. Its pathos remained. He summoned his strength together at the end for his peroration, which still had little of his old vigor, but all of his old grace.

When he sank into his seat, not a few of this great audience felt that such a speech could only be the prelude to a disaster. The bill is one which a statesman in the prime of great power would need all his powers to carry, and it is only too plain that Mr. Gladstone's energy is no longer spontaneous and irrepressible as of old.

A complete estimate of so complex a measure on a single hearing, and that so difficult to follow, is of course impossible, but there are features of it which came out clearly, and some of them are those which are commonly reckoned the vital features of any measure for setting up a statutory parliament in Dublin. In all there are seven points which may be called cardinal and three, if not four, of them are of the essence of Home Rule. Considered from the English point of view the seven are: Imperial supremacy, the imperial veto, safeguards for Ulster and the Protestant minority, the retention of the Irish members at Westminster and their legislative powers when there, the judges and constabulary, the land question and finance. England lays almost equal stress on each of the first three.

It may be said that any Home Rule bill must stand or fall according as it succeeds or fails in offering a just solution of these three problems. How, then, does Mr. Gladstone deal with them? He relegates Imperial supremacy to the preamble of the bill, and confides the authority of the Imperial Parliament to a parenthesis: "Without impairing or restricting the supreme authority of the Imperial Parliament." If he has provided any machinery for asserting it directly, he omittec to say what, or perhaps his account of it was inaudible. The veto may be one means, the appeal to th Council another.

The veto question turns on the other question, by whose advice the Crown is to exercise it. If by advice of the Imperial Ministry, it may be effective; if by advice of the Irish Ministry, it is illusory. Mr. Gladstone has found a compromise. The Viceroy is to apply his veto with the sanction of an executive committee, formed, if I heard aright, from the Irish Privy Council. That seems to create a difficulty, rather than to meet it. There is, in addition to the veto, a provision by which acts of the Dublin Parliament may be submitted to the Judicial Committee of the English Privy Council, on the initiative of the Viceroy or of the English Home Secretary.

There was a provision of similar import in the bill of 1886, but the machinery provided was of the roughest sort and unworkable. We shall know what sort of machinery is now provided when the bill has been printed. It is, in any case, a process requiring time. The value of the veto, which would be summary if a genuine veto, must depend wholly on the composition of the Executive Committee on whose advice the Viceroy is or is not to exercise it.

Then comes Ulster. Ulster and the Protestant minority are simply left to shift for themselves. There are no safeguards; there is no attempt at protection. Mr. Gladstone contents himself with a belief that the Irish Catholics will be fair, relies on a historical reminiscence of doubtful accuracy, and expresses a hope that Ulster will change her mind, accept the Government she has vowed to resist, and join hands with the Roman Catholics as, according to Mr. Gladstone's reading of history, she did a hundred years ago. That is the satisfaction he offers to the conscience of Protestant England; that is the promise he holds out to Protestant Ireland. He plainly thinks he owns the English Nonconformist conscience, and perhaps he does; but with the Irish Protestants it is not only a matter of conscience, but of their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor.

The Irish members are, as was known beforehand, to be retained in principle at Westminster, but reduced in number to 80. What they are to do there is a question on which their English champion discoursed at length, giving the arguments for and the arguments against any limitation upon their legislative power. I thought that in his own mind the balance clearly tended toward the rejection of all limitations, and mainly because to impose any restriction upon them is to break with the great Parliamentary tradition of absolute equality between all members.

But he knows, or has been advised, that public opinion would not stand this, that the English and Scotch would revolt against a scheme which gave the Irish exclusive jurisdiction over Irish affairs and left them unchecked authority in all English and Scotch matters as well; so he imposes certain restrictions. He referred to his own remark that to distinguish between Irish and Imperial affairs for Parliamentary purposes passes the wit of man. He still thinks it does, but has persuaded himself that, though it cannot be done completely, it can be done with sufficient fulness for practical purposes. Four-fifths of the cases are, he now thinks, easily distinguishable, and he has constructed a category of distinctions meant presumably to include these four-fifths. It may be that it does, but such was not the impression made by his statement. Whether it does or not, there seems nothing to prevent the Irish 80 holding the balance of power at Westminster as between the English parties, and turning out or bringing in a Ministry. That, if anything is an, Imperial question, and not an English or Scotch question, and if the Irish have that, they have everything.

The other three points, if less important, are still enormously important. What of the Irish judges? It was understood that, subject to certain delays and to the protection of rights now vested in individuals, the whole judicial bench, the whole Irish magistracy, and ultimately the entire police force are to pass into purely Irish control. It recalls Mr Dillon's remark that when that day arrived the lot of the Irishman who had opposed the Nationalist movement would not be a happy one. That, if not a sufficient, is a significant comment. The number of Irishmen not Nationalists is computed at a million and a half. Their property to some extent, their personal safety to a very great extent, will be in the hands of their deadly enemies.

The land was not mentioned by Mr. Gladstone. It must, therefore, be inferred that the Dublin Parliament is to be at liberty to deal with the land and landlords as it likes. The hated English garrison will then be at the mercy of a majority whose avowed policy is a policy of confiscation. To hand over the landlords to an Irish Legislature would be, said Mr. John Morley not many years ago, an act of dishonor; but he has found some means of making that which was dishonorable then seem to him honorable now.

There remains finance. Mr. Gladstone was of opinion in 1886 that to require Ireland to pay one-fifteenth instead of, as now, one-twelfth of the Imperial charges would be liberal and generous to her. He has changed his mind and her quota is now to be reduced to one-twenty-fifth. He makes her incidentally a handsome little present of half a million sterling a year out of the British taxpayers' pockets.

Such are some of the leading features of the new Home Rule bill, so far as they can be collected from Mr. Gladstone's account of his long-meditated measure. There are those who think it moderate, and the Irish themselves, with their usual shrewdness, are shaking their heads over it, or some of them are. They well know they have got far more than was offered them in 1886, and they may well dread the effect on English opinion of these astounding concessions. They are wise to affect a dissatisfaction which they probably do not feel. Irish discontent with such a measure might do something to convince England that it had not reached the maximum of peril to the Empire.

Mr. Gladstone, of course, once more presses it upon England, as a measure not of disunion, but of union. His closing words were an impressive appeal not only for justice to Ireland, but for the unity of the Empire. He was in such passages both sedate and stately. His sincerity is beyond dispute, and if he has attempted the impossible his courage is only the more magnificent. The echoes of his voice have hardly passed into silence, and it must be days before the mind of England can be made up.

I offer no prediction, I but record an impression, when I say that over this supreme effort at the close of an illustrious life hangs the shadow of failure. G.W.S.

THE GOLD EXPORT.

Carlisle is Said to Favor Issuing Bonds For More Supplies

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—A special from Washington says: Mr. Carlisle has been in conference with Secretary Foster this morning. It is understood that Mr. Carlisle has received instructions for a bond issue and is now getting pointers from Secretary Foster.

Mr. Carlisle said this morning that he could not see any occasion for any apprehension in financial circles, as the Government would not allow gold to go to a premium.

"My course as Secretary is perfectly plain," he said to a friend. "One of my first official steps will be to issue bonds and this will be followed by a special session of Congress. The Sherman Act will then be repealed."

It would surprise no one familiar with Mr. Foster's plans to see a bond issue made as soon as the Sherman Enabling Act passes both Houses. The Sherman Enabling Act will probably be passed as an amendment to the sundry civil bill by the Senate.

Mr. Carlisle was at the Capitol conferring with Democratic members of the House, and the amendment will be passed in that body within a day or two. Mr. Carlisle and Mr. Foster want no questions to be raised if either determine to raise gold bonds.

Four Big Men.

LAKEWOOD, N.J., Feb. 15.—Mr. Cleveland officially announced the names of four members of his cabinet yesterday. They are Walter Q. Gresham of Illinois, Secretary of State; John J. Carlisle of Kentucky, Secretary of the Treasury; Daniel S. Lamont of New York, Secretary of War; Wilson S. Bissell of Buffalo, Postmaster-General.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

PROTEST AGAINST THE NOVA SCOTIA COAL DEAL.

The Quarantine Will Not Be Enforced By the United States In the Case of Cattle For Exhibition At the World's Fair.

OTTAWA, Feb. 16.—Yesterday was Ash Wednesday and there was no meeting of the House, quite a number of members took advantage of the holiday and the early adjournment last night to run out of town for the day. Still there are a good many members here and the talk of the lobbies has been, as was naturally to be expected, yesterday's budget debate.

The railway question has assumed a new phase, so far as Ottawa is concerned, by the announcement that the C.P.R. is contemplating the abandonment of the North Shore line between Ottawa and Montreal and substituting for it the more direct line between the two points by way of the St. Lawrence and Ottawa and Vaudreuil and Ottawa, both of which roads are now owned by the C.P.R. In this event Ottawa would become one of the divisional points on the main line and workshops would probably be located here.

The Gatineau Valley Railway is now open for 47 miles, the first train from Ottawa for Kambasma leaving the Canadian Pacific depot this afternoon.

Mr. Tarte has lost no time in making his presence known in the House. Although only introduced yesterday he has already given notice that he will move for the report of Judge Bosse in the case of McGreevy and Murphy, and also for the papers with reference to the reduction of Robert McGreevy's sentence from twelve to nine months.

The vigorous protest made by Hon. Mr. Angers and the Government against the prohibition of Canadian cattle being exhibited at Chicago, on account of the 90-day quarantine which Uncle Jerry Rusk proposed to enforce, has had the desired effect, and it is now understood that information has been received that the quarantine will not be enforced against cattle intended for exhibition, but they will be admitted on the certificate of a local veterinary surgeon that there is no contagious disease in the locality from which the animals come. This will, no doubt, give satisfaction and remove some of the feeling caused by the promulgation of the order, but it is questionable whether it will entirely remove the feeling of dissatisfaction, and the unfortunate order may still have a bad effect.

A big delegation of M.P.s and Senators will wait on Sir John Thompson in the morning to protest against the acquisition of the Nova Scotia fields by Americans, and to insist on Fielding at least modifying the terms of years covering the lease of the coal fields, and if he refuses this of asking the Imperial authorities to step in and instruct the Dominion to disallow the provincial legislation in the matter, because the empire has a vital interest in the working and freedom of these mines. The latest report is that Mr. Van Horne and Mr. McLennan, one of the Bank of Montreal directors, are in the Boston syndicate controlling the Nova Scotia fields.

HOLSTEIN-FREISIAN.

The Canadian Association Annual Meeting at Brantford.

BRANTFORD, Ont., Feb. 16.—A large and enthusiastic gathering of members of the Canadian Holstein-Friesian Association was held yesterday in the Court House. It was the annual meeting and the president, Mr. William Shunk of Sherwood, was in the chair, and Mr. D. E. Smith of Churchville, secretary.

Volume No. 1 of the new herd book was distributed, showing 400 bulls and 714 cows registered. The total number recorded to date was 427 bulls and 727 cows. The association now includes 73 members.

The receipts for the past year amounted to $813.55, and there is a cash balance to the good of $144.66.

The following officers were elected: President, R. H. Crump of Masonville; first vice-president, H. Ballert of Cassel; second vice-president, T. W. Charlton of St. George; third vice-president, R. S. Stevenson of Ancaster; fourth vice-president, R. Marshall of Edmonton; directors for two years, W. M. Shunk of Sherwood and A. Kennedy of Ayr.

THE CHIMNEY FELL.

A Drygoods Clerk in Lindsay Killed at a Fire.

LINDSAY, Ont., Feb. 16.—About 4.30 o'clock yesterday a.m. fire broke out in the eastern part of the town in the dwelling owned and occupied by Mr. William Walters. The building was a large two-story frame and was totally destroyed, only a few of the contents downstairs being saved.

A sad fatality occurred in connection with the fire. A young man named Joseph Martin, about 18 years of age, clerk in a drygoods store, lost his life. He was assisting in carrying out the furniture, when the chimney fell upon him, killing him instantly. His body was taken from the ruins in a frightfully mangled and burned condition.

Dropped a Match.

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—An alarm turned in brought the Lombard-street truck to Stong Bros.' livery stable, 7 Shuter-street, yesterday morning. The fire, which was in the front part of the stable and on the ground floor, was caused by some careless person dropping a match upon an old mattress which had been saturated with coal oil to rid it of vermin, and had been lying there for several months. A hay loft full of hay was burned and several vehicles scorched, the damage amounting to $300, fully covered by insurance in the Western.

Mr. Stong, who was sleeping in the rear of his office, and Joseph Kane and William Bowen, two employes who were also in the building, were awakened by the smell of smoke and succeeded in getting out several horses and vehicles before the truck arrived.

A G. T. R. Dividend.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—The Grand Trunk Railway Company to-day declared a dividend of 2½ per cent. on the 4 per cent. stock, making a total payment in all for the year 1892 of 3 3-8 per cent., as against 3½ per cent. dividend for the year 1891.

Died Against His Grain.

ALBANY, Feb. 16.—James Johnson, who has had charge of the Irwin malt house and elevator at Greenbush for 25 years, Tuesday entered a bin to fix a defective grain chute. His foot slipped into the opening and the grain from above fell upon and buried him. When found life was extinct.

THE IRISH HOME RULE BILL.

This measure, introduced the other day into the Imperial Parliament under circumstances that mark its immediate author as not only the greatest statesman of the century, but also as one of the greatest in English history, is the first step in giving justice to Ireland, and restoring her to a place among the nations, and still retaining her as an integral part of the great British Empire. We in Canada, who enjoy the blessings of self-government to a practically unlimited degree, with no impairment of the integrity of the bond of union, either in sentiment or actuality, can sympathize with Ireland in the prospect now presented of securing the measure of self-government that is her due. The bill which Mr. Gladstone has presented to parliament resembles in several salient features the constitution which gives Canada "home rule." As the grand old man describes his bill, it is designed "to give Ireland autonomy and self-government in all matters properly Irish." The proposed Irish legislature will consist of two chambers—a legislative council and a general legislative assembly. The members of the legislative council—the senators—whose existence implies the protection of the minority will be forty-eight in number, elected by property owners, and the general legislative assembly will number 103 members elected under the existing franchise. Under this arrangement a legislative councillor will represent a constituency composed of two or three ridings represented in the popular assembly. The constituencies which now return Irish members to the Imperial Parliament will send members to the Irish Parliament on College Green—the long-time dream of patriotic Irishmen. Ireland will still be represented in the Imperial Parliament by eighty Irish members, who will have power to discuss and vote on all distinctively imperial questions as distinguished from purely English or Scotch questions. The bill contemplates the general supremacy of the Imperial Parliament, which, like the Federal authorities at Ottawa, has the power of veto over Irish legislation as the Federal power at Ottawa has the right of veto over the acts of provincial legislatures. The judicial committee of the Privy Council will be the supreme arbiter in questions of a constitutional nature. The Irish judges are to be appointed as at present for six years when the power of appointment will pass into the hands of the Irish executive. The land question will remain in the control of the Imperial Parliament for three years, and the Irish constabulary is to be gradually reduced and replaced by local police, controlled by the Dublin executive. A viceroy, corresponding to the Governor-General under the Canadian constitution, will be appointed by the Imperial authorities. Thus the bill, while giving the Irish as liberal a measure of home rule as we enjoy, guards the tie of Imperial unity, and as in the case of Canada, local self-government will create a spirit of contentment that will tend to warm, instead of cool, the Irish heart towards the Empire. The prominent features of the bill are of the character outlined, but there are difficulties of detail that will tax the ingenuity of British statesmen; though it is not thought that their solution will be beyond the powers of a parliament disposed to be just and liberal towards a country that has had so large an experience of injustice.

Get the Best.

The public are too intelligent to purchase a worthless article a second time, on the contrary they want the best! Physicians are virtually unanimous in saying Scott's Emulsion is the best form of Cod Liver Oil.

Delay is Dangerous.

When the kidney's are out of order delay is dangerous. Any disease may follow and become so well established that months of suffering will follow. A gentle tonic like Dodd's Kidney Pills is always acceptable to the kidneys and protects them from disease. They are a kidney food.

LAKEFIELD W.C.T.U. AND LICENSE REDUCTION.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—At a meeting of the Executive of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union to consider the results of the recent action taken to reduce the number of licensed bars for the sale of intoxicating liquors in Lakefield, it was resolved, notwithstanding the encouragement afforded by the results of a canvass of voters and others made hurriedly before the February meeting of the village council (more than a third of the voters and a large number of sympathizing villagers having signed a petition asking the council to reduce the number of licenses to two), not to present the petition at present, but to continue the agitation for the purpose of producing a fair and conscientious public sentiment on the vital question of temperance. This will be done by means of literature, public meetings and practical sympathy with the victims of intemperance.

Believing that some explanation is due the voters and friends that so promptly signed the petition, and to those members of the council that may have expected the petition, and with the desire that the public generally may know of the measures taken in this matter, The Women's Christian Temperance Union ask you kindly to insert this in your esteemed paper.

HAVELOCK.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

REEVE MCAULEY RESIGNS—The village is considerably agitated over the resignation of Reeve McAuley, and it is the theme of general conversation among the ratepayers. The members of the new council were very much embarassed at the council meeting on Monday evening, when Mr. McAuley handed in his letter, asking to be relieved from the duties of reeve of the the newly incorporated municipality Being all, with one exception, comparatively inexperienced men in municipal affairs, the council feel the loss of their head very keenly; and are left very much in the position of a ship without a captain. Mr. McAuley it a strong man among the ratepayers here, and has always been looked up to as the most active and valuable public spirited citizen in Havelock, besides being the best posted man on municipal matters in the village. His loss just at the beginning of the new council work is felt on all sides to be almost irreparable, and the question, who can be found to fill his place, is the most serious one which the village has to face. Mr. McAuley's principal reason for resigning as stated in his letter, is that he finds he could not devote the necessary time and attention to the duties of Reeve which that position calls for, owing to increased business demanding his attention by the C.P.R. Company, in whose employ he holds one of the most responsible positions in this section. A strongly-worded petition is being circulated, and is already largely signed, asking Mr. McAuley to reconsider his resignation and urging him to continue on as reeve, but I learn from good authority that this will be useless, as, unfortunately, Mr. McAuley is thoroughly decided to retire.

I understand that Mr. Bryans, the efficient clerk of the village, has been instructed to take the necessary steps for holding a new election for reeve, the date of the nomination for same having been fixed for Thursday, the 23rd February. Mr. Wm. Matheson is spoken of as the most likely candidate for the position, and it is stated that he is not likely to be opposed, if he will allow himself to be nominated.

MINUTES TO BE PRINTED.—The clerk will in the future forward you regularly the minutes of the proceedings of each meeting of the village council as it occurs. Your Havelock readers will be pleased to learn that a resolution was passed at the last meeting of the council held on Monday evening, instructing the clerk to have the full minutes of every council meeting printed in the EXAMINER.

THANKS.—A very hearty vote of thanks was unanimously passed by the council to J. R. Stratton, Esq., M. P. P., for West Peterborough, for his kindness and thoughtfulness in presenting the council with complete copies of the Revised Statutes of Ontario and all the years' statutes up to the present year. The gift came at a very opportune time—just when the clerk was about to apply for an order for the statutes; and saves the village a nice little sum for the purchase of the same.

GALWAY.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Last Saturday evening 10th inst as Mr. John Kennedy (one of the early pioneers of Galway) was feeding his stock in the barnyard, he was suddenly seized with a sick spell which left him unable to walk to the house, but fortunately, the house not being far from the barn his wife overheard the call, and upon going out to where he was lying, found that she could not bring him in herself, she immediately summond the other members of the family and succeeded in carrying him into the house. He is not suffering any pain; his left arm and leg are utterly powerless. He has been troubled with rheumatism in his left leg for a number of years, otherwise he has always been a very strong and healthy man and never confined to his bed since he come to Galway. It is to be hoped that he will soon recover. He has always been a kind neighbor and willing to do any person a good turn whenever it lay in his power.

Kinmount school was opened on Tuesday; that dread disease diphtheria is banished from our midst. It carried no victims with it this time. It was of a very mild type.

Rev. E. D. Lewis preached the funeral sermon of the late Walter Douglas on Sunday evening in the Methodist church.

Revival services are being carried on this week in the Methodist church.

Mr. J. G. Manley, the venerable agent of the Upper Canada branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society, delivered a very interesting and instructive address in the Presbyterian church Tuesday evening. The following officers were elected for the Warsaw branch for the ensuing year:—Mr. Samuel Edwards, president; Mr. G. W. Reid, secretary; Mr. Thos. Choate, treasurer and depositor.

The annual meeting of the Warsaw cheese factory was held in the town hall. After discussing the question of giving dividends by means of the Babkcock test, it was decided not to do so this season at least.

The Plain Truth

Is good enough for Hood's Sarsaparilla—there is no need of embellishment or sensationalism. Simply what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, that tells the story of its merit. If you have never realisied its benefits a single bottle will convince you it is a good medicine.

LAKEFIELD.

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Everything is so very quiet in our village that it is hard to obtain any items of interest.

Our citizens were shocked on Saturday morning to hear of the sudden death of Mrs. John Crickmore, which had occurred at an early hour from angina pectoris. She had spent the previous evening in the family circle and had retired in her usual health; shortly after some of the family heard her moaning and going into the room, found her unconscious. Medical assistance was at once procured but the end soon came. The funeral was held on Monday to the Hillside Cemetery.

Two rinks of the Peterborough curlers came up on Saturday to play a friendly game with the Lakefield men but were defeated by a score of 42 to 16.

The village assessor will start on his annual round on Wednesday. The ratepayers should aid him as much as possible to obtain correct returns.

THE BUSINESS DONE BY THE COUNCIL.

A regular meeting of the village council was held in the town hall on Monday evening, the 13th. Present—the Reeve, in the chair, and Messrs. Lillicrap, Burgess and Moore. After routine, the clerk presented the report asked for at the last meeting in regard to the work done by Mr. Doidge in 1892. The report was on motion received and adopted. The auditors' report was ordered to be published. The Roads and Bridge Committee presented their report detailing arrangements made for keeping the sidewalks clear of snow, which was adopted. The Finance Committee presented their report, recommending payment of the following accounts:

Dumble & Leonard, legal acc	$14 50
John Edwards cleaning snow	17 50
Lakefield Lumber Co., boards	60
Jonathan Griffin, work	25
Dr. Bell, Board of Health	15 00
	$47 85

The report was adopted. A by-law to re-appoint Wm. Doidge to the offices of assessor, collector, etc., and increasing his salary $25 was passed. The council adjourned to meet at the call of the reeve.

It was expected that the second petition that was circulated to close up some of the hotels would be presented to the council but it did not materialize.

By referring to the auditors' report it is seen that during the year 1892 the corporation received from all sources the sum of $6990.68 and expended the sum of $6925.13, leaving a balance in the treasurer's hands on the 1st of January, 1893, of $275.55. The total assets of the village is $12067.41, and the total liabilities $10,040, leaving a balance in favor of the village of $2027.41—a statement which should prove satisfactory to the ratepayers.

Root and Branch,

the poison in your blood, however it may have come or whatever shape it may be taking, is cleared away by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a remedy that rouses every organ into healthful action, purifies and enriches the blood, and through it cleanses and invigorates the whole system. Salt Rheum, Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Enlarged Glands, and the worst Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, are perfectly and permanently cured by it.

Unlike the ordinary spring medicines or sarsaparillas, the "Discovery" works equally well at all seasons. All the year round and in all cases, it is GUARANTEED, as no other blood medicine is. If it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back. You pay only for the good you get.

Isn't it safe to say that no other blood purifier can be "just as good?"

If it were, wouldn't it be sold so?

TO BE OR NOT TO BE "IN IT."
A Life Agent called at a friend's place one day,
HE WASN'T IN IT;
He had seen "the bore" coming and fled from his way
HE WASN'T IN IT;
He had heard so much said, he was tired and sick
Of insurance and agents—'twas all a blank trick,
When one's coil must be shuffled to win it,
HE WASN'T IN IT.

A bit of a draft blew o'er his bald head,
HE WAS IN IT;
Pneumonia sent him straightway to his bed,
HE STAYED IN IT;
His doctor made of it a "quite special" case,
To save him for running still more of life's race,
But the grave took some chances to win it,
AND HE'S IN IT.

When approached by a gent for insuring your life,
GET RIGHT IN IT;
It's the right thing to do for your children and wife,
THEN STAY IN IT.
Remember that fires take your goods "out of sight,"
And that accidents happen each day and each night.
While insurance protects every minute,
IF YOU'RE IN IT.

A Bank Manager's Opinion.
HE IS "IN IT."
The General Manager of one of the leading banks in Canada, writing to a personal friend, says:—"I have no hesitation in saying that I place the CANADA LIFE upon the highest platform. It is in my opinion carefully, economically and honestly managed; its Reserve Funds are well invested; its rates of Premiums are low, and its future is, I think better assured than a great majority of Companies. I have my own life insured in the Company for a round amount, and would not hesitate to increase the amount of my policies should I decide upon taking out further insurance."

A Government Insurance Actuary's Opinion
On the Relation between Ordinary and Tontine Service.
It is frequently assertedby Companies whose business is nearly all tontined, that although the CANADA LIFE may and does pay large ordinary profits, yet it cannot compare so favourably on a long term distribution or tontine period, and that in the end better results can be obtained on a tontine policy in a large American Co. than on an ordinary or tontine policy in the CANADA LIFE. To prove the absurdity of this statement, the following piece of common sense is quoted from Mervin Tabor, late Actuary of the Illinois Goverment Insurance Department. In his well known book, "The Three Systems of Life Insurance," he says: "A company that gives large dividends on the ordinary kind of policies, can give much larger on the same kinds when Tontined, and a company that pays but meagre dividends on the usual forms, adopting perhaps the Tontine system to "cover up" its small surpluses, cannot be relied on for large returns of surplus under the Tontine Forms of Insurance."
The CANADA LIFE does not "cover up" its Quinquennial profits as some Companies do, but publishes them throughout the country.
It can and does surpass other Companies on Quinquennial profits. It should and will surpass them on Tontine profits.
WHY TO BE "IN IT."
BISHOP HAWKE'S REASON:—"I claim that Life Insurance is not only a humane, but I might say a Christian Institution."
LORD LYNDHURST'S REASON:—"A Policy of Life Insurance is always an evidence of prudent forethought. No man with a dependent family is free from reproach if not insured."
WHEN TO BE "IN IT."
The younger, the cheaper. Therefore insure when young. Besides by insuring in the CANADA LIFE now, you will share in three years' profits.
WHERE TO BE "IN IT."
The best place to be "in it" is in the Company that gives the best returns for the least money, consistent with absolute security. Therefore, in order to be "in it," choose the Bell Telephone Metallic Circuits.

Mr. T. H. Wadlin, of Hamilton, superintendent of construction of the Bell Telephone Company, was in town yesterday, and in company with Mr. Geo. L. Schaffer, formerly manager of the Peterborough Exchange, did a big day's work. The company have decided to put in complete metallic circuit lines in all their services in Peterborough and Ashburnham, which embraces some 300 subscribers. The present plant will be entirely rebuilt, a new and improved switch board put in, and each instrument now in use will be connected by another wire—thus removing by induction the buzzing sound often heard. The construction gang, under the superintendency of Mr. Schaffer, will begin work next week. Peterborough, when the extensive improvements are completed will be the only town or city in Ontario having a complete metallic circuit in all parts. Negotiations are now in progress for the removal of the company's office on Simcoe street to larger and more commodious quarters, but as yet nothing definite has been arranged.

THE FIREMEN ON A RUN.

Called Out by the Inspector of the Underwriters' Association — Good Time Made.

The following is a copy of the correspondence which has recently passed between the secretary of the local Board of Trade and the secretary of the Underwriters' Association,

PETERBOROUGH, Feb. 11th, 1893.

Mr. Robt. McLean, Fire Underwriter's Association:

DEAR SIR.—Will you be kind enough to tell me, from what you know of the Peterborough Fire Brigade, if the purchase of a chemical standard engine would raise our class to "A."

Yours truly,
HAMPDEN BURNHAM.

REPLY.

Canadian Fire Underwriter's Association,
TORONTO, Feb. 15th, 1893.

DEAR SIR.—Your favour, dated February, received, I find in looking over report of Peterborough fire appliances on fyle in this office that I have no report on waterworks in your town. Also that some doubt existed in regard to your fire brigade. I therefore wrote at once to our inspector, who was in the neighborhood of your town, to make a thorough inspection of the waterworks and fire appliances. On receipt of his report I will look into the matter and give information requested.

Yours truly,
ROBT. McLEAN, Sec'y.

In connection with the above Mr. Forsyth, Inspector of the Underwriters Association visited Peterborough yesterday and brought about a test of the brigade and waterworks. The firemen were called out without the slightest warning yesterday afternoon by an alarm sent in from Dr. Boucher's residence on Water street. The firemen responded with their usual alacrity and promptness and made a run of a half mile to the hydrant between London and McDonel streets, and had two streams ready to throw upon the fire in case there should have been one, in the creditably quick time of 2¾ minutes, with 1,000 feet of hose in the waggon, which record will equal that of any city fire brigade in the province. This was the time taken by Mr. Forsyth. Not one of the officers of the brigade had any intimation that the inspector was in town and Mr. Cahill, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee was only aware a few minutes previously that the brigade would be called out. In regard to the water pressure the nearest hydrant was affected by frost freezing the surface water about the sludge valves. However there was hose to reach other hydrants in case water had been needed for a fire and sufficient pressure from the pump house for all necessary purposes.

Every drop of the auctioneer's hammer brings a bargain.

A Lady Superintendent Appointed.

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Nicholls Hospital held on Tuesday afternoon the appointment of lady superintendent was awarded to Mrs. O'Donovan, of Toronto, and remained open for acceptance until to-day. A communication was received yesterday from Mrs. O'Donovan, accepting the position. The new lady superintendent who will succeed the late Miss Ballantyne comes highly recommended. She has had several years experience, is a graduate of the Montreal General Hospital, and a gold medalist of the graduating class. No doubt the appointment is a good one. Mrs. O'Donovan will assume her duties on March 1st.

We call atteention to the advertisement of Prof. Dorenwend, the leading manufacturer of hair goods in Canada. He will be at Phelan's hotel on Saturday, Feb. 25th, with a large stock of every conceivable form of hair goods coverings for both ladies and gentlemen. Our lady readers should call on the professor and see the great improvement that can be made in their appearance by using these goods. They are light and natural in appearance, and their detection is impossible. Gentlemen, there are thousands of the leading men of Canada who are wearing Dorenwend's half and full wigs. Why don't you use them rather than go around with your head bare when nature intended it to be covered? Call on the Prof, and be convinced that not only will your appearance be improved by using these goods, but greater comfort will be secured.

MECHANICS' INSTITUTE DRAWING CLASSES.

The Work They are Doing—Excellent Samples of Mechanical Drawing—Practical Work Practically Taught—Good Results.

Last night a representative of the EXAMINER passed a pleasant quarter hour in the class room of the Mechanics' Institute in capable charge of Mr. Robert Logan, Hamilton. He found diligently at work at their drawing boards, bristling with the instruments and appliances used in mechanical drawing, 25 students, exhibiting of course different degrees of proficiency in proportion to natural aptitude, educational opportunities, and length of time under instruction; but the manner in which the several students of all grades treated the work in hand, and the beautiful samples of finished work, bore testimony to the excellent practical nature of the instruction imparted. The finished drawings, which are exclusively mechanical working drawings, show a great deal of proficiency, and some of them will, one can safely predict, figure in the Ontario section at the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago. These drawings, with similar ones from other places will be sent to the Ontario Commissioner, Toronto, and selections will be made of the most worthy to be sent to the World's Exposition, and if exact and finely-finished work goes to the selection of Exposition samples, this town will certainly not be overlooked.

The members of this class are almost all young men employed in our large manufacturing establishments and working daily from plans similar to these they are taught in these classes to make for themselves. The advantages these young men themselves derive are obvious as well as the prompter and more intelligent work they are able to give their employers. Those not really engaged in mechanical pursuits are students preparing for the mechanical engineering department of the universities, and one young lady who is taking lessons doubtless from the motive of being usefully employed. The class has a capable and painstaking instructor, and shows a commendable intelligence and industry in profitting by his teaching.

The course consists of 25 lessons and for every student attending 20 lessons of the course, the Mechanics' Institute gets a government grant, and each pupil is entitled to a rebate of half the fee of $2 for 25 lessons. The rebate of $1 is more than a rebate for it constitutes the membership fee of the Institute, giving the student all the privileges of the Institute; at the end of the term examinations are held—this year on the 23rd instant—and for every pupil that passes, the Government grants $4 to the local Insiitute. Thus, if fifty per cent. of the present class passes, the Government grant will cover the expense of instruction.

The advantage of these classes cannot be overestimated and if their benefits were more generally known there would, doubtless, be larger classes. The instruction given, trains mind and hand and eye, and the mechanic who takes a course like this in mechanical drawing is, in all respects, a far better workman than he would be without it.

In addition to the classes in mechanical drawing on Wednesday evenings, Mr. Hamilton teaches on Tuesday evenings a class of 14 or 15 in mensuration, a study of the last importance in relation to the profitable study of mechanical drawing.

The Mechanic's Institute in this, as in other departments of its usefulness, is doing a very important work, and the present president and board of directors are doing their duty faithfully in providing for its members the full enjoyment of the great benefit it affords.

CRISP CURLING CHRONIQUETS.

What is Going on at the Rink—Where Curlers Meet to Congregate.

At the rink last night the two rinks which went to Lakefield on Saturday, played a third game for the oysters, with the result that the ashes were turned this time, and Skip Boucher after compelling Skip McNeil to pay for the oysters twice, had to pay for his opponents this time. Fourteen ends were played. Following is the score:

The Home Circle.

Mr. J. C. Williamson, of Toronto, representing the order of Canadian Home Circles, is in town, organizing a branch Circle in Peterborough. This society is a friendly, benevolent and beneficiary one, and is one of the few that admits ladies into the circle with all the advantages of their gentlemen friends. It is also the cheapest insurance in the Dominion, the average annual cost for $4,000 benefit, including all lodge dues, age 30, about $16.80. If 24 years of age the annual cost would be about $12.18. It is purely Canadian and is deserving of a large membership. Mr. Williamson will be in town for a few days, and any person desiring fuller information may obtain same from Dr. Carmichael or Chief Rossel.

Mrs. Mary E. O'Fallon, a very intelligent lady of Piqua, Ohio, was poisoned while assisting physicians at an autopsy 5 years ago, and soon terrible ulcers broke out on her head, arms, tongue and throat. Her hair all came out. She weighed but 78 lbs., and saw no prospect of help. At last she began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and at once improved; could soon get out of bed and walk. She says: "I became perfectly cured by and am now a well woman. I weigh 126 lbs., eat well and do the work for a large family. My case seems a wonderful recovery and physicians look at me in astonishment, as almost like one raised from the dead."

Interesting Letter From Mr. Cluxton—The Odor of Orange Groves by Mail—The Pleasures and Delights of "The Land of Flowers"—The Cost of Such Luxuries—A Letter Full of Instructive Detail.

HOTEL INDIAN RIVER, FLA.,
ROCKLEDGE, Feb. 10th, 1893.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

MY DEAR SIR,—I am not unmindful of your request and my promise.

First—I would be sorry if any thing I may say might induce or encourage any one who can stand the Canadian winter with safety, to make this long and fatiguing journey.

Second—It is an expensive amusement travelling from Peterborough to the Sunny South; one "pays too much for the whistle."

Expenses—One object of this letter is to endeavour to give information that may be useful to persons who may contemplate coming to this land of flowers.

I think a person who could rough it a little and economize, might venture to start on ten dollars per day, from the time he left home until he returned; although I would not advise it. At $12 per day one could stay at decent hotels and get along middling comfortably, but at $15 per day one could keep in sight of the Americans, who scatter money about as if it had no value. But $100 on this side represented by the silver dollar—is only worth about $80, while the Canadian dollar, based on gold, costs 100 cents, so that Canadians, in my opinion, pay 20% in this way more than the Americans.

The charge for board at the Ponce De Leon, St. Augustine, the finest hotel in the world, which cost between three and four million dollars, is from $5 to $35 per per day, according to the accommodation given. At the Hotel Indian River, where we are staying, the lowest rate is $28, each person, per week. At New York the price is about $8 per day, and at Washington $6—and so on.

But beside the cost of board a man has his hand in his pocket continually "tipping" waiters, porters and servants. "If one looks at a man in New York it is a quarter dollar, and if you speak to him it is a half." The price of a section for one night in a sleeping car is $7, in addition to the railway fare.

There is no drinking here, and that is a saving of money. At the Plaza New York, I bought a glass of ale and the price was fifteen cents, and it was a small one at that. There is something in the climate and air of Florida that turns one against liquor. I tried some "lager bier" at dinner, but I had to give it up. But what they save in drinking

THEY MAKE UP IN SMOKING.

I don't smoke. The price of cigars at this hotel is from 15 to 25 cents each. All smoke cigars, one seldom sees a tobacco pipe here.

On the other hand I am glad we have escaped the rigor of a northern winter. I am utterly unable adequately to describe this most delightful climate and the fascinating tropical scenery. [I must leave off here. I am called to take a walk.]

Rockledge is, I think, the most beautiful and desirable resort in Florida. It is situated on the west bank of the beautiful Indian river. The river—an arm of the sea—in front of the hotel is one and a quarter miles wide. There is another river—the Banana—between Rockledge and the ocean, which is distant seven miles. The latter river is filled with islands covered with tropical trees and plants.

The Hotel Indian River fronts the river and cost, with the grounds, $100,000. It is in a Palmetto grove with handsome grounds and fine hard sanded walks which are dressed every morning.

In the rear of the hotel is one of the best orange groves in the state, where guests are allowed to walk and pull the oranges and lemons off the trees.

Oranges have a different taste and aroma to the oranges we are accustomed to. No one here would touch a Peterborough orange. If one pulls an orange off the tree and cuts it he gets a drink, and the juice flies over his clothes. If a person should use sugar at the table with oranges he would attract attention and be stared at. The oranges are sweet.

The young orange trees are planted in rows 25 feet apart. The young budded (grafted) trees bear at 8 years, and the seedlings at 10 years. Odd trees bear a few oranges at 4 and 5 years. A good tree at 10 years will bear ten boxes of oranges. A tree at 40 years will bear from four to six thousand oranges. One tree in Orange county, near Sanford, 40 years of age, bore eight thousand oranges in one year. The orange tree is a gross feeder. Each tree requires twenty pounds of fertilizer every year. The fertilizer costs $38 per ton in barrels laid down in groves. The fertilizer is not put to the root of the trees, it is put between the rows of the trees, under the branches, and is thus absorbed by the extended roots. A box contains from 96 to 120 oranges, according to the size, but from 156 to 176 are the best sizes. The trees bloom in the end of February or beginning of March, and the oranges are not ripe until the following December or January. Of course

THERE IS ONLY ONE CROP IN THE YEAR.

Odd trees sometimes have green and ripe oranges at the same time, but when this is the case there is something wrong with the trees. Like apple trees the orange alternates—one year a poor crop and the next year a full crop. The Indian River oranges are the finest in the state. I paid $3.00 for a box here last week. It is raining to-day. When it rains here "it pays attention to it." When a cloud makes up its mind to discharge a shower, it lets go, and it is well to stand from under.

The temperature here is from 78 to 82°. But at 10 o'clock every morning the trade wind come down the river and one can sit on the wharf in the sun. I never saw such beautiful, bright, soft, balmy weather; it makes one so lazy. I think nothing of sitting with the crowd of other lazy people on the piazza from breakfast time until dinner, listening to the orchestra and watching the different craft, steamers, launches, yachts and row boats moving about on the river. In the air there are hundreds of lazy turkey buzzards floating about; they never move a wing. These birds are scavengers. In New Orleans there is a fine of $5.00 imposed on any one who shoots one of these birds. These birds are Sabbatarians, they go into the city ever day except Sunday and keep it in a sanitary condition. We have the noisy blue-jay and flocks of blackbirds, robins and crows, but these learn active habits in Canada in summer and do not seem to change here.

I went up the river on a steamer yesterday with a party to Fairyland, to see the pine-apple and other plantations. The pine-apples are planted in rows like cabbages, but have a very different leaf. One plant bears three or four pine-apples, but then they are small in size. By plucking off all but one, they produce the largest size. Fairyland belongs to a German doctor who has lived there 23 years. I wish I were able to describe the beauties of the tropical trees with drooping Spanish moss, which hangs down in great quantities, several yards long, from the live oaks and other trees all over this country.

We crossed a small lake, Silver Lake, to the doctor's in a scow, and walked over his place to Banana Lake. These waters are full of fish—I never saw such jumping. One would think they were playing leap frog. They would jump 4 feet out of the water, rush on about six feet in the air, tumble down and up and down again, flying through the water. The boy said they often jumped into his boat. The cause of all this commotion was they were chased by larger fishes. The river is full of fish and wild ducks. I counted 35 fishes, different kinds, lying on the lawn the other evening, brought in by gentlemen who were out in a boat. I saw a man who caught a large fish with small hooks and line; he tried to drown it for half an hour, and at last had to bring it ashore to land it. We have large oysters cooked in all sorts of ways on the table every day.

We have heard in the north a good deal about insect life and fleas in Florida. We have seen nothing of the kind, but we have alligators and rattlesnakes, and that is plague enough.

Yours truly,
W. CLUXTON.

THE FASCINATION OF COASTING.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—Chemong for Tobogganing is away below par in Ashburnham now. For more than a week past the hill at the east end of Elizabeth street has been literally converted into a coasting course, from Mr. Conroy's gate to J. Sullivan's shop a distance of about one third of a mile, covered in half a minute. Boys, girls, men and women sitting and lying all clinging tightly to an eight or ten foot board bolted to a couple of bob sleighs, with breathless suspense pass over the icey surface of the hill at a speed that resembles nothing so much as falling off a swing. When the steersman is at home the ride often results in a tangle or snarl quite comical to observe from the spectator's point of view. To steer is one of those things that every one can do so nicely, of course it is so simple, pshaw, who couldn't? So thought a couple of onlookers last evening, till they tried it each, but their third ride and all subsequent rides were taken under the guidance of an eight year old expert who has learned the crooks and curves, the hollows and ridges, where the swings and swerves and the bumps and thumps are felt most forcibly by experience. They are convinced that it is pleasanter sticking to the bobs for the whole distance, with all the bumping and thumping than rolling or sliding for half a dozen rods on one's coat-tails. But all jokes aside, there is a fascination about this sport that is not felt in tobogganing. With the toboggan on a slide little or none of the skill is exercised in guiding the ship, nor comparatively any of the nerve required to keep possession of your place on the smooth flat board, bolstered six or eight inches above the glassy but roughened surface of the street. One who has had a few rides and rolls, slides and tangles, with cuts and bruises and narrow escapes from running into telephone poles, can understand and fully appreciate the really admirable skill of the many infant and juvenile pilots on such a course.

Danger! Of course there is danger, when a dozen or more sleighs are going and coming continually up and down the hill. But just there is where nerve and skill is evinced by the youthful pilots. They dodge everything, and come right side up almost every time. It's the older and knowing (?) ones that roll, and slide and tangle. Why some of the eight and ten year olds make the run standing on single sleighs, and Goughs' pointers. Few, very few, teams or single rigs use that part of the street, and the electric light is ample protection against accidents from that side.

Thanking you for the space in your valuable paper, I remain,

Yours truly,
EMBRYO SLEIGH RIDER.

BROTHERHOOD OF ST. ANDREW

THEIR WORK, PRINCIPLES, OBJECTS AND AIMS EXPOUNDED.

Outspoken Religion—Two Thoughtful and Impressive Addresses Delivered—Not Afraid to Show their Colours—The Powerful Gathering at Kingston—The Brotherhood a New Set of Laymen Altogether—Large Congregation Present.

The first of the series of special Wednesday evening services during the Lenten season, was held in St. John's church last evening, and was well attended. There was a contingent of seven brethren from the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, Omemee, and also some from Havelock, present. They, together with a number of brethren from St. John's Chapter, No. 6, occupied seats near the chancel. The brethren of the local chapter gave the visitors, who arrived in the afternoon, a very cordial reception. Tea was served by the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's to the visito s in the Sunday school room from six to seven o'clock, and a very pleasant time was spent. At eight o'clock they all attended church. The opening service was conducted by Rev. C. B. Kenrick. These weekly Wednesday evening services will be alternately addressed by clergy and laymen, under the auspices of St. Andrew's Brotherhood. The meeting last evening was addressed by the latter, the speakers being Mr. S. R. German, of Belleville, a prominent and handworking brotherhood man, and Mr. N. F. Davidson, of Toronto, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of St. Andrew. Rev. Mr. Kenrick announced that Mr. Spencer Waugh, of Toronto, general secretary, who was to have spoken was unable to be present owing to illness.

OUTSPOKEN RELIGION.

Mr. Gorman, who was the first speaker, gave a stirring and powerful address. His points were well taken and his suggestions practical. In his opening remarks Mr. Gorman expressed the responsibility he felt in speaking, but as the invitation had come from the rector and curate he felt it his duty to come. He came to speak to them as man to man, and not clergy to the people. The speaker referred to the great brotherhood meeting they had held recently in Christ church, Belleville, at which he was one of the speakers. But he came to speak on the subject of "Outspoken Religion." The question was where to begin. All religion must come from prayer, as the river has its source from the tiny rain drop which falls from the clouds. We were particular about our bodies, to see that they were well fed and well nutured, but our souls were starving and were we attending to them? The religion going out from our souls was unspoken religion. The politicians of to-day were not afraid to state publicly their convictions and principles and hold out their side of the cause How about religion? We go to church on Sunday because it is considered respectable, but when Sunday is over that is generally an end to our piety. Do we say anything to our friends about out religion? Are we outspoken and do we act out our religion? The speaker feared the great majority went through the prayers and the service and went away again. They should act out those vows which Christ exacted, towards our fellowmen. Mr. Gorman said some of them appeared to be ashamed because they were churchmen instead of being honorable and acting it out. If they went into church with the idea of entering heartily into the service, realizing where they were, and devoutly worship, they could not help but inspire others by their side and make them believe and act. As brotherhood men they must be honest in their actions and dealings with one another. They should be pure, as their bodies were the dwelling of the Holy Ghost. They were all judged by their acts and must be honest and self-denying. The whole time of man in the present day appeared to be utilized and absorbed by each one in making the almighty dollar and accummulating wealth. How many thought of a fallen brother? We read, "Seek ye first the kingdom of heaven and all these things shall be added unto you." But man had mad thirst for riches. They must have the love of Christ in their hearts. He was the only perfect man. All must look back to him of the Incarnation when he took upon himself the form of a man. He was our tender guider—our great head.

JUST WENT TO CHURCH,

The brotherhood now had three different injunctions to observe besides the rule of prayer and the rule of service. The speaker expounded these at some length. They should be huntsmen going up and down the alleys seeking souls, which were the brotherhood's game. They should be fishermen. They were to stand in the background, put Christ the Lord and Saviour in front. Another mistake about brotherhood men. They was not enough of love, sympathy and affection in their natures. The best man to save a fellowman from sin and degradation was a man who had gone through the same vicissitudes and experiences as his fallen brother, but who, by God's grace, had risen from his former state. The fallen man felt this was practical sympathy. While self denying and filled with the love of Christ, they should be loyal to their church. What church? some one would ask. They must be loyal to that church which Christ had purchased with His own blood, which He created for the rich and poor alike. They must not allow prejudice to hang around and divide them into classes. Very many have been lost from their church through stiffness, coldness and indifference. They had built churches, yes, and filled them with icebergs. The speaker had been in many churches where it was warmer outside than inside. They were sorry for these losses, but the work was only to bring others into the Kingdom but turn these back. We must do this by making them feel that they are in their Father's house The speaker closed his address by stating that as Brotherhood men they must be irrepressible Christians, and exercise persistency in striving to get others into the Kingdom. As Brotherhood men they ought to have their hearts filled with love and know each other better. One of his hobbys, and in fact of all Brotherhood men, was to have the house of God free as the air we breathe—no rented pews. This change was eventually coming and he strongly invited all pewholders who desired to see this change to join the Brotherhood in this good, noble and right change. Mr. Gorman paid a deserving tribute to the local Brotherhood, and said as brothers all over they had no use for anyone disloyal to his colours, Brotherhood or Church.

THE GREAT CONVENTION AT KINGSTON.

Mr. N. F. Davidson, of Toronto, President of the Canadian Brotherhood of St. Andrew, and brother of Rev. Mr. Davidson, rector of St. John's, followed in an interesting half hours' address. After a few introductory remarks he expressed his willingness as an outside brother to address local brethren, as by so doing they mutually received encouragement, help and inspiration. He knew the local chapter had an influence outside of the town and he instanced striking cases of this and how brotherhood men were to be found all over the country, greeting and helping one another. Mr. Davidson then reviewed the wonderful and extraordinary gathering of St. Andrew's Brotherhood in Kingston. There was great power present, not the power of the 150 delegates present but the power and inspiration that came from on high and not from the words spoken. He did not think any one could review the impressions without coming to this conclusion. No charms of oratory made the occasion memorable. All the speakers were earnest and simple because they had something to say to their fellow men which they experienced and felt. Many had never spoken before, but their utterances appealed to all because they were words of genuineness and truth. It was a love of which invited their attention and being ready to do whatever work God had put before them to do. The brothers all learned humility and obedience and gained lessons without number. The speaker referred to the impressive and solemn meetings members of the Brotherhood had had at the Penitentiary and at the Workingmgmen's Sunday afternoon meeting in Kingston. They will reap an immense amount of good if they could only put in practice the truth of what they had seen and learned at the convention. Their responsibility, which they often heard from the pulpit but hardly ever put in practice, was deeply impressed upon them. Other matters of weight were the strong exemplification of brotherhood and the true fraternal spirit which animated the men. The effect was made most hopeful for the brotherhood the church and the country. Mr. Davidson believed in the power of hope to carry us over obstacles and difficulties. They must have faith. The power of the Brotherhood was to raise up an entirely new stamp of laymen and present a front to the century never known before by it of true example and aggressive religion.

At the close an offertory was made up to defray expenses of the service. Rev. Mr. Symonds, rector of St. Luke's will deliver the address at the next regular Wednesday evening service.

The visitors consisted of the Rev. Wilson McCann, of Omemee, and five of his Chapter: also of the Rev. Mr. Pickford, of Havelock.

A joint conference of the visiting and local chapters, held yesterday evening after the tea kindly furnished by the ladies provided for an exchange of ideas on Brotherhood work. After the service, the members met Mr. N. F. Davidson, President of the Canadian Brotherhood, in the vestry.

VOLUMES COULD BE WRITTEN, filled with the testimony of women who have been made well and strong by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It's a medicine that's made especially to build up women's strength and to cure women's ailments—an invigorating, restorative tonic, soothing cordial, and bracing nervine; purely vegetable, non-alcoholic, and pertectly harmless. For all the functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses that afflict womankind, the "Favorite Prescription" is the only guaranteed remedy.

It's a legitimate medicine that corrects and cures. If it doesn't benefit or cure, you have your money back.

It must have been the medicine for most women, or it couldn't be sold on any such terms.

Isn't it likely to be the medicine for you?

CONVERSATION.

A Chapter on the Difficult Art of Parlor Chat.

"Have you remarked how difficult continued and varying conversation is to ignorant people? Occasionally you meet a good raconteur among them, an adept story teller, but even he becomes vague and lost for ideas in general conversation."

This was said casually in a drawing-room tete-a-tete by a cultured lady who is notedly brilliant herself as a conversationalist.

The assertion is only partly true. There are incessant talkers by nature who will prattle their parts to the finish, no matter how unlearned they be. Of course a conscious person among the untutored and ignorant will soon exhaust his ideas and lose his self control amid a superior company of spirited colloquists.

The facility of social conversation is by no means always an attribute of education. One may be a learned doctor, a profound philosopher, a wonderful scientist, yet play but a sorry part in a salon where the tact of light conversation is the gauge of merit; and per contra, there are parlor heroes, illiterate and of decided mental shallowness, who with a little good humor and much self-confidence succeed in establishing the claim for positive cleverness. These number very many.

Outside the literary and learned assemblies our drawing-room conversations are immethodical; they pass rapidly from subject to subject, eschewing serious subjects, excluding long stories. The discussions must be cheerful, witty by times, seasoned perhaps with bits of inoffensive raillery and good-humored sarcasms, and the wide apart grave reflections when evoked must be brief. To amplify these would be to bore the listeners who are there for amusement only. Conversation is the alpha and omega of the drawing room. The cultured boys take to it heartily for a first bright, trying sensation. In the later years of care and responsibilities, if the taste remains as it should, it becomes a healthy intellectual recreation. The girls very properly adhere to it always.

The facility of social conversation is inspired in the main by nature. Without the born gift it is hard to acquire it in youth; in old age impossible.

The left-handed compliment once paid Oliver Goldsmith will be recalled—that he wrote like an angel and talked like a parrot. A celebrated astronomer—perhaps Sir Isaac Newton—is said to have courted a lady for long years, sitting and smoking his pipe nightly beside her, but never uttering a word.

Without multiplying instances these few may suffice to show that awkwardness and paucity of drawing-room conversation belong often to the intelligent and learned, and capable, though more often they are the attributes of the ignorant and untaught.

The great Napoleon, celebrated for his moderation in other respects, appears to have been quite an extremist on this subject. He avers that the French Revolution triumphed largely through the chattering coxcombs in the King's Court, explaning it thus: The beautiful Queen of Louis XVI., at their happy period, had attracted about the throne all the most graceful, witty and glib-tongued youths of the nobility. These, in turn, by their caustic witticisms and sly impertinences, had driven away from the court all the plain but able soldiers, statesmen and men of merit. At the hour of need the solid men were all gone, and there remained only the butterflies. Clearly the road was open, and King and Queen followed the other trooping victims to the guillotine.

In conclusion, social conversation is a graceful and pleasure-giving accomplishment. It can go farther—it may be made an active accessory of cultivation, mental and moral. It ought to be fostered at home and taught with care and system in the schools. But it should be kept down to a minor place in the catalogue of personal attainments and embellishments. It should be developed and utilized as a means only in the more serious acts of life, and as a relaxation, not as showy end.

Confidences.

"I promised never to say anything about that, so you must not mention it." How often after some particular confidence do you hear this remark, the speaker evidently not seeing how his own words are accusing him of a lack of loyalty and a breach of trust. He has given his word that what was told him should go no further, and yet at this, perhaps his first opportunity he tells the whole story to some friend, without ever stopping to think whether he has the right.

His advice or help may have been sought, and that only after much hesitation his friend fearing to trust his secret to anyone, but encouraged by the thought that no one else need know it. Yet this unworthy confident, without a second thought, betrays his trust. Even if told that he was doing so, he probably would look very much surprised, and say: "Oh no! I made Jones promise to say nothing, and of course he went."

But Why "of course"? In all probability what he himself has done is exactly what his friend will do. So the story goes, until the poor man to whom it means so much might just as well have called together a large company of his friends, and some who were not his friends, and confided in them in a body.—Harper's Bazar.

No flowery rhetoric can tell the merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla as well as the cures accomplished by this excellent medicine.

Reduced to a Science.

A CLUSTER

Is the Special Name For the Feathers Illustrated.

We used to trim our hats with a mere bunch of feathers, and a bow. Now every particular way of bunching feathers, and each different twist of ribbon has a special name. We have all learned what the "Prince of Wales" feathers are, and now comes a new kind of bunching that rejoices in the designation of "Cronstadt." Two little feathers just of a size and length, curl their tips over side by side. At their base two still shorter twin feathers curl their little tips over. A few strands of feathers are curled about at the back, to add finish to the lower part of the bunch, and that is all there is to it. The Cronstadt is very perky and pretty at the back of the new toques that young girls are wearing. A black bunch of this kind is to be seen in the accompanying picture. It sets at the back of a red velvet round toque, which has a broad band of black astrachan for brim. The astrachan is not set in a stiff band; it is rather a soft piece of the fur, held in place by ornaments of jet. The velvet top is also drawn into folds irregularly, and at the back the "Cronstadt" nods and bobs. The pretty dark hair of the girl who should wear such a toque is drawn away from the temples and curls in a ring or so just at the forehead. The black eyes are as bright as the jet in the brim of the hat, or buckle that holds the collar of her cloak. As for her cheeks and lips, have I not said that she is young? Need I say more? Go out and see for yourself.

Save the Drawn Threads.

When threads are drawn in new table-linen to keep the hems straight, don't throw away the drawn threads. Instead, wind them carefully on empty spools. When your tablecloths or napkins begin to grow thin, nothing will darn the worn places so well or so strongly as the new drawn threads.

A Log Jardiniere.

A unique idea for a jardiniere is to take a small log of wood, hollow it out and fill the cavity with flowers. The effect is rustic and artistic. Ferns should line the hollow before the flowers are put in. It would be specially effective at a rustic luncheon.

Consumptives, Cheer up!

You are not going to die if you will but exercises a little common sense, and spend a paltry sum. You may be very feeble now, sitting bolstered up in the big arm-chair, but you may now throw up your hat or bonnet, and shout for joy! Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil will save you if you take it according to directions. What you need is good new blood and rebuilt tissues. If you take Miller's Emulsion you will gain from five to ten pounds of flesh with each bottle. There is no use wasting words. A hint should be enough to a consumptive of the fact that Miller's preparation of Cod Liver Oil SAVES. In big bottles, 50c. and $1, at all Drug Stores.

Couldn't Keep on His Feet.

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 31st, 1892.

To the Peterborough Medicine Company:

GENTLEMEN,—If there is any medicine in the world that I pin my faith to it is Membray's Kidney and Liver Cure. In my business I have to stand on my feet a good deal. About a year ago my back began to give out, weakening pains set in across my kidneys, I felt tired all the time and could hardly stand up to my work. I began to lose strength and at last had to give up work altogether. A customer advised me to try your cure which I did. Before half the bottle was used, I felt the pains and weakness leaving me and to-day I enjoy good health and can bear fatigue and work all right. One bottle was all I used.

ALF. HASKILL, barber.

TWO FAILURES

The Total Liabilities in One Aggregate $34,000, and in the Other $17,000.

TORONTO, Feb. 15.—A meeting of the creditors of Begg & Co. of Collingwood was held yesterday in this city, when the assignee, John McClung, brought down the statement showing liabilities of $23,935, and assets of $12,607, leaving an apparent deficit of $11,327. The firm consisted of C. C. Begg, but the real man in the concern was W. G. Begg, who managed the whole business.

An assignment was made by this firm about three years ago, when they compromised at 75 cents on the dollar. It appears they have had several losses by fire. As no offer was made by the insolvents the stock will be sold within the next week by public auction. The inspectors appointed were Mr. Hyslop, Mr. Lailey and Mr. Blackley.

The meeting was adjourned for two weeks in order to await the result of the sale. The principal creditors are in Toronto and Montreal, S. Greenshields, Son & Co. of the latter place being in for $7,205. They hold an assignment of the book accounts, notes and acceptances of the insolvents as security.

The assignee's meeting of creditors in the matter of Patterson & Co. of Lindsay was held in this city yesterday. The statement brought down by Mr. McClung, the assignee, shows liabilities of $17,000, with assets amounting to about $10,000. The reason advanced by the insolvent for the deficit are loss on stock at Fenelon Falls, too much advertising and competition. The insolvents were visited by fire a short time ago, and although the matter is not yet adjusted, the assignee hopes to get about $2000 insurance, which, added to $10,000 worth of stock, will bring the assets up to $12,000. Mr. Patterson made an offer of 40 cents on the dollar, 20 cents payable in 30 days, 10 cents in two months, and the balance in three months, the meeting being adjourned for a week in order to hear from the creditors as to their acceptance of the insolvent's offer. Mr. Watson, Mr. Caldecott and Mr. J. A. Macintosh were appointed inspectors of the estate. The larger creditors are: Caldecott & Co., $2800; Lailey, Watson & Co., $1800; John Macdonald & Co., $1800; Hutchison & Co., $1000; Sampson, Kennedy & Co., $900 and Thibaudeau Bros. & Co., $1700, the latter being a Montreal firm.

A.O.U.W. GRAND LODGE.

The Maximum Age Now 45—Medico Office Not Elective.

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—No less than 375 delegates were in attendance at the opening of the fifteenth annual session of the A. O. U. W. Grand Lodge of Ontario yesterday. Grand Master Workman Inwood welcomed the visiting delegates to the city and Ald. Frankland also called to convey the Mayor's greetings. Mr. Inwood in his opening speech recommended a revision of the constitution in respect to organizer's fees. He thought the organizer ought to get from $60 to $100 per lodge according to the number of members. No lodge ought to be organized with less than 15 members. He urged the Grand Lodge to make arrangements for the proper entertainment of delegates to the Supreme Lodge, which meets in Toronto in June next.

Grand Lodge degrees were conferred on new delegates by Grand Master Workman Inwood assisted by P.G.M.W. Milne.

Lieut.-Col. Dawson of London was appointed assistant recorder and Mr. M. A. James of The Bowmanville Statesman journal clerk.

Grand Lodge was conducted in the Master Workman degree, so that members of the order in the city might attend.

This morning the election of officers will take place.

The report of the Committee on Distribution was adopted as presented by Sheriff T. D. Pruyn without amendment.

The constitution was amended so as to prevent any candidate from receiving either the degree of Junior Workman or Master Workman at any except regular meetings of the lodge. The clause, however, gave the Grand Master Workman power to grant special dispensations.

It was proposed to make the fee for medical examination two dollars. At present lodges have the right to set the amount. No change was made.

A clause was inserted in the constitution to prevent members from hypothecating or assigning their beneficiaries.

The following committee was appointed to fix the amount of compensation to officers for their services rendered in this grand lodge: T. L. Lewis, J. E. Holliwell, J. B. Nixon, T. M. Cornett and E. O. Runians.

A motion to make the Grand Medical Examiner an elective officer was almost unanimously defeated, as was also a resolution to reduce the number on the Executive Committee by striking off the grand master, grand trustees and appointed members.

The maximum age of applicants was reduced from 50 to 45.

ONTARIO TANKARD.

The Curlers' Battle Royal Begins This Morning.

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—The curlers' battle royal for the Ontario Tankard begins yesterday. After a 24-hours' postponement Jack Frost humbly returned to permit the progress of the bonspiel. Play begins at 9 a.m. in three city rinks, Granite, Prospect Park and Victoria.

As has been stated here before the 16-group champions have been declared, an unprecedented occurrence in provincial curling, but three of these, Lucknow, Forest and Seaforth, were unable to muster their octets for the finals and the 13 clubs were represented at the drawing last night to select their opponents for this morning's fray.

Last season 14 clubs appeared for the finals. They were Hamilton Thistles, Woodstock, Prospect Park, Galt Granite, Collingwood, Harriston, Orillia, Seaforth, Peterboro, Lakefield, Galt, Belleville, St. Catharines and the champion Toronto Granites.

The first seven appear again in the finals to-day, showing there are strong clubs that generally come to the top.

There was a jolly gathering at Secretary Russell's office last night, when the 13 curling representatives put their hands in the hat and pulled out the name that will either be a thorn or plum. Here is the result, which gives all information about the big bonspiel:

First Draw—9 a.m. To-Day.

At Prospect Park: a. Woodstock v. Harrison; b. Collingwood v. Hamilton Victorias.

In the Granite Rink: C. Prospect Park v. Sarnia; d Orillia v. Hamilton Thistles.

On Victoria ice: Waubaushene v. Galt Granite.

Byes—Toronto Caledonians, Oshawa and Bobcaygeon.

Second Draw—2 p.m. To-Day.

At Prospect Park: M. Winner of c. v. winner of d.

In the Granite Rink: I.—Winner of a. v. Toronto Caledonians; K.—Winner of b. v. Oshawa.

On Victoria ice: L.—Winner of a. v. Bobcaygeon.

Semi-Final Draw—Friday 9 a.m.—Winner of I. v. winner of K.; Winner of L. v. winner of M.

Grand Final for the Tankard—Between the last competing clubs.

A LEGISLATIVE ROW.

Rival Parties in Kansas Ready to Shed Each Others' Blood.

TOPEKA, Kansas, Feb. 16.—For a time it looked as if there would be bloodshed over the struggle between Populists and Republicans for control of the Lower House of the Legislature. The Republicans fought their way to the House, broke through the doors and when inside barricaded the building.

The Populists have placed the building under siege, and intend to freeze and starve the Republicans out. The Republicans have wired all over the state for reinforcements, and a serious conflict is anticipated to-morrow.

The trouble commenced in the elections last fall. The Populists claim that the Republicans elected men by illegal trickery. The governor and the militia are with the besiegers.

KNOCKED HIM DOWN.

While Taking a Flash Light Photo a Cartridge Exploded.

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 16.—The banquet given by members of Windsor Lodge, A.F. & A. M., Tuesday night had a very sad termination. At 2 o'clock W. D. Melville made preparation to take a flash light photograph of the 150 people sitting at the tables.

Something went wrong with the machine and Mr. Melville looked to see what was the matter. As he did so a cartridge exploded and the flame struck him full in the face, knocking him on his back.

Doctors who were present did what they could to relieve his sufferings and then had him conveyed to his home in Crawford-avenue. It is reported that he cannot recover his eyesight.

Dakota's Divorce Law.

PIERRE, S.D., Feb. 16.—The Senate has agreed to the House bill extending the period of residence necessary for divorce from three to six months. An amendment was also adopted providing that in case personal service could not be obtained, one year's residence of the plaintiff was necessary to secure a divorce.

A Trolley Wrecked.

PORTLAND, Ogn., Feb. 16.—Three persons were instantly killed and 25 were more or less seriously injured by the wrecking of an electric car yesterday. The brakes refused to work.

A Sweet Surprise.

HALIFAX, Feb. 15.—The refined sugar market, which has been very firm for some time, took an upward turn yesterday, and prices were advanced by both Halifax refineries, causing quite a commotion in the wholesale grocery trade. Prices of refined sugar, both in Upper Provinces and United States, so the refiners here claim, are higher than they are here.

Mrs. Whitney's Will.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—The will of Flora Payne Whitney, the wife of Ex-Secretary William C. Whitney, who died on Feb. 5, was filed yesterday. The will is short and was executed Jan. 31 of the present year. Mrs. Whitney gave all her property, both real and personal, to her husband and names him executor. An affidavit of William C. Whitney accompanying the petition for the probate of the will states that the personal property which was left by his wife is valued at $2,300,000 and real estate about $750,000.

A Train Ditched.

GRAND FORKS, N.D., Feb. 16.—The eastbound Great Northern passenger train from the coast with two engines was thrown into the ditch, four miles west of Bartlett, by a broken rail. The sleeper turned over and the first-class coach was telescoped. The baggage and mail cars were smashed, and the track was all torn up. There were 26 passengers on the train, besides the crew. Nine in all were hurt, but only two seriously.

Men of Millions.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—The seventh annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association was opened yesterday in the Imperial Hotel. A great majority of the representatives of newspapers, members of the association, were present, and over $100,000,000 of capital was represented.

ROWSE'S OLD STAND.

We part from the old stand with regret. But it is not our fault that the trade is going up town. We see that it is going, and who can control the movements of trade? For our part, we think the sensible thing is to follow.

Being now comfortably settled in the centre of trade, we are fully prepared for business, and hope to be able to serve all our old customers and many more new ones.

The ladies are especially invited to call and look through our handsome new premises, where they will find us surrounded with the latest modern store improvements, increased shelf room, better light, and other accessories for the more effective display of our large and well assorted stock of Staple and Fancy Dry Goods.

BARGAINS as BIG and as REAL as ever. Some lines of goods slightly damaged by smoke to be sold for whatever they will bring.

CLEARING SALE
—OF—
MEN'S, YOUTHS' AND BOYS' SUITS AND OVERCOATS.

Big Reductions in the Price of all kinds of Ready-Made Overcoats.

We utterly annihilate Profit, entirely ignoring Cost, for the next Six weeks. It's like finding money. This sale will eclipse any offer of the entire season. It is the result of several causes—lateness of season, the over-stocked condition of our Overcoat Department, but mainly the necessity of turning our stock into money.

500 WINTER OVERCOATS.

The Cream of our $15 and $18 Overcoats go for $13.
Our $12 and $14 Ulsters go for $10.
Our $10 Black Worsted and Melton Overcoats go for $8.
Our $8 and $9 Overcoats go for $6.
Our $4.50 Overcoats go for $3.50.

We do this not for love of our customers, nor for fun; but because it's hard to sell Overcoats now—because we must sell them now or carry them over until next winter. Our regular prices, as you know, are fully 25 per cent. lower than Clothing is usually sold at, but to make this an unprecedented sale, we entirely ignore cost for the next six weeks. DROP IN AND SEE US. Shrewd buyers will shop early.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

HAGGART HAS HIS SAY ON THE BUDGET SPEECH.

A Strong Protest Against the Nova Scotia Coal Deal—The Premier Says He Can Do Little or Nothing in the Matter—A Monument for Chrysler's Farm.

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—Yesterday Mr. Haggart, Minister of Railways, spoke for nearly an hour and a half, dealing with Sir Richard Cartwright's speech and answering the statements made by that gentleman. He commenced by congratulating Mr. Foster on the splendid speech he had delivered, and the country on the splendid statement made by the Finance Minister, which gave such evidence of prosperity, as shown by the increased deposits in the banks, etc. Turning to Sir Richard Cartwright's speech, he said that gentleman had referred to Sir John Macdonald always wanting a couple of professional philanthropists in his Cabinet. At that very time Sir Richard himself was a candidate for a position under Sir John Macdonald.

He went over the composition of the debt to show this, and pointed out how the increase had taken place. He said that the expenditure could not be reduced at present, and challenged the Opposition to show how any reductions could be made; but said that in two or three years, when the enlargement of the canals was completed, a reduction of two or three millions may be made.

He touched on the Intercolonial, and amid cheers said that it was on a paying basis. In conclusion he touched on the great development of the country and said the Government could rest perfectly satisfied with the result of the N.P.

Mr. Paterson (Brant) followed, speaking for an hour up to recess and for an hour after. His speech was a general attack on the N.P., which he said had not been productive of any good result, but on the contrary had greatly increased the burdens of the people without any corresponding advantages.

The Hon. Mr. Daly briefly replied, and the House adjourned at 10 o'clock.

In introducing his bill to amend the redistribution bill of last year, Sir John Thompson said it was intended to correct some errors which had crept into the bill respecting the boundaries of the Nipissing district, the city of Ottawa and the County of Hochelaga.

Sir John Thompson introduced a bill to amend the criminal code of last year. Most of the corrections were only clerical. Another correction was with respect to the quarter sessions of Ontario, which had been decided as general quarter sessions. The correct name was Quarter sessions or general sessions. Another amendment was to reduce certain specified offences to offences punishable with five years' imprisonment.

In answer to a question by Mr. Edgar with reference to Judge Taschereau's letter about criminal code, Sir John Thompson said he had no objection to bringing down the letter, which, although nominally addressed to him, was what was known as an open letter.

The observations contained in the letter had not been overlooked, as the letter stated, but had been well considered by the joint committee, and the views of the learned judge and those of the representatives of both Houses were at variance. These views had also been condemned by every honorable judge in the United Kingdom who had expressed an opinion on the subject.

He had not, therefore, prepared any answer to Judge Taschereau's views, which were so extremely singular, and he had no objection to bring down a copy of the letter.

In reply to Dr. Landerkin Comptroller Wallace stated that a complaint had been made about Mr. Watters, assistant Commissioner of Customs, being engaged in business and this matter could be inquired into during recess.

The indications continue to point to a short session. Sir John Thompson, if he is to hold his office as one of the British arbitrators in the Behring Sea controversy, must be in Paris by March 23, and therefore must leave Ottawa by March 10 at the latest. Sir John is willing to go, and if the public business here can be sufficiently advanced he will try and be in Paris on March 23.

But whether he does or not will depend on the Opposition. If Sir John is unable to go the Imperial Government will name an arbitrator to take his place.

The Privy Council chamber was the scene of quite a contest yesterday. Sir John Thompson and half a dozen other Ministers heard a deputation of over 50 Conservative members of Parliament enter a protest against the recent legislation of Nova Scotia creating a coal monopoly in that province.

The deputation urged in effect that the Dominion authorities should disallow the law in question, or at least enter a remonstrance against it and ask for its modification. Dr. Cameron of Nova Scotia, Mr. Wood and Dr. Weldon of New Brunswick and Col. Tisdale and Alexander McKay of Hamilton spoke on behalf of the deputation. Dr. Weldon's argument was in effect that the long lease of the coal fields given by the local Government was an improvident one, and could be used by a monopoly to raise the prices on consumers, and that the mines could be so manipulated as to discourage interprovincial trade. Dr. Weldon next argued that, if these dangers threatened, the Dominion had power to step in and disallow in the interest of the other provinces and the Dominion at large.

Mr. McKay said that if a monopoly was created all over the continent the seaboard would still have relief from British coal, but Ontario in such a case would be between two millstones, as the Pennsylvania mines being in the deal would also keep up prices, and freight rates prevented the use of Welsh coal in the western provinces.

Others spoke in the same strain, and then David McKeen, the member for Cape Breton County, was heard. He is manager and principal stockholder of the Caledonia Mine, absorbed by the Boston syndicate, and he conducted a portion of the negotiations in behalf of the latter with the other mine owners. He will take out as his share of the sale some $200,000 or more.

David McKeen is a big and bluff Nova Scotian of Highland descent, 54 years of age, and in many respects the most forceful man in the House. He charged at his 50 and more antagonists like a rhinoceros into a pack of native Africans, and in his vigorous way claimed the right of the Nova Scotians to do with their own as they pleased, of the rights of capital to buy any and all property which it could command and then took a shot at the "patriots from Ontario," who were giving Nova Scotia unsolicited advice.

On the face of it the one man in his bluff way had the best of it. It is, however, a rough commentary on the rhinoceros from Cape Breton that he himself petitioned the Privy Council a year ago to disallow the act on which the present deal is based. But that was before he sold out to the syndicate.

Sir John Thompson in reply said that a good case would have to be made out for interference. The title of the mines was vested in Nova Scotia and the title thereto was thus vested. It did not appear that the manner of their disposal should be a subject of review by the Dominion authorities.

The whole tenor of Sir John's reply was that, while he and his colleagues were open to conviction, the Dominion Government would not promise more than to transmit to the Nova Scotians any remonstrance placed in his hands.

Mr. McNeill asked Sir John Thompson whether, if the Government knew as a fact that a foreign syndicate was obtaining control of all the coal miners in Nova Scotia with the express intention of strangling every manufacturing industry in the country, he would still be in doubt as to whether the Dominion Government had the right to interfere.

Sir John answered, "yes," and added that his argument went as far as that, meaning thereby that even then the Dominion would not be justified in interfering, and then the interview ended.

But the real hope of the country of relief from the monopoly would appear to be in the position taken by Mr. Cahan, leader of the Opposition in Nova Scotia. His contention in substance is that the title of the mines in Nova Scotia was vested in the sovereign, that several laws and state papers so declare it, and that under a special act of the legislature these mines were acquired by the province during the reign of Queen Victoria, and for 18 months after her decease, when they are to revert to the sovereign.

This seems to be quite clear, and it therefore follows that on the accession of the new sovereign the province will be forced to get a new title from that sovereign, and it will then be possible and be the duty of the sovereign as represented by the home government to insert such clauses as will protect Imperial and Dominion interests from any improper use of the coal fields of Nova Scotia by a monopoly, even if sanctioned by the legislature of that province.

The best authorities here say that Mr. Cahan's contention is sound, and therefore it follows that any agitation to regulate the monopoly must be by a petition to the home authorities.

Mr. Ross (Dundas) gives notice that he will take the opinion of the House on the following resolution: "That in the opinion of this House it is expedient that early action be taken upon the proposal to commemorate some of the battlefields of Canada," and that one of those selected for the purpose be the scene of the battle of Chrysler's farm.

Dr. Landerkin appears to be of the opinion that Hon. Mr. Chapleau, before leaving the Department of Customs, presented some sort of scheme for the reorganization of the department, and he will therefore move for a copy of any such report.

THE TANKARD.

The Contest is Now in Full Swing and Final Swing.

TORONTO, Feb. 17.—The great Tankard struggle is now well under way.

Nine contests occurred in the two first draws in the city rinks yesterday, and long shots and favorites were slaughtered in true Gottenberg style.

It was rather a triumph for what local men are pleased to call "the country clubs." Of the four teams from Toronto and Hamilton only one remained after the smoke of yesterday's battle had cleared away. The two Hamilton clubs triumphed with fair majorities in the morning, and in the afternoon they were again together—but in defeat. Both fell by a single shot and exactly the same score—40 to 39.

Our own Caledonians made a good stand against the gentlemanly curlers from Harriston. The veteran Rennie and his three sons had a hard rink to fight, and after leading for the greater part of the 22 ends succumbed by 6 shots. Then the stalwart Christie and his braves had only a majority of one shot and this left Harriston victorious by five. Harriston showed good form in the morning by defeating Woodstock by an even 10. Orillia was made a favorite in certain quarters, but the Thistles made a comfortable luncheon of them in the initial draw.

Oshawa and Bobcaygeon, who drew byes, succeeded in the afternoon. Wanhanshene having won from Galt Granites by 1 shot, succumbed to Bobcaygeon in the afternoon by the biggest majority of the day—21 shots. So it will be seen that the clubs were all remarkably well matched, for extraordinarily narrow margins carried many teams to victory.

The Kansas Fight.

TOPEKA, Kansas, Feb. 17.—Populists have practically abandoned the field. It was decided to hire a hall down town for the Populist house, and there the meetings of the Populist House will be held until difficulties are settled.

A Long Ride.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 17.—The Earl of Dunmore arrived here yesterday on horseback from the Pamirs, which he left in Feb., 1892. He rode the whole distance.

Both Duellists Killed.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Feb. 17.—Shirely Quilling and James Ewing settled a recent quarrel yesterday by fighting it out with pistols. They met near the house of Ewing's father, John Ewing, a wealthy and prominent man, who lives about four miles from Cattlettsburg, Ky.

It was a duel to the death. Both parties fired and Ewing fell shot through the heart, killing him instantly. Quilling was mortally wounded and has since died.

Quilling was a married man, and his wife was with him at the time of the shooting. Ewing was a young unmarried man.

Put Two and Two Together.

BOSTON, Mass., Feb. 17.—Boston's swell club, the Algonquin, is minus its secretary, W. W. Gooch, who has run away. Carrie Herrick, the daughter of Frederick Herrick, the millionaire wine merchant, is also missing, and those who know some of the history of each have no hesitancy in asserting that they have eloped. Gooch owns considerable real estate in Georgia, and it is thought he has gone to that state.

QUITE A LENGTHY JAUNT

BRINGING AN EXTRADITED MAN FROM MEXICO.

Detective Murray and Forger Davidson Will Arrive Here About March 10—The Roundabout Way In Which the Officer Had to Travel With His Man.

TORONTO, Feb. 17.—Detective Murray of Toronto, having in charge C. H. Davidson of Burlington, Ont., who is charged with forgery by the Bank of Hamilton, arrived at Kingston, Jamaica, from Port-au-Prince on Feb. 4, and left on the 8th in the Royal Mail steamer for Southampton, whence he will proceed to Canada with his prisoner. To get his man home Mr. Murray has had to travel a rather circuitous route. From Mexico he went to Santiago de Cuba. After remaining there for eight days and after a vain endeavor to charter a tug for Jamaica, he proceeded to Port au-Prince. After spending fourteen days in that town he secured a passage for Kingston, where he arrived just two days late for the Halifax steamer. Rather than wait until Feb. 28 for the next Halifax steamer, Mr. Murray preferred to proceed via England and accordingly sailed.

At every port where he was forced to wait Murray had his prisoner locked up. He took every care, however, to see that Davidson was comfortable and well treated. A tropical prison at the best of times is not a very desirable place of abode—especially the jail at Port-au-Prince, where the prisoners are only fed by charitable people and institutions.

The story of the arrest of Davidson and subsequent proceedings has never as yet been told.

Mr. Murray knew his quarry was in Mexico, but he did not know just where. It was only, he says, through his usual luck that he found out. When he arrived at Cuidao Juarez he went to call on an old friend, a Mr. Comfort, manager of one of the divisions of the Mexican Railway. Naturally Mr. Comfort asked what had brought the other to that part of the world, and he was told.

"And," said Mr. Murray, jokingly, "I wouldn't wonder if he was working on your railroad."

"Perhaps he is," replied Mr. Comfort, "what is he like?"

The forger was described.

"There's a man called Graham whom I recently employed and who answers the description," said Mr. Comfort, "and as he is only down in the freight yard you can easily see him."

To be brief, Mr. "Graham" turned out to be Defaulter Davidson, and steps were taken for his arrest. Mr. Murray sent his papers through the mayor of the town to Al Humada, the governor of the state, and the necessary permission for the arrest and incarceration was passed. The mayor of the town placed nine soldiers at Mr. Murray's disposal (although the latter laughed at the idea of needing them), and even condescended to accompany him.

When Davidson was arrested he was attending to his duties in the freight yard, and was busily engaged in taking the numbers of the cars. His astonishment at being arrested was very great.

Davidson was lodged in jail at Cuidao Juarez and kept there for 16 days, during which time Detective Murray was getting out the necessary papers and seeking advice as to the best route home.

Detective Murray states that the Mexican authorities afforded him every courtesy and facility.

After spending 16 days in Mexico Murray and Davidson proceeded to Vera Cruz and there took ship to Cuba, the detectives being informed that he could there book for Jamaica. There is no direct communication, however, between Cuba and Jamaica, so that he was compelled to proceed to Port-au-Prince and then to Jamaica. The voyage from Jamaica to Southampton takes 17 days. From Southampton to Quebec is about ten days. Therefore Mr. Murray will reach home before the Halifax steamer which leaves on the 28th, and which takes ten days to make the trip.

Davidson was anxious to know whether he would reach home in time to be tried at the Spring Assizes. He appears quite cheerful and chatted about Hamilton and Burlington news with all the enthusiasm of a man who has been long from home. He speaks most feelingly of the kind treatment he has received at the hands of Detective Murray, who will have some interesting stories to tell regarding the prisons in the tropics when he gets home. He never went into the prison at Port-au-Prince, he said, without giving a couple of dollars to the poor prisoners who cried out for bread.

Life Saved, But Reason Dethroned.

TORONTO, Feb. 16. Thomas Willey, a farm laborer from Weston, who was brought to the General Hospital some time ago more dead than alive, has so far recovered from his injuries as to be able to get up.

It will be remembered that while Willey and a companion named John Coop were walking on the track from Weston to the farm where they worked a train rounded a curve behind them and was upon them before they knew it. Coop escaped by throwing himself from the track, but Willey was struck by the guard and sustained a concussion of the brain, besides other injuries. His wounds are healing rapidly, but the man will always be mentally deficient as a result of the concussion of the brain.

Oddfellows' Temple Burned.

CANTON, Ohio, Feb. 16.—The Oddfellows' Temple was burned yesterday morning. Loss $75,000. Three firemen were injured by falling walls.

Comments On Canada.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The Chronicle of this morning says that if Canada wants to give legislative encouragement to the Anglo-Canadian trade she must follow England's example and lower her tariff.

The Chronicle, also commenting upon Prof. Goldwin Smith's references to England's indifference as to whether Canada goes out or stays in the empire, says that as long as Canada desires to remain a part of the empire, no power in the world can take her from us.

A Warning From England.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The Daily Chronicle says of the Harrison question: "Mr. Harrison takes overmuch for granted when he declares that the leading powers would acquiesce in the annexation of Hawaii by the United States."

The Daily News says: If the Senate rejects Mr. Harrison's treaty the well-wishers of the Republic abroad will regard it as having escaped a serious danger. Americans have no advantages to gain which would counterbalance the perils of complications involved in the spread of the Republic beyond the seas.

The seven wonnders of the world, which are the Egyptian Pyramids, the Mausoleum erected by Artemisia, the temple of Diana at Ephesus, the walls and hanging gardens of Babylon, the Colossus at Rhodes, the statue of Jupiter Olympus, and the Pharos or watchtower of Alexandria, never created the wonder, surprise and admiration which Paine's Celery Compound has occasioned.

Many of the old time wonders are crumbling away owing to age and decay; Paine's Celery Compound will ever stand while suffering exists in the world. The old-time wonders never benefitted diseased men and women; Paine's Celery Compound is ever with us to heal and renew life.

Reader, this remedy is a truly wonderful blessing; it will bless your life if you are a sufferer from disease; it can make you whole and sound. Have you tried its mighty curative powers? If not, decide at once; do not delay its use if you value your life.

HAVELOCK.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

DANCING PARTY—A largely attended dancing party was held on Tuesday evening in the C.P.R. boarding house, kept by Mr. and Mrs. Jacks. Everyone seemed to enjoy themselves in "tipping the light fantastic toe" to the inspiring music of the violin. Havelock is a lively village, and can boast of a number of graceful dancers, with pretty faces and attractive forms. Scarcely a week passes without a ball or party of some kind taking place and these occasions are always characterized by the best of good humour and orderly conduct. The young ladies are good looking and the young men gallant and intelligent, and if you want a jolly good night's fun, one has only to join in one of these weekly assemblies and see how quickly it will brush away dull care.

A. O. U. W.—We have quite a strong lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen here, and much interest is taken in the meetings. The officers are men of good standing in the village and the lodge is constantly making additions to its membership. Mr. William Mathieson is in Toronto this week attending the meeting of the grand lodge as representative from Havelock lodge.

COUNCIL MEETING.—The council met pursuant to adjournment; the reeve in the chair. Councillors present were Messrs. Burnett, Chapman, Joyce and Williams. Mr. McAuley tendered his resignation of the office of reeve. Moved by Mr. Williams, seconded by Mr. Burnett, that Bylaw No. 3 fixing the number of taverns and the license fee to be paid therefore be read a first time.—Carried. On motion of Mr. Williams, the council went into committee of the whole on the second riding of the Bylaw, the reeve in the chair. Moved by Mr. Chapman, that the fee for hotel licenses, exclusive of statutory fees, be $75. Moved in amendment by Mr. Joyce, seconded by Mr. Burnett, that the fee for hotel licenses, exclusive of statutory fees, be $85. The amendment was carried. The committee rose, chairman reported Bylaw read and blanks filled in. Moved by Mr. Williams, and seconded by Mr. Burnett, that the by-law be read a third time, passed and signed.—Carried. Moved by Mr. Chapman, sec. by Mr. Joyce, that Mr. Wm. Mathieson's account of $20 for election expenses be paid and an order drawn on the treasurer for the same.—Carried. Moved by Mr. Joyce, sec. by Mr. Chapman, that an order be drawn on the treasurer for $3 for hall rent.—Carried. Moved by Mr. Williams, sec. by Mr. Burnett, that W. H. Jeffs account for advertising in the Mail for a hand fire engine be paid.—Carried. Moved by Mr. Burnett, sec. by Mr. Chapman, that an order be drawn on the treasurer for $9 for corporation seal press.—Carried. Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., presented the municipality with a copy of the revised statutes of 1887, and the yearly volumes since. Moved by Mr. Joyce, seconded by Mr. Chapman, that the thanks of this council are due, and are hereby tendered, to Mr. J. R. Stratton, Member for West Peterborough, for copies of the Consolidated Statutes of 1887, and yearly volumes since, and that this resolution be recorded in the minutes of the council, and a copy thereof forwarded by the clerk to Mr. Stratton.—Carried. Moved by Mr. Chapman, seconded by Mr. Burnett, that Mr. Stratton's tender for the printing of the municipality for the year 1893 be accepted.—Carried. The reeve stated that he had seen the school board about the hall for council meetings, and that the council could have the same for meetings on condition that they furnish a table to be left in the hall. Mr. Mathieson presented the following accounts for payment: To preparing petition and map of proposed limits, $2.50; 1 day preparing petition and fare to Peterborough, $2.50; 1 day at county council re boundaries of incorporation, $2.50; total, $7.50. Moved by Mr. Williams, seconded by Mr. Joyce, that no action be taken in reference to Mr. Mathieson's account for drawing up petition and going to Peterborough. Moved by Mr. Chapman, seconded by Mr. Joyce:—Whereas the reeve, A. McAuley, Esq., having tendered his resignation as reeve of the village of Havelock, this council very much regret to lose his services, and it is only upon his urging this council to do so that we now consent and hereby accept the same, and that the clerk be and is hereby authorized to take the necessary steps for holding an election to fill the vacancy as required by law.—Carried. Moved by Mr. Chapman, seconded by Mr. Joyce, that this council adjourn until called together by the chair.—Carried.

PRUDENT AND WISE MOTHERS.

Prudent, wise and thoughtful mothers always use the popular Lactated Food. They use it because it is superior to all other makes, in that it promotes a healthy and vigorous digestion, and gives the infant a glow of health that no other agency can bestow.

Mothers who now use Lactated Food are praising it highly and recommending it to their lady friends who have weak and sickly children. It is a most remarkable agent as a preventive of dysentery and diarrhœa. It makes the cross and peevish baby happy, bright and cheerful, and nothing else in the world can make baby sleep so comfortably and serenely.

Every weary and worn-out mother should give this great food a trial at once. When it is used for one week it invariably becomes a family friend.

The manufacturers of Lactated Food are always pleased to send a full sized package free to any mother who wishes to give it a fair trial. Send your full address to the Wells & Richardson Co., Montreal, P.Q.

Mothers will find the PAIN-KILLER invaluable in the nursery, and it should always be kept near at hand in case of accident. For pain in the breast take a little Pain-Killer in sweetened milk and water, bathing the breasts in it clear at the same time. If the milk passages are clogged, from cold or other causes, bathing in the Pain-Killer will give immediate relief. Ask for the New Bottle.

NORWOOD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

In the report of Norwood cheese factory we left out the price Mr. Spense is paid for making the cheese. He is paid 1¼ cents per lb. and he is to pay all expenses.

A number of prominent farmers between Norwood and Westwood are advocating the building of a cheese factory about 5 miles west of Norwood.

Mr. Joseph Harrison was circulating a petition last week, praying for the repeal of the dog tax in Asphodel township.

A very pleasant event took place at the residence of Mr. J. J. Carter, Asphodel. It was the occasion of the marriage of his daughter, Amanda, to Mr. Hugh Nelson Cameron, of Otonabee. The bride was assisted by Miss Shearer, of Otonabee, and the groom by Mr. David Cameron, Otonabee. A large number of guests were present. Rev. Wm. Buchanan performed the ceremony.

On Tuesday evening the Masons of this place gave a complimentary supper in their lodge rooms, over W.H. Stephenson's store. After the guests had dispensed with the eatables, Mr. W. H. Stephenson was appointed to fill the chair. Short and pithy addresses were delivered by Rev. Messrs. Carmichael, M.A., Gibson, M.A., and Buchanan. Musical selections were rendered by Mrs. J. S. Meikle, Miss Beatrice Roxbourg, and Mr. J. Cumming. Among the guests present were W. H. Stephenson and wife, J. B. Pearce and wife, Miss Renwick, Thos. Fraser and wife, E. Gear and wife, J. McMillan and wife, and Rev. J. Gibson, M.A., and wife, Rev. Wm. Buchanan and wife, Miss Paudrie, Millbrook; Rev. James Carmichael, J. B. Powell, Westwood; Geo. Duffield and wife, W. H. Minaker and wife, W. A. Richardson and wife, A. B. Richardson and wife, Miss McIlwain, Peterborough; T. Rork and wife, Miss M. P. Williams, Miss Cuffe, Misses Frances and May Pettigrew, Mr. J. E. and Miss Beatrice Roxburgh, J. C. Moffat, M. D., and wife, and F. H. Birt and wife. A very enjoyable and pleasant time was spent by everyone.

Mr. John Walker, W.M., of Norwood Lodge, A.O.U.W., is a delegate to the Grand Lodge now in session in Toronto.

Another old resident of Dummer, Mr. John Kidd, has passed into eternity. Mr. Kidd, who drives the mail between Cottesloe, South Dummer, and Norwood, was in town on Tuesday performing his duties, and left for home about 2 o'clock in the best of spirits. On his arrival home he started to unharness the horse with the help of his daughter-in-law, Mrs. J. L. Kidd, when he complained of weakness. Mrs. Kidd conveyed him to the house, but in a few minutes he expired. The cause of his death is attributed to a disease of the stomach which Mr. Kidd was subject to. The deceased was 76 years of age and was a resident of Dummer for over 60 years.

Mr. A. Cox, Peterborough, was in town on Wednesday.

Mr. S. S. Young, Trenton, was in town on Tuesday morning.

Miss E. Paudrie, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. (Rev.) Buchanan, left for home on Wednesday.

Revs. W. Buchanan and Jas. Carmichael attended the Presbyterian tea meeting at Warsaw on Wednesday evening.

The patrons of the Norwood cheese factory met on Friday last in the town hall. There was a very good attendance. Mr. H. Spence was re-engaged as cheesemaker. Mr. Spence has to pay all expenses and make the cheese for 1½c. a pound. The following officers were elected:

President—W. G. Patterson.
Treasurer—Wm. Buck.
Secretary—Hugh Spence.
Directors—M. O'Keefe, D. Campbell, W. R. Howson, Wm. Webster, M. Harrison and C. Nicoll.

A lady says: "Put it on record!" Put what on record? The glad news that she was saved from death and perfectly cured by Paine's Celery Compound, after other remedies and the work of physicians had failed.

MRS. WM. IRVINE.

Mrs. Wm. Irvine, of St. John, N.B., in having her testimonial published, does it with the grand object of benefitting thousands who are now suffering all over this broad Dominion. Mrs. Irvine says:—

"I think it a great pleasure as well as a duty to put on record what Paine's Celery Compound has done for me. I have been troubled for the last ten years with kidney complaint, and have tried a great many preparations and doctors' prescriptions, but with little or no benefit.

For the last six months I have had a great strain upon my system from night-watching and overwork. I was breaking down; my friends said, "I was going fast to death." I resolved to try your Paine's Celery Compound, and used four bottles. My kidney trouble disappeared; nervousness and sleeplessness are troubles of the past, and my general health is greatly improved. In a word, I am cured; and I wish you to publish this so that the world can read it.

Yours in sincerity,
MRS. WM. IRVINE."

TO BE OR NOT TO BE "IN IT."

A Life Agent called at a friend's place one day,
HE WASN'T IN IT;
He had seen "the bore" coming and fled from his way
HE WASN'T IN IT;
He had heard so much said, he was tired and sick
Of insurance and agents—'twas all a blank trick,
When one's coil must be shuffled to win it,
HE WASN'T IN IT.

A bit of a draft blew o'er his bald head,
HE WAS IN IT;
Pneumonia sent him straightway to his bed,
HE STAYED IN IT;
His doctor made of it a "quite special" case,
To save him for running still more of life's race,
But the grave took some chances to win it,
AND HE'S IN IT.

When approached by a gent for insuring your life,
GET RIGHT IN IT;
It's the right thing to do for your children and wife,
THEM STAY IN IT.
Remember that fires take your goods "out of sight,"
And that accidents happen each day and each night.
While insurance protects every minute,
IF YOU'RE IN IT.

A Bank Manager's Opinion.
HE IS "IN IT."

The General Manager of one of the leading banks in Canada, writing to a personal friend, says:—"I have no hesitation in saying that I place the CANADA LIFE upon the highest platform. It is in my opinion carefully, economically and honestly managed; its Reserve Funds are well invested; its rates of Premiums are low, and its future is, I think better assured than a great majority of Companies. I have my own life insured in the Company for a round amount, and would not hesitate to increase the amount of my policies should I decide upon taking out further insurance."

A Government Insurance Actuary's Opinion
On the Relation between Ordinary and Tontine Service.

It is frequently assertedby Companies whose business is nearly all tontined, that although the CANADA LIFE may and does pay large ordinary profits, yet it cannot compare so favourably on a long term distribution or tontine period, and that in the end better results can be obtained on a tontine policy in a large American Co. than on an ordinary or tontine policy in the CANADA LIFE. To prove the absurdity of this statement, the following piece of common sense is quoted from Mervin Tabor, late Actuary of the Illinois Goverment Insurance Department. In his well known book, "The Three Systems of Life Insurance," he says: "A company that gives large dividends on the ordinary kind of policies, can give much larger on the same kinds when Tontined, and a company that pays but meagre dividends on the usual forms, adopting perhaps the Tontine system to "cover up" its small surpluses, cannot be relied on for large returns of surplus under the Tontine Forms of Insurance."

The CANADA LIFE does not "cover up" its Quinquennial profits as some Companies do, but publishes them throughout the country.

It can and does surpass other Companies on Quinquennial profits. It should and will surpass them on Tontine profits.

WHY TO BE "IN IT."

BISHOP HAWKE'S REASON:—"I claim that Life Insurance is not only a humane, but I might say a Christian Institution."

LORD LYNDHURST'S REASON:—"A Policy of Life Insurance is always an evidence of prudent forethought. No man with a dependent family is free from reproach if not insured."

WHEN TO BE "IN IT."

The younger, the cheaper. Therefore insure when young. Besides by insuring in the CANADA LIFE now, you will share in three years' profits.

WHERE TO BE "IN IT."

The best place to be "in it" is in the Company that gives the best returns for the least money, consistent with absolute security. Therefore, in order to be "in it," choose the

Our customers and the public will please notice that our boot and shoe store in the market block, No. 352 George street, will be closed for the next three or four weeks, in order to allow of alterations being made in the premises, now undergoing enlargement. The stock has been removed to our upper store, Kidd's old stand, George street, where we shall be glad to see all buyers during the interval. Our enlarged premises will afford ample room and facilities when completed, and the work will be pushed as speedily as possible. Remember the removal for four weeks only to Kidd's old stand. R. Tobogganing at Chemong.

A couple of private parties spent last evening at Chemong Park hotel. A delightful time was passed in dancing and tobogganning. A slight accident occurred on the toboggan slide, the first one this winter which slightly marred the pleasure of the evening. Mr. Lightbound of the Edison works and Misses Heathcott and Burnham were seated on the "flat sled" and gliding down the precipitous plane at a lightning speed, when the spot which is known as "the jump" was reached, Mr. Lightbound's courage failed him. He put out his foot to stop the descent with the result that the tobogganists were overturned, and all received a bad shaking up, including a few bruises. Happily the injuries are not serious.

A Grand Musical Event.

As announced a few weeks ago the Peterborough public will be afforded an opportunity to enjoy a great musical treat on March 8th, when the Belle Botsford Concert Co., a strong Boston musical combination, will be in the opera house under the auspices of Otonabee Lodge, I.O.O.F. Miss Belle Botsford, the violin virtuoso, is a musical star, and is supported by Miss Jennie Corea soprano, Miss Grace Bullock, violonceliste, Mr. David Lythgoe, baritone, and Mr. John Francis Elder, pianist, in a programme of the highest order, composed of vocal and instrumental solos, duets and trios. In their American tour they have secured great success and should attract all who can appreciate good music to the opera house on March 8th. The tickets have been placed lower than usual for such entertainments. Reserved seats 50c, general admision 25 cents. Plan of opera house will be opened in a few days.

Telfordian Temperature Topics.

PETERBOROUGH, Friday, Feb. 17th.—Another cold day. At this morning's observation the self-registering thermometer indicated 14 degrees below zero, but prospects of a coming change, snow or rain.—THOS. TELFORD.

How You May See Stars.

Bear in mind the fortnightly address delivered under the auspices of the Collegiate Institute Literary Society in the assembly hall at 8 o'clock this evening. A musical programme will be presented. Mr. Principal Fessenden will speak on "How Astronomical Measurements are Made." He will make the subject so clear and simple that all can understand. Be sure and go to this. (Friday evening.) 1d

Auction Sale Every Night.

An auction sale every night this week and on Saturday afternoon, at Miss Karch's late shop, 423 George street. Don't miss these sales. Everything must be cleared out—no reserve bid—everything goes. Lots of useful as well as ornamental articles going out every day at your own prices—toys, games, dolls, albums, vases. A few sacred pictures still to be sold. Every drop of the auctioneer's hammer brings a bargain.

Another Lindsay Fire.

Lindsay is in it. The fifth fire within a week occurred this morning at 8.30 when the roof of the residence of John Hardwick, Russel street, caught fire from a defective chimney. It was extinguished with pails, after the firemen found that the hydrant at a neighbouring corner was frozen tight. The Watchman devolves some three columns this week to fire matters and the people are thoroughly aroused from their apathy. At the council meeting on Monday night there will probably be some fun. Men tested all the other hydrants this morning. Those frozen will be thawed out as soon as possible.

Hockey Happenings.

The Winnipeg hockeyists will arrive in town at 5.45 C.P.R. this evening from Montreal and will measure sticks with the home team at 8 o'clock this evening at the rink. Much speculation is being indulged in by the boys as to who will be the conquerors and the prevalent opinion is that Peterborough puck chasers will give the visitors a "hard one" The Prairie City boys are said to be good at individual play but not strong at combination work.

Upper Canada College Boys, Toronto, will play at the rink here to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock with the town team. A great game is expected.

The Home Circle.

Mr. J. C. Williamson, of Toronto, representing the order of Canadian Home Circles, is in town, organizing a branch Circle in Peterborough. This society is a friendly, benevolent and beneficiary one, and is one of the few that admits ladies into the circle with all the advantages of their gentlemen friends. It is also the cheapest insurance in the Dominion, the average annual cost for $3,000 benefit, including all lodge dues, age 39, about $16.80. If 24 years of age the annual cost would be about $12.18. It is purely Canadian and is deserving of a large membership. Mr. Williamson will be in town for a few days, and any person desiring fuller information may obtain same from J. C. Williamson or Chief Roszel.

The Late Mrs. Burritt.

On Thursday morning Mrs. Burritt, widow of the late Dr. Burritt, passed away at the venerable age of 75 years. The deceased lady has not for some time been in robust health, and a severe cold was more than her constitution could withstand. Mrs. Burrit has been a highly esteemed resident of Peterborough for the past twenty-two years, having removed here in 1870. She was born in Delta, Leeds county, 1818, and was united in marriage to Dr. Burritt in September, 1837. Mrs. Burritt leaves behind her six children, Mrs. H. C. Rogers; Dr. H. C. Burritt, Toronto; Mrs. A. R. Ward, Detroit; Miss Burritt, town; J. H. Burritt, barrister, Pembroke; and D. H. Burritt, town. Funeral on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

He is Now Certain of His Identity.

A few days ago the EXAMINER contained a paragraph from the News Advertiser, Vancouver, B.C., of how a handsome picture arrived in that city, but by some means the label was lost and the rightful owner could not be found. Hence, it was placed on exhibition in an artist's studio there. It was an excellent likeness sent by Mr. R. J. Winch, of Peterborough, to his son, Mr. R. V. Winch, totally unknown to the latter. The Advertiser a few days ago contained this additional information:

"A few days ago mention was made in these columns of the discovery amongst some freight of a handsome portrait, the directions of which had gone astray. The portrait was exhibited in Messrs. H. McDowell & Co's drug store, and Mr. R. V. Winch has recognized it as a portrait of himself taken some years ago. The owner of the portrait has, however, taken such a fancy to it, that he expresses reluctance at parting with it."

The Weather None too Warm.

A recent issue of the Daily News Advertiser, Vancouver, B.C., says the weather off there is very cold—colder than ever known before—and that the skating and sleighing is something wonderful. The Advertiser contains the following paragraph in reference to Mr. Herbert Kent, formerly of Peterborough:—Manager Kent of the Telephone Company reports that the snow storm has, so far, done very little damage to the telephone systems of either this city or New Westminster, and services on the trunk lines were not interrupted at any period of the day. The Telephone Company have thus fared better than they did in Seattle, as the snow on the wires there weighed them down until they touched the trolley wire of the street railway, with the result that considerable damage was done to the company's instruments.

Genuine Activity in Real Estate.

The liberal propositions and terms of payment offered by the North Galveston Association to investors, is rapidly bringing purchasers into the field. The enormous amounts already expended in public improvements, such as street paving and grading, tree planting and sewage, public buildings, hotels, etc., have rapidly enhanced the value of property. Every new factory or other enterprise means a very healthy increase in valuation. There never was a better time than now to invest, as North Galveston, Texas, is built upon a sure foundation. For full particulars, call on or address Mr. T. Hurley, Peterborough, Ont., the local agent, or the North Galveston Association, Box 903 Minneapolis, Minn.

NEWS NUGGETS.

—There was no news items to record in police circles to-day.

—This sudden change of climate receives a none too warm welcome.

—Peterborough Lodge, No, 111, I.O.O.F., met in regular meeting last night and put two candidates through the second degree.

At the meeting of the Grand Lodge A. O. U. W., Mr. Jos. McClelland was elected Deputy Grand Master Workman for Durham district.

—Philip Baju, the noted Kingston brewer, and uncle of Mr. Wm. Stevenson of the Whig editorial staff, died yesterday morning after a protracted illness.

—The prospects of establishing a Y. M. C. A. organization in Belleville are excellent. Mr. T. S. Cole, travelling provincial secretary, is collecting funds for the project.

—The Port Hope Poultry Association is holding a four days' exhibition in the Y. M.C.A. hall. The show includes many handsome birds and pet stock, such as rabbits. Large crowds are in attendance.

—A sturgeon weighing some seven or eight pounds and captured in the waters of the St. Lawrence last fall is on exhibition in Winch Bros. butcher shop. The fish which is frozen presents a petrified appearance.

—Conveyances will be in waiting at the corner of George and Hunter streets tonight at 7:30 o'clock to carry all persons desiring to go to the Sunday School entertainment to be given at Auburn Mission church.

—The Kingston Whig says:—"Peterborough hockey team will play Queen's on Tuesday. Mr. Richardson says Peterborough has an excellent team and will make Queen's hustle to hold its own." We reckon they will too.

—Mr. L. H. Terril, gunsmith, who slipped on the icy sidewalk on Hunter street, near his place of business some ten days ago, and severely sprained his ankle, was able to be out to-day for the first time. Mr. Terril's leg is still stiff and he navigates only by the assistance of a heavy cane.

—It was the ladv employees of the tailoring department in Messrs. Hall, Innes & Co's dry goods establishment who made a suitable present to Mr. C. W. Bunt, on the eve of his departure for Toronto, and not the ladies of the millinery department as was erroneously stated.

—The cause of the organ in St. Andrew's church "breaking down" at the Sunday evening service was not the breaking of a reed as at first supposed. On examination it was found that a small piece of grit or plaster had fallen in between two of the sounding keys, hence the difficulty was overcome as soon as the obstruction was removed.

—The meeting of horsemen called at the City hotel last evening to discuss the advisability of holding winter races as Peterborough once did in days of yore, did not "pan out." Only three local enthusiasts, Messrs. Wm. Morris, Martin Connors and Wm. Clancy put in an appearance, and when 10 o'clock arrived and the number not being augmented any, they decided to adjourn sine die.

Long and Terrible Illness from Blood Poisoning

Completely Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Mrs. Mary E. O'Fallon, a very intelligent lady of Piqua, Ohio, was poisoned while assisting physicians at an autopsy 5 years ago, and soon terrible ulcers broke out on her head, arms, tongue and throat. Her hair all came out. She weighed but 78 lbs., and saw no prospect of help. At last she began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and at once improved; could soon get out of bed and walk. She says: "I became perfectly cured by and am now a well woman. I weigh 128 lbs., eat well and do the work for a large family. My case seems a wonderful recovery and physicians look at me in astonishment, as almost like one raised from the dead."

HOOD'S PILLS should be in every family medicine chest. Once used always preferred.

A PETERBOROUGH CITIZEN NOW.

Mr. John Gilchrist is Presented With a Kindly Worded Resolution by the Zion Presbyterian Church, of Brantford.

The annual meeting of the Zion Presbyterian church, Brantford, was held on Wednesday night, Feb. 8th. Mr. John Gilchrist, who arrived in town this week to assume his new duties as partner in the dry goods firm of Hall, Innes & Co., under the style and name of Hall, Gilchrist & Co., was a zealous and consistent member of Zion church for many years. Owing to his removal to Peterborough, a complimentary resolution was passed by the congregation expressing their deep sense of personal loss at his departure, but wishing abundant success and prosperity in the future as in the past. Mr. Gilchrist and Mrs. Gilchrist, who it may be mentioned is a sister of Mrs. (School Inspector) Garvin, together with their family will be heartily welcome as loyal good citizens of Peterborough and deserving of every confidence and esteem. The Brantford Expositor to hand contains the following:

"In view of the approaching removal to Peterborough of Mr. John Gilchrist from the city and congregation, it was moved by by Dr. Nichol, and seconded by Mr. Carpenter, Resolved, That the members and adherents of Zion Presbyterian church, Brantford, in annual meeting assembled, while expressing their deep sense of the loss sustained by the departure of our beloved brother, would thank God for all he has enabled His servant to do in the interest of His kingdom in connection with Zion church. In the session his devotion to the Master has enabled him to exert a potent influence for good, while his kindly, genial and sympathetic disposition has made him a welcome visitor in sorrowing homes where consolation was needed. In the Sabbath school he has proved himself to be the wise and trusted counsellor of the teachers and the valued friend of the scholars who hold him in affectionate regard. To the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, he has been a "True Father in Israel," watching over it in its inception, with more than human sagacity and solicitude, guiding and counselling the society until it has come to be recognized as a channel in God's hands for the converting and upholding of souls. For all his labors of love we sincerely thank him, and will follow him with the prayer that the God of our fathers will continue to himself, his partner in life and their children, all needed grace, making their home a Bethel of blessing and centre of Christian influence and activity."

There is no claim made for Ayer's Sarsaparilla which cannot be endorsed by scores of testimonials. This fact plainly proves that the blood is the source of most disorders and that Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best of blood purifiers. Try it this month.

"Plain as a Pike-staff.

Note this fact! The original prices of our clothing is invariably rated low, and as we sell for cash, the profit is naturally lower—much lower—than a credit profit. Our clearing sale prices just now are, therefore, better than when a very large discount is taken off prices originally placed high. This is as "plain as a pike-staff" and gentlemen in search of the cheapest clothing house should always patronize the MONTREAL CLOTHING HOUSE. It's bargain day, every day, at the MONTREAL CLOTHING HOUSE.

TWO GOVERNMENTS AND THE FARMERS.

Mr. FOSTER, Dominion Finance Minister, in the reduction of the duty on binder twine, shows that the pressure brought by the agriculturists, has had some effect, but his hesitation to do full justice to the farmer indicates that the combines are stronger than the farmers and the campaign contributions of monopolists are dearer to the heart of the government than the votes of the farmers, which the government seem to think they can buy at so reasonable a rate as to leave a handsome margin of profit. By reducing the customs duty on binding twine from 25 per cent. to 12½ per cent. the finance minister concedes the injustice of the impost. If, in a moment of weakness, he entertained the idea of removing the duty altogether the combine which has him by the throat refused to permit it.

But, if the Dominion Government will not do the farmer justice, the Ontario Government, which has always had the interest of the agriculturist at heart, has come to his relief in the matter of binder twine. The Province is maintaining a big gang of convicted criminals at the Central Prison, and their labour has been turned to account to, in effect, break the back of the binder twine combine. There is a sort of poetic justice in employing illegal robbers to neutralize the exactions of legalized robbers. The Ontario Government have established at the Central Prison a factory for the manufacture of binder twine, which began operations last Monday, and now farmers will able to purchase binder twine at, as near as possible, cost price. Whatever profit there may be in the manufacture will be devoted to the lessening of the provincial expenditure for the maintenance of prisoners of the Central. This binder twine factory will interfere with no other industry than the combine organized to keep up the price of an article the farmer is compelled to buy. How much consideration those engaged in the manufacture deserve is shown by the fact that all the manufacturers engaged in making binding twine machinery were so firmly in the grip of the monopolists, that they would furnish machinery to no one outside the combine, for fear that binder twine would be manufactured and sold at a decent profit and the combine would thus be deprived of the exclusive privilege of fleecing the farmer.

Though the pressure brought to bear upon the Dominion Goverument may have had effect in bringing down the duty on binder twine, yet the most potent reason was the fact that the Ontario Government, as predicted by Mr. Stratton in his addresses to his constituents last fall, decided to relieve the farmers of the binder twine burden, and when the Ontario binder twine is put on the market for next year's harvest the farmers will then have an opportunity of comparing the low price with the extravagant prices they have been paying in the past. The present manufacturers may reduce their price also, but they can claim no credit for what they may do under compulsion; for, if the Ontario Government had not come to the relief of the farmers, the old combine prices would have been maintained less the diminution due to the partial removal of the duty. The farmers can have no difficulty in deciding who their real friends—friends in need—are.

CRISP CURLING CHRONIQUES.

What is Going on at the Rink Where Curlers Most do Congregate.

An interesting match occurred at the rink last night between Skips Sallsbury and Attrill. Skip Dr. Boucher was pitted against Skip Attrill, but being unable to play, Mr. Sallsbury acted as skip. Twelve ends were played with the following result, five men playing in each rink:

G M Roger,	G A Schofield,
C J Leonard,	R Stevenson,
E H D Hall,	T R Billett,
G W Hatton,	F J Lewis,
W Sallsbury, sk 9	T P Attrill sk..... 11

Another inter rink match occurred between Skip Edwards (who played for Skip Budden) and Skip Edmison, both of the Granites. The latter had a comparatively easy victory, winning by 3 shots. Following is the result:

S Belcher,	R B Rogers,
W D Parker,	W G Morlow,
A Stevenson,	E A Peck,
E B Edwards, sk.... 14	Geo Edmison, sk ... 17

The junior rink of curlers which went to Lakefield last night to play a quartette of experienced stone throwers, contrary to expectations, came off victorious by one shot. The ice was very keen; 16 ends were played and no less than three times were the rinks even. The Peterborough boys are being heartily congratulated over their victory. Following is the score:

Peterborough.	Lakefield.
W J Drope.	Levi Payne.
A E Thompson,	J P Strickland,
Geo Boucher,	Geo Postlewaite,
A W Strickland, sk. 12	R C Strickland, skip.. 11

A rink from Lindsay skipped by W. Dundas will play a return match with Skip Boucher's quartette at the rink tonight. The visitors will arrive at 8:40 o'clock.

The following three rinks of the Thistles drove to Lakefield to-day noon to play a return match with a trio of rinks in that village. Following were the rinks:

RINK NO. 1.	RINK NO. 3.
John McClelland,	A Sawers,
D Belleghem,	C Rutherford,
R H Kells,	J Stanger,
C McGill, skip	J B Pentland, skip.

RINK NO. 2

A Blade,
A McNeil,
Sam Ray,
T Rutherford, skip.

The fourth struggle for bivalvular victory between skips D. Belleghem and Geo. Boucher did not come off yesterday afternoon as anticipated for "the oysters were not on ice."

Root and Branch,

the poison in your blood, however it may have come or whatever shape it may be taking, is cleared away by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a remedy that rouses every organ into healthful action, purifies and enriches the blood, and through it cleanses and invigorates the whole system. Salt Rheum, Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Enlarged Glands, and the worst Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, are perfectly and permanently cured by it.

Unlike the ordinary spring medicines or sarsaparillas, the "Discovery" works equally well at all seasons. All the year round and in all cases, it is GUARANTEED, as no other blood medicine is. If it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back. You pay only for the good you get.

Isn't it safe to say that no other blood purifier can be "just as good?"

If it were, wouldn't it be sold so?

DEATH ON THE RAIL.

Horribly Sad and Sudden Death of Fireman David Demill at Keene Yesterday Afternoon—The Remains Unrecognizable and Pitiously Ground to Atoms Beneath the Cruel wheels of a Freight.

Word reached Peterborough between four and five o'clock yesterday afternoon from Keene, announcing the death of Mr. David Demill, a young firemen on the Grand Junction Division of the Midland, who was instantly killed by being knocked beneath the wheels of a way freight train. The accident is a harrowing one owing to its suddenness and the fact that the life of one of the most respected and popular young firemen on the road was snuffed out in a twinkling. In connection with this Conductor Stanton of Belleville, was seen this morning by an EXAMINER reporter and the terrible details of the unfortunate affair can not be better told than his own words. The conductor said: "I heard nothing at all of the horrifying accident to Mr. Demill until I reached Keene this morning shortly before 8 o'clock. Part of the remains of the deceased were scattered over the rails and part of his blue pants were at the station. The men had gathered up no less than a scoop full of fragments of flesh and bone. From what I can learn, every part of Mr. Demill's body was bruised, torn and crushed beneath the wheels in a awfully sickening manner. Demill, when the way freight which ran between Lindsay and Belleville was running at a slow rate of speed into Keene, preparatory to stopping, had been filling an oil can from a larger one and it is supposed that when he was engaged in putting the vessel back in the tool box he stepped from out the cab and walking along the narrow ridge on the side of the tender with his back to the way in which the train was going, that he either slipped and lost his hold or else was struck the bridge, and bounding against the iron wall was sent by the force of reaction under the wheels and the whole train passed over him. The fireman was not missed by driver John Casey until the train was brought to a standstill at the station. Deceased leaves a wife and one small child. He resided in Belleville and was about 25 or 26 years of age I don't know how long he has been firing on the road, but it was only lately that he was transferred from special to regular freights. Deceased, from what I hear from his associates, was an ambitious and energetic young fellow, and of an upright and well conducted character. His parents, and also the parents of his wife, reside in Stirling, where the remains were taken and will be interred. The father-in-law of the deceased went down with me on my train yesterday afternoon to Belleville on a visit to his daughter, and, when the sad intelligence reached her yesterday afternoon regarding the peculiarly sad death of her husband, the scene of tears and sorrow cannot be told. The wife and father-in-law of the deceased returned to Stirling this morning where they will attend the last rites."

Mr. H. F. Ketchison, mail carrier between Belleville and Peterborough was also seen and confirmed the above statement regarding the terrible accident. He told a pitiable tale of the horrible manner in which the deceased was crushed to death beneath the wheels. The train which deceased was fireman was in char e of Conductor Bell. The late Mr. Demill was well known in Peterborough, and his many friends, especially his companions on the road, will regret exceedingly his early demise.

The accident happened precisely at 4:02 o'clock.

The bridge is about one hundred feet long and spans the Indian River. It is about two hundred yards distant from the station.

The engine in which Mr. Demill was firemen was No. 156.

A telegram was sent to Belleville after the accident to Conductor W. Morris, whose train leaves Belleville at 4.30 o'clock. for another firemen in order that the frieght might proceed to its destination.

KEENE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The last carnival for the season of the Keene Curling and Skating Rink Co. was held in their rink on Wednesday night, February 15, when a large and varied number of costumes were viewed and commented upon with much interest by the numerous spectators. A very interesting part of the evening's attraction was a half-mile race, which was looked upon by some of our sports with much interest and considerable money changed hands. There were quite a number of visitors from Peterborough, Campbellford, Hastings, Norwood and Hiawatha, and the rink was well filled. The following are a few of those who appeared in costume:

The Presbyterian missionary meeting held here last Monday night was largely attended and the speakers, Rev. Mr. Goldsmith, of Peterborough, and Mr. Ross, of Harwood, were highly appreciated.

The Bible Society meeting will be held here Friday night. A large attendance is expected.

There is some prospects of a race between M. McIntyre and a party from Campbellford.

If Mr. D. Fraser thinks he did not get fair play in Keene, Mr. McIntyre is quite willing to run him again any time that is convenient for him.

A party from Keene, including the Glee Club, drove out to Zion on Thursday night to a Forester's concert and supper and spent a very enjoyable evening.

For that tired worn-out feeling and lack of ambition that so many women complain of, try Dr. Butler's Golden Pills. They act like magic. One box a cure.

The Annual Entertainment Passes Off Successfully.

The annual entertainment in connection with Court Zion, Canadian Order of Foresters was held last evening in the court room Zion Hill, Otonabee. There was a very large attendance, visitors being present from all the surrounding country even as far distant as Springville. The ladies maintained their past reputation in this respect by supplying an excellent and abundant repast, which was heartily appreciated by those present. Mr. Wm. Kindred, of Peterborough, occupied the chair in a very efficient manner, and introduced an excellent programme. The Keene Glee Club furnished two excellent selections. The Kindred family of Peterborough, consisting of four sisters and a brother, contributed a fine quintette. Mr. Peter McArthur was a popular number in two amusing songs and received an encore. A quartette consisting of Misses Heubeck and Sherlock, Messrs. Squires and Wesley sang two quartettes with fine finish. Bro. Dr. Rose gave one of his welcome readings and was applauded. Bro. Nesbitt, D. D. H.C.R. and Bro. J. R. Stratton explained the aims and benefits of Canadian Forestry, showing that it was the best beneficiary organization in existence, and urged all conveniently situated to Court Zion to avail themselves of the privilege of becoming members. The entertainment was on the whole a great success.

And yet it does more good than any of the huge, old-fashioned pills, with their griping and violence. These tiny Pellets, the smallest and easiest to take, bring you help that lasts. Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, Sick or Bilious Headaches, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels are permanently cured.

They're the cheapest, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned. You pay only for the good you get.

A SQUARE offer of $500 in gold is made by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, for any case of Catarrh in the Head, no matter how bad or of how long standing, which they cannot cure.

OLD MADE NEW.

How Old Garments May Put New Ones to Blush.

These are the days when all our new dresses should be old ones. For instance, the green cloth tailormade of last year makes over with the present elaboration charmingly. Set a flaring collar of plaid green velvet over the shoulders and to a point at the bust line. Have an upper sleeve of the same velvet striped with green ribbon, and a broad bodice belt of the velvet that comes up high enough to cover the collar points. Now stripe the part of the old bodice that shows yoke-like above the collar, with the green ribbon. Your dress is a new one, and a very pretty one, all for the cost of a few yards of velvet and the ribbon. Just wear it with modest grace and your dear friend will not only not dare believe it is really a makeover, but she will quite hate her own brand new gown. Even though hers is of the latest corded cloth, walnut ground and shaded cords, and trimmed with shaded velvet; even though her sleeves are made big and not "faked"; yet she will not have the presence of mind to observe that your skirt is last year's cut, especially if she has not gone into the wide skirt herself in her new gown. She will just feel miserable and wonder who your dressmaker is. That is one advantage of fixing up your own dresses, you are always credited with a wonderful concealed dressmaker. While she looks scornfully through her tortoise lorgnettes—dark tortoise to match the walnut of her gown—and hopes you think she does not even see your dress, you can modestly turn the album pages, and be glad that you are so very much smartor and happier than she.

FLORETTE.

THE MILLIONAIRE DISEASE.

Attacks at Any Age if Great Wealth is Inherited.

There is reason to think that great wealth begets a mental disease akin to those forms of paralysis which affects a minute portion of the brain while the general intelligence remains sound, says the Saturday Review. It is not to be denied that the very rich as a class, show as much sense as other people. Those who make their own fortunes may well have narrowed their minds in the process. They probably fell into a groove, and we must not look to them for sympathy with new thoughts or projects. But the majority—in Europe at least—inherited wealth, and they passed through the same training commonly, and imbibed the same ideas as the rest of us.

We know of some of them at school, or at the university, where they were much like other youths, equally interested in the "questions" which took their fancy. They may even have promised in all sincerity to aid in solving a problem of some kind when they came into their own, and looked forward to the work with pleasure. If the promise be forgotten when that time arrives no reasonable person will condemn them. To find one's self in the paternal seat surveying lands all one's own as far as eye can see, or reckoning the money bags, is not less exciting, probably, when that day has been anticipated from childhood.

But in a short time the situation becomes familiar, and then that reasonable person, if inexperienced, looks for fulfillment of the promise. But rarely, indeed, is he gratified. The mental disease has found a lodgment. His rich friend may still take interest in the question, whatever it be. But somehow his mind can no longer grasp the obvious fact that he himself might settle it, once for all, by applying no great proportion of the money which lies idle at his bank.

It is clear, also, that this malady grows more common, and intensifies. When the rich were by no means so many or so wealthy as now, they founded all sorts of charitable institutions—schools, colleges, chantries, hospitals. At present they subscribe just like anybody else, and their contribution often enough is not more liberal than that of men whose capital is no greater than their income. In the building of churches alone do a few of them make a show of rivaling their forefathers' munificence. But these subscriptions acknowledge the obligation. A millionaire who flatly refuses to do anything for his fellow-creatures could not be charged with inconsistency at least. But he who gives 100 guineas or so, when piling up hundreds of thousands for probate, admits, in effect, that he ought to do what he can. But if he chose what could he not do?

Our hospitals, for instance, make despairing appeals year by year. Their emissaries beg in the streets. They work through the directory and write to each householder. Their boxes stand in every public place. Of late they have addressed workingmen. But all the while there are hundreds of capitalists—not less kind-hearted or less intelligent than other people—who could set the largest of them on its legs for good and not feel the sacrifice, thousands who could do the like without reducing an item of expenditure. The action would be pleasant, one might think, and certainly it would win honor. Why do none of them perform it? Because, we apprehend, their perception is dulled by the strange malady which attends great wealth.

Extent of the Human Vision.

Emilie Metzer mentions that he once saw Keizerspickt, in Sumatra, when separated from it by a distance of 110 English miles; he also says that on very favorable occasions he has made out to see Guy Merapi, a mountain in Java, when 180 miles intervened. E. Hill, the well-known civil engineer, says that he has seen Mont Blanc from Pis Manraun, a distance of 120 miles. J. Starkie Gardner states that Mont Blanc is visible from Piz Landgard, though distant about three degrees. Whymper, the explorer, says that when he was in Greenland he could plainly see a mountain peak, from which he was separated by exactly 151 miles. The whole range of the Swiss Alps have been looked upon by J. Hippisly while 200 miles away. Sir W. Jones affirms that the Himalayas have appeared to his view from the almost incredible distance of 224 miles.—Philadelphia Press.

Reduced to a Science.

A scientific product of medical skill for the cure of all blood diseases from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore, which has held popular esteem for years and increases steadily in favor, is Burdock Blood Bitters. Its cures prove its worth.

A Cure for Constipation and Headache.

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache in one night. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c. a package.

Why you take Cold and Cough.

Generally caused by exposure to cold, wet feet, sitting in a draught, coming from hot and crowded places, in thin dress, or wearing damp clothes, stockings, or any other cause tending to check suddenly the perspiration. The result produces inflammation of the lining membrane of the lungs or throat, and this causes phlegm or matter, which nature tries to throw off by expectoration. In many cases she is unable to do so without assistance, and this is

THE WRITER OF CURFEW.

The People of Litchfield Will Honor Her at the World's Fair.

LITCHFIELD, December 1.—The citizens of Litchfield have hit upon a happy idea. They are going to have their village represented at the world's fair. It will not be by the product of great manufacturing enterprises, nor by the skill of mechanics; but better still, by nothing less than the beautiful, pathetic poem, "Curfew Shall Not Ring To-night." These favorite and well-known verses were written by Rose Hartwick (now Mrs. Thorpe, of San Diego, Cal.), at Litchfield, Michigan:

"Beside St. Joseph's shallow stream, Where crystal waters wander."

while she was yet a school girl of 17 summers. The story of the writing of 'Curfew" is thus related in a sketch recently written:

The Hartwick cottage stood on Chicago street, in the south part of town, near the banks of the St. Joseph River. Rosa, it is said, was accustomed to steal away to some quiet spot beside the stream, there to read a favorite book or record the poetic flights of her imagination. It was on an occasion of this kind that she read the entrancing story of Bessie's devotion, in a number of Peterson's Magazine, published in September, 1865. The story was entitled "Love and Loyalty." It suggested "Curfew," the first copy of which was written on an April afternoon of 1867, between the hours of 4 and 6 o'clock. At that date Rosa was at work in a corner apartment of the cottage. "Rosa's room" when a young lady friend called to see her. She excused herself for a while on the plea that she was very busy. A long time elapsed and she did not appear. The mother became apprehensive that Rosa's tardiness would impeach the courtesy of the household. More than once she opened the door to see what was the matter. Rosa was writing on her slate, and her mother supposed her to be doing sums, so set herself to entertaining the lady caller, explaining that her daughter often become so engrossed with her work that she could not leave it. The maiden poetess had forgotten her friend, and had risen, with an inspiration almost divine, to a height of sympathy, feeling and pathos that has seldom been reached. In two hours her work was done, and she went out. If, perchance, in that time she had lost one friend by detaining her so long, she had gained millions. The first crude copy of "Curfew Must Not Ring To-night" had been penned.

When her friend had gone the young authoress, knowing that her mother disapproved of her continued rhyming, and that she had been deceived in supposing her to be doing sums, brought out her slate and on her knees confessed her error. As Mrs. Hartwick read, her eyes filled with tears and she freely forgave. Following is an extract from a letter Mrs. Thorpe has written expressing her appreciation of the honor her friends here are preparing to show her:

Miss C. A. Turrell, Corresponding Secretary of the Columbian Fair Society:

Dear Friend—Your letter informing me of the honor the ladies of Litchfield contemplate coferring upon me is received. There are times when our language seems inadequate to express our sentiments, and words are such indifferent messengers. Such is my present experience. I cannot tell you how this graceful recognition from my dear old home touches me. Of the many honors conferred upon me during the past twelve years, there is nothing I appreciate more than this, coming as it does from the friends and acquaintances of my girlhood and early womanhood.

A Heap O' Trouble.

Aunt Debbie.—What's ailin', Samanthy?

Samanthy.—W'y, it's disheer way, Aun' Debbie; I got to mine Mammie all the livelong day, an' mine baby de res' of de time; an' ef' I doan' mine Mammie, I'm whupt for disobejuns; an' ef I doan' mine baby, I'm whupt for not doin' nuthin'; an' I'm jess erbont tiyud.

Then The Proverbs Must be Wrong.

"Doctor," said the medical student, "is a blind man apt to be an idiot?"

"Why, no. What makes you ask that?"

"The adage says: 'Out of sight, out of mind.'"

Farm Pointers.

Don't stint on bedding for your animals; it will rot and make manure.

When you buy feed buy that which is richest in fertilizing material.

It is said that during a rain a sheep's fleece will hold its weight in water.

If you can't furnish warm quarters, don't try to keep young animals in winter.

Saving and applying manures is the prime consideration in successful farming.

Consumptives, Cheer up!

You are not going to die if you will but exercises a little common sense, and spend a paltry sum. You may be very feeble now, sitting bolstered up in the big armchair, but you may now throw up your hat or bonnet, and shout for joy! Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil will save you if you take it according to directions. What you need is good new blood and rebuilt tissues. If you take Miller's Emulsion you will gain from five to ten pounds of flesh with each bottle. There is no use wasting words. A hint should be enough to a consumptive of the fact that Miller's preparation of Cod Liver Oil SAVES. In big bottles, 50c. and $1, at all Drug Stores.

Couldn't Keep on His Feet.

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 31st, 1892.

To the Peterborough Medicine Company:

GENTLEMEN,—If there is any medicine in the world that I pin my faith to it is Membray's Kidney and Liver Cure. In my business I have to stand on my feet a good deal. About a year ago my back began to give out, weakening pains set in across my kidneys, I felt tired all the time and could hardly stand up to my work. I began to lose strength and at last had to give up work altogether. A customer advised me to try your cure which I did. Before half the bottle was used, I felt the pains and weakness leaving me and to-day I enjoy good health and can bear fatigue and work all right. One bottle was all I used.

ALF. HASKILL, barber.

Endorsed by the Leaders.

When a remedy is endorsed by ministers, editors, merchants, farmers and leading men of all classes, it is strong evidence that that remedy has great merit and does what is claimed for it. Such a remedy is Burdock Blood Bitters, its wonderful success as a cure for dyspepsia, bad blood, etc., is well known to old and young.

Dyer's Jelly of Cucumber and Roses for chapped hands and for making the skin smooth and soft. Try it. Druggists keep it. W. A. Dyer & Co., Montreal.

Harsh purgative remedies are fast giving way to the gentle action and mild effects of Carter's Little Liver Pills. If you try them, they will certainly please you.

Not a Particle.

A feature worth noticing in regard to Burdock Blood Bitters is that it does not contain one particle of poisonous matter. It cures and cures quickly without the use of any injurious ingredients. DANCING AMID FLAMES.

PROTEST AGAINST THE NOVA SCOTIA COAL DEAL.

A Child Did the Mischief—The Flames Rocketed Into the Ball Room and Fell Upon the Dancers—Twenty Were Cremated.

BUDA PESTH, Feb. 16.—A carnival dance was given on Monday evening in Deutsch Pereg. At 11 o'clock, when about 100 persons were dancing in the hall on the first floor, a child playing in the cellar dropped a lighted taper through the bung hole of a cask full of petroleum. The cask exploded, killed the child, tore up the floor and scattered the burning petroleum among the dancers.

A dozen of persons, enveloped in flames, ran for the windows and doors, spreading fire and panic among the rest of the company. Half of the people in the hall were at the end from which there were no exits, and as the floor on the side near the windows had been torn up by the explosion they were obliged to run the whole length of the blazing room to escape.

Ten persons fell through to the cellar and were burned to death. Seven more, whose clothes had caught fire, died shortly after reaching the open air. Three were trampled into unconsciousness in the panic and were burned as they lay on the floor. Five men and seven women, whose clothes were half burned from their backs, are in a critical condition. Many others have slight fractures or burns. But 30 or 40 persons escaped without injury.

A BETTER BILL.

Justin McCarthy's Comparison of the Two Home Rule Measures.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—Justin McCarthy says in an article published by The Daily News that the present Home Rule bill is much better than the bill of 1886. He is not disposed to grumble over the veto, he says, as if Home Rule be once granted, England will be content to leave Ireland alone.

He thinks the proposal of a second chamber simple and acceptable. "I am strongly of the opinion," Mr. McCarthy continues, "that until the land question shall be settled or relegated to an Irish parliament we ought to retain our full representation at Westminster and not to be left to the chance of fighting on a vital question with diminished numbers. After that it matters little whether we are represented or not."

Mr. McCarthy suspends judgment of the financial proposals, as he cannot understand where the surplus of half a million will come from or how it is to be secured hereafter. On the whole, he concludes, the bill offers the framework of a practical system of Home Rule.

The Standard says: "Mr. Balfour's speech indicates that the Tories will vote against the retention of Irish members at Westminster, and if as many Radicals will take the same course the Irish members will probably be excluded."

The Home Rule bill will be read first on Friday, and will be distributed among the members on Saturday. The number of clauses is about the same as in 1886, but the bill is much briefer.

Lord Salisbury's decision to visit Ulster is the result of a meeting of Irish Unionists The Duke of Abercorn and the Marquis of Londonderry, who were present, advocated the organization of demonstrations throughout the United Kingdom against the bill, and the meeting agreed to do so.

THE CATTLE EMBARGO.

Opponents of the Canadian Cattle Trade Making Themselves Busy.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—The opponents of the Canadian cattle trade are trying to convince the Hon. Mr. Gardner, the President of the Board of Agriculture, that the Canadian Government is as little able as the United States Government to ensure the absolute freedom of the Canadian herds from pleuro-pneumonia owing to the laxity of the quarantine regulations against the United States cattle in the Northwest.

Mr. Gardner himself says that he must be convinced on this point, which he believes has not been adequately dealt with in the preparation of the Canadian case now on the way here. He even urges that another detailed and special report on the Northwest quarantine be forwarded from Ottawa at once.

The agitation for and against the schedule is daily spreading.

The Royal Society and the English farming bodies are unalterable in their opposition to its removal.

In the House of Commons nearly every day questions are put.

The Farmers Kicking.

BERLIN, Feb. 16.—The agricultural deputies in the Reichstag and in the Landtag vehemently denounced the commercial treaty with Russia to-day, claiming that cultivators of the soil would suffer while the towns would benefit by it.

Chancellor von Caprivi, in the Reichstag, signalized the final rupture between the Government and agricultural party by declaring that the duty on corn was a burden on the people.

KILLED BY THE TROLLEY

HE TRIED TO JUMP ON TO A SPEEDING CAR.

The Victim Lived Three Hours Though the Skull Was Crushed to Such an Extent That the Surgeons Could Put Their Fingers Through the Crack.

TORONTO, Feb. 17.—Daniel W. Keirstead of 7 Walton-street was killed by a trolley car in Yonge-street at 6.45 yesterday morning. He attempted to board a down-town trolley car, and, missing his footing, struck his head against an up-town motor and sustained a fracture of the skull. Dr. Macfarlane attended his injuries and he was at once removed to St. Michael's Hospital, where he died at 10 a.m. His skull was crushed to such an extent that the surgeons could put their fingers through the cracks and into the cavity of the brain. He once regained consciousness and remarked to Dr. Roach, the house surgeon, that a trolley car had struck him.

Coroner Aikins held an inquest at the hospital last night. Mr. J. D. Montgomery was present in the capacity of solicitor for the relatives of the deceased, and Mr. C. W. Kerr for the street railway company.

Dr. Dwyer, who made the post mortem, testified that death was caused by concussion of the brain and also by air finding access to the heart by way of a broken vein. The physician said that the lungs of the deceased were seriously affected with consumption.

T. Cosgrove, motorman, and W. Wylie, conductor of the south-bound trolley car, and J. Brandon, motorman on the up-bound car, gave explicit details of the accident. The deceased had attempted to board the down-town car and had grabbed the handle. The car was going at about five miles an hour according to the evidence of the street railwaymen. Keirstead was unable to retain his hold of the handle and was thrown behind the car and staggered across upon the other track. Just at that moment an uptown car, driven by J. Brandon, passed the car the deceased had attempted to board. This car, too, was going at about five miles per hour. Keirstead's head struck the front left hand step of the car with fatal results.

Keirstead was a shoemaker by trade in the employ of Harvey & Van Norman. He leaves a wife and four children, between the ages of 10 and 16.

After the jury had been out for 20 minutes they returned the following verdict:

We, the jury, find that Daniel Keirstead met his death through accidental causes. At the same time we consider the condition of the roadway conduced to his stumbling.

DOMINION ARTILLERY.

Annual Meeting of the Association—Lord Stanley's Address.

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—The annual meeting of the Dominion Artillery Association took place yesterday in the Railway Committee room of the House of Commons. There was a small attendance. Lord Stanley and his military secretary, Major St. Aubyn, were present, as were also Mr. Patterson, Minister of Militia; Major-General Herbert, Lieut.-Colonel Macdonald, Guelph, and others. In the absence of the president and the other vice-presidents, Lieutenant Cole of Montreal occupied the chair. The annual report, which was presented by the secretary, shows that the receipts during the year amounted to $4659, and the expenditure to $4089, leaving a balance of $569, which is carried to the current accounts.

Lieut.-Col. Macdonald, in moving a vote of thanks to His Excellency for the interest which he took in the association, also referred to the cloud which at present hung over his family in the illness of his son, and said that he hoped it would soon be removed.

Lord Stanley, in reply, said that he was particularly touched with the reference which Colonel Macdonald had made to the cloud which at present was hanging over his family, but which he was glad to say was sufficiently lifted at the time to enable him to be present at their meeting. It always gave him great pleasure to attend the annual meeting of the Artillery Association, being one of themselves. He was not going to make a speech and excused himself for not doing so on the ground that their meeting together was more for an interchange of views. He was not long in this country before he satisfied himself that the association was doing a good work in the country, and such work that could not be done by the Minister of Militia or his department. He regretted that the artillery had not the means of practising with modern ordnance, and thought that every effort should be made to obtain the loan of improved ordnance, which could be done by going to Halifax. He spoke of the interest which the new Minister of Militia was taking in all militia affairs, and concluded as follows: "I do not know what chances I may have of attending any other meeting of the association, but if this account be the last occasion I shall have the pleasure of being present among you let me thank you for your invariable kindness and for the courteous way you have allowed me to speak my mind at your meetings. Let me also assure you that the interest I take in the association is not confined to the moment I leave the country, but you may be assured it will remain long afterwards." [Cheers.]

Lieut.-Col. Armstrong of St. John, N.B., was elected president of the Artillery Association. To the list of vice-presidents the name of Lieut.-Col. Call, Newcastle, N.B., was added.

The Grand Lodge Concludes Its Labors—Election of Officers.

TORONTO, Feb. 17.—Yesterday was election day with the Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. The following officers were re-elected by acclamation:

Grand Master Workman, F. G. Inwood; Grand Recorder, M. D. Carder; Grand Receiver, Thomas Rushton. The following were elected after more or less heated contests: Grand Foreman, D. F. McWatt, Barrie; Overseer, F. W. Unitt; Grand Guide, G. P. Graham, editor of The Morrisburg Herald; Grand inside watchman, John Wilson, Hamilton; grand outside watchman, John R. Taylor, Owen Sound; grand trustees T. D. Pruyn, Napanee; M. A. James Belleville; Thomas Sargent, Toronto The trustees were elected for three, two and one year respectively.

Organizers' fees were fixed at $60 to $100 per lodge, according to membership. Dr. J. M. Cotton was re-appointed Grand Medical Examiner and congratulated upon his past success. The sum of $1200 was voted by the Grand Lodge to entertain the delegates to the Supreme Grand Lodge, which meets in Toronto in June. In future it will be possible for members to take out $1000 policies as well as $2000. It was thought unwise to separate from the Supreme Grand Lodge until after the June session of the latter, and the motion to separate was voted down.

Inspector McMichael and Wife of Markham Die Within a Few Hours.

MARKHAM, Feb. 17.—Daniel McMichael, the venerable Police Inspector of Markham village, and his wife died within a few hours of each other. Neither of them had been ill for more than a day or two.

On Monday evening, while seated at the tea table, Mr. McMichael was suddenly stricken with paralysis and fell back unconscious. Eight hours later Mrs. McMichael, who had been suffering from a nervous complaint, suddenly expired, the direct cause being the bursting of a blood vessel in the brain.

Mr. McMichael lingered until Wednesday afternoon, when he passed away, not having learned that his wife had gone before him.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

POSSIBLE EFFECT OF THE NOVA SCOTIA COAL DEAL.

The Mines Could Be Blown Up By the Boston Syndicate and Thus Prevent a Supply of Coal for British Naval Vessels—The Action of Four Members.

OTTAWA, Feb. 18. — Yesterday, on the orders of the day being called, quite an interesting little debate sprang up at the instance of Hon. Mr. Mills, and lasted for nearly an hour and a half, on the action of Messrs. Weldon, Wood (Westmoreland), O'Neill and McDougald (Pictou) in calling on the Governor-General on Tuesday last and directing his attention to the Imperial interests involved in the coal deal of the Nova Scotia Government and a Boston syndicate.

Mr. Mills moved the adjournment of the House in order to get a chance to bring the matter up. He said he understood that recently the Nova Scotia Legislature had passed an Act which was wholly within the jurisdiction of the Provincial Legislature. His Excellency had been asked to interfere. That advice was not tendered through the responsible advisers of the Crown, but by four members of Parliament who waited upon him. In this connection it was right that the House should know how far members and persons who were not members might go. He quoted some English precedents and held that the action of the four members was wholly at variance with the English system of constitutional government adopted in this country and ought to be discountenanced.

Mr. Weldon said that Messrs. McNeill, Wood, McDougald and himself, being loyal subjects of Her Majesty, having their attention called to the danger that threatened the institutions of the country, took occasion to bring the matter to the attention of the Queen's representative in this country. Notwithstanding that they were humble subjects, they thought that they had the right of approaching the sovereign in this country by petition. They did not go across the water to do so. He saw no difference between presenting a petition verbally or by writing. He did not think that the member for Bothwell could explain the difference.

They could not pretend that they had any representative capacity. Being children of British parents they imagined that they had the right to take the step they did. When coming to Ottawa he had a conversation with certain parties in Halifax—naval officers—who had called his attention to the danger in time of war of nearly all the coal fields in Nova Scotia passing into the hands of an alien syndicate. It might be possible, if a political crisis arose, that all these mines could be flooded out or blown up so that British war vessels would be unable to get any coal without returning across the Atlantic.

Having become acquainted with these facts he thought that they had the right to lay them before His Excellency in the interests of the Empire. It was absurd to compare what they had done with Lord Darnley's case, the latter having five million of French gold with which to betray England.

All of them spoke to His Excellency on the matter and the latter was exceedingly pleased to see four British gentlemen interest themselves in the welfare of the Empire. [Hear, hear and cheers.]

Mr. Laurier said that the observations of Mr. Mills were not directed against the motives which actuated the four members, but as to the unconstitutional method they took. Why could not they trust to the loyalty of the Prime Minister? Did they believe he was not up to the mark? In the days of Edward the Confessor the subject approached in person the sovereign, but in the days of Queen Victoria that was done through Her Majesty's constitutional advisers.

The debate was continued by Messrs. McKeen, McNeill and Wood in the direction of Mr. Weldon and Messrs. Davies and Fraser in support of Mr. Mills, after which Sir John Thompson said he did not think there was any difference of opinion as to the constitutional question. From the speeches of Mr. Mills and the gentlemen who had waited on His Excellency it appeared that they all agreed that no person should approach His Excellency for the purpose of giving advice. In a bantering manner he said that Mr. Mills had probably learned from the newspapers, as he himself had, that these gentlemen had waited on His Excellency for the purpose of advising him to disallow a statute passed by a local legislature, but from the statements made by Mr. Weldon and others it appears that what occurred was something like this:

These gentlemen had merely made a friendly call on His Excellency, as members often do during the session of Parliament. [Laughter.] In the course of conversation these gentlemen had referred to a subject which they considered of the gravest Imperial importance, and as it might be a matter requiring the consideration of his legal advisers His Excellency with great delicacy and propriety requested that any facts in their possession should be laid before him in such form that they could be laid before his advisers for consideration.

It would seem that the interview passed off with the utmost harmony on both sides and that the constitution was not broken after all. After this explanation he thought the House would feel more comfortable for the matter being brought up, because it appeared that nothing so serious as the newspapers report had occurred at all, and in the next place it was comforting to know that these gentlemen took such a warm interest in Imperial affairs.

For his own part he was not prepared to discuss the coal transaction, for he had not seen the statute nor read the debates. Amid much laughter he concluded the most humorous speech he has ever made in the House as follows:

"I merely mention as another point of congratulation the active and lively interest which gentlemen on both sides take in the welfare of my native province and the interests of the Dominion that may be affected by the legislation of that province. Above all, we should be more pleased that, when there is the slightest suspicion arising from newspaper rumors that there is any want of confidence or lack of confidence in the Ministry, those who are willing to first spring to the rescue should be members of the Opposition."

After a few remarks by Hon. Mr. Laurier, Mr. Mills and others the motion to adjourn was withdrawn.

The debate on the budget was then renewed by Mr. Edgar, who spoke up to 6 o'clock, confining his attention to the cotton industry, which he held was the most pampered and pap-fed of all the protected industries.

He said that after spending so many millions in opening up the Northwest the people were entitled to hear some great scheme for bringing people to that country. During the last decade there should have been a million increase in the population in that new district. He proposed to deal with one of the most interesting infant industries of Canada, to show necessity of tariff reform. This industry was the most spoiled, the most crazy and dangerous of them all. He referred to the cotton industry, and claimed that the higher duties on the poor man's material came out of the pockets of the poor man. There was a tax of 40 per cent. on cotton shirtings such as worn by laboring men. He claimed that the output of cotton in Canada was $14,000,000 worth. What taxes were paid on this output? At 28 per cent. the taxes amounted to $3,930,000 per annum, which went into the pockets of the manufacturer.

This tax was in addition to the cost of the cotton if imported. He estimated that the cost of the raw material and labor was $6,000,000 out of the $14,000,000, so this was a margin of $8,000,000 to meet ordinary expenses and dividends, without the protective industries. Under any fair management this should leave a profit without any protection at all. The Canadian cotton mills could compete in the outside world without any protection at all, and they did it. They were in the Chinese markets with their goods competing with the world. The result was that they could supply the heathen Chinee without protection, yet they extorted $4,000,000 out of the people of Canada. This syndicate could raise the dividends and not raise the rate of wages which they paid. When the cost of the raw material fell a million dollars they had actually raised the price of manufactured products 25 per cent.

They had also watered their stock to absorb the immense amount of dividends He then referred to the combination in cotton which had been formed. There was really only one mill in Canada to-day which gave any competition to the syndicate in white cottons; all the rest were controlled by the combine. He then explained how the Dominion Cotton Company had watered their stock. The paid up capital was $1,500,000 and on the 7th of September the scheme for watering their stock was made public. It was stated that although they had paid 8 and 10 per cent dividends, their actual earnings had been from 22 to 27 per cent. The additional watered stock had been sold to existing stockholders at $10 per $100 share, thus each $180 share cost the shareholders $53 each.

This stock was now quoted at 140, or a profit of 154 per cent. on the original cost, and it was paying 8 to 10 per cent. dividends. [Hear, hear.] Now the bulk of this tax was levied on the Canadian consumer in favor of the manufacturing body. By this tax they shut out the British manufacturer. Was this loyalty? It was 50 per cent. loyalty. The sufferers from this tax were the deluded ones who went into the manufacturing of cottons originally, and the people at large. These facts showed that the tariff ought to be reformed, and the duty on cotton reduced now and not wait for the Minister of Finance to go through the country with his caravan and menagerie.

After recess Mr. Northrup spoke in support of the National Policy, and asked that the Government should give protection to farmers as well as manufacturers.

Mr. Fraser, who always makes a good speech from a Liberal standpoint, dived into the census at the outstart, and said that it seemed always necessary for Government returns here giving an excuse or an explanation for the results. In England such a thing was never thought of. For instance the unsatisfactory nature of the census returns was explained away by two reasons. The Dominion statistician said the result was due to the decay of early marriages and celibacy.

In other words, Canadians did not marry soon enough or did not marry at all. This was due, said the statistician, to the fact that the young women were being better educated now, got profitable employment and did not marry. That, he said, was a gross slander on the young women and the mothers in Canada. He repudiated the slander.

From this he launched into the trade question, stating that the dividing line between the two parties in Canada was tariff reform. It was protection on the one side and freer trade on the other. Free trade was not yet an issue between the two parties, but that time was coming. Protection was a sham and a fraud, for man to man Canadians feared no nation on the face of the earth in open competition, and was therefore ready for freer trade.

Mr. Bennett followed, dealing mostly with the census, and the House adjourned at 11.

The supplementary estimates for the current fiscal year, which were laid on the table this afternoon by Hon. Mr. Foster, amount to $1,245,834, of which $270,200 is chargeable to capital, $814,207 to consolidated account, $3000 to territorial accounts and $158,247 to unprovided items 1891-'92.

Amongst the votes asked for are $46,274 to pay Baring Bros. and Glyn, Mills & Co. on half of 1 per cent. commission on amount on bonds and stock inscribed for the sinking funds of the guaranteed loans from 1868 to Dec. 31, 1892; $42,018 for legislation, included in which is $18,000 to recoup a governor-general's warrant for further amount required for printing voters' lists; $67,100 for militia; $51,000 for bridge over Lachine Canal at Wellington-street, Montreal; $161,000 for Sault Ste. Marie Canal; $53,000 for Toronto drill hall; $146,140 for quarantine stations, including $50,636 for Grosse Isle and $62,000 for British Columbia station at Williams Head; $51,000 for wharves at quarantine stations; Indians $42,921; miscellaneous $73,646, which includes $1000 towards expense of mining convention, $32,000 for expense of determining the boundary line between Canada and the United States, $15,000 for prohibition commission, $10,000 for St. John's, Nfld., fire and $1022 to pay for a portrait of Lord Lansdowne.

To-day's Canada Gazette will contain the appointments of County Court Judges MacMillan, Snider and O'Connor, and the return of Mr. Tarte for L'Islet.

The deposits in Government savings banks for January were $272,540 and withdrawals $242,997.

It is stated on excellent authority to-night that Mr. Robert Sedgwick, deputy Minister of Justice, has been offered and has accepted the position of puisne judge of the Supreme Court, and that he will be sworn in on Monday in time to take his seat on the opening of the court on Tuesday.

Robert Sedgwick, Q.C., is third son of the late Rev. Dr. Sedgwick of Musquodoboit, N.S. He was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, May 10, 1845, and came to Canada with his parents in May, 1863. Educated at Dalhousie College, where he graduated B.A. in 1865. Called to the bar in this province in 1868, and subsequently in Manitoba. Appointed Q.C. 1880 and to Deputy Minister of Justice in Feb., 1893.

With regard to the deputy Ministership of Justice, it is said that it will not be filled immediately, but that Mr. Power, who has most creditably filled the position temporarily on several occasions, will act for the present.

C. A. Mallory, Grand President, Wallworth; L. A. Walsh, Grand Secretary, Strathroy; S. A. Gifford, Grand President, Meaford; I. T. O. Carry, Strathroy; A. Foster, Markham; Thomas Teal, County Treasurer, Lincoln, Grand Trustees. All of the Patrons of Industry arrived in the city Friday and had an interview with Sir John Thompson and Mr. Foster in regard to changes in the tariff.

The following members of Parliament accompanied the delegation: Messrs. Charlton, Pope, Beith, Mulock, McGregor, McMillan and Allan. Mr. Charlton introduced the delegates to the ministers. Mr. Mallory and the members of the association addressed the ministers. Putting it briefly, they asked that binder twine, coal oil, corn and all kinds of wire fencing be placed on the free list.

They also asked that it should be made a criminal offence for manufacturers to combine together to raise the price of any article. It was their intention to have waited on the Government before this time, but they did not expect that the budget would have been delivered so soon.

The C.P.R. Co. has given notice of an application to Parliament for an act authorizing it to convert at the option of holders its existing ordinary shares into registered sterling stock, and to give the company the option of making in such registered stock any future issue that may be authorized by the shareholders, and also to restore the powers contained in clause 37 of the company's charter relating to the issue of preference stock subject to the authority of the shareholders, but limiting the amount of such preference stock to one-half the amount of the ordinary stock and share capital at any time outstanding.

This will complete the restoration to the company of all the powers conferred by its original charter and enable it to bring its finances more into harmony with English ideas as to the relation that should subsist between the amount of capital carrying a fixed charge and that entitled to rank for dividends.

FOSTER'S DISPATCH.

It Will Inform Minister Stevens That He Has Erred.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The correspondence sent into the Senate by the President to accompany the Hawaiian treaty contains the text of Secretary Foster's dispatch of Feb. 11, an abstract of which went out by the last mails to Honolulu, disavowing Mr. Stevens' protectorate. In this important despatch, after quoting Minister Stevens' despatch announcing a protectorate, Secretary Foster says: The phraseology of your proclamation in announcing your action in assumption of protection of Hawaiian Islands in the name of the United States would appear to be tantamount to the assumption of a protectorate over those islands in behalf of the United States, with all rights and obligations which the term implies. To this extent it goes beyond necessities of the situation and instructions heretofore given you.

Your proclamation expresses no reservation as to confirmation of your action by the Government of the United States. Its provisos are that the assumed function of protection is to be exercised so far as may be necessary for the specified purpose of protecting life and property without interference with the administration of public affairs by the Provisional Government and that the action in question "is taken pending and subject to negotiations in Washington."

These qualifications are entirely in the line of my views of the scope and intent of the request made to you by the Provisional Government of the Hawaiian Islands.

The Minister's action in substituting the American for the Hawaiian flag is disavowed. He is instructed to keep as many troops on shore as are necessary for public tranquility.

MARTIAL LAW.

Martial Law Proclaimed Off—The Queen Still in Hopes.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 18.—On the 5th inst. martial law was declared off by the provisional government of Hawaii. Everybody was anxiously awaiting news from the United States, and the sentiment of annexation was steadily growing.

Ex-Queen Lilioukalani is still in retirement at her private residence. She is confident that her envoy to the United States will meet a favorable reception. The United States steamer Mohican, which sailed from Mare Island navy yard Jan. 29, was just entering the harbor of Honolulu as the Belgic sailed, but there was apparently no necessity for any increase of naval force.

A detachment of sailors and marines from the United States steamship Boston is still quartered on shore and the whites and natives are willing to await action by the Washington Government.

The provisional government has in a great measure won over public confidence, having amply demonstrated its ability to cope with the situation. S. M. Damon, Minister of Finance in the Thurston Cabinet, has been appointed vice-president in the provisional government. This appointment was made by the Executive and Advisory Board.

The Queen's Envoy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Paul Newman, the envoy of Queen Lilioukalani to the United States, accompanied by Prince David of the royal family and two servants, arrived late last night.

An Island Swept Clean.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—News was received Friday that a hurricane swept the Island of Nofou of the Samoan group on Dec. 10, continuing for 60 hours. The storm in severity equalled that which destroyed the foreign warships four years ago. Thousands of trees were leveled to the ground, the old Wesleyan Church was swept away, and the European and native houses destroyed.

The Baring Failure.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The Bank of England yesterday convened a meeting of the Baring guarantors to propose, it is understood, that the period of liquidation be extended for one year, and that the guarantee be reduced from £17,000,000 to £5,000,000. The guarantors postponed their decision so as to have an opportunity for consultation with their respective banks.

PLUCKILY AND GAMELY THEY FOUGHT.

But the Fortune of War Were Against Them—Winnipeg Defeats Peterborough in a Well Contested Match by 9 Goals to 3.

The Winnipeg Hockey team of whom Canadians have heard so much about lately and who have been achieving an enviable record in their career through the province, played Peterborough a rattling game at the rink last night, on their return trip from the east homewards. There was a company of probably 400 interested and excited spectators who lined the galleries on every side gathered to see the eventful struggle. The face off took place at 8.20 o'clock when the following men lined up before Referee Wm. Bradburn :—

Winnipeg.		Peterborough.

J C Armitage, R Beckett, C D Macdonnell, R Girdleston,	forwards	W Phelan, H E C Wonham, J Parson, W J Montgomery.
A Allan (Toronto)	goal umpire	E B Loucks

In the first half Winnipeg was playing up the rink. At the face off the puck went near the Winnipeg goal with a wild rush by the Peterborough forwards, but was soon returned by the Prairie City boys' doughty backs. The rubber then hovered for some time in close proximity to Peterborough's citadel. Again the harmless object was carried up into Peterborough's close quarters but only to be returned. The game which the sides were playing now was fast, keen and brilliant, very few fouls being made and fine stick handling and clever work being done all around. The excitement now began and the spectators cheered good plays on both sides long and loud until the game was ended, in a scrimmage around Peterborough's goal. Sawers was struck below the right eye by the stick of a visitor and this caused a few minutes delay. After ten minutes vigorous and indefatigable work Phelan made an expert shot on goal but Stow stopped it amid great alarm. The puck was a the ice. Higginbotham then scored first goal for the prairie city boys by a splendid shot from the right. On the second face off Winnipeg again sent the puck whizzing in the vicinity of Peterborough's goal and and in less time than it takes to write, the second goal of the visitors was attained by Armitage, a veteran forward. The rubber was passed out to him and he threw it through. They then started play again, the work becoming more brisk and the interest keener. The rubber was kept moving around Phelan and Parsons who were doing grand service and soon extricated it and carried it down the ice. Montgomery made a straight shot for goal which was stopped by the faithful stick of the Winnipeg goal keeper again. The home team were not following up in good style and doing too much 'shinney," whereas the fine stick work and clever individual rushes of the visitors was telling all along and in five minutes more Armitage took his second goal, making the third goal for the visitors. He shot from the side, the puck hitting against Dumble's stick and bounded in. Half a minute later, by rapid execution and almost before the excited crowd knew play had been resumed, Peterborough scored her first game by the admirable rush and unerring shot made by Montgomery. The play was enthusiastically cheered. Soon after Wonham made another capital shot on goal, but it went too high. Peterborough was now waking up and playing in her best form—better than at any stage of the contest, either before or after. The interest was feverish, and the disposition of the home players to reduce their opponents' score, dogged and determined. After 10 minutes desperate work around Winnipeg's battlements, Phelan passed from the right to Wonham, who did the necessary, and closed the first half by a score of 3 to 2 in favor of the visitors.

FEW SECONDS LATER CARRIED DOWN

THE SECOND HALF RESULTS DISASTROUSLY.

About two minutes after play was resumed the town team felt the prowess of the visitors, Armitage, always reliable, taking another goal. About the same time again elapsed when Girdleston took another goal. The visitors had decidedly the best part of the game during this half, although Peterborough played in heroic form with a vim and a grit that excited admiration. Details of the remainder of the play would be uninteresting, save that in two seconds after the fifth gaol a sixth was taken by Beckett, and three minutes later a seventh by Girdleston. Two more games were snatched from the Peterborough during this half, both taken by Armitage, who made fully half the Winnipeg's number of goals. Just before the referee's whistle blew and the interesting affray was over Phelan made an old time shot from the middle and it was rightly placed. Great cheering ensued and the friendly yet hardly won battle closed by 9 goals to 3 in favour of the visitors.

PUCK PARAGRAPHS.

The Winnipeg boys are athletic young fellows, of fine physiques and sturdy build. With one or two exceptions they were much larger than the Peterboroughs.

Winnipeg's defence is a regular bulwark, Denison and Higginbotham are insuperable.

The visitors are better skaters and better stick handlers than the average hockey aggregations. Their great point, however, lays not in their solid phalanx of team play or combination play but in signal individual efforts.

Armitage, Beckett and Girdleston, three forwards of the visitors, are "daisies."

The home boys were warmly congratulated in the fine stand made and hard brush given to such an acknowledgedly strong club as Winnipeg.

Referee Bradburn's decisions were just and equitable.

After the game the visitors had refreshments at Graham's restaurant, served in the usual first-class style of the house.

The visitors left at 7.10 this morning for Toronto, where they will play the Granites on Mondoy night.

There are ten men of the Winnipegs all lively genial fellows. T. D. B. Evans is their manager, and they carry the champion skater of the Dominion with them, Mr. J. K. McCollough.

In the second half a delay of a few minutes was caused by Macdonald getting hurt.

Parson, formerly of Winnipeg, was one that clubs strongest players last winter. He showed out forcibly against his old opponets last night. He was however pleased to renew old acquaintances.

The visitors said the ice was in good condition but that the rink was unusually narrow.

The Prairie City fellows were beaten on Thursday by Montreal by 7 to 4.

Peterborough will play Queen's College at Kingston on Tuesday night next. The Winnipegs defeated Queens by a score of 4 goals to 3.

Root and Branch,

the poison in your blood, however it may have come or whatever shape it may be taking, is cleared away by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a remedy that rouses every organ into healthful action, purifies and enriches the blood, and through it cleanses and invigorates the whole system. Salt Rheum, Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Enlarged Glands, and the worst Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, are perfectly and permanently cured by it.

Unlike the ordinary spring medicines or sarsaparillas, the "Discovery" works equally well at all seasons. All the year round and in all cases, it is GUARANTEED, as no other blood medicine is. If it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back. You pay only for the good you get.

Isn't it safe to say that no other blood purifier can be "just as good?"

If it were, wouldn't it be sold so?

A LINCOLN COUNTY MIRACLE.

THE TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE OF A WELL-TO-DO FARMER.

Mr. Ezra Merritt Suffers Untold Agony—Told by a Physician That Only Death Could End His Sufferings—How He Secured His Release From Pain—Anxious That Others Should Benefit by His Experience.

Grimsby Independent.

How often we hear the expression "Hills are green far away" as a term of disparagement. So it may be with many of our readers when they hear of anything occuring at a distance from home bordering on the wonderful. They may place little confidence in it, and even if they do believe it, allow the matter to pass from their minds without leaving any permanent expression. Not so with local affairs. When anything startling occurs in our midst, affecting people whom we all know well, every one is interested, and all are anxious and even eager for the most minute details. For some months past there has been published in the columns of the Independent from time to time accounts of remarkable cures made by that now justly famous medicine—Dr. William's Pink Pills for Pale People. Possibly some of our readers have looked upon some of these accounts as describing cures highly improbable, if not impossible. And yet this should not be the case, for they are all vouched for by respectable newspapers, who could have no object in stating other than the facts, and who would be discredited by their own readers were they to do so. However, seeing is believing, and Mr. Ezra Merritt, of South Grimsby, stands forth to-day as a living testimony to the wonderful curative powers of this not at all over-estimated medicine--Dr. William's Pink Pills. Having heard that a most remarkable cure had been effected in the case of Mr. Merritt, the editor of the Independent, with that desire possessed by most newspaper men for verifying things coming under their notice, resolved to investigate the case and satisfy himself as to the truth of the story. Some days ago he drove over to Smithville, and at once called upon Mr. D. W. Eastman, druggist, a straightforward business man whose word is as good as his bond with all who know him. Mr. Eastman stated that he knew of the case of Mr. Merritt and considered it a most remarkable one. Mr. Palmer Merrit had come to him one day and asked him if he could give him anything that would help his brother, Ezra Merritt, who was suffering untold agony with pain in all his joints, his back and his h ad. Mr. Merrit stated that his brother had tried everything and could find nothing to help him and that the doctors could give him no ease. One doctor from the United States had told him positively that there was no help for him, and that death only could set him free from his agony. Mr. Merritt further told Mr. Eastman that his brother wished to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and asked him if he thought it would be any use. Mr. Eastman advised him to try them, as wonderful cures had been worked by their use. Mr. Merritt acted on his advice and continued the use of Pink Pills until he is now a well man and sound as ever.

The editor then drove over to see Mr. Merritt, and found that gentleman sound and hearty, looking over his cattle in his farmyard. Mr. Ezra Merritt is a well-to-do farmer owning two fine farms about 3½ miles west of Smithville, in the township of South Grimsby. When the newspaperman told the object of his visit Mr. Merritt expressed his willingness to give him the fullest particulars of his case, and we cannot do better than give it in his own words: "The first time I was troubled," said Mr. Merritt, "was on July first, 1891. We commenced haying on that day and I felt sore and stiff in all my joints. I now believe the trouble originated through my washing some sheep in cold water the preceding April, when I went into the water and stayed so long that when I came out my legs were numb, but I did not feel any bad results until July as I have said. I gradually grew worse until I could scarcely do anything. I kept on trying to work but it was a terrible struggle, and the way I suffered was something awful. Every joint in my body was stiff and intensely painful. As time passed on I gradually grew worse the pains went into my back and at times my agony was unbearable. I had tried all home-made remedies but without avail. I then consulted a doctor but his medicine had no effect. At the time of the Smithville fair a doctor was over here from the States and I consulted him. He said my case was hopeless, and I need not expect anything but death to relieve me from my pain. As winter came on the pain got into my head and my sufferings were something terrible. About dark the pain would start about my ear and work up until it reached the crown of my head. As morning came on the pain in my head would subside, but the pains in the rest of my body never left me, and at last I grew so bad that when I would lie on my back I could not get up to save my life without assistance. Although I had not lost my appetite I became weak, so bad that though I could walk around I could not stoop to lift a pound. I became so weak in this way that I got discouraged and lost all hope of ever getting better. It was about this time that I heard of the wonderful cures by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and Mr. Eastman, of Smithville, advised that they be given a trial. My brother got me a box, and I took them but felt no good results. I took still another box, and still no perceptible benefit, and I felt so weak and discouraged that I decided not to take any more. At this time a lady from Hamilton came to visit at our place and she strongly advised me to continue using the Pink Pills. She had known Mr. Marshall at that city, and knew that his case was bona fide. I thought it useless to continue, but at the earnest solicitations of my friends did so, and by the time I was through with the third box I began to feel a benefit from them. This gave me hope, which did not again waver, as I felt myself steadily growing better, and continued the use of the Pink Pills until now I am as well as ever I was in my life. I know that it was Pink Pills that saved me when all else had failed, and I have no objections whatever to having the story of my cure published, as it may be the means of helping some other sufferer back to health and strength and gladness." Mr. Merritt further said that he had now no fear of a hard day's work, and has not had the slightest return of the pains or the stiffness in the joints.

Returning to Smithville, the editor again called upon Mr. Eastman and was informed by that gentleman that his sales of Pink Pills were something enormous, Mr. Merritt's cure having something to do with the increase in sales lately. There are other cases in this vicinity little less than marvellous of which we may speak later on.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a perfect blood builder and nerve restorer, curing such diseases as rheumatism, neuralgia, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus dance, nervous headache, nervous prostration and the tired feeling therefrom the after effects of la grippe, influenza and severe colds, diseases depending on humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc., Pink Pills give a healthy glow to pale and sallow complexions, and are a specific for the troubles peculiar to the female system, and in the case of men they effect a radical cure, in all cases arising from mental worry over-work or excesses of any nature.

These Pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont., and Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark and wrapper, at 50c. a box, or six boxes for $2.50. Bear in mind that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are never sold in bulk or by the dozen or hundred, and any dealer who offers substitutes in this form is trying to defraud you and should be avoided. The public are also cautioned against all other so-called blood builders or nerve tonics, no matter what name may be given them. They are all imitations whose makers hope to reap a pecuniary advantage from the wonderful reputation achieved by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Ask your dealer for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and refuse all imitations and substitutes.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company from either address. The price at which these pills are sold makes a course of treatment comparatively inexpensive as compared with other remedies or medical treatment.

The care shown by the SUN LIFE in the selection of its risks will be understood when it is known that the death rate in 1892 was less than that in 1891 by $16,000, notwithstanding the vast increase in business. The significance of this point will be clearly seen in the profits paid by the Company.

Each Proved to be an Artist.

The Belle Botsford Concert Company which appears in the opera house on March 8th under the auspices of Otonabee Lodge, I.O.O.F., have scored successes wherever they have appeared. A rare musical treat is ensured those who attend. The Birmingham Sentinel says:—The company proved itself to be one of the best that has ever visited here. From Miss Botsford, with her violin, to the least member, each proved to be an artist of more than ordinary worth, and the company deserved a house full to overflowing.

A Juvenile Y. P. S. C. E. Entertainment.

The members of the Juvenile Young Peoples Society of Christian Endeavour were given a pleasant time by the members of the senior society in St. Paul's church last evening. A nice tea was served the many children present from 5.30 until 7 o'clock. Afterwards games were indulged in until 8 o'clock, when the entertainment broke up, all joining and singing, "Blessed be the tie that binds." Mr. W. F. Nelson looked after the enjoyment of all in a capable manner.

—The slight toboggan accident at Chemong was due to the rope catching under the front of the toboggan, and not to Mr. Lightbound, who is an expert tobogganer, attempting to check the vehicle.

—At the police court this morning a parent charged with not sending his children, between the age of 8 and 14, to school, contrary to the Ontario School Law, appeared. The case was enlarged until Tuesday.

—The band was present at the skating rink last night. During the progress of the game the musicians discovered many tuneful selections which were appreciated. Some of the finest pieces were dispensed when the hockey light was raging the fiercest and the charms of the jaunty airs seems to infuse new life and vigor into the players.

—Mr. J. W. Doxsee, has returned to Peterborough after a months' absence at Napanee, Kingston, Trenton and other places where he has been giving stereopticon exhibitions. —The special series of services now going on in the Bethany church are being largely attended and much interest is manifested from night to night. There was a good attendance last evening. Rev. Mr. Fisher gave a spirited address and was followed in a few appropriate remarks by Rev. Mr. Zimmerman. Already many have professed conversion. The meetings will be continued all next week.

—During the past two weeks, owing to the severity of the frost, the gas has been very dull in St. Luke's church. The church wardens, therefore, decided to introduce, without delay, the incandescent electric light. This has now been completed, and the light will be used to-morrow evening. The nave is lit by two handsome brass chandeliers with six 32-candle power lights each. The chancel by a similar chandelier with four lights. The general appearance of the church is much improved by this addition, which has been long needed, and the improvement will be still more marked when the old gas standards are removed.

CRISP CURLING CHRONIQUES.

What is Going on at the Rink Where Curlers Most do Congregate.

The three rinks of the Thistles which went to Lakefield yesterday to play three rinks in that village, were successful. Skip Rutherford's quartette had a complete walk over skip Grylls, defeating him by no less than 25 shots. Skip McGill came out even with skip G. A. Strickland, each scoring 21 shots. Both of these rinks played on the skating ice which was rough and crooked, skip Pentland had the best ice as he played on the curling ice with skip Clarin and both scored 18 shots. 21 ends were played in each contest. On the whole the Lakefielders were defeated by 25 shots. Following are the rinks which played:—

The rink of junior curlers from Lindsay played the return match with a rink of junior home curlers at the skating rink here last night. The home quartette were defeated by 6 shots in a 14-end match. Following is the score:

Lindsay.	Peterborough.
J Malcolmson,	V McGill,
W McGill,	A E Thompson,
W Kennedy,	A W Strickland,

The Peterborough stone throwers will play the return match again, two rinks strong, if possible, at Lindsay next Saturday. After the match last night the visiting curlers were hospitably entertained at the Palace Restaurant by their Peterborough friends.

Two rinks of curlers from the town council and town officials would like to play two rinks from the Board of Education a friendly match. Also two rinks from the bankers would like to play two rinks from the lawers. It is these make-up matches between professions and different organisations which evokes much sport.

Hooray! Bobcaygeon captures the bun! In the final in the tankard competition in Toronto yesterday the Bobcaygeon boys came off victorious, beating Oshawa in the wind up. Peterborough gives its heartiest congratulations, and the EXAMINER shakes in spirit (not Brother Smiff's favourite tipple) with the apostle of the true and beautiful, across twenty miles of snow and ice. Won't he make the forest (house) howl! Won't he fill the tankard with mellow seven-year-old, and won't he empty it! "Whoop!" He is not to be blamed—the occasion is one that justifies the juciest jubilation, and Mr. Smiff is equal to the occasion. Shake once more, and—"the same" this time.

BRILLIANT BOY ELOCUTIONIST.

Master T. DeWitt Talmage Stewart, the Brilliant Eight-Year-Old Boy Elocutionist, Wanted in New York.

Mr. W. F. Stewart, father of Master T. DeWitt Talmage Stewart, the wonderful boy elocutionist, has received a communication from Madam Meredith of New York city, asking terms for the engagement of his son for three or four nights in the metropolis. Madam Meredith, who is a musician of distinguished ability, heard the youthful prodigy some months ago in the city of Hamilton, where he achieved such excellent success, and in the letter to Mr. Stewart she pays a deserving compliment to the boy's marvellous talent and ability as an elocutionist. Negotiations are now going on for the gifted little fellow's appearance before a New York audience. This truly phenomenal elocutionist has unmistakable ability. He has, although only eight years of age, become widely known and the demand for his services in New York is no more than would be expected by those who have heard the infant elocutionist's clever rendition of really first rate selections. With proper guiding and training he will take his place in the front rank of elocutionists.

Simply Awful

Worst Case of Scrofula the Doctors Ever Saw

Completely Cured by HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

"When I was 4 or 5 years old I had a scrofulous sore on the middle finger of my left hand, which got so bad that the doctors cut the finger off, and later took off more than half my hand. Then the sore broke out on my arm, came out on my neck and face on both sides, nearly destroying the sight of one eye, also on my right arm. Doctors said it was the

they ever saw. It was simply awful! Five years ago I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. Gradually I found that the sores were beginning to heal. I kept on till I had taken ten bottles, ten dollars! Just think of what a return I got for that investment! A thousand per cent! Yes, many thousand. For the past 4 years I have had no sores. I

Before, I could do no work. I know not what to say strong enough to express gratitude to Hood's Sarsaparilla for my perfect cure." GEORGE W. TURNER, Farmer, Galloway, Saratoga county, N. Y.

A CHEMICAL FIRE ENGINE FOR PETERBOROUGH.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—I have noticed one or two letters in your paper advising, for various reasons, the addition of this apparatus to our fire department. I need scarcely say that I thoroughly endorse this purchase. When I was chairman of the Fire and Light Committee in 1890, this matter was carefully and fully gone into, and the facts and figures which have been given by your correspondents are, I believe, in every respect correct. Such being the case, I feel justified in impressing upon the council the advisability of adding this efficient and reliable appliance to our fire protective system, and thus bring it up to the highest point of efficiency. It will be creditable to us to gain this position, for, while our present system is perfetly satisfactory so far as it goes, it just lacks this one thing to enable us in any emergency to protect ourselves to the utmost against the terrible fiend of fire. We can afford it and it is our duty to make our fire department as complete as possible. As an appliance to subdue fire, the chemical engine has, in every place it is used, in the States as well as this country, done most excellent work; we would therefore be buying a fully tested and universally approved apparatus. Besides which, as it has been so clearly shown, and as I know from my own communications with the Fire Underwriters Association, it will raise Peterborough from B. to A. classification. This means a great saving in insurance premiums, the insurance companies being willing to take $3,500 and even more, less every year from us, if we buy a chemical engine, which is a signal proof of its value. Why should we be unwilling to obtain this great advantage when it only takes $2,500 to purchase it?

I am an opponent of all expenditure that is not dictated by a proper foresight, or an actual necessity, but this thing is one thing of such material and permanent benefit, that the council, in my opinion, would show a wise grasp of the situation and a spirit of true economy, to put this machine into service.

Everyone would share in the advantage that would thus be gained, more or less, and it might be the means of saving us, for the most part, from incendiary fires, and perhaps from a fire that might otherwise seriously devastate our town, leading to a great loss of wealth and business progress. Let this matter be carefully weighed, and then I am sure the purchase will be made, and an immense benefit secured to the town.

Yours,
ADAM HALL.

MUSIC AND ORATORY.

A Night With the Catholic Association—Lecture on Daniel O'Connel—A Good Musical Programme Presented—An Enjoyable Evening.

Last night the hall of the Catholic Association was well filled on the occasion of their weekly entertainment. Mr. Brick occupied the chair and introduced a good programme—a well played pianoforte solo "The Royal Hunt," by Misses Butler and Baker; a vocal solo "The Tail O' my Coat" Joseph Begley, honoured with a warm encore; an excellent reading "The Old Man's Come to Town" by Mr. Brick; Miss Kate Simon's vocal solo, "The Pardon came too Late;" song by Mr. Hiller, "When Ireland has an Army and a Navy;" pianoforte solo, "The Gay Hussar." Miss Maud Kelly; a well and sweetly sung vocal duet, "The Pilot Brave," by the Misses Tall; violin solo, "The Harp that Once Through Tara's Hall," played with fine taste by Miss Hurley, and worthily greeted with an encore; vocal solo, "Young May Moon," Miss McCabe. Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Ball sang the sterling old duet, "Larboard Watch." Miss LePlante's pianoforte solo, "Irish Melodies," was finely performed. Miss Dunn's vocal solo, "The Minstrel Boy," was warmly applauded, as well as Mr. J. McDonald's "Kathleen Mavourneen." Mr. Hiller closed the musical programme by singing "Across the Bridge at Midnight," in a spirited and dramatic manner. The accompanists of the evening were Misses A. Lynch, M. McCabe, M. Hurley, K. Hurley and M. Begley.

About the middle of the programme the event of the evening, Rev. Father Scollard's lecture on was given.

The reverend gentlemen said it gave him much pleasure to be present and give a lecture on Ireland's gifted son, Daniel O'Connell, a lawyer of eminence, and a brilliant orator, and the liberator of his country. He was born in County Kerry in 1775. His first education was received in the vicinity, but he had to seek higher education in France at St Omers and Douay. The horrors of the French Revolution forced him to return to Ireland, where he entered upon the study of the law. In the memorable year of 1798 he was admitted to the bar, and achieved from the beginning an unparalleled success. His greatest forensic effort was made in defense of McGee, accused of libel by the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. His language was vigorous, but lacking in ornament and style, the verdict was what he sought for,. But before the people especially, was his eloquence almost omnipotent. His robust personal presence, his good humored face, his clear deep voice, and his deep earnestness, were the secrets of his oratorical power, conjoined to his deep convictions. The speaker contrasted O'Connell with other great Irish orators, and showed that his intense earnestness and close knowledge of the Irish character gave him his great power with them. He carried his audience with him as by a spell. He always showed great nobleness of character, honesty of purpose, and the highest filal devotion to the Church and its laws, and it was this devotion that gained him the title of Liberator. At the threshold of his career, two ways lay before him—one, hope of preferment and the favour of the oppressors of his country, and the other pointed to a struggle for his down trodden follow countrymen. His patriotism and his faith triumphed. Then he had the choice of two ways of securing Catholic emancipation—constitutional agitation or armed force, and the former was his choice. By his efforts he formed a grand league—the Catholic Association that soon included the whole island. When this was met with legal prohibition, he dissolved it and reorganized it under another name—and the next triumph was the passing of the Catholic Emancipation Act. His further life was sketched and his noble efforts in England on behalf of the Irish people afflicted with famine and pestilence, his death in Italy, were eloquently dealt with. The speaker paid an eloquent tribute to the memory of this great man and showed how he had pointed out to Ireland the true principle of appealing to the justice of the English people and securing Irish liberty by constitutional means. The speaker closed with an earnestly expressed hope that the day was not far distant when there would be restored to Ireland the Parliament of which she was deprived by the disreputable Act of Union.

At the conclusion of the address, an unanimous vote of thanks was tendered the reverend gentlemen, and in reply he warmly commended the Association and its work.

YES, I HAVE TRIED IT!

Two business men met the other day in one of Montreal's public dining rooms. One of these gentlemen was suffering from hoarseness and sore throat, and had been using a cough preparation without getting any good results from it.

The sufferer informed his friend of his trouble, and said: "I was advised just an hour ago to use Harvard Bronchial Syrup; do you know anything about it?"

The reply came quickly and with great assurance:

"Yes, I have tried this wonderful cough syrup, and have no hesitation in declaring it to be the best I have ever used. Give it a trial at once, and I promise you that you will never use any other."

The Harvard Bronchial Syrup was procured the same day, and twenty-four hours after, every trace of hoarseness and sore throat had vanished.

This wonderful work is being done every day through the aid of this magic cough remedy. No other preparation known to our people has ever done such a work. It is popular all over Canada, and druggists say they have an immense demand for it.

ASTRONOMICAL MEASUREMENTS

Instructive Lecture Delivered by Mr. Fessenden Last Night Before the Collegiate Institute Literary Society.

The attendance at the sixth of the series of lectures under the auspices of the Collegiate Institute last night was up to the average and undoubtedly would have been larger but for the counter attractions in town. In the absence of the president, Mr. Cragg, the chair was occupied by Mr. Jeffries, English Master of the Collegiate Institute. After a few introductory remarks by the chairman, Miss Fawcett favored the audience with a solo entitled "After Sundown," which was pleasingly rendered and duly appreciated.

Mr. Fessenden, Principal of the Collegiate Institute, was next introduced and delivered a very interesting and instructive lecture on "How Astronomical Measurements are Made." To attempt to give a satisfactory account of the lecture is impossible without the aid of the geometrical figures which the lecturer made use of. A brief summary is all that can be given. Many interesting points regarding measurements and distances and how they are determined were made so simple that all could understand.

In order that distances may be measured the first thing necessary is that some arbitrary length be chosen as a unit. Our unit of measurement is the yard measure, which is carefully preserved in London, Eng. The lecturer explained a contrivance for keeping the bar from contracting or expanding so that the unit of measurements might be preserved. He next showed how the distance between two places could be found without actual measurement. A convenient distance may be measured accurately on the ground to be used as a base line, and by means of an instrument for measuring angles, the number of degrees in the angles between the directions of the base line and the lines joining the ends of the base lines to the object whose distance we require, may be found. All the necessary information for solving the triangle thus formed is thus obtained, namely, two of the angles and one of the sides. This fact was made clear and prominent by the lecturer, and on it were based the methods of determining all the measurements he afterwards explained.

The lecturer by the application of the preceding fact explained how the dimensions of the earth, the distance between two points on the earth's surface, the distance and size of the moon may be determined.

The lecture was closed by showing how the relative distance of the planets from the sun was determined, and the planet Mars and Venus were employed in explanation.

The lecture throughout was clear and forcible, and showed that Mr. Fessenden was not only thoroughly acquainted with his subject, but that he has the happy faculty of presenting his subject in a manner which can be understood without a comprehensive knowledge of mathematics.

After the lecture Misses Annie Hall and Eva Carey sang a duet entitled, "I would that my love," with exceedingly good taste and expression.

"God save the Queen" closed the entertainment.

The next lecture of the series will be delivered by Mr. Jeffries on March 3rd. His subject is "Macbeth."

BODICES properly have no wrong side. That is, the bones and all that are put between the material and the lining, which is of silk or satin, of a contrasting color to the outside, so the dress is as pretty as can be when it hangs over a chair while my lady changes or as it is laid ont ready for her to get into. Sleeve protectors, those dreadful things, are basted into the corset cover armhole. They change as often as my lady changes her corset cover and are washed as often as the covers are, of course. The old untidy custom of having protectors fastened into a dressasleeve, staying there as long as the dress is worn, is all done away with. If you do not wear corset covers, and do not want to, then you have your protectors slipped into a fine linen bag, made just to fit, which has little ribbons at each end. There are ribbons in the armholes of your dress, and the protector is tied in and is not put away in the dress when the dress is taken off, but are untied and taken out. The best protector is a heavy odorless rubber.

The first illustration shows the back view of a pretty ball dress, and a costume with a shawl blouse. The first is of filmy material, tulle or gauze, with an underdress of silk or satin both for the skirt and bodice. The skirt of this frock is gathered in at the waist and is trimmed with a tulle ruche about the neck and bottom of the skirt, over which passes a garland of roses of a delicate shade with buds and leaves complete, and which on one side pass half way up the skirt. The waist is covered with tulle very full, and at the back has a very wide sash which fastens under a large bow. Bands of roses form the braces, and waist band and sash are made of satin. Turning to the right hand figure, there is a shawl blouse made of white silk crepe, with valenciennes insertion at regular intervals which may be regulated according to taste. There is a high Medici collar. The sleeves are very high and puffed, below the elbow there is a long cuff which is stitched in by a herringbone stitch. The waist passes underneath the skirt and the sleeves are provided inside with epaulet of stiff muslin in order to keep them upright on the shoulders. Two triple folds fasten the back of the collar to the waist.

A reception costume for a middle-aged lady is next pictured. It is of satin trimmed either with plush or marabout. The belt should be cut wide or narrow according to the figure of the wearer. The trimming for the waist can be real or imitation lace. It falls from the neck in large folds, sometimes like a Zouave jacket and may either hang loosely or be fastened in under the belt.

The prettiest cloaks for evening are those made to match the gown with which they are to be worn, the outside being of the same material as most of the gown, and the lining either the other material used in the dress, or a shade that carries out the second color of the gown. For instance a gown of green and white would show a cloak of either green to match, or white, lined with the other color. A pretty model is the military cape, coming to the knees and made full. It can be still longer, like the old time dominoes to cover all over. Another model shows a yoke of the material finished with a very full ruffle edged with fur. The rest of the cloak falls full from under this ruffle, and is of the second color and material. It is also edged with the fur. Another lovely cloak is in yellow velvet and white brocade. The yoke and lining are of the yellow velvet; the rest of the white brocade. The fur is sable but the model can be carried out much less expensively and almost as charmingly. A cloak for summer or winter wear is most unique. The lining is of very rich silk-back velvet, and the yoke of the same. From the yoke hangs almost priceless lace. Of course through the lace the silk back of the lining of the cloak shows. We are not all so rich as that, but if you have such an heirloom as a beautiful old lace shawl, there is a use for it, and the rest of the expense can be eluded by lining the velvet with silk. To tell the truth, if the silk is a perfect match no one will know. Still no one could fail to know that it was that showed through in the cloak I saw. It was the silk back of the velvet inside the cloak.

The third picture is of a handsome house dress in cloth and plaid silk. The skirt is opened at the left side to admit a panel of the silk. Three large buttons are placed where the skirt is joined just above the panel. There is a Zouave jacket bordered with passementerie.

Feathers and not stiffening is what you should put in your sleeves to make them stand out stiff and crisp. Feathers are light and hold their place, and resume their shape if they are crushed. If you stiffen with crinoline your gown is only new and fresh looking the first few times you wear it. The newness of a gown lies almost altogether in the sleeves. We hear lots said against the great sleeves, but don't you join in it. Instead gratefully take advantage of the fashion, and remember that from the train that is too worn and old for any use, you can get at least a pair of enormous sleeves and perhaps a bertha ruffle to go over the shoulders and to a point in front. Mere scraps of brocade, left over and bits will do for a top puff on the sleeves, or even a ruffle to hang over the top of the under puff of plain goods, and so add to the richness of the whole; surely a much more artistic use of goods and bits than when we used to cut up stuff to make little bands for collar and cuffs and, perhaps, a belt. Now that the elegance of a gown depends nearly all upon the sleeves, you can with very little work secure an effect of elegance. You can bead or paint enough for sleeves, or stripe the top puff with ribbon, or bind the top of the two puffs or the one big one with strips of fine stuff, ribbon like, only loosely. It is worth while to get enough gold lace or net of good quality so it will not tarnish, to make two big covers for the puffs. With these slipped over the sleeves of your white brocade, short-waisted bodice, and a gold girdle, you make another dress out of your white silk gown. Or, thus you may make the white brocade bodice do for the dresses; the one with a heavy brocade skirt, perhaps beaded with gold, with which of course, you would wear the bodice fixed with the gold sleeves. The other just a very full soft skirt of either India silk or crepe, and this without the gold over the sleeves. You see the two gowns would be of so different a character that no one would suspect your economy. Besides, remember how short a time comparatively fashions last, and how little after all you are able to show for the amount of money spent. Common wisdom dictates following the fashion with the little outlay as possible. Thus it is wise now to take up the Empire because in this field we can use up the materials of our out of fashion dresses.

The last illustration shows another house dress of light gray bengaline, with corselet belt of satin ribbon, knotted behind and falling in long ends. There are deep cuffs and short of yoke of point d'Irlande guipure. The skirt has no train but is slightly longer at the back than at the front. The lace which falls over the front and back is draped to cover nearly all the shoulder seam. The corselet is made on whalebones; these bones occupy the place of the waist seams. For this purpose one is placed in the middle of the front, one between the darts, and one on the under arm seam; the remainder of the sash being knotted at the back does not require to be boned. The material for the sleeve is cut very full and gathered on to the lining so that it stands up at the top in two little horns. First, find the middle of the material, and the middle of the tight-fitting lining and make a notch on each. Then proceed to gather the material in the usual way, beginning about two inches from the bend of the arm, and stopping about two inches from the notch in the material. Fasten the gathers on the lining, stopping an inch from the lining notch, then recommence to gather two inches from the other side of the material notch, thus leaving four inches plain in the centre of the material. Fix these gathers to the lining also, leaving an inch on this side of the lining notch plain. Then take the material which is loose at the top, and drawing it well up from the sleeve, form the two little horns on the plain part of the lining, making them stand out well from the contour of the sleeve. This way of draping the sleeve is quite new and gives an air of originality to the dress. The military collar to match, the lace is attached fastens on the shoulder.

TRAINED.

Two Elaborate Dresses to Wear at Receptions.

A beautiful reception dress with long train is pictured herewith. It is made of black damask with a trimming of passementerie and Chantilly lace. Pearl embroidered tulle is used for the bertha. It is made perfectly plain and the lining and upper material are sewn in together. An unusual thing about this costume is the deep round cuff. The bell skirt must be cut so as to fall in graceful folds and must be lined throughout. Double flounces are placed inside the bottom of the skirt, outside of which is placed a narrow row of material. Passementerie forms the fastening of the waist; the bertha is formed of material which is edged on both sides with lace. Lace also covers the short sleeves, fastened by ribbons.

I saw another lovely gown with a golden yellow skirt, the train of which started from the edge of the neck. The neck was rounded out at the back and not low. The bodice was a golden brown velvet, short waisted, with great sleeves. The neck was not low either front or back, and in the front a broad full collar turned back and lay over the sleeves. At the back the bodice laced, not tight but so that there was a vide space, and through that space the yellow of the train showed to the neck. The effect was charming. Though the model is just the thing for the careful woman with a little extra silk for her skirt and a somewhat scant supply of velvet for her bodice, yet the original was a brand new gown in the latest style and certainly does not suggest in any way a makeshift.
FLORETTE.

Improved Stable Floor.

I send you description of a stable floor especially good for stallions and geldings. The first tier of plank, which may be 2 inches thick, is laid with an incline of 3 inches to the rear. These plank are the full depth of the stall, including the manger. The length will vary from 8 to 9 feet. Over this are laid pieces like C in cut. These pieces are 4 inches wide and 3 inches in depth, and as long as the stall or plank of first tier. They taper to nothing at one end, and are laid an inch apart. B shows how two pieces are taken out of one stick by sawing diagonally any good, hard, tough wood 8 by 4 inches. A shows the floor when complete. In cleaning this stall it is necessary to have a kind of mattock to fit into the spaces in the grating. This improvement is more noticeable when used for stallions and geldings.—Cor. Country Gentleman.

Consumptives, Cheer up!

You are not going to die if you will but exercises a little common sense, and spend a paltry sum. You may be very feeble now, sitting bolstered up in the big arm-chair, but you may now throw up your hat or bonnet, and shout for joy! Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil will save you if you take it according to directions. What you need is good new blood and rebuilt tissues. If you take Miller's Emulsion you will gain from five to ten pounds of flesh with each bottle. There is no use wasting words. A hint should be enough to a consumptive of the fact that Miller's preparation of Cod Liver Oil SAVES. In big bottles, 50c. and $1, at all Drug Stores.

Couldn't Keep on His Feet.

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 31st, 1892.
To the Peterborough Medicine Company:
GENTLEMEN,—If there is any medicine in the world that I pin my faith to it is Membray's Kidney and Liver Cure. In my business I have to stand on my feet a good deal. About a year ago my back began to give out, weakening pains set in across my kidneys, I felt tired all the time and could hardly stand up to my work. I began to lose strength and at last had to give up work altogether. A customer advised me to try your cure which I did. Before half the bottle was used, I felt the pains and weakness leaving me and to-day I enjoy good health and can bear fatigue and work all right. One bottle was all I used.
ALF. HASKILL, barber.

ERASTUS WIMAN.

He Lifts the Veil of the Future on This Continent.

ROCHESTER, Feb. 17.—At the annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce of this city last night Erastus Wiman predicted, as the result of the impending economic changes in the trade policy of the country, that within the lifetime of children now living a greater foreign commerce would be created than the vast internal commerce which now ebbs and flows in this nation of 40 nations.

While exports of food products are likely to cease within a quarter of a century, there were no limitations to possible exports of manufactures, except the ability of markets to absorb them, and in this sense the world seemed too small for the power of production on this continent.

Not being able to annex Mars in the recent near approach of the planets to each other, it remains to develop new regions for trade on the one hand and sources of supply on the other. With this in view no field is so inviting as the nearest and largest territory comprised within the British possessions in North America. In the other half of the continent the United States can duplicate its wealth, find sources of supply and create a market for manufactures equalled only by that now existing within the Union.

To inaugurate a movement in this direction it is not necessary to wait half a century for political union, but within five years, by an obliteration of the tariff now athwart the continent, the first steps can be taken to make it commercially one.

THE HAWAII AFFAIR.

Harrison's Message Favors Annexation Right Away.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—A Washington special says the treaty sent to the Senate yesterday by the President proposes annexation in plain and unmistakable terms and provides that until some other and more definite form of government is provided by Congress, the present provisional Government shall continue in full force.

The laws of the United States, which are in force in Alaska, are extended to Hawaii, and there is to be no disturbance for the present of property rights in the Islands.

The two most important articles relate to the provision for the deposed Queen and the Chinese. The former is to receive from the United States $20,000 a year, and the Royal family, and especially the heiress apparent to the throne are to be fully cared for.

The Chinese problem is disposed of by making it impossible for any of the Chinese now on the Islands to come into the United States.

As far as the debts of Hawaii are concerned, the treaty proposes that the United States shall assume them, but shall receive in return the various incomes of the Islands, amounting, it is said, to about $10,000,000 a year.

There was some opposition to the project of annexation by Senators Blackburn, White, Daniel and others, but a strong speech in its favor was made by Senator Morgan, who was particularly anxious that action should be prompt. There seems to be no doubt that the treaty will be ratified within a very short time.

One of its provisions is that the provisional Government of Hawaii must accept it within 60 days after it is ratified by the Senate. When the ratification by the Senate is concluded, a law applicable to the annexed territory will be framed, and will have to be passed by both Houses.

FROM THE MINT.

The First Consignment of Specie of the Issue of 1893

TORONTO, Feb. 17.—The coffers of the Receiver-General's Department at 10 Toronto-street are richer by $99,000 to-day. Yesterday 59 weighty iron-bound boxes containing that amount in silver and copper were deposited in the vaults, where they will remain until their distribution among the various Ontario banks. The new coins, which are in ten and five cent silver and one cent copper, are the first issue of 1893, and are direct from the mints at London, Eng., and Birmingham. They are in all respects similar to last year's coins, with the exception of their date and their juvenile freshness. Of course there are several such shipments during the year. Whenever the banks run out of small change the Receiver-General is notified. He in turn makes application to the Ottawa authorities, who issue orders on the English mint for the required amount.

The present importation is interesting only through its being the infant of 1893, although collectors of odds and ends and numismatists will secure specimens for their collections. The superstitious young man who wishes to change his luck will secrete a new penny in his waistcoat pocket, and the love-lorn swain will mutilate a glittering dime with his monogram for presentation to his fair one. A blind thief among the closed boxes might possibly make a grievous error. The boxes are all of equal size. The copper cases of $100 each are identical in appearance and avoirdupois with their more precious brethren, the $5000 packages of silver. The $99,000 is apportioned as follows: $30,000 in ten cent pieces, $35,000 in fives and $4000 in plebeian coppers. This snug little sum will not lee long enough in the receiver's treasury for moth and rust to corrupt. By next week the bright new pieces will be circulating through all Ontario, gladdening the eye and cheering the heart of all who are lucky enough to handle them.

ANOTHER TIRED OF LIFE.

HE LEFT A MESSAGE, ENCLOSED IN HIS WATCH.

A Parry Sound Bookkeeper Places a Pistol In His Mouth and Blows Out His Brains at the St. James' Hotel, Where He Had Been Lodging.

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—D. M. Whyte of Parry Sound committed suicide by shooting himself at the St. James' Hotel yesterday. He had been a guest at the hotel since Tuesday. He told Mr. Hawley, one of the proprietors, that he was in the city in the interests of the Conger Lumber Company of Parry Sound, in whose employ he had been for nine years as bookkeeper. He also said that he had a wife and three children and "a nice little home" in Parry Sound.

About 10 o'clock yesterday morning Nellie Gorman, one of the chambermaids, knocked at Whyte's door, but as he answered from the inside she passed on. At 2 o'clock she entered the room and found him lying on the floor dead with a 32-calibre Smith & Wesson revolver beside him. His head rested against the wall, which was bespattered with blood. The weapon contained four cartridges and one empty shell. The ball had entered the mouth and passed out through the top of the head. No report was heard by anyone about the hotel.

Whyte's only baggage was a leather valise with the ordinary supply of underwear. In his pocket was a gold watch worth about $150 and in the back of the case was a scrap of paper on which was written: "Please keep carefully my little Davy until he is large enough to wear it."

Coroner Johnson was present when the body was removed to the Morgue and took possession of the watch and revolver. An inquest will be held Monday.

At His Former Home.

PARRY SOUND, Ont., Feb. 18.—Daniel M. Whyte came to Canada from Scotland about 10 years ago, and was first employed as assistant-bookkeeper for Parry Sound Lumber Co.

On formation of Conger Lumber Co. he was engaged by W. H. Pratt, the president of the company, as bookkeeper and treasurer. He was diligent and attentive to his duties and enjoyed the confidence of his employers.

He was owner of a very comfortable house, leaves wife and one child. Was understood to be leaving this office and being transferred to Elmira, N.Y.

BOBCAYGEON WINS.

Close of the Lengthy Contest for the Silver Tankard.

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—Bobcaygeon is the champion curling club.

They have won the Silver Tankard of the Ontario Curling Association, and will have their names indelibly written thereon.

The final struggle with Oshawa was rather easily won by the Islanders, but their battle royal was with our own Prospect Parkers, with whom it was necessary to play two extra ends before supremacy was determined.

The semi-finals were begun yesterday morning on a perfect sheet of ice in the Granite Rink, Oshawa v. Harriston and Bobcaygeon v. Prospect Park. Both were desperate struggles. At 22 ends the Parkers were tied with the Northerners. The 23rd gave a point to each, Reid and Scott both tallying. Carlyle had a chance to knock out the stone, but failed. Scott again notched one in the 24th, but Reid had measured Carlyle and two points went up for Reid and Bobcaygeon had won by a single shot.

Across the way there was a see-saw battle. Both Oshawa and Harriston were up on one rink, but Sykes had 7 shots to the good, while Moore had only 4. So Oshawa won by 3 shots.

With Prospect Park out the tournament had lost most of the interest to local curlers. But a fair gathering walked up and down the platforms and galleries in the afternoon and saw many clever draws, guards and turns.

Skip Sykes of Oshawa made a record for a Tankard match by scoring seven points in his seventh end.

The Sherman Act.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Senator Hiscock presented in Senate a petition from 102 of the leading merchants and manufacturers of New York City and others, including William Rockefeller and R. G. Dun & Co., stating that the monthly issue of $4,000,000 of treasury notes to pay for silver purchase stimulates the export of gold, making it more difficult for our Government to redeem its obligations in that metal; and as there is no likelihood of an international agreement about bimetallism, while silver purchases are continued, the petitioners urge a prompt repeal of the law which makes silver purchases obligatory.

Snow in Japan.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—Advices by the steamer Belgic from the Orient say: The heavy snowfalls in Japan have been attended by a number of fatalities. In the village of Kau-Kauri a snowslide caused the loss of 12 lives.

The people in Yakusagumi are supposed to be in a miserable plight. All the roads to that place have been blocked by snow since the early part of December, since which time none of its inhabitants have been seen.

WEALTHY MEN.

American Newspaper Publishers' Association Meeting.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—After a most successful meeting the convention of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association was brought to a close last evening with a banquet at the Hotel Imperial.

Last year $100,000,000 was the aggregate sum represented by the various newspaper owners; but this year it takes $200,000,000 to cover the amount. The convention has been successful in every respect. At each of the six sessions questions of vital importance were discussed and many important results obtained. The convention has, in fact, accomplished much that will in the future accrue to the benefit of the newspaper readers and the newspaper business. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

James W. Scott, Chicago Herald, president; E. H. Woods, Boston Herald, vice-president; W. C. Bryant, Brooklyn Times, secretary; J. S. Seymour, New York Post, treasurer.

Burglary at Charing Cross.

CHARING CROSS, Ont., Feb. 18.—A daring robbery was perpetrated early yesterday morning. The postoffice and general store kept by John Hunter was again visited by expert thieves. Two registered letters, supposed to contain a large amount, and from $50 to $100 in cash were taken.

Ask the Government for More Money.

MONTREAL, Feb. 18.—The exposures in regard to the bungle over the Montreal harbor improvements show that the work will be put back at least two years and that it will cost more than the three million dollars originally intended. A number of the estimates of cost are wrong.

Declared Legal.

QUEBEC, Feb. 18.—The committee of the Legislature on private bills has adopted a report sustaining the municipal elections held in Montreal on Feb. 1, 1893. The next general election will be held in Montreal in 1894.

Mitchell's Money Up.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Charles Mitchell, the English pugilist, met William A. Brady and Billy Delaney, Corbett's representatives, at The World office at 4 yesterday afternoon. For an hour and a half the atmosphere in the sporting editor's room was filled with English finesse and American oratory. Mitchell covered Brady's $10,000 with 20 $500 bills.

Then after some discussion the fight was definitely fixed for the second week in December.

The Country Now Knows Exactly What Concessions it is Proposed to Make to Ireland—The Bill Read the First Time in the House of Commons.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule Bill, which was read a first time in the House of Commons Friday night, is in part as follows:

Whereas, it is expedient that, without impairing or restricting the supreme authority of Parliament, an Irish legislature be created for such purposes in Ireland as are in this act mentioned, be it therefore enacted by the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords, spiritual and temporal, and Commons in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

Part 1. On and after the appointed day there shall be established in Ireland a legislature consisting of Her Majesty the Queen and two houses, a legislative council and a legislative assembly.

2. With the exceptions and subject to the restrictions in this act mentioned, there shall be granted to the Irish Legislature power to make laws for the peace, order and good government of Ireland in respect to matters exclusively relating to Ireland or some part thereof.

3. The Irish Legislature shall not have power to make laws in respect to the following matters or any of them: The status or dignity of the crown, or the succession to the crown, or a regency, the Lord Lieutenant as representative of the Crown, the making of peace or war, matters arising from a state of war, the naval or military forces or the defence of the realm, treaties and other creations with foreign states, or the relations between the different parts of Her Majesty's dominions, or offences connected with such treaties; dignities or titles of honor; treason or treason-felony; alienage or naturalization; trade with any place out of Ireland; quarantine or navigation, except in respect to inland waters; local health or harbor regulations, beacons, lighthouses or seamarks, except so far as they can consistently with any general Act of Parliament be constructed or maintained by local harbor authorities; coinage; legal tender; standard weights and measures; trade marks, merchandise marks, copyright or patent rights. Any law made in contravention to this section shall be void.

4. The powers of the Irish Legislature shall not extend to the making of any law respecting the establishment or endowment of religions or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or imposing any disability or conferring any privilege on account of religious belief, or abrogating or prejudicially affecting the right to establish or maintain any place of denominational education or denominational institution or charity or prejudicially affecting the right of any child to attend a school receiving public money without attending the religious instruction at the school, or whereby any person may be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law, or may be denied the equal protection of the laws, or whereby private property may be taken without compensation, or whereby any existing corporation incorporated by Royal charter, or by local and general act of Parliament, not being a corporation raising for public purposes, taxes, rates, less dues or tolls, or administering funds so raised, may, unless it consents, or the leave of Her Majesty is first obtained in an address from the two Houses of the Irish Legislature, be deprived of its rights, privileges or property without due process of law; or whereby any inhabitant may be deprived of his equal rights as respects public seafisheries. Any law made in contravention of this section shall be void.

5. The executive power of Ireland shall continue to be vested in the Queen. The Lord Lieutenant, on behalf of Her Majesty, shall not exercise any prerogatives other than the executive power of the Queen which may be delegated to him by Her Majesty, and shall, in Her Majesty's name, summon, prorogue and dissolve the Irish Legislature.

Their shall be an Executive Committee of the Privy Council in Ireland to aid and advise the Government of Ireland, being of such numbers and comprising persons holding such offices as Her Majesty may think fit, or as may be directed by the Irish Act.

The Lord Lieutenant shall, on the advice of the Executive Committee, give or withhold the assent of Her Majesty to the bills passed by the House of the Irish Legislature subject to the instructions given by Her Majesty in respect to such bill.

6. The Irish Legislative Council shall consist of 48 councillors; each of the constituencies mentioned in the first schedule of this act shall return the number of councillors named opposite thereto in the schedule.

Every marshall shall be entitled to be registered as an elector and when registered to vote at the election of the councillor for a constituency, who owns or occupies land or a tenant in the constituency of this ratable value of more than 20 pounds, subject to like conditions as the man who is entitled, at the passage of the act, to be registered and to vote as a Parliamentary elector, with respect to ownership qualifications, or provided that a man shall not be entitled to be registered, nor, if registered to vote at the election of a councillor in more than one constituency in the same year.

The term of office of every councillor shall be eight years. They shall not be affected by dissolution. Half the councillors shall retire every fourth year and their seats shall be filled by a new election.

7. The Irish legislative assembly shall consist of members returned by the existing Parliamentary constituencies of Ireland on the existing divisions thereof and elected by the parliamentary electors in those constituencies.

The Irish Legislative Assembly when summoned may, unless sooner dissolved, have continuance for five years from the day on which the summons directs it to meet and no longer.

8. After six years from the passing of the act the Irish Legislature may alter the qualifications of electors and constituencies, provided that in such distribution due regard be had for the population of the constituencies.

If a bill, or any provision of a bill, adopted by the Legislative Assembly be lost by the disagreement of the Legislative Council and after dissolution or a period of two years from such disagreement, such bill, or a bill for enacting said provisions, be again adopted by the Legislative Assembly and fails within three months afterwards to be adopted by the Legislative Council, the same shall forthwith be submitted to the members of the two Houses deliberating and voting together thereon, and shall be adopted or rejected according to the decision of the majority of those members voting on the question.

Irish representation in the House of Commons.

9. Unless and until Parliament determines, the following provisions shall have effect: Each of the constituencies named in the second schedule shall return to serve in Parliament the number of members named opposite thereto in that schedule and no more.

Dublin University shall cease to return a member.

The existing division of the constituencies shall, save as provided in that schedule, be abolished.

An Irish representative peer in the House of Lords and a member of the House of Commons for an Irish constituency shall not be entitled to deliberate or vote on any bill or motion or relations thereto, the operation of which bill or motion is confined to Great Britain or some part thereof; or any motion or resolution relating solely to a tax not raised or to be raised in Ireland, or any vote on an appropriation of money made exclusively for some service not mentioned in the third schedule. Any motion or resolution referring exclusively to Great Britain or some part thereof, or some local authority or some person or thing therein. Any motion incidental to such motion or resolution as either is last mentioned or relates solely to some tax not raised in Ireland or incidental to any such vote or appropriation of money aforesaid in compliance with the provisions of this section shall not be questioned otherwise than in each House in the manner provided by the House.

The election laws and laws relating to the qualification of parliamentary electors shall not, so far as they relate to parliamentary elections be altered by the Irish Legislature. But this enactment shall not prevent the Irish Legislature from dealing with any officers concerned with the issue of writs of election. If any officers are so dealt with it shall be lawful for Her Majesty in Council to arrange for the issue of such writs. Writs issued in pursuance of such order shall be of the same effect as if issued in the manner heretofore accustomed.

10. On and after the appointed day there shall be an Irish exchequer and consolidated fund separate from the United Kingdom.

The duties of customs and excise and the duties of postage shall be imposed by act of Parliament, but subject to the provisions of this act.

The Irish Legislature may in order to provide for the public service in Ireland, impose other taxes, save as in this act mentioned.

All matters relating to taxes in Ireland and the collection and management thereof shall be regulated by the Irish legislature.

The same shall be collected and managed by the Irish government and shall form part of the public revenues of Ireland, provided that duties and customs shall be regulated, collected, managed and paid into the exchequer of the United Kingdom as heretofore, and all prohibitions in connection with duties and excise and so far as regards articles sent out of Ireland, and all matters relating to these duties shall be regulated by act of parliament. Excise duties on articles consumed in Great Britain shall be paid in Great Britain or to an officer of the Government of the United Kingdom, save as in this act mentioned. All public revenues in Ireland shall be paid into the Irish Exchequer and form a consolidated fund apportioned to the public service of Ireland by Irish act. If the duties of excise are increased above the rates enforced on the first day of March the net proceeds in Ireland of the duties in excess of said rates shall be paid from the Irish Exchequer to the Exchequer of the United Kingdom. If the duties of excise are reduced below the rates in force on said day and the net proceeds of Ireland are in consequence less than the net proceeds of the duties before the reduction a sum equal to the deficiency shall, unless otherwise agreed between the Treasury and the Irish Government, be paid from the Exchequer of the United Kingdom into the Irish Exchequer.

11. The hereditary revenues of the Crown in Ireland, which are managed by the Commissioners of Her Majesty's woods, forests and land revenues, shall continue during the life of her present Majesty, and shall be managed and collected by those commissioners. The net amount payable by them to the exchequer on account of those revenues after deducting all expenses, but including an allowance for interest on such proceeds of the sale of those revenues as have not been re-invested by Ireland, shall be paid into the treasury account (Ireland) hereafter mentioned for the benefit of the Irish exchequer.

A person shall not be required to pay an income tax in Great Britain in respect to property situated or business carried on in Ireland, and a person shall not be required to pay an income tax in Ireland in respect to property situated or business carried on in Great Britain. For the purpose of giving Ireland the benefit of the difference between the income tax collected by Great Britain from British, colonial and foreign securities held by residents of Ireland and the income tax collected by Ireland from Irish securities held by residents of Great Britain, there shall be made to Ireland out of the income tax collected in Great Britain an allowance of such an amount as may from time to time be determined by the treasury in accordance with a minute of the treasury laid before Parliament. Before the appointed day such allowance shall be paid into the treasury account (Ireland's) for the benefit of the Irish exchequer, provided that the provisions of this section with respect to the income tax shall not apply to any excess in the income tax of Great Britain above the rate of Ireland or to the rate of the income tax of Ireland above the rate of Great Britain.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The Chronicle says "There was a striking fitness in the intervention of Mr. Blake in the debate Friday. He is a coming leader and a distinct addition to the debating power of the House."

Times—"Mr. Blake's effort was evidently the speech of the one big man in the Nationalist party."

Star—"Mr. Blake's speech in the Home Rule debate was forcible and effective."

Daily News—"Mr. Blake's speech in reply to Joseph Chamberlain was an important contribution to the debate and a great argument for Home Rule."

Evening News: "Mr. Blake's style of oratory is clerical and there was about his speech an affectation of eleemosynary perfection that tired his hearers."

Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in an interview says: "Mr. Blake's speech was the best ever uttered in Parliament on the subject of Home Rule."

A MYSTERIOUS DEATH.

HAD BEEN BADLY INTOXICATED THE DAY BEFORE.

An Adelaide-street Cigarmaker Expires Suddenly and the Doctor Who is Summoned Refuses to Issue a Death Certificate.

TORONTO, Feb. 20.—Maurice Blume, aged 28, a cigarmaker residing at 404 Adelaide-street west with his wife and four children, died at his home yesterday morning a few minutes before 10 o'clock.

Dr. McMahon had been summoned, and arrived just after he had ceased breathing. The physician resorted to artificial respiration for 30 minutes, but was unsuccessful, and pronounced life extinct. He found the body of the deceased in a healthy and well-nourished condition, and was totally at a loss to explain the cause of death. There were no external marks of violence and no symptoms or signs of disease.

The wife of the deceased told Dr. McMahon that her husband had not been ill at all, but had been badly intoxicated the day before.

Under these circumstances, especially as the parties were unknown to Dr. McMahon, he refused to give a certificate of death and notified Coroner Aikins, who will confer with Crown Attorney Dewart this morning as to the advisability of holding an inquest.

A brother and the foster-father of the deceased also called on Coroner Aikins and demanded an inquest, claiming that there were good grounds for suspecting foul play—that husband and wife had lived unhappily and that they had heard persons make use of the expression that they wished he was dead.

NOTES FROM OTTAWA.

No Meat Cattle Can Enter Canada Without 90 Days' Quarantine.

OTTAWA, Feb. 20.—An order-in-council was passed Saturday taking from the Minister of Agriculture the power conferred on him by the cattle quarantine regulations of 1884 and 1887 of allowing settlers, under certain conditions, to take their stock into Manitoba and the Northwest without undergoing the 90-day quarantine.

It will be remembered that one of the excuses made by Mr. Herbert Gardner, President of the Imperial Board of Agriculture, for continuing the embargo against Canadian cattle was that settlers from the United States were allowed to bring cattle into the Northwest without embargoing, and this action has no doubt been taken by the Minister of Agriculture to disarm this objection. The cattle quarantine regulations in power in Canada are now, therefore, absolute that there shall be a quarantine of 90 days on all neat cattle entering the Dominion along the whole frontier from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

As was anticipated would be the case, Mr. Robert Sedgwick, Deputy Minister of Justice, was appointed a judge of the Supreme Court at yesterday's meeting of council. He will probably be sworn in by Chief Justice Strong before the opening of the court for the February term on Tuesday. It is said that no action was taken with reference to appointing his successor in the Department of Justice.

A HORRIBLE SIGHT.

A Negro and His Span of Horses Killed In Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Feb. 20.—A horrible accident occurred at the Wentworth-street crossing of the G.T.R. here Saturday night about 7.30. A well-known colored man named Jerry Johnston, who was engaged hauling ice, was driving across the track when he was run down by the St. Louis express going east and was instantly killed.

Johnston's body was pitched into the cattleguard and his brains were bespattered over the track. His head was split open and his death was undoubtedly instantaneous. Both horses were killed and the sleigh was smashed to atoms.

Johnston was about 40 years of age and resided at the foot of Wentworth-street with his wife and two children. The body was taken to the city hospital. An inquest will be held.

Uncle Sam's Merchant Marine.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 20.—Collector of the Port Cooper has issued an American register to the International Navigation Company of Philadelphia for the steamer New York. Satisfactory proofs were presented that the act of Congress requiring the company to build vessels of capacity equal to the Paris and New York had been complied with.

The Paris will be granted her register as soon as she arrives in port, and both vessels will hereafter hail from Philadelphia, although sailing from New York.

This is the first certificate ever issued transferring a ship from British to American registry.

Broke His Jaw Bone.

TWEED, Ont., Feb. 20.—An accident occurred here Saturday by which a young man named Thomas Easterbrook received serious injuries. He was in charge of his uncle's delivery wagon. The horse attached became frightened and started to run away, causing the young man to fall forward on the animal's heels, which kicked viciously, striking Easterbrook in the face, breaking his jaw bone in two places, besides inflicting other serious injury.

He was taken up unconscious and Dr. Tuttle called in. Hopes are entertained that he will recover. The young man is about 20 years old.

Fell and Killed Himself.

TAVISTOCK, Ont., Feb. 20. — Henry Schaefer, farmer, 58 years of age, living two miles from this place, in the Township of Easthope, whose brother is reeve, when returning from his farm to the house where he had been feeding stock, slipped and fell on the back of his head with great force.

He was able to walk to his house but lived only two hours. He leaves a wife and large family, grown up. He purposed coming to this village to-day to make his will.

WORLD'S EVANGELIZATION.

MISSIONARY ANNIVERSARY SERVICES IN THE GEORGE STREET CHURCH.

Vigorous and Exhaustive Discourses—The Progress and Fitness of the Missionary Society—The Brotherhood of Man—Potent, Pleasant and Urgent Requests—A Milennium Approaching—Special Musical Features.

The annual missionary services of the George street Methodist church were held on Sunday and were without doubt the most impressive and successful anniversary ever held in that church. In the morning, considering the blustery weather, there was a large congregation present. Rev. John Burwash, M.A. D. D., Professor of Victoria University, Toronto, and brother of Rev. Chancellor Burwash, S.T.D., preached a powerful missionary sermon—one that was in every way appropriate to the occasion—from 1 Corinthians, I Chapter and 21st verse, as follows: "Now, he which establisheth us with you in Christ, and has annointed us, is God." The reverend doctor spoke forcibly of the various Christianizing influences at work in the complete evangelization of the world, and how the Spirit of Christ was being felt in many benighted lands. His remarks were bright and hopeful for the missionary cause, and strongly appealed to his auditors. The choir in a pleasing manner rendered as an anthem Marmora's Jubilate, "Oh, Be Joyful in the Lord."

A SUNDAY SCHOOL MASS MEETING.

At the Sunday school in the afternoon the usual lesson service was dispensed with, and in its stead a missionary mass meeting of all the teachers and scholars was held in the large lecture room. There was a number of strangers present, and the seating capacity was severely taxed. The musical features of the meeting occupied a salient part of the proceedings, and were ably presided over by Mr. Seward. The children of the school sang two choruses very acceptably, and in an inspiring manner. An additional attraction was the presence of several members of the 57th Battalion and fire brigade band who under the directorship of Bandmaster Miller dispensed four sacred selections with splendid execution and admirable taste. Mr. T. W. Robinson, superintendent, presided, and associated with him on the platform were Mr. N. W. Rowell, B.A., barrister, Toronto, Mr. Chapman, secretary Y.M.C.A., and Rev. J. H. Locke. Brief and terse speeches were made by Mr. Chapman and Mr. Locke in the cause of missions. Mr. Rowell delivered a stirring half hour's address on missionery work, dealing in particular with home missionery work. Mr. Rowell spoke of his personal labours in Toronto among the prisons and the hospitals in that city, the various scenes that he had met with, the progress made in the preaching of God's word, and the good results coming therefrom.

THE EVENING SERVICE.

The edifice was comfortably filled in the evening and the service throughout was of a very interesting and highly instructive nature. A platform meeting was held and stirring addresses delivered.

Rev. Mr. Locke called attention to the 68th annual report of the missionary society of the Methodist church of Canada. In it were embodied all the details and workings of the society, subscriptions, income and expenditure. He believed that the reason of the society's success was that, as the report showed, the moneys were expended for the purposes intended. The published reports gave the names of the various committees such as the Committee of Management, the Central Committee, General Committee, etc. One half of the members of all these committees was composed of laymen and the remainder were clergymen. During the year a new mission had been opened in West China. Under the direction of the society were Domestic missions, Indian missions, French missions (under the Montreal conference), Chinese missions (under the B. C. conference), Foreign missions such as Japan and West China. The society had 505 missionaries, 482 assistants, 84 teachers, 57 helpers, 13 interpreters, and 636 total paid agents. The total number of members was 45,877, and the total amount $250,000. Of this amount $26,256 was contributed by the children and youth of the church. The expenditure of this sum raised was given in full in the published report. The speaker in his further review of the report stated some 70 pages were devoted exclusively to accounts of the progress and work being done by the society's missionaries throughout the world. The names of the individual subscribers who had given $2 or over appeared, and also the names of those who gave sums ranging from $25 to $500 and over. In the largest centres of population where the society was best known, there the greatest contributions were received, which was a good proof as to the efficient and careful manner in which their affairs were conducted. In Toronto one church alone gave $3000. George street church last year donated $806, which was the largest amount contributed in any preceding year. The total of the number of various small gifts amounted to more than the sum of the large ones. He urgently requested all to give a little, and not a small number to give large amounts. Mr. Locke strongly advised the young men to contribute something towards missionary purposes. The speaker had earned money for the purpose and given when a very young man, and had since kept it up. He looked back upon this as one of his pleasantest recollections. He was glad to see the interest now being taken in the cause of missions. The success of the missionary enterprise depended more upon the number who gave than the amount each gave. The Sunday school of the church had contributed some $100. If it was not convenient for donors to pay now they could subscribe their amounts, and give it to the collectors any time between now and May 1st. The collectors last year were Mesdames Shortly, Owen, Parker, Parnell and Elsworth, and Misses Griffith and Walton. They did their work well, and he thanked them for it. He hoped they could see their way to act again this year, and "grow not weary in well doing." The local treasurer was Mr. B. Shortly.

A ROUSING MISSIONARY ADDRESS.

Mr. N. W. Rowell, of Toronto, a talented and promising young member of the Queen City bar, and who is actively engaged in various branches of Christian work, was next introduced. Mr. Rowell is a graceful and polished speaker, with a resonant voice, an imposing delivery and an eloquent flow of language. His points are well taken and convincing, while the

Look at the size of the ordinary pill. Think of all the trouble and disturbance that it causes you. Wouldn't you welcome something easier to take, and easier in its ways, if at the same time it did you more good? That is the case with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They're the smallest in size, the mildest in action, but the most thorough and far-reaching in results. They follow nature's methods and they give help that lasts. Constipation, Indigestion, Billous Attacks, Sick and Billous Headaches, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels, are promptly relieved and permanently cured.

"If we can't cure your Catarrh, no matter how bad your case or of how long standing, we'll pay you $500 in cash." That is what is promised by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Doesn't it prove, better than any words could, that this is a remedy that cures Catarrh? Costs only 50 cents.

Small sugar-coated Burdock Pills do not gripe or sicken. They are mild and effectual.

Delay is Dangerous.

When the kidney's are out of order delay is dangerous. Any disease may follow and become so well established that months of suffering will follow. A gentle tonic like Dodd's Kidney Pills is always acceptable to the kidneys and protects them from disease. They are a kidney food.

WORLD'S EVANGELIZATION.

interests of his hearers never waned. He said the population of the world was estimated between 1,400,000,000 and 1,450,000,000 of people. 400,000,000 of these were nominally Christians and the remainder heathens. Of the 400,000,000 nominal Christians, only 50,000,000 were real Christians. Ethnology told us that nations and and tribes conceive of a supreme being, something greater than mere mortal, which all worship. Thus we saw the soul's expressed consciousness of insufficiency as each soul cries out for something higher. If a man die shall he live again? and to bring all to a realization of this was the object of the Missionary Society of the Methodist church. There were Jews in all denominations, Jews in the sense that there were enough heathen at home and those who thought their God was the God of nobody else. Christ in teaching his disciples instructed them much as he would a little child, reserving all the more important truth until his death, that at a latter date they might comprehend the greater truth and problem, and be led to think that he was the only omnipotent power. As the people advanced in intellectual development, so Christ's revelation became more explicit. The Jews could not see that their God was doing anything until Isaiah saw that God was the God of the Gentiles as well as the Jew. The conception of God being God over all was made clear year by year as prophets predicted until Christ himself came and the great brotherhood of man and fatherhood of God established. The speaker illustrated the case of Paul proclaiming on Mars Hill "of one blood God made all the nations of the earth. As Christ's revelation grows upon the hearts and consciousness of all, so increased our Christianity. Witness Paul, the Jew transformed into the great apostle of Christ. Passing on from the apostolic age as faith became barren and love grew cold, so during all the dark ages nothing of humanity to bring it to Christ. In the day of Luther and the reformers whole nations were reformed and brought close to God. In a time of Wesley when the state of affairs was amply appalling in England, people were brought in love and sympathy to God and the impelling power of divine love took hold of men and they were prepared to make any sacrifice to save their fellowmen. Mr. Rowell vividly described the insurmountable difficulties Carey, the first missionary, encountered in 1773 in his determination to go to India to preach the gospel. Men signalized it as preposterous, nonsensical—a dream of empty dreams. Confronted with all these difficulties, Carey came out victorious and and in the epoch of 100 years' missionary work look at the grand results. The speaker had no faith in the belief that the world was growing worse. The gifts towards the poor, towards missionaries and for philanthropic purposes were growing each year as the dominant fact of Christ and His disciples, viz., the Brotherhood of Man and the Fatherhood of God became more impressed upon the people. The speaker dwelt at some length on the brotherhood of man, and said he wanted to get that thought down deep into their hearts. Christianity had done much for us, and the greatest good any man could confer upon another was to bring him to a knowledge of Jesus Christ. The speaker enlarged exhaustively upon many other points, and gave some timely and practical suggestions, of which it is impossible to give a full report. He referred to what the Gospel had done for women in bringing her from her demoralized and servile condition back to her edenic condition. In Japan there was one ordained minister to every 215,000 people, in India one to every 350,000, in China one to every 733,000, and in Central Africa one to every 5,000,000, while in this country there was one ordained or Christian worker to each 100 persons. In Canada our annual liquor expenditure was $37,875,000, or an average of $7 for every man, woman and child. For missions, home and foreign, the average was only twelve and a half cents per capita. At the present rate our annual donation to missions would keep us in liquor only three and a half months. In the United States the inhabitants would be kept in liquor only six days on it and only seven days in tobacco, and in liquor and tobacco combined only 30 hours. The United States spent twice as much in ostrich feathers in one year as the whole world contributed to missions. We were a supremely generous people—generous towards ourselves. The Methodist church of Canada was a little better than the average. They gave 83c. a year per member; the Wesleyan Methodist church, U. S., $117 per member; English Methodists $151, and the Arabians $6. It has been estimated that if $75,000,000 could be raised for ten years and 500,000 missionaries sent out the whole world would hear the Gospel in one year. The speaker pointedly remarked the progress of the Gospel made in heathen lands, its elevating, ennobling and humanizing influences; how we though rich were only God's stewards, and should send the glad tidings of His salvation over every land and sea, obeying that Divine command, "Go ye into the world and preach the Gospel to every creature."

WAS DONE IN THE CAUSE

A MILLENNIUM APPROACHING.

Rev. Dr. Burwash, after a collection had been taken up and a liberal response met with, followed in a comprehensive and suitable missionary address. He was glad to see so many present and remarked that whatever might be said of the missionery spirit throughout Christendom, the large audience this evening spoke well for the missionary spirit of Peterborough. He was sure all had been pleased with Mr. Rowell's magnificent address and he hoped God would multiply the number of lawyers of his stamp in the Methodist church. The previous speaker had stated that the Jewish people were the most exclusive under heaven and thought nothing good could come out of anything except themselves. Did it ever strike us that Jesus Christ himself was a Jew, not an educated one but a poor carpenter boy descended from ignorant classes. It was he who exclaimed "God so loved the world that he gave His only begotten son that whosoever believeth in him might have everlasting life." What a grand world wide idea in this utterance. Had Christ only uttered this one statement it would have placed him in the very front ranks of the world's thinkers to-day—this great idea of uplifting and regenerating the world. How could a poor ignorant Jew like Christ say: "Go ye into the world and preach the Gospel to every creature." Look at what Christianity was doing in the world to-day. Other agencies were at work, science and scientific research, merely to discover certain truths. The object of statesmanship was the aggrandisement of several nations. Commerce proposed the selfishness and enrichment of individuals, but Christianity the moral reformation of the whole world. Christianity was due to two aspects, a national and an individual. He believed in the thorough principles which underlie the missionary society of the Methodist church. He thought the Gospel should not only be preached to nations, but should be taught at home. It should be maintained. It should be preached to every neighbour and to every people. The ordinances of our religion should be maintained among the poor ignorant Indians in the North west as well as in India, China or Japan. Man was to be raised as a race, and the speaker believed in the time when the kingdoms of the world would become the kingdoms of Christ. Infidels asserted that mankind should live so as from generation to generation to create a higher and nobler civilization. This was all nonsense and nineteen centuries behind the Christian religion, the main aim of Christ. Dr. Burwash believed in the millennium. These mighty moral forces would not be withdrawn, and all Christ's enemies would be put under foot. He believed in the millennium, because Christians had prayed for hundreds of years Thy Kingdom come, and he did not believe that all these tears and prayers were to avail nothing. A greater and a grander day was dawning in the world when it would be as pure and holy as when not entered by satan or cursed by sin. That day was not yet final and he had faith in the missionary cause.

During the evening the choir rendered with splendid expression Millard's "Oh Lord Thou art my Hope." Mr. Manning and Mrs. Seward taking the solo parts in fine voice. Lloyd's "Te Deum" was also efficiently rendered and much appreciated. Miss Jackson also sang in a beautiful manner Handel's "Angels ever bright and fair," which was much admired.

THE FADED FLOWER NOW IN PERFECT BLOOM!

Mrs. F——, a well-known lady in Brantford, Ont., says that Lactated Food saved the life of her little baby girl. Three months ago, the little one was weak and puny, and the doctor had given up all hope. The mother's joy and idol had become a little faded flower and death was daily looked for. A happy thought entered the mother's sorrowing heart; it was a gleam of hope—a ray of sunshine. She had heard of Lactated Food; she had been told of its invigorating and strengthening qualities, and she determined to try it as a last resort.

The food was procured and a little of it fed to the infant who could tolerate no other nourishment on its weak stomach. After a day's feeding in small quantities, the child seemed to revive and gain strength. In one week, the sickly babe was showing a degree of vitality that was encouraging to father and mother. All rejoiced at the wonderful change; baby's life was indeed saved. To-day the child is one of the healthiest in Canada, and gives promise of great robustness and strength in the future. It is no exaggeration to say that "Lactated Food Saves Bable's Lives."

TO BE OR NOT TO BE "IN IT."

A Life Agent called at a friend's place one day,
HE WASN'T IN IT;
He had seen "the bore" coming and fled from his way
HE WASN'T IN IT;
He had heard so much said, he was tired and sick
Of insurance and agents—'twas all a blank trick,
When one's coil must be shuffled to win it,
HE WASN'T IN IT.

A bit of a draft blew o'er his bald head,
HE WAS IN IT;
Pneumonia sent him straightway to his bed,
HE STAYED IN IT;
His doctor made of it a "quite special" case,
To save him for running still more of life's race,
But the grave took some chances to win it,
AND HE'S IN IT.

When approached by a gent for insuring your life,
GET RIGHT IN IT;
It's the right thing to do for your children and wife,
THEN STAY IN IT.
Remember that fires take your goods "out of sight,"
And that accidents happen each day and each night.
While insurance protects every minute,
IF YOU'RE IN IT.

A Bank Manager's Opinion.

HE IS "IN IT."

The General Manager of one of the leading banks in Canada, writing to a personal friend, says:—"I have no hesitation in saying that I place the CANADA LIFE upon the highest platform. It is in my opinion carefully, economically and honestly managed; its Reserve Funds are well invested; its rates of Premiums are low, and its future is, I think better assured than a great majority of Companies. I have my own life insured in the Company for a round amount, and would not hesitate to increase the amount of my policies should I decide upon taking out further insurance."

A Government Insurance Actuary's Opinion

On the Relation between Ordinary and Tontine Service.

It is frequently assertedby Companies whose business is nearly all tontined, that although the CANADA LIFE may and does pay large ordinary profits, yet it cannot compare so favourably on a long term distribution or tontine period, and that in the end better results can be obtained on a tontine policy in a large American Co, than on an ordinary or tontine policy in the CANADA LIFE. To prove the absurdity of this statement, the following piece of common sense is quoted from Mervin Tabor, late Actuary of the Illinois Goverment Insurance Department. In his well known book, "The Three Systems of Life Insurance," he says: "A company that gives large dividends on the ordinary kind of policies, can give much larger on the same kinds when Tontined, and a company that pays but meagre dividends on the usual forms, adopting perhaps the Tontine system to "cover up" its small surpluses, cannot be relied on for large returns of surplus under the Tontine Forms of Insurance."

The CANADA LIFE does not "cover up" its Quinquennial profits as some Companies do, but publishes them throughout the country.

It can and does surpass other Companies on Quinquennial profits. It should and will surpass them on Tontine profits.

WHY TO BE "IN IT."

BISHOP HAWKE'S REASON:—"I claim that Life Insurance is not only a humane, but I might say a Christian Institution."

LORD LYNDHURST'S REASON:—"A Policy of Life Insurance is always an evidence of prudent forethought. No man with a dependent family is free from reproach if not insured."

WHEN TO BE "IN IT."

The younger, the cheaper. Therefore insure when young. Besides by insuring in the CANADA LIFE now, you will share in three years' profits.

WHERE TO BE "IN IT."

The best place to be "in it" is in the Company that gives the best returns for the least money, consistent with absolute security. Therefore, in order to be "in it," choose the

The eye of the Board of Trade and the manufacturers committee of the council is called to the following paragraph clipped from the St. Catherines Journal:—"The McCormick Reaper Manufacturing Co. of the U.S., are looking for a location to start a branch of their business in Canada, which will employ about 500 hands." If this concern desires to come to a really live town Peterborough is modestly suggested as fulfilling this condition.

Mr. O'Brien is Right.

The Lindsay Watchman says:—At a meeting of the promoters of the Lindsay, Pontypool and Bobcaygeon R.R. bonus held recently Mr. O'Brien, of Downeyville talked good straight common sense in plain, unpolished Anglo-Saxon, and scored a hit. He spoke from a farmer's point of view, giving the market prices for pork, grain and other farmer's produce at Lindsay and Peterborough, greatly to the advantage of the latter. He instanced cases of farmers residing within a stone's throw of Lindsay going to Peterborough with produce and spending their money there. He thought railway competition would greatly benefit both Lindsay and the farmers.

POLICE COURT.

Monday, Feb. 20th.

The attention of the court was taken up for nearly an hour this morning disposing of an assault case alleged to have taken place on Friday night last in front of the Salvation Army barracks. Samuel Duval was charged with committing an assault on Richard Humphries. Both came here from Orillia some time ago. Mr. Stone appeared for the defendant. Considerable evidence was taken from which it appears that there is a long existing fued between the parties. The altercation was caused by threats which the defendant alleged the complainant had made on several occasions, viz., that he could thrash him. Defendant testified that Humphries and his wife had boarded with him for seven weeks, and that they had paid him only $8 in that time and the amount realized in selling some wood which complainant had cut on shares and which he (Duval) had sold only netted him some $13, hence as the boarders were to pay $5 a week some $29 was yet owing him. Duval who pleaded guilty to the charge of assault said he was provoked to it by the threats of Humphries, and by the insolent answers that his wife had received from him every time she asked him for the money due. The complainant claimed that Duval had deliberately assaulted him severely in front of the Salvation army barracks after the meeting was out and he (witness) had said nothing to him. Witness maintained that he and his wife had only boarded at defendats some four weeks that he paid him $7.50 in cash, and that the amount realized by the defendant from the wood he had cut on shares for him wiped off all that was due him. He never threatened to whip Duval, and had not said he would throw his wife out of the house. Mrs. Duval had never asked for the board bill. The magistrate said the assault was a deliberate one, and he fined the defendant $5 and costs, or 10 days in gaol. Humphries asked the court to have Duval bound over to keep the peace, swearing that he was afraid that defendant would do him bodily harm, This the magistrate was about issuing an order to do, but defendant's counsel pointed out that Duval could not get bail and he was a hard-working husband with a wife and family dependent on him for support, which support they would be deprived of if defendant was committed to gaol because he could not get bonds. Finally Humphries agreed to relinquish the binding over, providing the defendant would promise the court that he would keep the peace towards him. This the defendant did.

Greatest Drama Ever Written.

"Frou Frou" is conceded to be the greatest comedy drama ever written. Mme Bernhardt considers it the most difficult role she ever assumed, the third act especially calling for great acting. Madeline Merli certainly possesses the divine spark, which is fanned to a perfect flame in the quarrel scene. Rage, hate, emotion, pride, keen sarcasm, jealousy and love she portrays in less than seven minutes. But, like many Italians, she possesses a wonderful amount of feeling and power, and is equal to the task. Bradburn's Opera House Saturday, Feb. 25th.

MET THEIR FIRST WATERLOO.

The Upper Canada College Hockey Club met Their First Defeat This Season—Peterborough Victorious by 7 to 4.

The Upper Canada College Hockey team—the champions of the junior league, Toronto—were badly defeated by the Peterborough's at the Charlotte street rink here on Saturday afternoon. The home team had a comparatively easy victory, conquering by 7 goals to 4. Following are the teams which faced each other at 2.30 o'clock before Referee Bradburn and a small crowd of about 100 spectators:—

G V Moore	goal	E Wasson
D J Rayside	point	W B Carmichael
M G Fitzgerald	cover point	J Parson
H T C Keiso	forwards	H E C Wonham
F MacLennan		W Montgomery
S Badenach		W Phelan
F N Waldie		L King
J Counsell	goal judges	Geo Beecher

In the first half the play was quite fast and the home team had undoubtedly the best of it throughout. At the start off three goals were taken in rapid succession by Peterborough, captured by Wonham, King and Phelan. Then Upper Canada College scored by Badenach's clever playing. He and MacLennan played a sterling forward game for the visitors, their combined playing being much admired. The Upper Canada boys' main defect lay in their unsubstantial defence line. Upper Canada before the first half closed scored another game, MacLennan making a swift shot, and this was soon followed by Peterborough taking two more, Wonham and Phelan, who worked like Trojans, claiming the honours. Thus the first first half closed by a score of 5 to 2 in favour of the home team. In the second half Peterborough scored two more goals as did the visitors, and the struggle ended 7 to 4 in favour of Peterborough. The home boys were liberally cheered for their victory. The Upper Canadas are good players, but were not experienced and expert enough to baffle Peterborough. The forwards of the Collegians did rapid and powerful work, but when the Peterborough carried the puck in their territory they invariably scored. As will be noticed by the list of players, Carmichael was transferred from cover point to point. The team suffered none from the alteration, for "Billy" excelled himself. Wasson in goal was sure and quick, while Parson as cover was safe and reliable. Lionel King played a brilliant forward, and will yet make a future for himself in the hockey arena.

MARKET MEMORANDA.

The Prices Rule Steady—Grain Somewhat Lively in Demand.

The market on Saturday was a fairly large one and good prices were realized, all produce being disposed of before noon. The grain market is quite lively and wheat and oats are moving freely. To-day's quotations were:—Spring wheat, 65 cents, (standard), fall 71 cents (standard), barley 35 to 46, oats 31 to 31½, small peas 55 to 60, large 65 to 66, a few loads offering, buckwheat 43 to 45, little on sale; rye 45. Hay $5 to $6.50 per ton, straw $3 to $3.50 per load. A few loads were offered this morning and soon disposed of. A large quantity of dressed pork sold at $3 per cwt. By the quarter pork sold at 9 and 10 cents hind and 8 and 9 front. Beef was on sale in a great supply, but owing to the large quantity offered found a slow sale. Hind quarter sold at 6 and 6½, while front quarter brought 5 and 5½ cts., according to quality. Lamb sold readily at 9 and 10 cts, and mutton freely, at 7 and 8 cts. A good supply of apples was disposed of at 50 and 75 cts per bag, according to quality, and potatoes have taken a raise. They sold at 80 cts per bag to day and were a scarce commodity. Eggs were much more plentiful and as a consequence the price has taken a drop; 20, 21 and 22c. was the prevailing price to-day. Good butter was offered in a well stocked supply and sold as high as 23c. per lb. at first, but towards noon it went at 21, 23 and 24c, but principally at 22c. No ducks were to be seen, but turkeys sold at $1.35 to $1.50 each. Chickens sold at 60 to 70c. a pair, and geese, 50 to 70c. apiece. The inside market was a creditable one and the produce was disposed of in a couple of hours at the prices quoted. The only stagnation is in beef, where the supply is superabundant, and far in excess of the consumption.

For the Good of Others

Rev. Mr. Williams Heartily Endorses Hood's Sarsaparilla.

We are pleased to present this from Rev. A. A. Williams, of the Sillsbee street Christian Church, Lynn, Mass.:

"I see no reason why a clergyman, more than a layman, who knows whereof he speaks, should hesitate to approve an

and worth, from which he or his family have been signally benefited, and whose commendation may serve to extend those benefits to others by increasing their confidence. My wife has for many years been a sufferer from severe

Nervous Headache

for which she found little help. She has tried many things that promised well but performed little. Last fall a friend gave her a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. It seems surprising what simply one bottle could and did do for her. The attacks of headache decreased in number and were less violent in their intensity, while her general health has been improved. Her appetite has also been better. From our experience with

Hood's Sarsaparilla

I have no hesitation in endorsing its merits.'

CRISP CURLING CHRONIQUES.

What is Going on at the Rink Where Curlers Most do Congregate.

Two rinks from the Millbrook curling club came to town on Saturday afternoon at five o'clock to play the long put off match with a couple of quartettes from the Peterborough Granites. The visitors had to go away on the 8.50 train, hence one rink was only able to play 13 ends and the other 15. Judge Weller defeated Skip Vance by 10 shots in a 15 end game, while Skip Wood of Millbrook, was 2 shots ahead of Skip Edwards at the close of the 13th end. On the whole the Granites came out victorious by 8 shots. Following are the scores:

An interesting make up match occurred at the rink on Saturday evening between Skip G. E. Gould of Uxbridge, and George Edmison. Following is the result:

J D Collins,	J C Smith,
C J Leonard,	J S Knapman,
E B Clegg,	E Rutherford,
Geo Edmison, sk... 17	G E Gould, sk.....15

Two rinks of Peterborough will go to Lindsay at noon to-morrow to play a return match with a couple of rinks in that town, while two rinks of Lindsay will come here to play a return match. In all a four rink match will be played. Skips Boucher and Rutherford will go to Lindsay while the rinks here will be skipped by Messrs. Ferguson and Attrill.

The list of 13 point games among the Granites is gradually diminishing and the winner will probably be known this week. A day or two ago J. H. Connal defeated R. M. Dennistoun by 15 shots to 8. In the sixth draw W. J. Montgomery has yet to play off with R. Stevenson, the winner of which will play J. H. Connal. The victor in the latter contest will do battle with Earnest Rutherford, who has the bye for the championship.

"I am convinced of the merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla, after having taken but a few doses"—this is what many people say.

CHURCH CHIMES.

His Lordship the Bishop of Toronto will preach in St. John's Church next Sunday evening.

The ordinance of baptism was administered to five candidates in the Murray street Baptist church last night.

Miss Denzil, precentor of St. Andrew's church choir, sang two excellent solos yesterday in an unusually fine manner.

Rev. Geo. Edwards in the Charlotte street Methodist church preached an excellent sermon on "Consecration" last night.

Owing to the tempestious weather last evening the congregatsons at most of the town churches was scarcely more than a handful.

Rev. J. C. Davidson conducted the services at St. John's church mission last evening and Rev. W. M. Loucks in the morning.

The regular Wednesday evening service in St. Luke's church will be addressed by the Rev. Geo. Warren, of Lakefield, at 7.30 o'clock.

The regular Wednesday evening Lenten service in St. John's church will be addressed by Rev. H. Symonds, rector of St. Luke's church.

On Friday evening at St. Luke's church the rector will give his first address on the first epistle to the Colossians. The service will begin at 7.30 o'clock.

Yesterday in St. Luke's church was temperance Sunday. Rev. Mr. Symonds preached a scholarly temperance discourse in the morning to a large congregation.

The missionary society of the Baptist church will hold an entertainment in the Sunday school room on Thursday night, next, to which the public are cordially invited.

The incandescent electric lights burned for the first time in St. Luke's Church last evening. The fixtures are very pretty and add much to the interior beauty of the church.

Every Tuesday evening, the Rev. H. Symonds, of St. Luke's Church, will conduct service and give an address in the school house near Auburn, beginning on Tuesday night.

Rev. Father Scollard at 8 and 10 o'clock masses in St. Peter's Cathedral Sunday delivered two thoughtful and practical Lenten sermons, which was listened to with much interest.

It is expected that Mr. A. B. Lambe, a member of St. John's church choir and a former lay reader, will return to Peterborough this week from Toronto where he has been for the past few weeks.

The anthem, "I will lay me down in peace," was finely rendered in St. John's church last evening, as a quartette, Master Maitland Boswell took the treble part; Master Charley Seymour, alto; Mr. A. Kingscote and Mr. W. J. Drope, bass.

St. John's Chapter No. 6, Brotherhood of St. Andrew will meet in their rooms on Hunter street to-morrow evening instead of Tuesday evening of next week, which is their regular meeting night. Arrangements will be made for the addresses to be delivered by laymen in St. John's church on Wednesday, March 1st.

On Sunday afternoon next at 3.30 o'clock all the local courts of the Canadian Order of Foresters will attend divine service at St. Luke's church, where Rev. H. Symonds will preach the annual sermon to the members. In consequence of this special service the Sunday school is requested to meet earlier than customary next Sunday afternoon—at 2.30 o'clock.

An ordination service will be conducted in St. John's Church next Sunday morning at 10.30 o'clock by His Lordship the Bishop of Toronto. The Rev. W. M. Loucks, assistant curate of St. John's, and Rev. Mr. Manning, of St. James's Cathedral, Toronto, who are at present deacons, will be advanced to the priesthood. It is very seldom that an ordination service is conducted by the Bishop of Toronto outside the cathedral and very few people in Peterborough have ever witnessed the impressive ceremony. His Lordship's kindness in conducting the service at St. John's, is much appreciated.

AN OLD MONAGHAN SETTLER.

The Father of Mr. J. C. Turnbull, Town, Expires at the Age of 68 Years.

Mr. J. C. Turnbull, town, received a telegram on Saturday from Hartney, Manitoba, announcing the death of his father, Mr. Wm. Turnbull, which sad event took place on Saturday. The late Mr. Turnbull who was 68 years of age, was born in South Monaghan, his parents being the third to settle in that township. They were among the Rutherford's and Smithson's in being the township's pioneer inhabitants. Deceased removed about four years ago to Manitoba where he has since resided. By his death a family of eight children are left—five sons and three daughters—to mourn the loss of a venerable and affectionate father. The family all reside in Manitoba, except Mr. J. C. Turnbull, town. Their mother died some four years ago. The remains of Mr. Turnbull will be interred at Hartney. His many friends especially among those venerable individuals the old inhabitants in this district will learn with sorrow of his death. Deceased was highly respected and well thought of for his many excellent traits of character. In religion he was a Baptist, and in politics a Reformer, and followed agricultural pursuits with success during all his life.

TORONTO HUMANE SOCIETY.

A lady in town has received the following letter, which has been handed in with a request for publication, which, seeing the importance of the subject, is willingly complied with:

Dear Madam,—Mrs. Wood telephoned me yesterday requesting me to write and inform you that she had received a very pressing letter from Cobourg, asking her if possible to go down there on Wednesday or Friday, the last week of this month, our meeting here will be on Thursday, the 23rd inst.) They had a meeting last week, but did did not get quite organized, each member promising to bring ten others for the next meeting, and wishing to have Mrs. Wood with them, thinking she would be very helpful in getting them started, and, of course, promising to pay the travelling and other expenses. What she wished me to write you was this:—If she finds it possible to comply with their request, do you think it would be possible for you and the friends you have spoken to, and who are interested in humane work to have a meeting about the same time, at which Mrs. Wood would speak and help to the best of her ability, so that a society might be formed as soon as possible. We, as a society, are anxious to have one started in every town in the Dominion. Kindly let me know at your earliest convenience what the opinion of yourself and friends are in reference to this matter, and I will write you at once the exact date which Mrs. Wood could be in Peterborough. Mrs. Wood hopes to be able to leave home at that date.

Yours very truly,
Anna B. Dell,

Great Promise for Wood Manufacturers.

It is only quite recently that manufacturers of furniture, wagons and wood work generally have become aware of the wonderful promise offered by North Galveston, Texas. Directly tributary to this young city, and not many miles distant, in Eastern Texas, are over 48,000,000 acres of timber which comprises all of the high grade hard and soft woods.

Many people are coming in and are now doing business, but there is room for a great many more. With rail and water facilities for shipping, and markets in all directions, there should not be any hesitation about the outcome of manufacturing ventures. For further particulars, call on or write Mr. T. Hurler, Peterborough, Ont., the local agent. The address of the home office is North Galveston Association, Box 963, Minneapolis, Minn.

SWEEP THEM AWAY.

THE TRUE COURSE FOR OUR PEOPLE TO PURSUE!

NO TIME SHOULD BE LOST!

The Work Demands Attention!

When our rulers and public men become reckless, extravagant and recreant, we naturally become solicitous for the safety of our country and people, and we sweep them out of office and power.

Our people are now burdened with a load of vile remedies and nostrums, all of them tending to aggravate suffering and disease. Our true course, if we value life, is to sweep them off with a mighty hand. No time should be lost in accomplishing this work as these canker worms are fast destroying life.

Fortunately for our Canadian people, they have had an agent working amongst them for good. This life giving power, Paine's Celery Compound, owing to its mighty and grand curative properties, is fast sweeping from our midst all false and sham cures. Paine's Celery Compound is a leaven in every community for good; its works, effects and wonderful cures have caused tens of thousands to discard forever the useless and crude remedies that have so long pestered our people.

Paine's Celery Compound saves and cures when all other means fail. It promises new life, and never fails to give it. What say you, reader? Are you willing to trust its powers? Oh, do not delay another moment; your case is critical and serious, and demands immediate attention. One bottle will convince you that you have a hand laid on a grand power that can pull you from a path that leads to the dark tomb.

THE POPE'S JUBILEE.

Rome Is Filled With Hosts of Pilgrims From All Points.

Rome, Feb. 20.—The city presented an animated appearance with the large hosts of pilgrims, who arrived to join in yesterday's celebration of the Episcopal jubilee of Pope Leo. The jubilee mass was witnessed by multitudes. Cardinal Rampolla, Papal Secretary of State, gave a great diplomatic dinner yesterday and Count Lefevre de Behaine, French Ambassador to the Holy See, will begin a series of jubilee soirees to-day.

The question of precedence of envoys at the jubilee ceremonies has been settled in favor of the French Ambassador, dean of the diplomatic corps. On Sunday morning the Irish pilgrims attended mass at the Church of the San Giovanni Laterano and the English pilgrims at the Church of Santa Maria Maggiore, Bishop Clifford officiating and Cardinal Vaughan delivering the sermon.

The Italian Government has ordered the plazza in front of St. Peter's to be guarded with troops during the jubilee.

FLOODS IN QUEENSLAND.

Steady Rain for Several Days Is Threatening More Trouble.

Melbourne, Feb. 20.—Steady rain for several days has caused the rivers of Queensland to rise rapidly and to threaten a repetition of the recent floods. Gales have accompanied the rainfall, so that between wind and water most of the railways and telegraph lines have been rendered temporarily useless. Ipswich, Brisbane and several smaller towns are partly under water. In Brisbane the water is but 10 inches below the highest mark during the last flood and some 10 or 12 lives have been lost.

The three vessels which were left stranded in the Botanical Garden of this city during the last flood have been got back to the river. In Northern New South Wales the floods have done enormous damage to crops.

A McCarthyite Elected.

Dublin, Feb. 20.—Jeremiah Jordan, McCarthyite candidate in South Meath, was elected Saturday by a vote of 2707 to 2638 for J. J. Walton, Parnellite. Jordan takes the seat from which Patrick Fullam, Anti-Parnellite, was displaced for clerical intimidation. The vote for Fullam in the general election was 2212 to 2129 for Dalton, Parnellite.

A Man of Marks.

Berlin, Feb. 20.—Baron Bleichroeder died at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was the richest banker in Berlin and one of the richest men in Germany. The fortune left by him is estimated at 100,000,000 marks. He was one of Prince Bismarck's nearest business friends, and during the old regime was known as Bismarck's "body banker."

An obedience to the simple laws of hygiene and the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla will enable the most delicate man or sickly woman to pass in ease and safety from the icy atmosphere of February to the warm, moist days of April. It is the best of spring medicines.

JOHN HAGGART, AUCTIONEER.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

Last evening an eloquent and thrilling address on John the Baptist, was delivered by Mr. N. W. Rowell, of Toronto. Owing to the inclement weather the attendance was smaller than usual, but those present were amply rewarded for coming. Mr. Rowell took as his text Matt 11, 2: "Among those that are born of woman there hath not arisen a greater than John the Baptist." John's greatness was neither physical, intellectual nor financial, but spiritual and moral. His life was first of all on the right foundation. Then he was a man of undaunted courage and one with the highest purpose in life. He could go to prison and to death, but he could not conceal or modify the message God had given him.

It was decided at the last Board meeting to allow members of the junior department the use of the bath rooms for $1.50 extra per annum, and to allow non-resident students the privileges of full membership at the rate of thirty cents per month during the school term.

DON'T LISTEN to the dealer who is bent on bigger profits. The thing that he wants you to buy, when you ask for Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription, isn't "just as good." Proof of this is easy. The only guaranteed remedy for the ailments of womanhood is the "Favorite Prescription." If it ever fails to benefit or cure, in making weak women strong or suffering women well, you have your money back.

Anything "just as good," or as sure to bring help, could be, and would be, sold in just that way.

This guaranteed medicine is an invigorating, restorative tonic, especially adapted to woman's needs and perfectly harmless in any condition of her system.

It builds up, strengthens, regulates, and cures.

For periodical pains, bearing-down sensations, ulceration, inflammation —everything that's known as a "female complaint," it's a remedy that's safe, certain, and proved.

Everything catarrhal in its nature, Catarrh itself, and all the troubles that come from Catarrh, are perfectly and permanently cured by Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. No matter how bad your case or of how long standing, you can be cured.

A FAITHFUL SERVANT.

The Wanderings and Many Vicissitudes of a Slave During the War.

In 1863 Gen. Pemberton commanded at this point. Col. Hemingway owned a faithful slave, Peyton by name, a noted fiddler, known for miles around and highly respected by both black and white. When his young master, W. Lynn Hemingway, afterward State Treasurer of Mississippi, joined the old Carroll Rifles, he took Peyton along as a trusted servant. He went with him into Virginia and returned home in 1863. In February or March of that year a faithful spy was needed to visit the Federal gunboats then coming down the river on Fort Pemberton. Peyton at once undertook the mission, and, representing himself as a fugitive slave to the commanders of the boats, was well received. Being bright far beyond ordinary, he managed to secrete their official papers, maps, etc., and escaped with these documents to Fort Pemberton.

After the fall of Vicksburg, in July following, Peyton went with his young master again to Virginia, where he remained until the surrender of General Lee. The former, being compelled to remain a few days thereafter, in order to comply with the formalities of the surrender, sent Peyton ahead of him to his home, near Carrolton, Miss. On his way, however, he was betrayed to the enemy by some Confederate as the spy who had deceived them above Fort Pemberton, was captured and carried in irons to New York, thence to Cuba and sold as a slave, together with many others. The vessel on which he was taken was a Federal boat. In Cuba he worked as a slave in factories for nearly fifteen years, being entirely cut off from all communication with home and friends. He made seven attempts to escape from bondage, all but the last, of course, being unsuccessful. Finally, he found an American vessel commanded by a Southerner, to whom he related the story of his capture, enslavement and forced exile, and begged to be returned to his home and family. The captain secreted him in the hold of his vessel, carried him to Costa Rica, thence to New York. Peyton then worked his way to Virginia, where a number of ladies raised the means to return him to his home after an absence of seventeen years. He reached Winona, Miss., on the 15th of April, 1880.

Peyton says that numbers of mulatto women are being constantly sold in Cuba as slaves. Northern men marry them, take them to Cuba on a "bridal tour," and then sell them as cooks and fancy house servants. He saw one sold last fall, by the man who had married her, for $500, and further that, as he came through Cincinnati on his way home, he saw and recognized the man who sold his wife in Cuba. The facts above given are from one of the most reliable and responsible gentlemen in Mississippi, written to a distinguished member of Congress from that State.—Washington, (Miss.) Gazette.

A Woman's Lonely Half-Century.

A strange romance was ended by the death near Stonersville, Pa., recently, of Mary Reis, who for fifty years led a lonely life because her parents forbade an early marriage. She was 78 years old. When a girl she fell in love with a young man whom her parents did not admire, and they forbade a marriage. This broke Mary's heart and her home had no more charms for her. She preferred to live by herself and she refused to accept the hospitality of friends or neighbors, saying that all the world was against her. Twenty years ago she moved into the little stone house, and after that she rarely saw anybody. On Monday a friend called and offered to help her in any way, but the aged lady refused aid. Her body was discovered on her kitchen floor and $20 was found in the little house of the recluse.—Philadelphia Record.

Two Year Beef Cattle.

The idea is beginning to strongly take hold of the minds of beef growers that the limits of profit is reached by the end of two years. Beyond that the cost of the maintenance, ration is so large that it offsets the gain if it does not cause an adverse balance. As The Indiana Farmer says: If kept long after this point is reached the profit that has accrued from feeding through the earlier stages may be easily lost. Farmers are not usually much given to sentiment in this matter and do not retain animals after the period of profitable use is passed from any special affection, but simply because they do not recognize the fact that they are on the down grade. Go into the barns and fields of men who are thoroughly successful stock raisers, and you will find mainly young animals; very rarely any that are much past their prime. On the other hand, look over the stock of men who think that live stock does not pay, and you will often see the reason plainly written in the too great age to which animals are kept.

Give two animals all the good hay they will consume, and to one a daily ration of grain worth ten cents, to the other a ration roots worth five cents, and possibly the latter will thrive best—the roots causing better similation of the hay.

CAPRIVI'S SPEECH.

Rupture Between the Government and the Conservatives.

BERLIN, Feb. 18.—Chancellor Caprivi delivered a powerful address in the Reichstag yesterday. He declared with unusual vehemence that attacks which the agrarian and anti-Semitic party were directing against the Government and himself would never move him to resign. If the agrarians, he declared, had any special grievances or desires, let them declare what they are and the Government will give them due consideration; but vague attacks must be stopped.

It was impossible that the Government should accept bi-metallism, because it was neither able to propound a scheme acceptable to England nor to disregard international markets. The agrarian and anti-Semitic movement, the Chancellor declared, were certain of final overthrow. The promoters of anti Semitism were already running with Socialism. Personally, the Chancellor declared in conclusion, he would prefer to relinquish the burdens of office, but in accord with that spirit of old Prussian fidelity he would remain to fulfill his duty and to serve the interests of the Emperor and of the empire.

The speech has caused a great sensation, as it is believed to mark a complete rupture between the Government and the Conservatives.

Death in Lead Mines.

MADRID, Feb 18.—A large number of lives have been lost owing to deadly gases in the Impensada lead mines near Cartagena. The lead mines are situated at Almagamon, 20 miles from Cartagena, and have been worked for centuries. The work has been pushed with energy recently, and it is claimed sufficient precautions have not been taken to prevent fatalities.

Before the miners were aware of their danger they were prostrated by noxious fumes, which spread throughout the workings, and of those who were overcome 27 are reported dead from suffocation. Great excitement prevails at Almagamon, and other lead mines in the vicinity are being inspected.

Caprivi in Love.

BERLIN, Feb. 18.—The Deutsche Adelsblatt says that Chancellor Von Caprivi is about to announce his engagement to the widow of Col. Lehmann of Tilsit.

The Episcopal Jubilee.

ROME, Feb. 18.—The Pope yesterday received 8000 pilgrims from various parts of Italy who visited Rome in connection with the Episcopal Jubilee of His Holiness.

A Friend

Wishes to speak through the Register of the beneficial results he has received from a regular use of Ayer's Pills. He says: "I was feeling sick and tired and my stomach seemed all out of order. I tried a number of remedies, but none seemed to give me relief until I was induced to try the old reliable Ayer's Pills. I have taken only one box, but I feel like a new man. I think they are the most pleasant and easy to take of anything I ever used, being so finely sugar-coated that even a child will take them. I urge upon all who are of a laxative to try Ayer's Pills."—Boothbay (Me.) Register.

In Need

"Between the ages of five and fifteen, I was troubled with a kind of salt-rheum, or eruption, chiefly confined to the legs, and especially to the bend of the knee above the calf. Here, running sores formed which would scab over, but would break immediately on moving the leg. My mother tried everything she could think of, but all was without avail. Although a child, I read in the papers about the beneficial effects of Ayer's Pills, and persuaded my mother to let me try them. With no great faith in the result, she procured and I began to use them, and soon noticed an improvement. Encouraged by this, I kept on till I took two boxes, when the sores disappeared and have never troubled me since."—H. Chipman, Real Estate Agent, Roanoke, Va.

"I suffered for years from stomach and kidney troubles, causing very severe pains in various parts of the body. None of the remedies I tried afforded me any relief until I began taking Ayer's Pills, and was cured."—Wm. Goddard, Notary Public, Five Lakes, Mich.

THE SHEEP FOLD.

Prof. Thomas Shaw, of Guelph, on Fattening Sheep and Lambs.

First. We must have sheep capable of producing such mutton when properly bred and cared for.

Second. We must have food of a suitable character on which to feed and fatten them.

Third. We must know how to give them this food in a way that will secure the end sought.

As these all have a bearing upon fattening sheep and lambs, they require some consideration here. Some people say to us that the breed is nothing, but that feed is everything. When they say these things they say what is not true, though doubtless they say so in their innocency. The truth is that the breed is a great deal, and so is the feed. These two go hand in hand when the work of fattening sheep and lambs is to prove a marked success. They are united in the bonds of union, which all passing centuries can not sever.

In selecting sheep for fattening, therefore, we must have a regard to breed. All breeds are not capable of producing mutton at a profit. Indeed some breeds are incapable of producing mutton of the highest type.

To secure sheep and lambs that will fatten in best form it is indispensable that the sire belongs to one of the mutton-producing breeds; that he possesses suitable shape, and that he is pre-potent. Unless he belongs to one of the mutton-producing breeds he cannot transmit mutton-producing qualities. Without the animal to be made into mutton is possessed of mutton-producing qualities the effort to produce mutton will not avail with any kind of food or care. From which of the mutton breeds should the pure sire come? That will depend on the character of the dams. When these are small and compact, a ram of the large and more rangy type should be selected; when the dams are large and coarse, a ram of smaller and more compactly built breed would be in order.

The shape and form of the ram would be in outline as follows: He would be medium to large in size, of the breed, and inclining to compact in form. He should possess a strong but not coarse head, carried well up, and from the orbs of which clear, full, bright, expressive and intelligent eyes look out. The neck should be short and powerful at the collar; the breast low, wide and deep; the body plump and cylindrical in shape along its entire length; the back broad, level and well fleshed; the shoulders plump and round but not prominent; the heart girth good; the hind quarters long the hips full; the buttock broad and the twist well filled. He should be strong in the arm and thigh; should stand on short legs, with medium to strong bone, and should have a bright pink-colored oily skin.

As every successful breeder of sheep knows very well, the ram should be prepotent; that is to say, he should be able to imprint his own good characters on his progeny in a marked degree. This he can not do if he is a scrub from lack of breeding, for then he has no good characters to imprint. If he is a pure-bred scrub, and more especially if he is descended from scrub ancestry, his purity of breeding only gives him greater power to work ruin in any flock. If he is good individually but of mixed breeding, we have no guarantee as to the results, as we do not know which of the variable blood elements possessed by the sire will be the more potent in transmission. But if we use a sire right in form and shape, possessed of that great requisite in sires, viz.; bodily vigor and well come, that is to say, descended from ancestry of good individuality for some distance along the upward line of ascent, we will get what we are seeking with almost unfailing certainty, where the dams are at all suitable, and the management at all correct.

In breeding the dams may be anything save pure Merinos, if the shapes are right. Pure Merinos being essentially wool-producers and of ancient lineage, would be more potent to resist change than the sires of the more modern mutton-producing breeds would be potent to effect change. In time the pure Merino could be turned into a mutton-producing sheep, but not nearly so quickly as the grade Merino, and more quickly still, the grade or common ewe of more mixed breeding. The grade Merino ewe would have less power to resist change than the pure Merino, from the weakening of her dominant characters through grading, and the ewe of more mixed breeding would have even less power in this direction, owing to the still further weakening of dominant characters through the transfusion of many and divers elements of blood, which may in some instances breed so inharmoniously as to render the possession of dominant characters an impossibility.—From Address by Prof. Thos. Shaw, Guelph, at Columbus, Ohio.

E. Jardine, North Sidney, C. B., says:—"I have used your Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with decided success, and would recommend them to any one suffering as I did from weakness and impoverished blood. Your pills have afforded wonderful relief and I believe them to be unequalled." All dealers or by mail, post paid, at 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50. Dr. Williams' Med. Co. Brockville, Ont.

Couldn't Keep on His Feet.

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 31st, 1892.

To the Peterborough Medicine Company:

GENTLEMEN,—If there is any medicine in the world that I pin my faith to it is Menbray's Kidney and Liver Cure. In my business I have to stand on my feet a good deal. About a year ago my back began to give out, weakening pains set in across my kidneys, I felt tired all the time and could hardly stand up to my work. I began to lose strength and at last had to give up work altogether. A customer advised me to try your cure which I did. Before half the bottle was used, I felt the pains and weakness leaving me and to-day I enjoy good health and can bear fatigue and work all right. One bottle was all I used.

ALF. HASKILL, barber.

Endorsed by the Leaders.

When a remedy is endorsed by ministers, editors, merchants, farmers and leading men of all classes, it is strong evidence that that remedy has great merit and does what is claimed for it. Such a remedy is Burdock Blood Bitters, its wonderful success as a cure for dyspepsia, bad blood, etc., is well known to old and young.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for coughs and colds does it, is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle FREE, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c. and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

Not a Particle.

A feature worth noticing in regard to Burdock Blood Bitters is that it does not contain one particle of poisonous matter. It cures and cures quickly without the use of any injurious ingredients. B.B.B is a purely vegetable specific for dyspepsia, constipation, bad blood, headache, billiousness and all diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels and blood.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

CHAMBERLAIN HITS HARD AT THE HOME RULE BILL.

He Wants Also a Separate House for Scotland, Wales and England, With a Fifth House—He Says Ulster People Are Treated as Roasters and Liars.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—In the House of Commons yesterday Hon. J. Morley, Chief Secretary for Ireland, was questioned in regard to the decision of the Supreme Court of Judicature in Ireland to the effect that the Chief Secretary was wrong in issuing instructions to the police not to protect sheriff's officers in service of writs of ejectment at midnight.

Mr. Morley stated that new regulations would be issued immediately to the police, and the Irish executive was considering whether to appeal from the decision to the House of Lords or to ask Parliament to settle the question by enacting legislation to put a stop to the practice of ejecting people from their houses at night.

John Redmond, Parnellite leader, brought up the case of John Daley, serving a life sentence under conviction of having been engaged in a dynamite conspiracy.

Home Secretary Asquith replied to Mr. Redmond that he had made the fullest and closest enquiry into Daly's case and did not propose to reopen the question unless new facts should be produced justifying such action.

Mr. Redmond gave notice that he would raise the question again in Committee on Supply.

The Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain then resumed the debate on the Home Rule Bill, the House being full, but not crowded. Mr. Chamberlain declared that the bill sowed the seeds of future discontent and paved the way to demands that would be certain to be urged when England's emergency became Ireland's opportunity. It was recommended as a final settlement, yet it deprived the Irish Parliament of all control of trade and commerce.

The speaker reminded the House that Mr. Parnell insisted that no finality was possible until Ireland had the power to impose retaliatory duties. Instead of guaranteeing imperial unity the bill involved risk to the existence of the United Kingdom.

Mr. Chamberlain next referred to the financial proposals, which he said were extremely complicated, and would inevitably lead to imperial interference.

With respect to the retention of Irish members in the Imperial Parliament, there were only two practical ways for this scheme to be carried out: First, the Irish Government and Legislature must be wholly subordinate to the Imperial Parliament, like the London County Council. The supremacy of the Imperial Parliament and the unity of the empire would not be attacked. Second, if Ireland gets a Parliament, then Scotland, Wales and England ought each to have a parliament, with a fifth House for the United Kingdom. That would be a large order. [Unionist cheers.]

In conclusion Mr. Chamberlain protested against the Government treating the people of Ulster as if they were only boasters and liars. Their disapproval of the bill was thorough. Parliament, he said, was bound to protect loyalists against injury, for which the bill provided no safeguards.

The Right Honorable George J. Goschen remarked upon the reluctance of the Radicals to join in the debate. He said that was natural, as the whole field of discussion was honeycombed with pitfalls for unwary supporters of the Government. Mr. Gladstone's revelations, he said, were sketchy and shadowy. Mr. Goschen severely criticized the bill and especially the financial clauses, mainly on the same lines as previous speakers on the union side. This bill would never pass. Perhaps there would be a third one, perhaps not. If a third one should come it ought to be bound together with the other two and labeled "Failures to solve an insoluble problem."

The Home Rule bill was then read for the first time and the second reading was fixed for March 13.

A special to The Telegram says: The Hon. Edward Blake this afternoon in the House of Commons made a speech in reply to that of Mr. Chamberlain.

Mr. Blake said the Home Rule plan might not be perfect, but it was infinitely better than the conditions which now obtained. He said that Protestant Ulster would scorn the idea of being separated from the rest of the island.

Makes Flesh and Blood.

When the system is all run down and there seems to be no hope of obtaining nourishment for the body by the ordinary process of food supply and digestion, when the body is sinking fast, then is the time to use Miller's Emulsion of pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil. A Pleasant Herb Drink.

The best cure we know of for constipation and headache is the pleasant herb drink called Lane's Family Medicine. It is said to be Oregon grape root, combined with simple herbs, and is made for use by pouring boiling water onto the dried roots and herbs. It is remarkably efficacious in all blood disorders, and is now the sovereign remedy with ladies for clearing up the complexion. Druggists sell the packages at 50c. and $1.

When in Despair.

When in despair of being cured of lung troubles, there is still a hope, and a strong hope of perfect cure in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This medicine cures even after all others have failed, and no one suffering from coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, hoarseness, etc., need despair of cure while Norway Pine Syrup is obtainable.

HER CUP WAS POISONED.

BECAUSE HER HUSBAND HAD DECIDED TO LEAVE HER.

She Then Sent a Telegram to Her Husband Saying That She Was Dying—Her Landlady Denies That She Took the Poison and That the Message Was a Fake.

TORONTO, Feb. 20.—Last May Alexander Gormley, the son of a well-known farmer residing near Pickering, married a woman in the city to whom his family strongly objected because she had a past history. Gormley's father was so enraged when the news was conveyed to him that he resolved to cut the erring son off from his patrimony and have nothing further to do with him.

Alexander's brothers, however, sympathized with him in his trouble and finally persuaded him to leave his wife and return home, where he remained for some time, in fact up to within three weeks ago, when he left home and returned to Mrs. Gormley.

On Saturday morning his brothers telegraphed him to meet them at the station and Mrs. Gormley has not seen her husband since.

Saturday evening, surmising that his brothers had again persuaded her husband to leave her, Mrs. Gormley, becoming desperate, resolved to resort to extreme measures, and it is alleged swallowed a dose of poison.

A telegram was sent from the house to Pickering Saturday night stating that the woman was dying. The telegram was signed by Mrs. Caldwell, another boarder at the house, No. 183 Richmond-street.

Mrs. Gormley was found at the house last night and admitted that she had taken the poison and that it was only by the combined efforts of a doctor and the other boarders that her life was saved.

Miss Tinsley, the landlady, however, states that the tale of the poisoning is only a subterfuge on the part of Mrs. Gormley to frighten her husband into returning to her, and that the name of Mrs. Caldwell was signed to the telegram without her knowledge or permission.

WHYTE'S SUICIDE.

Curious Questions Brought Up at Coroner Johnston's Investigation.

TORONTO, Feb. 20.—Mystery still surrounds the death of David M. Whyte, found shot in his room at the St. James' Hotel on Friday. Coroner Johnston held an inquest at the Morgue Saturday afternoon, but the evidence served to increase rather than to diffuse to the mystery.

Mr. W. R. Membery, one of the proprietors of the hotel, made the statement already printed. Mr. J. R. Hawley, Membery's partner, said that he had quite a talk with the deceased Thursday in which the deceased spoke of his circumstances and explained his business in the city. A Frenchman, whose name Hawley had forgotten, told him since the shooting that on Thursday night he saw deceased take a silver mounted revolver out of his hip pocket and place it in his left coat pocket.

Willie Partridge, a bell boy, said he saw a man in deceased's room on Thursday morning about 2.30 and asked him his name, whereupon the man handed him the card of the "City Art Gallery, 290 Queen-street west." The name "Mr. Ostrom" was written at the bottom, and he declared that was his name. At the time deceased ordered a flask of whisky on credit. The boy refused credit, and deceased offered his gold watch as security. This witness refused and purchased the flask himself. Deceased said he would have money in the morning, but in the morning he put the witness off, and witness never got his 50 cents.

Mr. W. B. McLean, secretary of the Conger Lumber Company, told his story as already published. He knew deceased quite well and thought he was right-handed; he certainly wrote with his right hand.

Dr. Harrington, who made the post-mortem, deposed that the bullet entered at the top of the head six inches back from the bridge of the nose and slightly to the left. He traced the track of the missile back and downwards and slightly toward the right to its lodging place at the base of the brain. Between the thumb and forefinger of the left hand were found about half a dozen hairs similar to that on the head of the deceased. The scalp was not scorched. He thought it impossible for a right-handed man to inflict such a wound on himself.

Herbert Jones and J. H. Ford, friends of the deceased, both said they believed him to be right-handed.

Coroner Johnson then adjourned the inquest till next Wednesday night in order to give the police an opportunity to find the friend of the deceased, "Mr. Ostrom."

A HOT IRON

Forced Through the Neck of a Man in a Wire Works.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 20.—Joseph Benson, employed as a hooker on at the Rankin Wire Works, met with a horrible accident while at work Saturday morning. Benson was working near a set of rolls when a red hot bar of iron flew out and struck him under the left ear. It passed entirely through his neck, and several feet of the rod which was still being forced out of the rolls had been forced through the gaping wound before Benson was rescued. A fellow workman succeeded in pulling the bar out after Benson had sunk to the ground unconscious. Physicians hastily summoned pronounced the wound fatal.

THE PRINCESS APPEALS.

The Heiress to the Throne of Hawaii Addresses Uncle Sam.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The Princess Kaiaulani sends the following address to the American people:

LONDON, Feb. 18.

To the American People:

Four years ago, at the request of Mr. Thurston, the Hawaiian Cabinet Minister, I was sent away to England to be educated privately and fitted for the position which by the constitution of Hawaii, I was to inherit. For all these years I have patiently and in exile striven to fit myself for my return this year to my native country. I now am told that Mr. Thurston is in Washington asking you to take away my flag and my throne. No one tells me even this officially. Have I done anything wrong that this wrong should be done to me and my people? I am coming to Washington to plead for my throne, my nation and my flag. Will not the great American people hear me?

SNUFF AND SHIRT FRILLS.

The Thunderer Is Facetious In Its Eulogy of Edward Blake.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—The London correspondent of The Times says that Edward Blake's effort last night (Friday) was recognized on all sides as having placed him in the first rank of orators in the Commons. His old-fashioned style recalled the days of Parliamentary snuff and shirt frills, but the House enjoyed it greatly.

In his speech Mr. Blake contended that the bill amply secures the supremacy of the Imperial Parliament. He objected to the suspension of the land question for three years. The Irish Parliament, he said, ought to be empowered to deal at once with the land problem.

Coming Events Casting Their Shadows Before!

The coming event at the City Clothing Store is stock-taking day—Wednesday, February 1st.

The shadows which this coming event are casting before it are the splendid Bargains that customers are now receiving, previous to stock-taking, at our bona fide January Clearing Sale now going on.

his Dry Goods Business from the old and antiquated store in Burnham's Block to his new and more central premises,

ROWSE'S OLD STAND.

We part from the old stand with regret. But it is not our fault that the trade is going up town. We see that it is going, and who can control the movements of trade? For our part, we think the sensible thing is to follow.

Being now comfortably settled in the centre of trade, we are fully prepared for business, and hope to be able to serve all our old customers and many more new ones.

The ladies are especially invited to call and look through our handsome new premises, where they will find us surrounded with the latest modern store improvements, increased shelf room, better light, and other accessories for the more effective display of our large and well assorted stock of Staple and Fancy Dry Goods.

BARGAINS as BIG and as REAL as ever. Some lines of goods slightly damaged by smoke to be sold for whatever they will bring.

SPECIAL BARGAINS AWAIT YOU.

YOU ARE LUCKY if you have not yet purchased your Overcoat for this winter. If you know anything about mercantile life, you know that every merchant takes stock at this time of the year. Our stock sheet will be closed the last of this month and until that time we simply want to turn Clothing into cash. You can see at a glance that we have too many Overcoats and another glance will prove to you that we mean to get rid of them if low prices will do it.

Piles of $4.50 Overcoats for $2.75.
Piles of $5.50 Overcoats for $3.50.
Piles of $7.00 Overcoats for $4.95.
Piles of $3.00 Overcoats for $6.50.
Piles of $10.00 Overcoats for $7.50.
Piles of $12.00 Overcoats for $8.50.
Piles of $16.00 Overcoats for $12.00.

These are simply stock-taking bargains and any man of common sense in need of Clothing will take advantage of it.

SUNDAY NIGHT'S SNAP.

SEVERE FROSTS AND BLIZZARDS ALL OVER ONTARIO.

The Trainmen Were Out in the Cold, Sure Enough—A Snow Plow at Tottenham Wrecked Itself and a Locomotive That Was Pushing It.

TORONTO, Feb. 21.—Despatches from all over Ontario report a severe frost and blizzard on Sunday night. The train service was more or less disorganized.

A SNOW PLOW OVER.

It Wrecked Itself and a Locomotive—No One Killed.

TOTTENHAM, Ont., Feb. 21.—At 2 o'clock a snow plow and two engines were completely wrecked on the H. and N.W. div., caused by the plow leaving the track. The train was pushing its way through a heavy cut five miles south of this town when the rails spread, causing the plow to roll over, when it was immediately thrown off the track. The engine immediately behind was literally smashed into atoms. The rear engine was not so badly damaged.

A special train conveyed Drs. W. H. Wright of Tottenham and Cheffey of Beeton to the scene, when it was found four men were injured slightly, none seriously. How the engineers and firemen escaped without being killed is a mystery. It is expected traffic will be resumed early to-morrow.

IN SETTLING STRIKES.

Munitions of War Are Generally Handy in the United States.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 21.—A serious riot occurred yesterday at the Catsburg Coal Co.'s mine in Monongahela City between the strikers and non-union miners. Over 100 shots were exchanged, but no one was injured.

The mine has been in partial operation with negroes for several weeks, and the strikers have become discouraged. This morning 150 strikers—Italians, Hungarians and Frenchmen—assembled at the mouth of the pit, and when the negro miners, numbering 60 men, appeared for work the strikers drew their guns and revolvers and opened fire upon them.

Most of the negroes were armed and the fire was returned. For a few minutes there was a perfect fusilade. The negroes being outnumbered three to one became frightened and fled to their homes.

Elated at their success, the strikers drove David Hill, the watchman, from the mines, after which they marched to the house of James Jones, one of the mine owners, and ordered him to come out. When he appeared a number of shots were fired in the air to intimidate him, but he boldly stood his ground and soon succeeded in dispersing the mob. No arrests have been made, but informations will be made against the leaders. An application for deputies will at once be made to the sheriff of Washington County. The situation in the fourth pool is growing serious. The men have been on strike for nearly six months and are becoming desperate, as the operators have decided to start their mines with non-union men.

EDWARD BLAKE.

He Has Won Many Admirers Through His Oratory.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Edward Blake's speech in the House of Commons on Friday night was much applauded in the House and in the press.

Mr. Leonard Courtney, a Unionist, and the Deputy Speaker, who followed Mr. Blake, voiced the feelings of Mr. Blake's friends and of many of the latter's foes when he referred admiringly to the character and the ability displayed in the speech of Mr. Blake.

Mr. Courtney expressed the belief that Mr. Blake would in time reach a position in Britain equal to that occupied by him in Canada.

The Canadian's speech is expected to herald Mr. Blake's selection as the man to lead the Irish party. In this way it is hoped that the Parnellites and Anti-Parnellites will be united.

An Odd Comparison.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—The Standard calls the Home Rule bill a "colossal monument of ingenious futility," and ridicules especially the financial proposals. It says that the unity of the countries would rest on a basis of whisky and brown stout.

The Times says: "The bill promises no finality. It offers no hope of even temporary relief. The financial proposals mean the permanent crippling of our whole fiscal system."

Scotland Wants It, Too.

LONDON, Feb. 21. — The Midlothian Liberal Association has adopted a resolution declaring that Home Rule for Scotland is a necessary condition to granting Home Rule to Ireland.

Excitement in Cuba.

MADRID, Feb. 21.—The Minister of the Colonies has received a despatch from Roderiguez Aricoo, captain-general of Cuba, stating that great popular excitement prevails in Santo Domingo in consequence of the concession of the customs with an accompanying grant of land to the American syndicate.

Gen. Henauex, the President of Santo Domingo, is fiercely denounced by the people and there is every sign of a revolution. A Spanish war vessel has left Cuba for Santo Domingo to protect Spanish interests.

The excitement among the people of Santo Domingo is based on an apprehension that the concession to the syndicate is but a prelude to an attempt by the United States upon Dominican independence.

To Dine With the Queen.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone will be entertained by the Queen at Windsor to-day. They will return to London on Wednesday.

Montreal's Mayor.

MONTREAL, Feb. 21.—The recount of the votes cast in the mayoralty contest, Feb. 1, asked for by Mayor McShane, was refused by Judges Taschereau and Tait of the Superior Court yesterday, and Mr. Desjardins is accordingly confirmed in the position of Mayor of Montreal.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

THE BUDGET DEBATE STILL DRAWING ON ORATORS.

The Privilege of the Ballot to be Extended to the Northwest Territories—Supreme Court Decisions—A Judge Superannuated.

OTTAWA, Feb. 21.—The budget debate dragged its weary length along yesterday afternoon and evening, but interest in it is over, and it is simply a question of a few gentlemen on both sides of the House wishing to place on record their particular views. No new or startling arguments are being adduced, and none are expected. Several members on each side are booked to speak, and it is not likely a division will be reached before to-night.

Dr. MacDonald (Huron) resumed the debate and spoke up to recess, going pretty well over all the old ground against the National Policy. He praised the Ontario system of disposing of timber limits and compared it with the policy adopted by the Dominion Government, to the disadvantage of the latter. He attacked the Government for its long-continued imposition of the taxes on binder twine and coal oil, and pointed out that since the Finance Minister had reduced the duty on binder twine the price of that article had fallen one cent a pound, while the retail price of coal oil had gone down six cents a gallon since the importation of American oil in bulk is permitted.

This he claimed as evidence that the farmers had been robbed by these excessive duties, and as showing the justness of the claims of the Opposition, that the duty on these articles should be abolished. He denied that the policy of the Government developed the industries of the country, as some of the manufacturers received too much protection and others not enough, and held that the National Policy did not increase the labor market.

He touched on the exodus and quoted the old figures as to the number of people alleged to have left Canada in the last 10 years, and wound up a two-hour speech with a review of the returns for last general election, by which he endeavored to show that owing to the unfairness of the representation the Conservative party was able to have a much larger representation in the House than the number of votes polled for it justified.

After recess the debate was continued by Messrs. McLennan, Devlin, Craig and Choquette. The adjournment of the debate was moved by Mr. Belley, and the House adjourned at 11.45.

Mr. Coatsworth gives notice that he will ask on Wednesday whether the Government has been made aware, through its officers or otherwise, of the unsuitability of the Government buildings in Toronto for carrying on the Government business in a satisfactory manner, and whether attention has been called to the desirability of placing all the Government offices in Toronto in one building, and, if so, what steps are being taken to carry out the project.

The Supreme Court met to-day for the delivery of judgments, amongst the decisions given being the following:

Attorney-General of Canada v. The City of Toronto, appeal from the Court of Appeals, Ontario; allowed with costs, Patterson, J., dissenting.

Campbell v. Patterson and Mader v. McKinnon, appeals from Court of Appeals, Ontario; dismissed with costs.

Huson v. South Norwich, appeal from Court of Appeals, Ontario; validity of by-law respecting sale of liquor, which only was argued, dismissed.

Argument on constitutional question respecting local legislation for sale of liquor ordered to be set down for May term, then to be argued before a full bench.

G.T.R. Co. v. Halton, appeal from Court of Appeals, Ontario; dismissed with costs.

The following private bills were read a second time to-day and referred to the Committee on Railways, Canals and Telegraph Lines:

An act respecting the Manitoba and Southeastern Ry. Co.—Mr. Larviere.

Act to incorporate the Cleveland, Port Stanley and London Transportation and Ry. Co., and to confirm an agreement respecting the London and Port Stanley Ry. Co.—Mr. Roome.

Act respecting the London and Port Stanley Ry. Co.—Mr. Moscrieff.

Act respecting the Port Arthur, Duluth and Western Ry. Co.—Mr. MacDonell (Algoma).

Act to incorporate the Atlantic and Pacific Ry. Co.—Mr. Bergin.

Act respecting the G.T.R. Co. of Canada.—Mr. Tisdale.

Act respecting the Southeastern Railway—Mr. Pope.

Act to incorporate the Calgary Street Railway Company—Mr. Davis.

Quite a number of questions were asked and answered about local matters, none of which were of general interest.

By agreement made across the floor by Sir John Thompson and Mr. Laurier, the notices of motion were run through and a number of unapproved motions for papers passed, amongst them Mr. Davin's motion for Judge Wetmore's report on the charges made against Commissioner Herchmer of the Northwest Mounted Police.

Mr. Maclean (East York) has presented a petition of 310 constables of the Province of Ontario asking that the fees allowed them for arrests, attending justices, serving warrants, which have been reduced by the new criminal code, be restored to the old figures. When the bill amending the code comes up he will try to get the figures amended.

When the House met after recess a very handsome wreath of calla lilies and other white flowers was lying on the desk of the late D. W. Gordon, member for Vancouver, B.C., the news of whose death at Nanaimo yesterday was received here to-day by Mr. Earle, M.P. The wreath was placed on his desk by his confreres from British Columbia. Later in the evening the following telegram was sent to Mrs. Gordon by Mr. George Taylor, chief Government whip:

"The Conservative members of the House of Commons regret exceedingly to hear of the demise of their late colleague, and tender you their deepest sympathy in your great affliction."

Sir John Thompson last night gives notice of a bill to amend the Northwest Territories Representation Act, which extends the ballot to the territories.

Judge Macdonald of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia has asked to be placed on the superannuation list and his request was granted at yesterday's meeting of council. Mr. Hugh McDonald Henry, a leading member of the bar at Halifax, was appointed to succeed Judge Macdonald on the Supreme Court bench of Nova Scotia.

GEN. BEAUREGARD DEAD.

He Commanded the Forces That Fired the First Shot of the Civil War.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 21.—Gen. G. T. Beauregard died at his residence in this city at 10.30 o'clock last night.

He was born at New Orleans in 1817 and graduated at West Point in 1838. For distinguished services in the Mexican War he was made a brevet captain. In January, 1861, he was given the position of superintendent of West Point, but resigned it in a month to enter the Confederate service.

He commanded the forces that fired the first shot of the Civil War at Fort Sumter, and was practically in command at the first important engagement—Bull's Run—and where the Southerners won a splendid victory.

After the death of A. S. Johnston he commanded at Shiloh, where he suffered defeat at the hands of Grant, and in '63 he held Charleston for a year against attacks by land and naval forces.

His last service was an unsuccessful attempt to block Sherman's march to the sea. It is to be regretted that his later years were disgraced by accepting office in the great Louisiana Lottery.

THE HAWAIIAN QUESTION.

The Leading Democratic Organ of the U. S. Swallows England's Muff.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The World says editorially:

There is already much discussion in naval circles in regard to the fortification of Hawaii. Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars were appropriated at the last session of Congress for the improvement of Pearl Harbor, and soon a much larger appropriation will be asked for.

It will be almost impossible, however, for us to fortify the islands so as adequately to protect them in the event of war with any one of the four or five leading naval powers. The London Spectator describes the situation so far as England is concerned. "We could capture the islands," it says, "if necessary, in the event of war, and in time of peace Honolulu, as an American city, would be just as convenient a port of call as it has been under the government of the native dynasty."

While there is the familiar British bluster in this assumption, and we are under no obligation to pay any attention to the views or wishes on this matter of the great land pirate among nations, it is quite certain that we must increase our naval strength immensely to hold the islands should any first-class power desire to take them. It will be many years before our navy is sufficiently powerful for us to spare any part of it for the protection of territory so far away. To do so we must seriously weaken the defences of our seaports both on the Atlantic and Pacific.

It seems therefore that we are asked, in addition to royal pensions and an assumption of the Hawaiian debt, to spend large sums for fortifications on islands that would fall an easy prey to any of the first-class naval powers. Should we not have war there would be no need of annexation, as we already have a coaling and supply station in Pearl Harbor that can with small cost be sufficiently improved to meet all the necessities of our commerce. Greater absolute rights and privileges on the islands, and even a control of them under a protectorate, which their position in relation to our commerce with China and Japan renders desirable, can be secured by treaty.

But absolute annexation as "an integral part of the Union" would involve endless cost and complications. So far as we can see, this country would derive no material, certainly no moral, advantage from owning and governing Hawaii. All the advantage would be derived by Hawaiians and other inhabitants, who would thus be furnished with a stable government, and would gain certain commercial advantages by annexation. There is nothing whatever in the case to tempt us from the safe traditional policy which has been pursued by the Government from its foundation, and which may be considered an unwritten part of our Constitution.

This leaves out of question, too, the fact that annexation would involve the final overthrow of the native dynasty, with all the hereditary rights, both public and personal, that pertain to it. Such a course on the part of a great nation would neither be courageous nor just, and would establish a precedent which might some day return to torment us. It would also, as a correspondent of The World pointed out yesterday, make our Monroe doctrine almost as ridiculous as the Samoan incident did.

THE RAGING OHIO.

The River Is a Raging Flood—Many Houses Carried Away.

HUNTINGTON, W.Va., Feb. 21.—The Ohio River is now higher than at any time since the disastrous flood of 1888. The wind is blowing a fearful gale, and the waves are from 10 to 20 feet high. There has been much damage to wharf boats and other floating properties. Nine small house boats sank yesterday and last night. The occupants in some cases barely escaped with their lives.

Towns adjacent to Huntington not so highly located are suffering very much. Houses have been upset and carried away at Ceredo, involving a loss of hundreds of dollars.

If the river continues to rise much longer Huntington will also be in danger.

The Silver Problem.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The World's Washington special says: An important step toward the re-opening of the silver question before the Congress expires was advised yesterday at a secret conference held at the residence of Mr. Carlisle, the next Secretary of the Treasury. Representatives of both the free silver and the anti silver factions were present and a free expression of views as to the possibility of passing a compromise bill was had.

A number of propositions were prescribed by both sides, but the one which was finally agreed to aims to suspend the silver purchases under the Sherman Act until the Seignorage silver shall be coined at the rate of $3,000,000 a month. If this proposition should go through it was pointed out that within a year the treasury assets would be increased by $40,000,000.

Cleveland's Cabinet.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—A dispatch from Washington to The Inter-Ocean says: President-elect Cleveland has completed his Cabinet by appointing John W. Russell of Massachusetts as Secretary of the Navy, and George W. Jenks of Philadelphia as Attorney-General.

TARIFF REFORM.

The air is full of it. There is a demand from every quarter—the Conservative politicians are beginning to see that the N. P. is not serving the best interests of the country—a great contrast to the Government who seem to be going it blind, and are in no inconsiderable danger of knocking their heads against the tariff wall they have erected, and with unpleasant consequences to themselves. They should see that the people begin to "mean business" in the matter of tariff reform. The farmers have hitherto suffered in silence, but with them patience ceases to be a virtue, and they are now letting themselves be heard. According to the investigations of the Globe's correspondents the feeling is strong among both Liberal and Conservative farmers that in the Government's grand schemes of industrial development they have been left out—have long enough had the doubtful privilege of paying the taxes for the benefit of the favoured manufacturing classes. They cannot hope for much from the present representatives, who seem inclined to stick to the government, but the day is coming when these same subservient and "loyal" supporters of the Government, as against the interests of the farmers and consumers, must face the verdict of the ballot box. And the example of the high-tariff slaughter at the recent U. S. elections, does not give them much confidence. Tariff reform is coming in Canada as surely; the triumph of expediency over principle cannot last always. When the farmers wake up in earnest something must be done. During previous sessions of Parliament we have seen deputation after deputation of manufacturers visiting the capital urging the Government to give another turn of the Protection screw. This session the farmers, for the first time, are coming to the front. On Friday a deputation of fourteen Patrons of Industry presented a large petition for the removal of the duties on coal oil, binder twine and barbed wire, and asking that combinations be regarded as criminal. A large and influential meeting of farmers of Simcoe county in which both parties was represented, was held at Duntroon on Saturday last and formed a McCarthy Club. Among the resolutions adopted was one advocating a policy of tariff reform and the promotion of free trade with the whole world. The Liberal opposition at Ottawa have this session struck the key-note of tariff reform, and we may expect that the undercurrent of feeling throughout the country will gain strength and volume as the days on.

The Dominion Government are, however, fatuously clinging to their discredited panacea for the national ills. They don't like to let go their grip on the combines and their contributions, or, rather, the latter decline to loose their grip on the Government. Hon. Mr. Foster, on behalf of the Government, proposes to visit personally the factories of the Dominion and see how they feel about tariff reform, and to incidentally discover, it is to be assumed, how they feel in the matter of contributing election funds. But Mr. Foster doesn't say a word about consulting the great consuming classes of the community, the artizans and the agriculturists. They are to be left to look after themselves as they have done for the past fifteen years under the N. P. And they are beginning to look after themselves in another sense, that the Government will do well to heed.

THE Guelph Mercury says:—No two men did more to induce Canada to adopt the system of protection in 1878, it is said, than Edwin Farrar, an editor of the Mail, and Prof. Goldwin Smith. These gentlemen were the right and left supporters respectively of Sir John Macdonald in his attack upon Mr. Mackenzie's policy. Where do we find them now? Heading a movement for annexation to the States. Well has Hon. Edward Blake pointed out that the real tendency of the Tory party's policy has been "towards disintegration and annexation, instead of consolidation and the maintenance of British connection."

GOUGH BROS.' CABINET FORMED AND A POLICY DECIDED ON!

February is the month of clearing up. Goughs have re-organized business for 1893 and start out to clear off the slate for spring. Trade for 1892 has been larger than ever. Profits have been smaller. Goughs have cut their prices to meet the low price of wheat; and if wheat goes lower, down go Goughs' prices. They will not be undersold by the farmer or see the farmer undersold.

CLEARING UP THE STOCK FOR SPRING.

Stock-taking is over. A lot of odd lots remain. These must go. Goughs will almost give them away to clear. Come in and run through the counters and see your opportunity.

BLAKE IN THE BRITISH HOUSE OF COMMONS.

The Great Canadian Orator Warmly Complimented.

The Globe's special cablegram referred as follows to Mr. Ed. Blake's first speech in the British House of Commons:

Hon. Edward Blake's first speech in the House of Commons last night was a distinct success. He spoke for an hour and a half, impromptu, in reply to Mr. Chamberlain, forcibly dealing with point after point raised by the latter, and holding the close attention of a full house. While he considered that the bill amply secured the supremacy of the Imperial Parliament, Mr. Blake said he objected to the suspension of the land question for three years. The Irish parliament, he thought, ought to be empowered to deal at once with the land problem. Much enthusiasm was shown when the speech was finished, both Liberals and Irish members cheering londly, the latter standing and waving their hats. Mr. Blake was warmly complimented by a distinguished member of the cabinet, who is said to have declared the speech one of the best ever heard within the walls of Parliament. The Liberal press is unanimous in his praise. The Daily News says the brilliant speech created a profound impression. The Chronicle says the peroration was as fine as any the House of Commons has ever heard. The Westminster Gazette remarks that it was a bold thing for Mr. Blake to attempt an impromptu reply to Mr. Chamberlain, gives him high praise and says he acquitted himself very well. The Times thinks Mr. Blake is evidently going to be run as the big man of the Nationalist party. The St. James' Gazette sneeringly describes the cheering as artificial and as that of a hired clique.

Look at the size of the ordinary pill. Think of all the trouble and disturbance that it causes you. Wouldn't you welcome something easier to take, and easier in its ways, if at the same time it did you more good? That is the case with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They're the smallest in size, the mildest in action, but the most thorough and far-reaching in results. They follow nature's methods and they give help that lasts. Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, Sick and Bilious Headaches, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels, are promptly relieved and permanently cured.

"If we can't cure your Catarrh, no matter how bad your case or of how long standing, we'll pay you $500 in cash." That is what is promised by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Doesn't it prove, better than any words could, that this is a remedy that cures Catarrh? Costs only 50 cents.

Endorsed by the Leaders.

When a remedy is endorsed by ministers, editors, merchants, farmers and leading men of all classes, it is strong evidence that that remedy has great merit and does what is claimed for it. Such a remedy is Burdock Blood Bitters, its wonderful success as a cure for dyspepsia, bad blood, etc., is well known to old and young.

NORWOOD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The illustrated supplement of the Daily Mail contained an excellent likeness of Mr. Frank Roxburgh of this place, in a group of members of Varsity's Banjo and Guitar Club.

Messrs. Harry E. Lord and Benj. J. Hales were two members of the executive committee of the Victoria University conversazione. Both are ex-students of the high school here, and their many friends congratulate them on their being placed in such an important position by their fellow students.

The Bowmanville Statesman says: "Oshawa High School has 133 pupils." Norwood, with a population of about 1,200 has nearly 140 pupils in its high school, and Oshawa, with over 4,000 of a population, has only 133. The people of Norwood need not be ashamed of their high school and should do all in their power to advance its interests. We might also say that the junior leaving class of this year is the largest that has been for a number of years.

Mr. Thomas Fraser met with a painful accident while attending to his furnace on Sunday.

Mr. W. H. Tucker has purchased that desirable piece of property on Spring street known as the Patterson property. The price paid, we understand, was $1,500. Mr. Tucker is one of our most enterprising citizens and is the owner of some valuable property in the village.

We understand that Mr. Thos. Hendren has sold his three houses on Queen street.

At the last meeting of Norwood lodge No. 34, I. O. L., Mr. J. Herring was appointed a delegate to the Grand Lodge of Ontario East, which meets in Tweed March 7th.

Special services in memoriam of the late Rev. D. F. Gee, of Newcastle, were held in the Methodist church on Sunday morning last. The altar and pulpit was draped in black. Instead of the usual services, addresses were delivered by members of the church. The speakers were Rev. Wm. Buchanan, and Messrs. John Knox. Jas. Starr and Jas. Andrews, who all referred in feeling terms to the death of Mr. Gee, who was a former pastor of the church.

Evangelistic services commenced in the Methodist church on Monday evening. Rev. Rev. Wm. Buchanan will conduct the services during the week. Next week he will be assisted by Miss Williams, of Tottenham. She comes well recommended by Rev. Dr. Briggs, D. O. Crossley and others.

Rev. H. Brown, of Havelock, occupied the pulpit of the Presbyterian church on Sunday and preached two excellent sermons.

Rev. Wm. Buchanan will preach the anniversary services of the Methodist church, Warkworth, next Sunday.

The storm on Sunday was the worst of the season. The roads in the country are said to be impassable. The trains on Monday were all late, especially the morning express which was four hours late.

Mr. J. W. Crosby, of Peterborough, has made arrangements for the opening of a music store in the Metcalfe block. He will have pianos, organs, sewing machines, etc., always on hand. Mr. A. Davidson will manage the business and Mr. John Fry will act as traveller for the surrounding country.

We understand all the stores in the Metcalfe block have been rented. Dr. C. E. Cochrane has rented the first one, J. W. Crosby the second, J. C. McConkey the third, and R. J. Stewart the last one.

Miss M. P. Williams has had her store thoroughly renovated, which makes a great improvement.

Great preparations are being made for the Norwood races. The judges are Messrs. Wm. Clancy, Peterborough; Gillespie, Campbellford; Wm. Croft, Peterborough, and McElroy, Marmora. The committee on arrangements are Messrs. N. Baskin, C. Brown, J. McNeil and J. Clarke, with the president, M. McGregor, and the secretary J. R. McKelvie.

The budget, as presented by Hon. G. E. Foster, was received with a great deal of dissatisfication by the majority of the farmers in this locality.

Messrs. Finlay & Son are selling a large number of cutters this winter.

Mr. J. Metcalf is having a building built across from his store on Colborne street. It is for Mr. J. C. McConkey, who will use it as an agricultural and implement building.

Mr. Angus Marquis, stone mason, is lying dangerously ill at his residence, Peterborough street.

Miss Bertha Might, of Peterborough, spent Sunday in town.

Mr. J. M. Jory, of Trinity Medical College, was in town last week.

Miss M. McElwain is the guest of Mrs. John McMillen.

Miss Carrie Renwick, who has been visiting at J. B. Pearce's left for her future home in Billings, Yellowstone Co. Montana.

A number of stamp collectors of this place are advocating the formation of a philatelic club here.

Rev. John Lawrence, of Alderville, was in town on Saturday.

Miss Lizzie Covert, of Warkworth, is visiting friends in town.

SCHOOL BOARD.—There was no meeting of the school board on Wednesday evening. Chairman Milne and trustees McIntyre and Maidens put in an appearance, but as they did not constitute a quorum they adjourned until Monday evening, the 20th inst.

SEVERE AFFLICTION.—The family of Mr. Alex. Gallagher of this village, has met with a severe affliction in the death of their twin children aged six months. Both were suddenly prostrated with a bad attack of bronchitis last Sunday, and after an illness of only three days both succumbed to the disease on the same day, one child dying on Wednesday morning and the other the same evening. Another child is still severely ill with the same trouble. To add to the severity of the trial, Mrs. Gallagher had received the sad news of the death of her brother, Mr. A. McNeely in Omemee, a few days previously, and was preparing to leave to be present at the funeral when this double affliction came upon her in her own home. Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher have the sympathy of the whole village in their very painful trial.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Wm. Deremo, of Peterboro, son of Mr. A. C. Deremo, of this village, accompanied by his wife is here visiting at his father's home for a short time.

Mr. R. Phillips has arrived home from spending a few holidays in Montreal.

Mr. Wm. Paul is in the village visiting friends.

BIRTH.—In Havelock on Wednesday the 15th inst., the wife of Mr. Herbert Williams, of a daughter. Herb. is receiving the congratulations of his friends.

Mr. J. H. Campbell is buying large quantities of basswood timber for a firm in Toronto.

The most terrific snowstorm of the season was on Sunday. The C. P. R. is almost entirely blocked by snow. Two engines on the snow plough came from Toronto. Monday, and the Havelock snow plough went east Monday morning with two engines.

WAS IT A JOKE?—A couple of young lads were walking together in a certain part of the village, when one of them accidentally stumbled in the dark, and in the act of drawing his hands suddenly out of his pocket to save himself from falling, pulled $25 in bills, which fell upon the ground. On discovering his loss both he and his companion commenced a hurried search for the money. It appears they did not search long before his companion found the money, but said nothing about it and went on with the search. After spending considerable time in a fruitless way, the search was abandoned and the money given up as lost. Later on during the evening the unfortunate loser made known his loss to some friends, one of whom—an eagle-eyed imitator of Pinkerton and Ross, who has already done some noted work in the village as an amateur detective—got on the track of the finder of the money and watched for developments. He had not long to wait, for on the following day he discovered some facts which led him to interview the party, and frightening him out of a year's growth, made him give up the money, which was returned to the loser and the finder warned not to play any more such jokes.

Mr. Dawson, of Warkworth, waited on Belmont council on Saturday, 18th inst. at the township hall, Belmont, and made a proposition to build a grist mill of 40 bbls. per day capacity, in the village of Havelock, in consideration of joint bonus from Havelock and Belmont of $1,000. The council appointed a committee to discuss the matter with a committee appointed by Havelock council in reference to granting a bonus.

Miss Wier, our popular music teacher, has been suddenly called away to attend her mother who has had the misfortune to break her arm.

A number of children are ill in the village and Drs. Jeffs and Fowler are kept busy attending their patients.

Mr. A. McAuley is laid up with an attack of sciatica; we hope he will soon be around again.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE "IN IT."

A Life Agent called at a friend's place one day,
HE WASN'T IN, IT;
He had seen "the bore" coming and fled from his way
HE WASN'T IN IT;
He had heard so much said, he was tired out flat,
Of insurance and agents—'twas all a blank spell,
When one's coil must be shuffled to win it,
HE WASN'T IN IT.

A bit of a draft blew o'er his bald head,
HE WAS IN IT;
Pneumonia sent him straightway to his bed,
HE STAYED IN IT;
His doctor made of it a "quite special" case,
To save him for running still more of life's race,
But the grave took some chances to win it,
AND HE'S IN IT.

When approached by a gent for insuring your life,
GET RIGHT IN IT;
It's the right thing to do for your children and wife,
THEN STAY IN IT.
Remember that fires take your goods "out of sight,"
And that accidents happen each day and each night.
While insurance protects every minute,
IF YOU'RE IN IT.

A Bank Manager's Opinion.
HE IS "IN IT."

The General Manager of one of the leading banks in Canada, writing to a personal friend, says:—"I have no hesitation in saying that I place the CANADA LIFE upon the highest platform. It is in my opinion carefully, economically and honestly managed; its Reserve Funds are well invested; its rates of Premiums are low, and its future is, I think better assured than a great majority of Companies. I have my own life insured in the Company for a round amount, and would not hesitate to increase the amount of my policies should I decide upon taking out further insurance."

A Government Insurance Actuary's Opinion
On the Relation between Ordinary and Tontine Service.

It is frequently assertedby Companies whose business is nearly all tontined, that although the CANADA LIFE may and does pay large ordinary profits, yet it cannot compare so favourably on a long term distribution or tontine period, and that in the end better results can be obtained on a tontine policy in a large American Co. than on an ordinary or tontine policy in the CANADA LIFE. To prove the absurdity of this statement, the following piece of common sense is quoted from Mervin Tabor, late Actuary of the Illinois Goverment Insurance Department. In his well known book, "The Three Systems of Life Insurance," he says: "A company that gives large dividends on the ordinary kind of policies, can give much larger on the same kinds when Tontined, and a company that pays but meagre dividends on the usual forms, adopting perhaps the Tontine system to "cover up" its small surpluses, cannot be relied on for large returns of surplus under the Tontine Forms of Insurance."

The CANADA LIFE does not "cover up" its Quinquennial profits as some Companies do, but publishes them throughout the country.

It can and does surpass other Companies on Quinquennial profits. It should and will surpass them on Tontine profits.

WHY TO BE "IN IT."

BISHOP HAWKE'S REASON:—"I claim that Life Insurance is not only a humane, but I might say a Christian Institution."

LORD LYNDHURST'S REASON:—"A Policy of Life Insurance is always an evidence of prudent forethought. No man with a dependent family is free from reproach if not insured."

WHEN TO BE "IN IT."

The younger, the cheaper. Therefore insure when young. Besides by insuring in the CANADA LIFE now, you will share in three years' profits.

WHERE TO BE "IN IT."

The best place to be "in it" is in the Company that gives the best returns for the least money, consistent with absolute security. Therefore, in order to be "in it," choose the Telfordian Temperature Topics.

PETERBORO, TUESDAY, FEB. 20.—Changeable and stormy. Since Friday evening the 17th at 8 p.m., 11¼ inches of snow has fallen, but on Sunday evening a little before dark the awful blizzard commenced blowing and drifting in all directions, blocking up the railways, and making town and country roads almost impassable, and from 20 degrees above zero on Sunday night, the mercury dropped down so low that at our Monday morning's observation the self registering thermometer indicated 12° below zero, and this morning again indicated 7° below, moderating, may soon have another storm.—THOS. TELLFORD.

Neill's Removal for Four Weeks.

Our customers and the public will please notice that our boot and shoe store in the market block, No. 352 George street, will be closed for the next three or four weeks, in order to allow of alterations being made in the premises, now undergoing enlargement. The stock has been removed to our upper store, Kidd's old stand, George street, where we shall be glad to see all buyers during the interval. Our enlarged premises will afford ample room and facilities when completed, and the work will be pushed as speedily as possible. Remember the removal for four weeks only to Kidd's old stand. R. Fruit Growers' Association.

A very interesting meeting is expected to-morrow at the council chamber. In the morning at ten the first business will be the election of officers and the reception of the annual report. After this, Mr. Woolverton, of Grimsby, and Mr. Craig, of Ottawa, will both address the meeting. The former will speak on "Mistakes in Apple Growing," dealing with the question in a practical way. There will be an opportunity for asking questions, and thus bringing out the very facts each one wants to get at. The afternoon meeting will commence at two o'clock. Members and others in town should attend the morning meeting.

We call attention to the advertisement of Prof. Dorenwend, the leading manufacturer of hair goods in Canada. He will be at Phelan's hotel on Saturday, Feb. 25th, with a large stock of every conceivable form of hair goods coverings for both ladies and gentlemen. Our lady readers should call on the professor and see the great improvement that can be made in their appearance by using these goods. They are light and natural in appearance, and their detection is impossible. Gentlemen, there are thousands of the leading men of Canada who are wearing Dorenwend's half and full wigs. Why don't you use them rather than go around with your head bare when nature intended it to be covered? Call on the Prof, and be convinced that not only will your appearance be improved by using these goods, but greater comfort will be secured.

YE OLD TIME LOCOMOTIVES.

Two Old Fashioned English Railway Engines Pass Through Peterborough on the C. P. R. bound for the Columbian Exhibition.

A few citizens witnessed an interesting sight in the shape of early railroading inventions at the C. P. R. station here this morning. They consisted of two old fashioned locomotives used on the English railroads away back in the thirties, an acciently built passenger coach, and an antique tender. These interesting curiosities on their way to the world's exposition, Chicago, afforded much amusement as well as valuable instruction to the spectators who carefully examined them and noted the changes which have been wrought in railroading during the last half century. They presented a striking contrast to the ponderous perfection of traction force presented by the Mogul and the palatial luxury of the modern railway coach. These interesting specimens of pioneer railroading, which were used on the first English road, were shipped via St. John's, N. B., and loaded on three flat cars and are going as through freight in charge of Conductor Thompson. They were transhipped at Havelock. One of the locomotives, the "Albion," was built at Newcastle-on-Tyne in 1854, and on one of the wheels was the date 1883, showing that it had been in use till a very late date. The other, the "Sampson," was built by Timothy Hackworth, at New Sheldon, Durham, in 1838, and, in justification of its name, was the more powerful of the two. The more modern engine had no cab, its place being taken by a little platform for stoker and driver. The boiler was encased in a wooden jacket. Neither engine had a pilot. The cylinders were hoisted up in the air, above the level of the top of the boiler, and were at an angle of forty-five degrees. Tender and the engine, both together, would not equal the size of a modern engine. The modern air brake was represented by a hand lever, which pressed a wooden block against the wheels, and the bumpers were wooden blocks. The driving wheels and the truck wheels were very small. The passenger coach was a railway edition of a stage coach and was provided with two seats, one at each end, would seat about six passengers, and would bear about the same relation to the modern railway coach as an Indian wigwam to a suburban villa of to-day. The seats which were cushioned in corduroy, were comfortable. The whole coach was about the size of a hotel bus. The old time rails were also to be seen much lighter than the modern steel rail. Railway men and mechanics were greatly interested at the contrast these antiquate railway appliances presented, and reflected that the next half century would perhaps make the present locomotive and coaches as ridiculous as these pioneer railway mementoes.

A Young Life Ended.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Davis will extend their heartfelt sympathy to them on the sad occasion of the death of their daughter Madeline, which took place at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon. All that medical skill and unremitting care could do was unavailing.

More Orders Received.

The Peterborough Canoe Company have received an order for five large cedar canoes, each 20 feet long, to be used by the Dominion Government in geological survey in Alaska. This morning the company received another order for three large canoes to be used in expeditions on the Saskatchewan river. And still another order was received for two large basswood canoes to be used in the International Boundary Commission by private parties.

Nothing Definite as Yet.

Some days ago at a meeting of the directors of the Peterborough Central fair it was decided to request Sir John Thompson, Premier of Canada, to formally open the Central Exhibition. An invitation was sent the Premier by President Elliott, and a reply has been received from Sir John Thompson to the effect that it was impossible for him to make any engagements so far ahead as next Septmber, but begging to be reminded again of the invitation nearer the time of opening, when Canada's chief minister states that he may be able to avail himself of the kind invitation.

Ashburnham Notes.

The families having scarlet fever are all improving, only one case so far proving fatal.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Christian Endeavour Association held last night in the Mark street Methodist church, Willie Mitchell gave a Bible reading in the blind language, and also gave his own experience in connection.

Some families in the south eastern part of the village want to know what has happened the snow plough, as it has not put in an appearance since the big snow storm of Sunday night. School children must take the main travelled road or stay out of school as the sidewalks in some places are impassible.

The C. P. R. Co. have had a gang of workmen putting in new wooden sleepers over the iron bridge near the George street station. The work will be completed in a few days.

Charms Her Audience.

The Belle Botsford Concert Company are sure to give a rare musical evening at the opera house on March 8th, when they appear under the auspices of Otonabee Lodge I.O.O.F. An exchange says: "Those of our citizens, who are fond of good music and were not present last night at the Botsford concert at Randolph Hall, certainly missed a rare treat, both as to vocal and instrumental music. All the participants evinced extraordinary musical talent, and to say that any one excelled the rest would not be just to the others. But we must mention the violiniste, Miss Botsford, whose selections were all good and her execution was perfect. The audience was so greatly charmed with her renditions, that she was recalled a number of times—each appearance bringing forth a round of enthusiastic applause." 1d

The Home Circle.

Mr. J. C. Williamson, of Toronto, representing the order of Canadian Home Circles, is in town, organizing a branch Circle in Peterborough. This society is a friendly, benevolent and beneficiary one, and is one of the few that admits ladies into the circle with all the advantages of their gentlemen friends. It is also the cheapest insurance in the Dominion, the average annual cost for $3,000 benefit, including all lodge dues, age 39, about $16.80. If 24 years of age the annual cost would be about $12.18. It is purely Canadian and is deserving of a large membership. Mr. Williamson will be in town for a few days, and any person desiring fuller information may obtain same from J. C. Williamson or Chief Roszel.

For the Good of Others

Rev. Mr. Williams Heartily Endorses Hood's Sarsaparilla.

We are pleased to present this from Rev. A. A. Williams, of the Silsbee street Christian Church, Lynn, Mass.:

"I see no reason why a clergyman, more than a layman, who knows whereof he speaks, should hesitate to approve an

Article of Merit

and worth, from which he or his family have been signally benefited, and whose commendation may serve to extend those benefits to others by increasing their confidence. My wife has for many years been a sufferer from severe

Nervous Headache

for which she found little help. She has tried many things that promised well but performed little. Last fall a friend gave her a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. It seems surprising what simply one bottle could and did do for her. The attacks of headache decreased in number and were less violent in their intensity, while her general health has been improved. Her appetite has also been better. From our experience with

Hood's Sarsaparilla

I have no hesitation in endorsing its merits."

There are a great many small Alarm Clocks which have been running for a few years and are now out of order, which the owners are allowing to remain idle, because they think it will cost too much to repair them. We have already changed hundreds of them from being merely rubbish into good timepieces. If you want to buy a new one, we will sell you an Alarm Clock at a lower price than any one else in the trade. (From Our Own Correspondent.)

The Christian Endeavour in connection with the Methodist church of this place meets every Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock. We are pleased to learn that many of the young people have joined the association as active members and are endeavoring to promote the interest of Christ's cause.

A very severe wind and snowstorm passed over this vicinity on Sunday last, which blocked the roads in some sections so badly that they had to be shovelled out.

The race between McIntyre, Paudash and Fraser at the carnival on Wednesday night last was rather exciting, and as usual on such occasions there was considerable grumbling at the decision of the judges. M. McIntyre was awarded first money, J. Paudash second and Mr. Fraser dropped out in the second heat. Fraser has sent a challenge to McIntyre for another race, which, it is presumed, will be heartily accepted.

Several of our citizens combined and erected a snow plough, and have during the winter very generously kept our sidewalk clear of snow. Great credit is due to the parties who have so generously tendered their time and labour for the comfort and convenience of the citizens and pedestrians.

Jack Frost has entered a great many cellars and done much damage to roots.

A meeting of Argyle L. O. L. No. 494, will be held in the Orange hall, Keene, on March the 13th. A full meeting is requested as business of importance is to be transacted.

The Good Templars of this place purpose in the near future, all things being favorable to re-organize. We trust that they will prosper in their good designs.

A Sunday school social and entertainment is to be in Union hall, Mather's Corners, on Friday evening the 24th instant. A pleasant and profitable time is anticipated.

The glee club of this place, under the leadership of Mr. Robert McCamus, is making rapid progress in vocal music. We expect to be favoured with a concert some time during the winter season and feel assured that it will be a treat, as they are possessed of considerable talent.

"IMPORTANT DISCOVERY."

TORONTO, Feb. 20.—Among the surprising strides made by medical science in the last decade perhaps none is of more importance to humanity than the discovery of a cure for Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. That this remedy completely masters this terrible disease as well as all the other diseases which the kidneys are subject to is now an established fact. Every day brings news of the most surprising cures resulting from its use. The case of Mrs. Brown, of Toronto, who, when about to enter the Home for Incurables, given up by the hospital authorities as well as by fifteen prominent medical men, also that of Sam Murray, of Gravenhurst, who was given up by four doctors and who was paid his life disability claims by the Grand Trunk R'y, has attracted wide-spread attention. Both were completely cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

CRISP CURLING CHRONIQUES.

What is Going on at the Rink Where Curlers Most do Congregate.

At the rink last night very few curlers congregated, the bitter weather without taking away a part of their animation for the roarin game. However two scratch matches were played and evoked considerable interest. W. G. Ferguson skipped a quartette which played against a rink skipped by Mr. Perry Allan, of Orillia, formerly of Peterborough. Following is the result.

C N Brown,	E Rutherford,
J McClelland,	Geo Cochrane,
R H Kells,	R S Davidson.
Perry Allan, skip..18	W G Ferguson, skip..14

Skip J. B. Pentland played the rink which went to Lindsay to-day, skipped by T. Rutherford. The score was:—

Geo Sawers,	A Blade,
C Rutherford,	S Clegg.
J Stanger,	S Hay,
J B Pentland, skip ..15	T Rutherford, skip....20

No word has been received by the secretary of the Peterborough club whether the Granites of Toronto will play here 12 rinks strong on Thursday or not as expected.

Skip Edmison will play Skip Attrill an inter-rink match of the Granites at the rink to-night.

An exciting match for bivalvular supremacy and one which has been talked of much, will occur at the rink to-morrow night, 18 ends will be played, and Skip Rutherford will be given a handicap of five shots. Following are the rinks which will play:—

Wm Snowden,	A Blade,
Sam Hay,	G Edmison,
C McGill,	S Clegg,
D Bellegham, skip —	T Rutherford, skip....—

Two quartettes composed of budding, sprouting, blooming, ripening lovers of the stane and broom who have yet a distinguished future before them as curlers, had a little tiff at the rink last night. These embryo stone throwers went in for blood, and played no less than 24 ends. Following is the score:—

Thos Connal	W E Conway
T C McWilliams	Jos Cahill
Chas Tucker	J Lamoureux
Wm Hall, (skip) 27	H Fitzgerald, (skip) ..25

Messrs. A. Blade and George Boucher, of the Thistles, are playing a thirteen point game at the rink this afternoon.

The second match of the season in competition for the Peterborough-Lindsay cup will come off this afternoon. The contest will be four rinks strong and the club winning two games out of three holds the cup for the year. It will be remembered that Lindsay had a comparatively easy victory in the first battle some few weeks ago, but the Peterborough curlers are hopeful of increasing the score to-day. The following rinks went to Lindsay to-day to play a couple of quartettes in that town:

H Snowden,	G W Hatton,
A McNeil,	E Rutherford,
S Hay,	J H Connal,
T Rutherford, skip.	Dr Boucher, skip,

Two rinks of Lindsay curlers arrived in town to-day noon and are playing skips Attrill and Ferguson at the rink this afternoon.

A contest for the oysters will come off at the rink this evening between skips T. F. Connal and W. Hall.

A MISSIONARY MEETING

Held in St. Paul's Church Last Evening by Christian Endeavourers.

A very interesting and profitable missionary meeting was held in St. Paul's church by the Y. P. S. C. E. last evening. There was a large attendance. Miss Stenson presided very acceptably, and after the preliminary devotional exercises, Miss Fanny Dixon read a learned paper on the political history and social and religious customs of China. Mrs A. J. Johnston sang in a sweet voice "Cast Thy Bread upon the Waters." Miss Ethel Brown followed in an instructive paper on "China Inland Missions." Miss Martha Dickson read a carefully prepared address on the work of the Upper Canada Presbyterian church in Honan. Rev. Mr. Goldsmith was present and spoke for a few minutes on general missionary work and the progress it was making all over the world and the increasing interest and activity being shown by missionaries every year in this noble cause of the world's evangelization and ultimate rescue for Christ. Mr. J. H. Connal, president, announced that Rev. Mr. Goldsmith would deliver a lecture before the Christian Endeavour Society on March the 7th. His subject will be "Religion and Politics." The decorations for last night's meeting are worthy of special notice. To the rear of the chairman was the national emblems of the United States and Canada, and between these gay array of flags was some Chinese calligraphy written by the hand of Mr. Sam Lee. Friends of the association also contributed screens, pictures and furniture and other curiosities with which the platform was bedecked for the occasion.

Progress.

It is very important in this age of vast material progress that a remedy be pleasing to the taste and to the eye, easily taken, acceptable to the stomach and healthy in its nature and effects. Possessing these qualities, Syrup of Figs is the one perfect laxative and most gentle diuretic known.

A NEW TELEPHONE EXCHANGE.

The Central Office of the Company will be Removed to the New Market Building.

The town commissioners met in the clerks office yesterday afternoon, and completed final arrangements whereby the lease of the eastern shop in the market building, next to Mr. W. McCallums restaurant, was transferred to the Bell Telephone Company as a central exchange office for a period extending over five years. The work of fitting up the new central for the company will be begun by a construction gang of men under Mr. Schaefer next week. The new premises of the company will be commodious and more convenient than their present office, while its desirability of location and easy access are also important considerations. The new metallic circuit lines will be put in the new office, also a large and more modern switchboard, and all connections duly made with the new exchange, when the removal from the present office will take place. Mana. Knapman stated to-day that the company expected to have everything fitted up in their new quarters and complete metallic circuit lines put in all over Peterborough and Ashburnham by the month of June.

FROM AN OUTSIDE POINT OF VIEW

A "Baby City" Citizen Writes his Impressions of Peterborough.

In the Stratford Herald of February 2nd there appears an article by Mr. James Wilson, sr., principally on Peterborough. Mr. Wilson recently visited his sister here, Mrs. Wm. Keane, and, judging from what he has written, saw the town with his eyes open. He says:

Getting on the train for Montreal I went to Port Hope, where I had one and a half hours to spend before the train left for Peterborough. Close to the station is a long bridge, which was first built with brick piers, across a gully forming a part of the harbor, but the brick work has been all removed from the foundations and large stone piers with heavy iron girders stretching across, built by the Dominion Bridge Co., of Lachine. There were only two girders to put in their place to complete the work. They have been several years at the alteration, the whole being done without stopping the regular trains, and thus completing a double track to Montreal, 270 miles long. I visited the monument erected to the late Lieut. Col. Arthur H. Williams, M.P. It has a stone pedestal bearing a bronze statute, life size, in the act of leading the Midland Battalion on to victory at the battle of Batoche. It is erected in front of the town, but if the old 26 pounder cannon got a left half turn, and the fence straightened up and white washed on the opposite side of the street, it would make an improvement. The population of Port Hope is 5,042.

Reaching Peterboro, 31 miles distant, shortly after 6 p. m., the weather was 15 below zero, good sleighing. Christmas day my grand children and family attended St. Andrew's church, Rev. Mr. McWilliams, pastor. A service of song by the George st. Methodist Sunday school was held in the afternoon, although it was 20° below zero. Peterboro is situated on the Otonabee river, population 10,000. Ashburnham, a G. T. R. station on the opposite side of the river, has a population of 1,674. There are a number of factories here. The Edison electric works employ at present 300, will take on 200 more on shortly. This town is well lighted. The Electric and Water Power Co. lights the town with 128 arc lights all night, besides hundreds of incandescent lights, which can be turned on like gas night or day. There are several 4 h. p. electric motors at work and a 20 h. p. is being erected in a mill. Our new aldermen should go down and see how things are worked there. The farmers have a large place in the town hall to sell their produce, with stoves to keep them comfortable. There is a clock in the town hall besides one on the post office. The public buildings are large and have all the late improvements. A new custom house is all but completed, a fine stone structure. There are numerous large residences, schools, churches and stores, several large hotels, and fine wide streets. The cord wood is classed soft or hard and the number of feet marked on the load. Any one buying on the market knows what he gets.

Among the industrial establishments in Peterborough I noticed canoe building works, carriage works, flour mills, lock works, bridge works, saw mill works, box factories, woolen mills, carbon works; in fact it is a regular manufacturing town. At the Central Park is erected a large drinking fountain with the inscription, "Pro Patria, Capt. William Brown, Fish Creek, 1885, Batoche." I saw several photographs on birds-eye maple, hard wood, done by electricity, fine specimes of art, the process being invented by a Mr. Candell, a native of the Isle of Man. Peterborough has a good fire hall with tower, stable, and four horses, steam fire engine with chief, assistant chief, engineer and 17 men (total pay $1,325), hose carts, salvage wagon and ladder waggon. There is plenty of pressure from the hydrants, the steam engine being only for a stand by.

Willow Basket Ware.

ANY PERSON ABOUT TOWN NEEDING a nice Willow Work Basket, Cradle, Waste Basket or anything made of Willow can have them neatly and cheaply made by ordering them from MR. ARMSTRONG, a blind Basket Maker, whose family need any little assistance that can thus be afforded them. Orders taken at Salisbury's, H. Thompson's or Peterborough Bookstore.

ON THE OUTSIDE—that is the best place to keep the huge, old-fashioned pill. Just as soon as you get it inside, it begins to trouble you. What's the use of suffering with it, when you can get more help from Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets?

These tiny, sugar-coated granules do you permanent good. They act mildly and naturally, and there's no reaction afterward. Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach, and bowels are prevented, relieved, and permanently cured.

They're the smallest, the easiest to take, and the cheapest — for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction or your money is returned. You pay only for the good you get. Nothing else urged by the dealer, though they may be better for him to sell, can be "just as good" for you to buy.

THE PAPAL BUDGET.

The Pope's Income and the Ways He Spends His Money.

Although the Pope's income is large the outlay is proportionate. The annual Papal budget for 1891, expressed in American dollars, was as follows:

For the private use of the Pope	$100,000
For the Cardinals	140,000
For poor dioceses	92,000
For Prefects of the Palace	200,000
For Secretaries of State	200,000
For education and charity	250,000

Of course the first question that arises in this connection is, "What does the Pope do with his income?" A writer discussing the finances of the Vatican some time ago made the following statement:

The fund set aside for the private use of the Pope is expended in various ways. Much of it goes for the numerous presents to sovereigns and for the purchase of insignia of orders conferred by the Pope. Such insignia are purchased only in exceptional cases, for rulers of countries, celebrated statesmen and persons of high degree. Ordinarily, when the Pope honors a contemporary with a decoration the announcement is accompanied by a "fignrins" representing the accompanying uniform. The recipient is at perfect liberty to purchase or dispense with the necessary lace and gold.

All Cardinals resident in Rome receive an annual allowance from the Pope. The remaining princes of the church are either active Archbishops or Bishops with their own sources of income. There are about 25 Cardinals in curia at Rome, whose minimum income is $4,000. In consideration of the style in which they are obliged to live and of their representative duties this sum is not large. Besides their salaries there are 12 Cardinals who fill offices at the Vatican, for which they receive special compensation.

Among the enviable offices in the gift of the Pope are the deanery of the Holy College, messenger of the brave, and general vicar of his Holiness. These offices involve an expenditure averaging between $12,000 and $20,000. Some of the places for purposes of economy are vacant. Then $92,000 are donated annually to poor dioceses. These dioceses, principally Italian, are numerous. Priestly seminaries and non-endowed parishes also draw heavily on the Vatican.

Then there are the Nuncios of the first and second class, the Internuncios, the Apostolic Delegations; and the embassies sent abroad on special missions have to be paid for. The salaries of these people come from the allowance of $200,000 given the Secretaries of State. At the present time the Vatican is represented by four Nuncios of the first class—at Vienna, Paris, Madrid and Lisbon; two Nuncios of the second class—at Munich and Brussels; two Internuncios at the Hague and Rio Janeiro, and four Apostolic Delegations. The first Apostolic Delegation is accredited to Ecuador, Bolivia and Peru; the second to the United States of Columbia; the third to San Domingo, Hayti and Venezuela, and the fourth to the United States.

The drift of the times is pretty much snow-drift.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Advertising.

Of Hood's Sarsaparilla is always within the bounds of reason because it is true; it always appeals to the sober, common sense of thinking people because it is true; and it is always fully substantiated by endorsements which, in the financial world would be accepted without a moment's hesitation.

For a general family cathartic we confidently reccomend Hood's Pills.

SIRS,—I had a troublesome cold which nothing would relieve until I tried Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and I am glad to say that it completely cured me.

If you had taken two of Carter's Little Liver Pills before retiring you would not have had that coated tongue or bad taste in the mouth this morning. Keep a vial with you for occasional use.

THE LICORICE PLANT.

Where it Grows and How it is Cultivated.

On the banks of the Tigris and the Euphrates the licorice plant is chiefly grown. These great rivers flow through flat, treeless prairies of uncultivated and nearly uninhabited land. For three months of the year hot winds blow, and the temperature reaches 104 degrees.

For six months of the year the climate is moderate and salubrious, and for three months bleak and wintry, the thermometer going down to 30 degrees at night.

The licorice plant is a small shrub, with light foliage, growing to about three feet high, where its roots can reach the water. It grows without any cultivation. No lands are leased for the purpose, and no objection is made to its being cultivated. It grows on red earth soil, and also on light, almost sandy soil, where the wood is best, provided it has plenty of water, and the ground is not more than 50 yards from the actual river and stream. The wood, after once being dug up, grows better afterward. The time of collecting is generally during the winter, but it is possible all the year round. The root when dug is full of water, and must be allowed to dry, a process which takes the best part of a year. It is then sawed or cut into small pieces from six inches to a foot long.

The good and sound pieces are kept and the rotten ones are used for firewood. It is then taken in native river boats to Bussorah, whence it is shipped in pressed bales to London, and again from there to America, where it is used largely in the manufacture of tobacco.

The black licorice sticks sold in drug stores come mostly from Spain, and are made of pure juice, mixed with a little starch, which prevents it from melting in hot weather. The word "licorice" is of Greek origin, and means "sweet root."—New York World.

Axioms in Cake Making.

Folding the flour in carefully instead of taking strong circular strokes.

Placing in the oven as soon as the baking powder is added.

Greasing the tin with sweet lard rather than butter, and sifting a little dry flour over.

Opening and shutting the oven door very gently during the process of baking.

Not turning while in the oven if it can be avoided.

Keeping fruit over night in a warm room, dredging it thoroughly with flour and stirring it in lightly the last thing.

Lining tins for loaf-cake with oiled paper, or, better yet, with pastry made of flour and water, and rolled thin.

Making the paper or paste lining of a tin for fruit cake or a large loaf-cake an inch higher at the sides, to support a paper cover and prevent its baking too hard.

Pain-Killer.

The testimonials borne to the efficacy of this valuable medicine are sufficient to warrant its introduction into every house. Our own opinion is that no family should be without a bottle of it for a single hour. In flesh wounds, aches, pains, sores, &c., it is the most effectual remedy we know of. A 25c. bottle will last for a long time, and its low price places it within the reach of all.—News, St. Johns, Que.

Small sugar-coated Burdock Pills do not gripe or sicken. They are mild and effectual.

"La Cadena" and "La Flora" Insist upon having these brands.

"Shorter" Pastry and "Shorter" Bills.

We are talking about a "shortening" which will not cause indigestion. Those who "know a thing or two" about Cooking (Marion Harland among a host of others) are using

COTTOLENE

Instead of lard. None but the purest, healthiest and cleanest ingredients go to make up Cottolene. Lard isn't healthy, and is not always clean. Those who use Cottolene will be healthier and wealthier than those who use lard—Healthier because they will get "shorter" bread; wealthier because they will get "shorter" grocery bills—for Cottolene costs no more than lard and goes twice as far—so is but half as expensive.

A Friend

Wishes to speak through the Register of the beneficial results he has received from a regular use of Ayer's Pills. He says: "I was feeling sick and tired and my stomach seemed all out of order. I tried a number of remedies, but none seemed to give me relief until I was induced to try the old reliable Ayer's Pills. I have taken only one box, but I feel like a new man. I think they are the most pleasant and easy to take of anything I ever used, being so finely sugar-coated that even a child will take them. I urge upon all who are of a laxative to try Ayer's Pills."—Boothbay (Me.) Register.

In Need

"Between the ages of five and fifteen, I was troubled with a kind of salt-rheum, or eruption, chiefly confined to the legs, and especially to the bend of the knee above the calf. Here, running sores formed which would scab over, but would break immediately on moving the leg. My mother tried everything she could think of, but all was without avail. Although a child, I read in the papers about the beneficial effects of Ayer's Pills, and persuaded my mother to let me try them. With no great faith in the result, she procured and I began to use them, and soon noticed an improvement. Encouraged by this, I kept on till I took two boxes, when the sores disappeared and have never troubled me since."—H. Chipman, Real Estate Agent, Roanoke, Va.

"I suffered for years from stomach and kidney troubles, causing very severe pains in various parts of the body. None of the remedies I tried afforded me any relief until I began taking Ayer's Pills, and was cured."—Wm. Goddard, Notary Public, Five Lakes, Mich.

A Young Lady's Ball or Theatre Wrap.

A young lady's ball or theatre wrap is here shown. The material could be either pink or blue brocade with an embossed design, the passementerie trimming is of gold, and the fur edging is white Angora. The back is short but fairly broad. The fronts are considerably longer and are hooked down the middle. The sleeves divide at the back, and are separate from the back breadths, making dolman sleeves in front. White Chinese goatskin may be used instead of Angora, if preferred.

Any train skirt will make over into an Empire skirt, though of course, the longer the train the better. Take from the train to piece up or down the length of the front part, and set the back up high enough to make the skirt short at the back. If you are going to cover the skirt with lace, tulle or crepe, then piece at the top, for of course it will not show there. If the skirt is cloth, silk, stuff, or velvet fine enough to use uncovered, piece at the bottom edge, and either set a row of bead work, or a band of lace to just cover the seam, or else edge the skirt with lace or embroidery laid flat and as wide exactly as the piece put on, or have a ruffle of lace as deep as the piece. Of course, if the old skirt will not allow a short waisted skirt to be gotten out of it, you can make as much of one as possible, and then match the material for the rest. If your old stuff is brocaded get plain material for the lower part of the skirt and cover it with lace. The outlay is certainly less than a whole dress would cost and the result is quite in the best taste. I never advocate making over into outlandish things just for the sake of using up stuff. That spoils the goods, the dress and you, too. Better lay the stuff away, it will use well some time, and buy new.

FLORETTE.

SPIDERS' WEBS.

The Curious Use to Which They are Put by Astronomers.

The astronomers of the naval observatory have looked all over the world for spiders' webs. Such gossamer filaments spun by industrious arachnids are utilized in telescopes for cross lines extend at right angles with each other across the field of view, so as to divide the latter into mathematical spaces. Threads of cobweb are employed for the purpose because they are wonderfully strong for their exceeding fineness, and also for the reason that they are not affected by moisture or temperature, neither expanding nor contracting under any conditions.

Specimens were obtained from China because it was imagined that the large spiders of that country would perhaps produce a particularly excellent quality of web. However, it was found that the best web was spun by spiders of the United States, such as are plentiful in the neighborhood of Washington. Accordingly expeditions are made early in June each year to get from the fences and barns hereabouts the cocoons of the big "turtle back" spiders. Each cocoon is composed of a single silken filament wound round and round, though there are apt to be some breaks in it where Mistress Spider left off work for a time.

Attempts have been made to use the cocoons of spiders like those of silkworms, and exquisite fabrics have been manufactured from them. Unfortunately it was found impossible to make the industry a commercial success, owing to the combative inclination of these creatures. When kept together they will always gobble each other up in a short time, the final result being a single very large and fat spider and one cocoon.—Washington Cor. Boston Transcript.

E. Jardine, North Sidney, C. B., says:—"I have used your Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with decided success, and would recommend them to any one suffering as I did from weakness and impoverished blood. Your pills have afforded wonderful relief and I believe them to be unequalled." All dealers or by mail, post paid, at 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50. Dr. Williams' Med. Co. Brockville, Ont.

Pale, Weak Women need a tonic strength giving, flesh building medicine like Milburn's Beef, Iron and Wine.

Couldn't Keep on His Feet.

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 31st, 1892.

To the Peterborough Medicine Company:

GENTLEMEN,—If there is any medicine in the world that I pin my faith to it is Membray's Kidney and Liver Cure. In my business I have to stand on my feet a good deal. About a year ago my back began to give out, weakening pains set in across my kidneys, I felt tired all the time and could hardly stand up to my work. I began to lose strength and at last had to give up work altogether. A customer advised me to try your cure which I did. Before half the bottle was used, I felt the pains and weakness leaving me and to-day I enjoy good health and can bear fatigue and work all right. One bottle was all I used.

ALF. HASKILL, barber.

A Pleasant Herb Drink.

The best cure we know of for constipation and headache is the pleasant herb drink called Lane's Family Medicine. It is said to be Oregon grape root, combined with simple herbs, and is made for use by pouring boiling water onto the dried roots and herbs. It is remarkably efficacious in all blood disorders, and is now the sovereign remedy with ladies for clearing up the complexion. Druggists sell the packages at 50c. and $1.

When in Despair.

When in despair of being cured of lung troubles, there is still a hope, and a strong hope of perfect cure in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This medicine cures even after all others have failed, and no one suffering from coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, hoarseness, etc., need despair of cure while Norway Pine Syrup is obtainable.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE TONIC
—AND—
Stomach and Liver Cure

The Most Astonishing Medical Discovery of the Last One Hundred Years.

It is Pleasant to the Taste as the Sweetest Nectar.
It is Safe and Harmless as the Purest Milk.

This wonderful Nervine Tonic has only recently been introduced into this country by the proprietors and manufacturers of the Great South American Nervine Tonic, and yet its great value as a curative agent has long been known by a few of the most learned physicians, who have not brought its merits and value to the knowledge of the general public.

This medicine has completely solved the problem of the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia, and diseases of the general nervous system. It is also of the greatest value in the cure of all forms of failing health from whatever cause. It performs this by the great nervine tonic qualities which it possesses, and by its great curative powers upon the digestive organs, the stomach, the liver and the bowels. No remedy compares with this wonderfully valuable Nervine Tonic as a builder and strengthener of the life forces of the human body, and as a great renewer of a broken-down constitution. It is also of more real permanent value in the treatment and cure of diseases of the lungs than any consumption remedy ever used on this continent. It is a marvelous cure for nervousness of females of all ages. Ladies who are approaching the critical period known as change in life, should not fail to use this great Nervine Tonic, almost constantly, for the space of two or three years. It will carry them safely over the danger. This great strengthener and curative is of inestimable value to the aged and infirm, because its great energizing properties will give them a new hold on life. It will add ten or fifteen years to the lives of many of those who will use a half dozen bottles of the remedy each year.

Failing Health,	Delicate and Scrofulous Children,

Summer Complaint of Infants.

All these and many other complaints cured by this wonderful Nervine Tonic.

NERVOUS DISEASES.

As a cure for every class of Nervous Diseases, no remedy has been able to compare with the Nervine Tonic, which is very pleasant and harmless in all its effects upon the youngest child or the oldest and most delicate individual. Nine-tenths of all the ailments to which the human family is heir are dependent on nervous exhaustion and impaired digestion. When there is an insufficient supply of nerve food in the blood, a general state of debility of the brain, spinal marrow, and nerves is the result. Starved nerves, like starved muscles, become strong when the right kind of food is supplied; and a thousand weaknesses and ailments disappear as the nerves recover. As the nervous system must supply all the power by which the vital forces of the body are carried on, it is the first to suffer for want of perfect nutrition. Ordinary food does not contain a sufficient quantity of the kind of nutriment necessary to repair the wear our present mode of living and labor imposes upon the nerves. For this reason it becomes necessary that a nerve food be supplied. This South American Nervine has been found by analysis to contain the essential elements out of which nerve tissue is formed. This accounts for its universal adaptability to the cure of all forms of nervous derangement.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, IND., Aug. 20, '86.
To the Great South American Medicine Co.:
DEAR GENTS:—I desire to say to you that I have suffered for many years with a very serious disease of the stomach and nerves. I tried every medicine I could hear of, but nothing done me any appreciable good until I was advised to try your Great South American Nervine Tonic and Stomach and Liver Cure, and since using several bottles of it I must say that I am surprised at its wonderful powers to cure the stomach and general nervous system. If everyone knew the value of this remedy as I do you would not be able to supply the demand.
J. A. HARDEE, Ex-Treas. Montgomery Co.

REBECCA WILKINSON, of Brownsvalley, Ind., says: "I had been in a distressed condition for three years from Nervousness, Weakness of the Stomach, Dyspepsia, and Indigestion, until my health was gone. I had been doctoring constantly, with no relief. I bought one bottle of South American Nervine, which done me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly person to use this valuable and lovely remedy; a few bottles of it has cured me completely. I consider it the grandest medicine in the world."

A SWORN CURE FOR ST. VITAS' DANCE OR CHOREA.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, IND., June 22, 1887.

My daughter, eleven years old, was severely afflicted with St. Vitus' Dance or Chorea. We gave her three and one-half bottles of South American Nervine and she is completely restored. I believe it will cure every case of St. Vitus' Dance. I have kept it in my family for two years, and am sure it is the greatest remedy in the world for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, and for all forms of Nervous Disorders and Failing Health, from whatever cause.

INDIGESTION AND DYSPEPSIA.

The Great South American Nervine Tonic

Which we now offer you, is the only absolutely unfailing remedy ever discovered for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and the vast train of symptoms and horrors which are the result of disease and debility of the human stomach. No person can afford to pass by this jewel of incalculable value who is affected by disease of the stomach, because the experience and testimony of many go to prove that this is the ONE and ONLY ONE great cure in the world for this universal destroyer. There is no case of unmalignant disease of the stomach which can resist the wonderful curative powers of the South American Nervine Tonic.

HARRIET E. HALL, of Waynetown, Ind., says: "I owe my life to the Great South American Nervine. I had been in bed for five months from the effects of an exhausted stomach, Indigestion, Nervous Prostration, and a general shattered condition of my whole system. Had given up all hopes of getting well. Had tried three doctors, with no relief. The first bottle of the Nervine Tonic improved me so much that I was able to walk about, and a few bottles cured me entirely. I believe it is the best medicine in the world. I can not recommend it too highly."

MRS. ELLA A. BRATTON, of New Ross, Indiana, says: "I cannot express how much I owe to the Nervine Tonic. My system was completely shattered, appetite gone, was coughing and spitting up blood; am sure I was in the first stages of consumption, an inheritance handed down through several generations. I began taking the Nervine Tonic, and continued its use for about six months, and am entirely cured. It is the grandest remedy for nerves, stomach and lungs I have ever seen."

No remedy compares with SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE as a cure for the Nerves. No remedy compares with South American Nervine as a wondrous cure for the Stomach. No remedy will at all compare with South American Nervine as a cure for all forms of failing health. It never fails to cure Indigestion and Dyspepsia. It never fails to cure Chorea or St. Vitus' Dance. Its powers to build up the whole system are wonderful in the extreme. It cures the old, the young, and the middle aged. It is a great friend to the aged and infirm. Do not neglect to use this precious boon, if you do, you may neglect the only remedy which will restore you to health. South American Nervine is perfectly safe, and very pleasant to the taste. Delicate ladies, do not fail to use this great cure, because it will put the bloom of freshness and beauty upon your lips and in your cheeks, and quickly drive away your disabilities and weaknesses.

The Silver Problem.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The Senate has adopted the Sherman amendment authorizing an issue of 3 per cent. five years' bonds.

A New York special to The Albany Journal says it is stated that on the very best authority Drexel, Morgan & Co. offered $25,000,000 of the United States bonds to bankers in London on Saturday.

This is regarded as establishing the decision of the Secretary of the Treasury to issue bonds. Whether the offer was a bona fide one to deliver bonds or was made simply to test the London market is unknown. It is regarded, however, as indicating a policy of accumulating gold for the treasury in foreign rather than domestic markets.

Vancouver's Prominence.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—The postoffice authorities have given notice to persons directing mail matter for Japan and China that in order to expedite transit letters and packages should be marked "via Vancouver." The usual practice of making letters and packages addressed to these countries "via Montreal and Vancouver" necessitates the forwarding of them to Montreal and often is the cause of their missing, the first steamer from Vancouver to Japan.

Kid, the Renegade.

PHŒNIX, Aris., Feb. 20.—The Legislature has passed a bill authorizing a reward of $5000 for the body of Kid, the renegade Apache, dead or alive.

The Cotton Strike.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—The striking cotton spinners in Lancashire have agreed to accept a 2½ per cent. reduction in their wages. The master cotton spinners will hold a meeting next week to consider whether they will reopen their mill sts the reduction. The strike, it will be recalled, was against a proposition of the masters to reduce wages 5 per cent.

Committed for Extradition.

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Ex-Treasurer Godolphin of Huntsville, Ont., was brought before the Magistrate at Bow-street Saturday morning upon warrants charging him with forgery involving the loss of between $7000 and $10,000 to the municipality of Huntsville. The extradition of Godolphin was ordered and the prisoner will at once leave for Canada in charge of Detective Joseph Rogers of the Ontario Government service.

Fire in Sarnia.

SARNIA, Ont., Feb. 20.—Sunday morning about 9.30 o'clock a fire was discovered in the upstair apartments occupied by A. H. Storey as a barber shop and bath rooms. The fire destroyed the furniture and fittings and went down through to the store beneath, occupied by A. F. Carter as a jewelry store. The stock was considerably damaged by fire and water. The loss is not known as yet; covered by insurance.

Freight Trains Collide.

TROY, N.Y., Feb. 20.—Two freight trains bound east on the Fitchburg Railroad collided near Athol, Mass., yesterday morning. The locomotive of the second freight telescoped the caboose of the first train on a down grade. George Taylor and Joseph Martin of Orange, Mass., were instantly killed and Conductor Seely was badly hurt.

Change of Ministers.

Makes Flesh and Blood.

When the system is all run down and there seems to be no hope of obtaining nourishment for the body by the ordinary process of food supply and digestion, when the body is sinking fast, then is the time to use Miller's Emulsion of pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil. It always works wonders, because it is a flesh and blood maker, and contains all the constituents for nourishment found in wheat, in fact Miller's Emulsion is a perfect "staff of life" and has saved and cured thousands. In big bottles, 50c. and $1, at all Drug Stores.

Not a Particle.

A feature worth noticing in regard to Burdock Blood Bitters is that it does not contain one particle of poisonous matter. It cures and cures quickly without the use of any injurious ingredients. B.B.B is a purely vegetable specific for dyspepsia, constipation, bad blood, headache, biliousness and all diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels and blood.

Delay is Dangerous.

When the kidney's are out of order delay is dangerous. Any disease may follow and become so well established that months of suffering will follow. A gentle tonic like Dodd's Kidney Pills is always acceptable to the kidneys and protects them from disease. They are a kidney food.

Dr. Low's Sulphur soap is a delightful shampoo. It cleanses the scalp and darkens grey hair

Interested People.

FIRE IN MONTREAL.

The Trolley and Telegraph Wires in the Way and Nearly Caused Death.

MONTREAL, Feb. 21.—Montreal was visited by another big fire yesterday which destroyed thousands of dollars worth of property and resulted in one of the firemen being seriously if not fatally injured.

The fire started in Richard Smardon's boot and shoe factory in William-street.

The factory occupied a portion of a large brick block, which extended from William to St. Paul-streets. The flames spread from Smardon's factory to J. E. Mullin & Co.'s boot and shoe factory adjoining in St. Paul-street and the whole block was soon on fire. A high wind was blowing at the time and other large factories and warehouses in the vicinity were threatened.

The entire brigade was called out and all the efforts of the firemen concentrated on keeping the fire from spreading. Owing to the bitter coldness of the weather and the high wind it was an extremely difficult task.

The fire was accompanied by a thrilling scene. While the fire was at its height and the smoke so dense that the firemen were unable to see to work, a voice was heard from the upper or fifth story calling for help. At first it could not be ascertained who the person was. As a gust of wind drifted the smoke away for an instant Capt. Provost of No. 4 station was seen at a corner window almost suffocated by smoke in a most dangerous position.

The great crowd looking on uttered a cry of horror, and there was a universal cry to rescue him. The Skinner ladder could not be worked in the lane, and another ladder could not be made to reach Prevost. Attempts were made to raise the Skinner from St. Paul-street, but the trolley and telephone wires were in the way, and it was some time before the Skinner was up.

Then when the firemen mounted none of them had an ax, and they had to attempt to break the window in with their hands. By this time a smaller ladder was got up to Prevost, and amidst the cheers of the crowd he started to descend. Prevost lost his hold and fell to the ground, striking on his back.

The Notre Dame Hospital ambulance was summoned, and Prevost was removed, badly injured. The whole block was completely destroyed by fire, but the firemen succeeded in keeping the fire within these bounds.

The prinripal losers are: Smardon & Co., Mullin & Co., Keegan, Milne Co., Electrical Supplies, Doyle and Anderson, wholesale teas. The total damage is estimated about $200,000. When the fire broke out the two large boot and shoe factories were crowded with hands, but they all managed to escape in safety.

The following are the losses and insurances in yesterday's big fire, so far as made up last night:

J. E. Mullin & Co., machinery $31,000, stock and manufactured goods $50,000; total loss. Their insurances are $14,000 on machinery, $17,000 on building and $25,000 on stock.

The building was owned by J. E. Mullin and valued at $50,000.

R. Smardon, boots and shoes, rented the southern part of the block from Messrs. Mullon & Co., and sublet it to tenants. Mr. Smardon was insured for $2000 on the stock, and for $6000 on the building.

Keegan, Milne & Co., electric supplies, estimated loss $10,000, partly covered by insurance.

The minor losers are H. A. Manley, printer; Carling Brewing Co., B. J. Peltoner Walkerville Brewing Co., W. King & Co., turniture; Doyle and Anderson. The total estimated damage is between $250,000 and $300,000.

Fire in a Church.

WINGHAM, Ont., Feb. 21.—The Congregational Church here was partially destroyed by fire Sunday morning at 1 o'clock. The fire caught from the furnace, but was fortunately discovered before it had done much damage. The basement was damaged to the extent of $500, and the organ upstairs suffered from the heat. Insured for $2500.

Store and Dwelling Burned.

BRUSSELS, Ont., Feb. 21.—The two-story frame store and dwelling occupied by William Nightingale was burned Saturday night. Loss on furniture $2000, and stock $11,000. Covered by insurance.

ARSENIC DID IT.

The Jury Agrees That Duchesne Died By Poisoning.

ALEXANDRIA, Ont., Feb. 21.—The report received from Dr. Ellis re the cause of death of the late Cleophas Duchesne was read to the jury by Coroner McMillan on Saturday evening.

The report was that sufficient arsenic was found in the stomach to cause death.

Several witnesses were further examined, but they threw no light on the subject.

Messrs. E. H. Tiffany and John A. MacDonnell appeared for the Crown and Mrs. Duchesne respectively, and made able addresses to the jury.

It was over three hours before the jurors came to an agreement.

Meanwhile an eager crowd hung around despite the fact that it was a cold night.

The verdict was: "That the said Cleophas Duchesne came to his death from poisoning by arsenic, and while the jury cannot free themselves of the extraordinary coincidence of the purchasing of rough on rats—a preparation of arsenic—on that Tuesday by Mrs. Duchesne, they cannot from the evidence directly charge her with the administration of the poison." It is not known as yet if it is the intention of the Crown to push investigation farther.

THE SEED SPROUTED.

Baby Wiggins' Queer Effort at Orange Culture.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 21.—It is said Babies do many queer things, but little 2-year-old Joseph Wiggins of No. 2026 Mountain-street beat the record the other day when he swallowed an orange seed and at once proceeded to grow the sprout of a fine Florida orange tree in his throat. This was uncomfortable, of course, and the experiment would have proved disastrous for baby Joseph but for the kindly intervention of doctors.

It was on Monday that the little boy's mother gave him an orange after carefully preparing it for him. Unfortunately, however, one seed remained in the pulp, and this seed became lodged in the baby's windpipe, almost instantly causing a slight difficulty in breathing.

Little attention was paid to the matter at first, but on Tuesday the child's breathing became more painful and was constantly accompanied by a slight choking. Drs. H. R. Wharton and J. P. Tunis were called in and informed by the mother that the trouble was caused by some of the orange pulp. The usual remedies were applied and some relief obtained, but on Wednesday night the condition of the child became serious.

After a careful examination the physicians decided that the only means of saving the little sufferer's life was to perform tracheotomy. On Thursday this was undertaken and a long incision was made in the neck, opening the windpipe. At the point where the latter joined the lungs a hard substance was detected deeply embedded in mucous. When removed it proved to be an extraordinarily large orange seed. The wound was closed up and dressed, and yesterday the boy was on the road to recovery.

The seed was in a particularly dangerous position and would undoubtedly have caused suffocation in a very short time. While lodged in the throat the heat had caused it to open at one end and to sprout slightly. It was also swollen greatly beyond its original large size.

A Gambler's Fate.

ROCHESTER, Feb. 21.—Julius Rosenthal, city editor of The Volksblatt, is missing. His employer, Dr. E. H. Makk, has received a letter from Rosenthal stating that he was a thief and a forger and that he was going to commit suicide. He has been gambling pretty heavily of late.

At 6 o'clock last evening it was learned that Editor Rosenthal was registered at the Livingston Hotel. Further investigation was made, resulting in finding the desperate gambler and forger unconscious in his room in the sixth floor. He had taken several grains of morphine, and before lying down to die had stuffed cracks under the doors with papers and turned on both the gas jets. He was removed to the city hospital, where he is in a precarious condition. His forgeries amount to a large sum. He was arrested on a similar charge in East Saginaw City, Michigan.

Hundreds Were Killed.

TANGIER, Feb. 21.—The rebels forced an entrance to Wazan on Wednesday for the purpose of looting the city. When all were within the walls the citizens closed the gates and attempted to annihilate the attacking force. The streets were scenes of horrible carnage for four hours. Hundreds were killed.

AILSA CRAIG IS WILD

OVER THE FAILURE OF THE PRIVATE BANK THERE.

The "Hen Eggs" of Many Depositors Used in Speculations Which Did Not Pan Out Profitably—An Offer of Settlement Refused.

AILSA CRAIG, Feb. 22.—The 800 or 900 inhabitants of this antiquated village up in the northwest corner of Middlesex County, and the many wealthy farmers residing on the rich farms which surround the sleepy hamlet, have just now an all-absorbing topic, which everyone is discussing—at the hotels, in the stores and shops, and on the streets. The Shipley bank failure has created an excitement the like of which Ailsa Craig has not undergone for many years, if ever previously. Every story regarding the condition of affairs is eagerly listened to, and invariably the listener has something to add thereto, for perhaps everybody in the village is concerned financially in the failure, either themselves or relatives having lost something. As might be expected, the rumors are often widely different in point of the main fact, and when it comes to detail they are simply wild. Mr. James Shipley, the owner of the bank, naturally comes in for a great deal of severe criticism.

On Friday last the crash came. Mr. Shipley had been notified by two depositors that they would require their money on that day, and not having it at hand the bank owner went to the branch of the Bank of Commerce in the village, with whom he had been doing business, and endeavored to secure this additional sum—some $19,000—$11,000 odd of which had been demanded from Shipley by Mr. William Fraser, farmer, of the 7th con. of McGillivray. The Bank of Commerce refused payment. Then the crash came. Mr. Shipley returned to his private bank, secured the keys and books and handed them over to Mr. Joseph Rosser, reeve of the village. In almost incredible time the news of the failure spread and an excited crowd was soon gathered in front of the unpretentious building which Mr. Shipley had used as his bank.

Next day, Saturday, a meeting of the depositors of the defunct bank was held in the Town Hall. The total number of depositors was 244. The meeting was orderly.

The statement submitted by Mr Shipley to the Saturday meeting is regarded as a demonstration of the belief that Mr. Shipley was fearfully reckless, as not a single "profit" is shown among the items. It reads:

Dr.	Amount.
Joseph Siddall	$8,000
D.C. McIntyre	3,800
William Robson	3,700
Thomas Cowan	9,000
— Ball	5,000
Edward Charlton estate	500
John Patchen	500
	$30,500

These alleged losses cover a number of years. The loss said to have been sustained on Joseph Siddall's account was brought about by the fact that Shipley accepted a second mortgage on Siddall's place—a farm of 224 acres, situated at what is known as Siddallsville, about five miles from Ailsa Craig. On the farm there is a large mill, but this was badly damaged a year ago owing to a flood, and has not since been repaired. The first mortgage on the farm calls for $9000, and is is thought that the place is worth more than this amount and hence that the $8000 is not a total loss. In the case of D. C. McIntyre the facts are similar. Another second mortgage of $3500 was accepted by Shipley on McIntyre's 100-acre farm in East Williams. Shipley holds William Robson's notes for the $3700. Robson was a grain buyer and had been doing business in the section for 10 years or more. Robson is now a dealer in eggs and butter in London. Thomas Cowan, who is said to be a debtor to the Shipley Bank to the tune of nearly $9000, is a cattle drover. Shipley and Cowan speculated together in cattle and sustained heavy losses thereby. Cowan, who resides in Ailsa Craig, denies that his indebtedness is anything like what it is claimed, and says it is not more than $1700. The loss credited to Mr. Ball came about, Mr. Shipley says, in this way: Ball was manager of the Bank of Commerce in Lucan, and borrowed $10,000 from Shipley on his own account. With this he went into buying Pacific stock and lost, and Shipley received but $5000 back. Then in the compromise arrived at in the settlement of the Edward Charlton estate, a farm, a loss of $560 was sustained by Shipley. John Patchen of McGillivray, near Lieury, was another farmer who failed and left Shipley his creditor to the extent of $500. There are numerous notes and securities held by Shipley which may or may not prove valueless.

The liabilities are stated to be $92,000. Over 100 people, many of them young men, had in the bank what the villagers call a "nest egg"—the "eggs" varying in value all the way up to $200. The heaviest loser is William Fraser of McGillivray. Mr. Fraser is the owner of 200 acres of land, and had over $11,000 laid by in the Shipley concern, and for which he came in order to be able to pay for 200 acres of additional land for which he had bargained. Daniel McCubbin of East Williams is the depositor most deeply interested next to Fraser, having had $7000 in the Shipley Bank. John Donaldson a farmer, had $3000 deposited in the bank; W. Stephenson, $1500; Mrs. Philip Rosser, $500; Peter Douglas, $1700; Mrs. Stewart, a widow, $1300; Alex Stewart, $1500; John Leitch, $2000; Robert Leitch, $800; James Stewart, $1000; George Morton, $1300; William Bowman, $300, the price of a team of horses he had sold but a few weeks ago; John Eynon, $1000, of which $400 was the proceeds of the sale of a team of horses to a Montreal man but a day or two before; Robinson Twiddle, $1500; the Misses Overholt (2), milliners in the village, $600; Mrs. McLeod, a widow, residing in Ailsa Craig, $800, said to be her all; Mrs. Walker, $1000, received but a short time previously as insurance; Jerry Dorman, $1025. In addition to these depositors, the amount of whose deposits are not given officially, there are numerous others generally confined to smaller amounts.

A majority of the losers are farmers of a well-to-do class. They take their misfortune philosophically, and many of them still have faith that Shipley will pay the full amounts. Shipley's farm of over 400 acres has been included among the assets.

Mr. Shipley's offer of 40 cents on the dollar, made to the meeting of depositors, was not received at all favorably. The statement Shipley presented was regarded as very unsatisfactory, and this feeling still remains. The meeting appointed a committee to examine the books and securities and report the result to a meeting to be called probably on Thursday. The committee comprises Dr. Stewart, A. C. Stewart, Duncan McArthur, George Morton, William McCallum and S. Gillis, who were among the large depositors, and they spent the whole of yesterday going over the books. They expect to get through to-day. Their report is not looked forward to with any considerable degree of interest, as it is believed they will be able to let in no new rays of light. Some of the depositors are agitating for the employment of an expert accountant, and may carry their point. It is thought a month at least would be required to complete a thorough report of the actual situation.

Mr. Shipley takes his misfortune very hard, it is said. He commenced business as a banker in the village in 1879, and by a system of generous and straightforward and business-like dealing he had gained the entire confidence of the community. His bank was the only one in the village until recently, when a branch of the Bank of Commerce was established there. The Investigating Committee have found the books to be kept in an efficient way.

A COLD SHOULDER.

Buffalo Is Kicking About Employment of Canadians There.

BUFFALO, Feb. 22.—An evening newspaper calls upon Inspector De Barry to proceed against Dr. Andrews, superintendent of the State Hospital for the Insane, which it declares is full of alien Canadians taking the places which ought to be filled by American citizens.

Dr. Andrews states that they have all been employed in Buffalo and that no one has been brought to the institution under promise of employment from Canada.

Dr. Andrews did not bring any Canadians over from Canada, but he sent a special agent to Toronto to employ them for him and by so doing he committed a breach of the law of the United States punishable with a fine of $1000 and a year's imprisonment.

Last July this agent, one Miss Guy, went to Toronto to look for a cook for the doctor's house and for the physicians who eat at the doctor's table. In a registry there she met Mrs. Mary J. Fleury, a nice-appearing, motherly-looking old lady, who knew something about public institutions, her husband having been jailer at Kingston, Ont.

Mrs. Fleury was engaged, her fare to Buffalo being paid by Dr. Andrews. Miss Guy had assured the servant that she would have short hours and light work and $5 a week salary. She stayed at the asylum only three weeks, and it was work from before daylight until after dark, and then she had to climb seven pair of stairs and sleep with a lunatic. That was not according to her bargain, and she consequently left her situation.

The paper points out that here is as direct a violation of the law as has ever occurred in Buffalo. Dr. Andrews pays the passage of Mrs. Fleury from a foreign country and on her arrival installs her as cook at the State Hospital.

By doing so he renders himself liable to both fine and imprisonment and the law should be enforced. Dr. Andrews has gone to California.

RAILROAD AVENUES.

Secretary Morton Wants Trees Planted Along the Tracks.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—"Despite the fact that I should be jubilant over my recent elevation," said J. Sterling Morton yesterday, "I am troubled. Every day that passes sees the timber-producing land of this country reduced by 250,000 acres. There are about 40,000,000 acres of timber left in this country, and at this rate of destruction it will last but a generation.

The most important matter that will occupy my attention when I enter the Cabinet as Secretary of Agriculture will be the preparation of national forestry laws to be presented through some kindly congressman to Congress. Nearly 3000 ties are consumed for each mile of railroad track and they last from two to six years according to the ballast.

Now what a great benefit would be derived by securing legislation that would make the railroad utilize their right of way to plant trees for their own consumption. Think of an arbor reaching from Jersey City to San Francisco, from ocean to ocean. You would be able to travel this distance in an arbor, cool and dustless in summer and free from snow in winter were railroads to set trees by the side of their tracks."

MINING ENGINEERS.

Meeting In Montreal—Will Be a Most Important Session.

MONTREAL, Feb. 22.—The American Institute of Mining Engineers are meeting in this city. The convention opened last night with a reception in the Windsor Hotel. A large number of American mining engineers are already here and some 20 papers are to be read by members of the American Institute of Mining Engineers. Many of the American visitors have their wives with them. Every train brings in more Americans and 600 are expected altogether. The convention this year is one of the most important ever held by the International Convention.

The committee for Ontario is as follows: William Hamilton Merritt, F.G.S., Toronto (chairman); J. Bawden, Kingston; A. Blue, Toronto, Director of Mines; Prof. Coleman, School of Science, Toronto; T. D. Ledyard, Toronto; J. McKay, Sault Ste. Marie; George Mickle, Sudbury; Prof. Nicol, Queen's University, Kingston; E. W. Rathbun, Deseronto; Prof. Gordon Richardson, Toronto.

Fatal Railway Wreck.

PALMYRA, N.Y., Feb. 22.—Train No. 5, on the West Shore Road coming west, was derailed about a mile east of Palmyra and was thrown down an embankment 18 feet high about 10.05 a.m. yesterday morning. There were five coaches, a baggage car and the train was a double header, engines Nos. 13 and 46. One of the engines and the coaches were badly smashed.

Two passengers were killed and 12 injured.

Twenty-Five Horses Killed.

LENA, Ill., Feb. 22.—In a wreck of a wild train of the Illinois Central Railway yesterday at Preston's Bottom two cars, containing 42 valuable horses belonging to Israel Underwood of this place, rolled down the embankment. Twenty-five were killed and the others injured.

Fire in Castleton.

CASTLETON, Ont., Feb. 22.—James Morgenson's house, a mile from here, was burned Monday night. Nothing saved. Miss Morgenson's feet were frozen while she was going to a neighbor's, and she may die.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

FOUR MEMBERS DISTURBED OVER THE COAL DEAL.

The French Orators Deliver Their Speeches on the Budget—Mr. Tarte Tells Why He is No Longer a Protectionist.

OTTAWA, Feb. 22.—At the opening of the House yesterday Mr. McNeill rose to make a personal explanation with regard to the report in the press of the speech made by the First Minister on Friday, with reference to the visit of His Excellency, made by Messrs. Weldon, McNeill, McDougall and Wood regarding the Nova Scotia coal deal.

Mr. McNeill evidently looks at the matter in a very serious light, and evidently did not like the hantering, humorous way in which Sir John Thompson referred to the matter as a mere friendly call on the Governor-General, such as members make during the session.

In his explanation to-day he wished to make it clear that it was no mere friendly call that he and his confreres made on His Excellency. He was in dead earnest. He felt that imperial interests were at stake; that serious complications might arise if all the coal areas in Nova Scotia fell into the hands of a foreign corporation, and he went to His Excellency in his capacity as an imperial officer to call his attention to the matter—not to give him advice but to warn him of what he regarded as a serious danger to the Empire.

He had previously brought the matter to the attention of the First Minister and the Minister of Finance, and thought he had a perfect right to call the attention of His Excellency to it.

Mr. Weldon endorsed what Mr. McNeill said and the matter was allowed to drop.

Mr. Bolley resumed the debate on the budget and spoke in French for an hour. He referred to the Conservative successes at the bye-elections as evidence of the satisfaction felt by the country with the policy of the Government, and held that the farmers were afforded protection as well as the manufacturers. He held that Mr. Tarte was elected in L'Islet as a protectionist, and quoted from articles in Mr. Tarte's paper, Le Canadien, in support of his argument.

Mr. Monet replied, also in French. He said it was nonsense to speak of the country being prosperous while the people were leaving it in thousands.

Mr. Sproule spoke up to 6 o'clock, generally defending the National Policy and quoting at length from the census returns of manufactures to show the development which had taken place in the last 10 years.

After recess the debate was continued by Mr. McMillan (Huron) and Dr. Bergin.

Mr. Tarte made a short but fiery speech in French, in which he said that he had been a protectionist in 1878 because protection was necessary then, as we could not get reciprocity. Things were different now.

He attacked the census figures and said they were all false as far as the Province of Quebec was concerned. He said that if there was a general election to-morrow the Government would be defeated in the Province of Quebec, and announced his intention of taking the sense of the House on the Manitoba school question, as he held the Government had no right to refer the matter to the Supreme Court.

He said that he understood Mr. McCarthy would move an amendment that British goods be admitted at 10 per cent. less than goods from other countries, but he would not only wish for that but that the reduction be extended to other countries.

Mr. Smith (Ontario) moved adjournment of the debate, and the House adjourned at midnight.

Col. F. C. Denison, M.P., a Canadian volunteer since 1862, a member of Red River expedition under Sir Garnet Wolseley in 1870, an officer of the Nile expedition, 1884-85, is spoken of as commander of the Bisley team for 1893. Capt. McRobbie of St. John, N.B., is spoken of as adjutant.

A deputation from the Counties of Montcalm, Joliette and L'Assomption, accompanied by Messrs. Dugas, Lippe and Jeannotte, waited on the Hon. John Haggart, Minister of Railways and Canals, to-day and urged the claim of the Montcalm Railway from St. Lin to Joliette to a subsidy of $3200 a mile. The minister made the usual promise of considering the matter.

Hon. Mr. Foster to-night gives notice of a bill relating to the moneys payable in connection with proceedings before Parliament.

Mr. George Johnston, Dominion Statistician, has received a letter from Georgetown, Demerara, asking for names of firms able to supply ready-made houses. Such firms, by communicating their address to Mr. Johnston, might find an opening for business.

The unrevised statement of inland revenue for January shows the total amount accrued for the month $635,009, an increase of $100,716 over same month last year.

Mr. D'Alton McCarthy was in his place this afternoon and presented two monster petitions from the Patrons of Industry, praying that the law against combines be made more severe, and that the duties be taken off coal oil, binder twine, corn and barbed wire. The petitions are signed by about 25,000 persons.

The Department of the Interior has issued instructions, of which notice was given in its correspondence some months ago, that in future all immigrants by the St. Lawrence route shall be landed at Quebec instead of part of them being brought up to Montreal. First and second class passengers will still be brought up to Montreal if desired.

The Supreme Court met this morning, but was forced to adjourn until Monday, owing to the continued illness of Mr. Justice Gwynne. The commission of Judge Sedgwick was read and His Honor took his seat on the bench.

In answer to Mr. Davies, the Secretary of State gave a statement of the number of Canadian ships and their tonnage. It was as follows:

	No. of Steamers.	No. Sailing Vessels.	Tonnage.
New Brunswick	101	946	161,779
Nova Scotia	198	2,731	423,660
Quebec	275	1,408	168,682
Ontario	736	1,847	141,780
Prince Edward Isl'nd	21	196	22,798
Manitoba	54	21	4,413
British Columbia	179	206	35,446
Total	1,563	7,697	964,130

The Senate met at 8 o'clock to-night and sat for half-an-hour. Orders were passed on motion of Senator McInnes for papers relating to smallpox in British Columbia, and on motion of Senator McMillan for papers relating to the number of manufactures in Canada at various periods, and changes in the tariff since 1879.

A New Light for the People!

FRAUDS DRIVEN FROM THE FIELD!

OUR BEST PEOPLE ACKNOWLEDGE TRUE MERIT!

Grand Results the Best Recommendations!

The people of Canada, especially those who are weak, sick and diseased, have a brighter future before them than they had two or three years ago. This long-wished-for and encouraging change has been brought about by an agent of merit and honesty. For many years a host of vile nostrums and deceptive medicines have misled our too-confiding people. They have thrown their money away on preparations that were pure frauds, and that positively aggravated and encouraged sickness. True science has kindly and generously changed the order of things; it has swept from the field scores of trashy remedies. The introduction of that marvellous preparation, Paine's Celery Compound, has inaugurated an era of great joy and wonderful results amongst the suffering and diseased of our people. Ministers of the Gospel, lawyers, legislators, bankers, merchants and every day toilers, cannot refrain from praising and lauding the virtues of Paine's Celery Compound. The great and wonderful cures effected by this best of all medicines in severe cases of nervousness, sleeplessness, rheumatism, dyspepsia, liver and kidney diseases and Bright's disease, are the best recommendations that can be given to an intelligent public. Thousands are recommending Paine's Celery Compound to their friends, and the best physicians are now prescribing it. To those who have not yet used it we would say: "Give it an immediate trial, and you will find the same grand results that others have found."

YOUNG'S POINT.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

It is surprising to see the vast quantity of wood that is hauled daily, from this vicinity to Peterborough. What a great benefit it would be if that much talked of "train" came here from Lakefield, then this wood could be shipped direct to Peterborough. The wood is not the only article we have here for transportation; there is timber, lumber and a quarry here, where the stone can be taken out very easily. It would be very convenient to the people of the Point, also to campers and tourists, going through here in the summer, to come by rail.

The small boys are catching plenty of fish through the ice but they happen to be "perch."

As Tuesday was St. Valentines Day, there was a large mail the day after, and a number went away from the post office "rejoicing."

A very large stick of timber passed through here one day this week en route for Peterborough. The stick is thirty seven feet long by twenty eight inches square, belonging to Mr. Thompson, lumberman of Peterborough.

Mr. C. Young, who has been confined to the house with bronchitis this last week has recovered.

Miss Clara Scollard of Ennismore, is visiting friends here.

Miss Mary Pope is visiting with friends here.

That storm on Sunday night was a wild one, and the roads were badly drifted on Monday. Our stage driver, Mr. Patrick Kennedy, deserves credit for coming through here with the mail on Monday, for as he was coming up the Smithtown road from Peterborough, arriving at Mr. Walton's (six miles from town) it was impossible to go any further on account of the drifts, so he drove back to the Red Mills, and came up the Douro side. "Pat" did better than the Lakefield train, for we obtained our mail here before the Lakefield folks had theirs.

Look at the size of the ordinary pill. Think of all the trouble and disturbance that it causes you. Wouldn't you welcome something easier to take, and easier in its ways, if at the same time it did you more good? That is the case with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They're the smallest in size, the mildest in action, but the most thorough and far-reaching in results. They follow nature's methods and they give help that lasts. Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, Sick and Bilious Headaches, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels, are promptly relieved and permanently cured.

"If we can't cure your Catarrh, no matter how bad your case or of how long standing, we'll pay you $500 in cash." That is what is promised by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Doesn't it prove, better than any words could, that this is a remedy that cures Catarrh? Costs only 50 cents.

The common water pump of to-day is but an improvement on a Grecian invention which first came into general use during the reign of the Ptolemies, Philadelphes and Energetes, 283 to 221 B.C. The name, which is very similar in all languages, is derived from the Greek word "pempo," to send or throw. The most ancient description we have of the water pump is by Hero of Alexander. There is no authentic account of its general use outside of Egypt previous to its introduction into the German provinces at about the opening of the sixteenth century. Pumps with plungers and pistons were invented by Morland, an Englishman, in 1674; the double acting pump by De la Hire, the French academician, some twenty years later.

A NORWOOD MIRACLE.

HEALTH REGAINED AFTER SEVEN DOCTORS HAD FAILED.

The Remarkable Experience of Mr. John Slater Knox—Two Hours Sleep all the Benefit Derived From Six Weeks Medical Aid—Rescue From Suffering Came After the Doctors Had Pronounced the Case Hopeless.

The readers of the Norwood Register will remember having read in this paper during the early part of last year of the very serious illness of Mr. John Slater Knox, who lives on lot 20 in the 3rd concession of Asphodel township. They will remember how in January 1892, Mr. Knox was stricken down with la grippe, how from a man of about 185 pounds he fell away in flesh in a few short weeks until he was a mere skeleton of his former self, weighing only 120 pounds; how he was racked with the most excruciating pain; how he longed for death to relieve him of his suffering; how he consulted doctors near and far, and how they failed to successfully diagnose his case. In fact they confessed their ignorance of his malady and said he would not recover. But so much for the profession. Mr. Knox is alive to-day. He has recovered his wonted vigor and weighs 180 pounds, and his many friends in Norwood look upon him in wonder. Of course Mr. Knox is questioned on every hand about his recovery as to what magic influence he owes his increase of flesh, and his answer to each interrogation is "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did it," and he is never too busy to extol the merits of this now world famous remedy. This is what he said to a reporter of the Norwood Register the other day when asked about his illness and his wonderful cure:—"I will tell you all about it. In January, 1892, I had la grippe, which was prevalent at that time. It settled into pains in the calves of my legs. I was drawing lumber at the time and thought it was caused by sitting on the load and allowing my legs to hang down. I consulted a doctor in the matter, who told me it was rheumatism. He treated me, but did me no good and I kept getting worse daily. Altogether I had seven doctors in attendance, but none of them seemed to know what my ailment was. Some said it was rheumatism, others that my nerves were diseased, one said locomotor ataxia, and another inflammation of the spinal cord, another inflammation of the outer lining of the spinal cord, and still another said neuralgia of the nerves. I did not sleep for six weeks, and no drug administered by the medical men could deaden the pain or make me slumber. I will just say this: At the end of that time some narcotic administered made me doze for a couple of hours and that was all the relief I received from the disciples of Esculapius. They said that I could not recover, and really I had given up hope myself. My pain was so intense that I wanted to die to be relieved of my suffering. From a weight of 184 pounds I had dropped to 120. I was a skeleton compared with my former self. I had often read in the Register of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, but did not think of taking the remedy. About this time my father purchased some from Dr. Moffat druggist, Norwood, and bringing them to me requested me to take them. They remained in the house perhaps a couple of weeks before I commenced taking them, and then I must confess I had not much faith in their efficacy. Before I had finished taking the first box I felt a little better, and when I had taken two boxes I was convinced that the Pink Pills were doing me good, in fact they were doing for me what seven doctors had failed te do—they were effecting a cure. I felt so much better after having taken three boxes of Pink Pills that I ceased taking them, but I had not fully recovered and had resume, and I then continued taking them until now I am as hale a man as you will meet in a day's travel. I am positive that this happy result has been brought about by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I recommend them to my neighbours and my friends, as I am thoroughly convinced of their curative properties. There is a case a short distance from my place of a man, who has been a cripple for some time, recovering after taking eight boxes of the Pink Pills. In December last I could only manage to lift a bag of oats, now I can toss a bag of peas unto a load with ease. Isn't that gaining strength? At one period since I began taking Pink Pills I gained thirty pounds in six weeks. To-day I feel as well as I ever did in my life. I have been felling logs in the bush all winter and can do a day's work with any of them. I believe it my duty to say a good word for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills whenever I can."

"I hear you are making preparations to build a house, Mr. Knox," said the reporter.

"Yes," replied Mr. Knox, laughingly, "I am about building a house and barn, which I think will demonstrate that I am trying to enjoy my renewed lease of life."

Calling on Dr. Moffatt, druggist, the Register reporter asked him if he knew of Mr. Knox's case, and that that gentleman ascribed his cure to the use of Dr. Williams Pink Pills. "Yes," replied the doctor, "I have been talking to Mr. Knox and his is certainly a most remarkable cure. But speaking of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills reminds me of the wonderful sale they are having in and about Norwood. I buy a hundred dollars worth at a time and my orders are not few. I sell more Pink Pills than any other medicine, and always hear good reports of them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a perfect blood builder and nerve restorer, curing such diseases as rheumatism, neuralgia, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus dance, nervous headache, nervous prostration and the tired feeling therefrom, the after effects of la grippe, influenza and severe colds, diseases depending on humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc., Pink Pills give a healthy glow to pale and sallow complexions, and are a specific for the troubles peculiar to the female system, and in the case of men they effect a radical cure, in all cases arising from mental worry, over-work or excesses of any nature.

These Pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont., and Schenectady, N. Y., and are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark and wrapper, at 50c. a box, or six boxes for $2.50. Bear in mind that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are never sold in bulk or by the dozen or hundred, and any dealer who offers substitutes in this form is trying to defraud you and should be avoided. The public are also cautioned against all other so-called blood builders or nerve tonics, no matter what name may be given them. They are all imitations whose makers hope to reap a pecuniary advantage from the wonderful reputation achieved by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Ask your dealer for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and refuse all imitations and substitutes.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company from either address. The price at which these pills are sold makes a course of treatment comparatively inexpensive as compared with other remedies or medical treatment.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE "IN IT."

A Life Agent called at a friend's place one day,
HE WASN'T IN IT;
He had seen "the bore" coming and fled from his way
HE WASN'T IN IT;
He had heard so much said, he was tired and sick
Of insurance and agents—'twas all a blank trick,
When one's coil must be shuffled to win it,
HE WASN'T IN IT.

A bit of a draft blew o'er his bald head,
HE WAS IN IT;
Pneumonia sent him straightway to his bed,
HE STAYED IN IT;
His doctor made of it a "quite special" case,
To save him for running still more of life's race,
But the grave took some chances to win it,
AND HE'S IN IT.

When approached by a gent for insuring your life,
GET RIGHT IN IT;
It's the right thing to do for your children and wife,
THEN STAY IN IT.
Remember that fires take your goods "out of sight,"
And that accidents happen each day and each night.
While insurance protects every minute,
IF YOU'RE IN IT.

A Bank Manager's Opinion.

HE IS "IN IT."

The General Manager of one of the leading banks in Canada, writing to a personal friend, says:—"I have no hesitation in saying that I place the CANADA LIFE upon the highest platform. It is in my opinion carefully, economically and honestly managed; its Reserve Funds are well invested; its rates of Premiums are low, and its future is, I think better assured than a great majority of Companies. I have my own life insured in the Company for a round amount, and would not hesitate to increase the amount of my policies should I decide upon taking out further insurance."

A Government Insurance Actuary's Opinion

On the Relation between Ordinary and Tontine Service.

It is frequently assertedby Companies whose business is nearly all tontined, that although the CANADA LIFE may and does pay large ordinary profits, yet it cannot compare so favourably on a long term distribution or tontine period, and that in the end better results can be obtained on a tontine policy in a large American Co. than on an ordinary or tontine policy in the CANADA LIFE. To prove the absurdity of this statement, the following piece of common sense is quoted from Mervin Tabor, late Actuary of the Illinois Goverment Insurance Department. In his well known book, "The Three Systems of Life Insurance," he says: "A company that gives large dividends on the ordinary kind of policies, can give much larger on the same kinds when Tontined, and a company that pays but meagre dividends on the usual forms, adopting perhaps the Tontine system to "cover up" its small surpluses, cannot be relied on for large returns of surplus under the Tontine Forms of Insurance."

The CANADA LIFE does not "cover up" its Quinquennial profits as some Companies do, but publishes them throughout the country.

It can and does surpass other Companies on Quinquennial profits. It should and will surpass them on Tontine profits.

WHY TO BE "IN IT."

BISHOP HAWKE'S REASON:—"I claim that Life Insurance is not only a humane, but I might say a Christian Institution."

LORD LYNDHURST'S REASON:—"A Policy of Life Insurance is always an evidence of prudent forethought. No man with a dependent family is free from reproach if not insured."

WHEN TO BE "IN IT."

The younger, the cheaper. Therefore insure when young. Besides by insuring in the CANADA LIFE now, you will share in three years' profits.

WHERE TO BE "IN IT."

The best place to be "in it" is in the Company that gives the best returns for the least money, consistent with absolute security. Therefore, in order to be "in it," choose the

LOCAL NEWS.

Quite Up to the Times.

Mr. Henry Owens, agricultural implement agent evidently has faith that there will be "seed time and harvest." Already he has received a carload of farm machinery and implements, consisting of Massey-Harris wide open binders, Toronto, and Brantford mowers, Wisner seeders, and Massey-Harris "favourite" seeders. Many of these machines and implements have been sold and several of them delivered.

Neill's Removal for Four Weeks.

Our customers and the public will please notice that our boot and shoe store in the market block, No. 352 George street, will be closed for the next three or four weeks, in order to allow of alterations being made in the premises, now undergoing enlargement. The stock has been removed to our upper store, Kidd's old stand, George street, where we shall be glad to see all buyers during the interval. Our enlarged premises will afford ample room and facilities when completed, and the work will be pushed as speedily as possible. Remember the removal for four weeks only to Kidd's old stand. R. A Temperance Meeting Held.

An impressive temperance meeting was held by the Epworth League of Christian Endeavour in the George street Methodist church on Monday evening. Miss Cope presided over a large gathering of young people. Miss C. B. Sanderson gave an original address on the topic "Hindrances and how to overcome them," applying her remarks especially to liquor traffic. F. McIntyre read an interesting stump speech on the saloon question. Miss Mabel McGuire gave an excellent recitation and also did Miss Lillie Pascoe. The latter's recitation was "A Daughter's Sacrifice." The meeting was closed in the usual form.

We call attention to the advertisement of Prof. Dorenwend, the leading manufacturer of hair goods in Canada. He will be at Phelan's hotel on Saturday, Feb. 25th, with a large stock of every conceivable form of hair goods coverings for both ladies and gentlemen. Our lady readers should call on the professor and see the great improvement that can be made in their appearance by using these goods. They are light and natural in appearance, and their detection is impossible. Gentlemen, there are thousands of the leading men of Canada who are wearing Dorenwend's half and full wigs. Why don't you use them rather than go around with your head bare when nature intended it to be covered? Call on the Prof, and be convinced that not only will your appearance be improved by using these goods, but greater comfort will be secured.

A Veritable Roman War Galley

The Sun, New York, has the following to say of the big war canoe being manufactured for the Knickbocker Club by the Peterborough Canoe Company:—The war canoe which the Knickerbocker Canoe Club has ordered from Ontario (Peterborough) Company, of Peterborough, Canada, will be thirty feet in length and about five feet beam. It will be built of varnished basswood, which is lighter than the cedar used in the smaller canoes. Its full crew will be thirteen men, six paddlers on each side and a steersman who stands in the stern and wields the long steering paddle. The ultimate capacity will be about thirty. This will make the fourth war canoe in New York or its vicinity. The others are owned by the Yonkers Canoe Club, the Crescent Athletic Club of Brooklyn, and the Orange Canoe Club, of Arlington, N. J. Both the Marine and Field Club and the Brooklyn Canoe Club will arrange for war canoe races at their regattas next June, and some intensely exciting races are expected. These great boats, with their pointed prows and high sides and their flashing rows of paddles, recall more than anything else the pictures of the ancient Roman war galleys, and several of them together moving over the water make an impression not easily forgotten.

Riverdale Entertainment.

An entertainment in connection with Riverdale Sunday school will be held in the Riverdale Sunday school building on Friday evening, February 24th, commencing at 8 p.m. During the evening an intermission will be taken of ten minutes when refreshments are being served. An excellent programme will be presented. Admission 15 cents. All are invited. 44-2d.

The Case Dismissed.

An order was made by town solicitor Edwards before His Honor, Judge Weller, in Chambers yesterday, asking that the case of McDonald vs. Town of Peterborough be dismissed with costs. This was granted. The motion was made as a result of the dismissal of the action in Toronto, and the plaintiff deciding not to go on with the prosecution.

Saw it Make its Maiden Trip.

Mr. Wm. Snowden stated to a reporter last night that he saw the antiquated "Samson" locomotive, manufactured by Timothy Hackworth, which passed through Peterborough yesterday on its way to the Columbian Exposition, make its first trial trip in England away back in 1838. "I was quite a young boy then—not yet in my teenes," said Mr. Snowden; "I can remember it as though it were yesterday. The maiden trip was made on the road at Newcastle-on-the-Tyne, and was witnessed by thousands of people. To see a locomotive in those times was quite a novelty, indeed."

Only Two More Nights.

Before what? Why, the Sons of Canada Carnival, Friday night at the rink. Everybody is talking about the last grand carnival of the season, and more than that, everybody is going to take it in. In yesterday's EXAMINER was published the list of superb prizes. Now take a look at the races: Gentlemen's mile race, 16 times around the rink — silver medal, value $10.00; potato race, for boys under 16 years —a pair of skates, value $1.50; three-legged race, 3 times around the rink—cash prize $2.00. An exciting curling match will also take place between rinks of the Granites and Thistles for a box of El Padre cigars. Secure your tickets early. Admission 25 cents. Children 15 cents. Remember Friday night is the night. 1d

The Home Circle.

Mr. J. C. Williamson, of Toronto, representing the order of Canadian Home Circles, is in town, organizing a branch Circle in Peterborough. This society is a friendly, benevolent and beneficiary one, and is one of the few that admits ladies into the circle with all the advantages of their gentlemen friends. It is also the cheapest insurance in the Dominion, the average annual cost for $3,000 benefit, including all lodge dues, age 39, about $16.80. If 24 years of age the annual cost would be about $12.18. It is purely Canadian and is deserving of a large membership. Mr. Williamson will be in town for a few days, and any person desiring fuller information may obtain same from J. C. Williamson or Chief Rossel.

See What the Press Says.

Music goers should not forget the grand concert to be given in the Opera House on March 8th by the Bella Botsford Co., under the auspices of Otonabee Lodge, I. O. O. F. An exchange in speaking of the concert says:—"Miss Botsford who gives to the company its name, was right royally received. The familiar 'Faust Fantasia' was very cleverly executed, and elicited a hearty encore, to which she responded with Moskowski's 'Serenata.' Mr. Lythgoe who is yet quite fresh from his studies in Europe, gave the greatest surprise of the evening and immediately sprang into popular favour with his magnificent baritone voice. 'The Palms,' by Faure, is rarely sung so well, and the 'Two Grenadiers' in the second part of the programme, was grandly rendered. He displayed an excellent method of the modern Italian school." Tickets, 50 and 25 cents.

An Antique Curiosity.

Mr. Joseph Picard has in his possession an interesting relic. It a sheet of paper showing illustrations of the first railroad passenger train in America; the first steamboat in the world; New York city in 1650; the first locomotive in the world; the house in which Thomas Jefferson wrote the famous Declaration of Independence. The sheet also contains pictures of Independence Hall in 1776 and its tower from which the old Liberty Bell in a thousand peals proclaimed "liberty throughout all the land, and to all the inhabitants" thereof, on July 4th, 1776. A cut of the bell and a photograph of Jefferson are also represented. On the other side of the sheet is a fac simile of the first newspaper ever printed in America—the Boston News Letter of the dates April 17th to April 24th, 1704. The type is antique. The only copies of the first number of this paper known to be in existence are in the possession of the Massacheusetts Historical Society, Boston, American Antiquarian Society, Worcester, Mass., and the New York Historical Society.

Sad Case of Poverty and Suffering.

A town assessor in conversation with the EXAMINER a day or two ago stated he never had any idea that there was so much squalor and poverty in Peterborough until he had seen for himself when visiting the poor districts of the town. This severe winter seems to have fallen more heavily upon those in want and destitution than any other. On Thursday last in No. 1 ward in a miserable hovel on Patterson street, a family of three small children, the oldest being a boy of not more than 14 years of age and the other two, girls, aged respectively 12 and 7 years, were discovered almost on the verge of starvation. Their mother was confined to the hospital by a serious illness, while the husband and father was committed to gaol some time ago. The family were found nestling closely around a smouldering fire and in desparate need of something to eat, they having finished their last meal on a few cold potatoes. The children had not a five cent piece with which to buy half a loaf of bread. The boy was engaged in breaking stones for the corporation, but was earning a mere pittance at this owing to his emaciated condition and lack of proper nourishment. Kind hands were notified and the sufferers have been generously provided for by those charitably inclined.

It is the intention of the glee club to contribute numbers to the programme presented at each debate.

—Mr. E. Bond has just got some fine photographic views from Mr. J. Lawson Hall. One is an elegant representation of Mr. Bond's place of business as seen from the street, another is an instantaneous "flash light" of the interior, which shows off to great advantage the costly fittings and substantial products with which the store is always replete. The same view also takes in the manager busily engaged behind the counter.

—The Norwood annual winter races come off to-morrow and Friday. Three Peterborough horses left to-day to enter, viz., "Geo. S," Connor Bros.; "Gladstone," J. Newhall, and "Clan Alpine," J. K. McIntyre. Gladstone is entered in the three minute race and Clan Alpine in the "free for all." A number of local horsemen will take in the sport. The named race with three minute trot are the events to-morrow, while the "green race" and "free for all" will occur on Friday.

A Natual Actress.

Madeline Merli, the new star, who is making so great a success in "Frou Frou" this season, is of Italian descent, and said to possess a wonderful amount of magnetism, and has a great love of acting, where the many moods and emotions to which a nature such as she possesses can find vent. She is an advocate of natural acting, cares nothing for stagecraft, or anything artificial in art. "What should any actress do but imitate nature as nearly as possible?" she naively asks. Among her friends are such arts as Mme. Bernhardt, Salvina and Edwin Booth. Opera house Saturday 25th.

NORWOOD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The sporting fraternity of this village are greatly aroused by the ungentlemanly treatment accorded Mr. David Fraser by the judges at the Keene carnival. Mr. Fraser was entered in a mile race against M. McIntyre, Keene, and Johnston Paudaush, Hiawatha. In the first heat he left Paudaush and McIntyre easily but when turning first corner McIntyre shoved Fraser into a corner by which Fraser lost his wind and he had the whole length of the rink to gain before he could catch McIntyre. He made an excellent effort to do so but McIntyre won, so the judges said. Fraser claimed a foul on McIntyre for shoving, but the judges who were Keene men and had, it is said, money up on McIntyre would not grant it. Before entering the second heat Fraser asked the judges if it was right to crowd at corners, to which McIntyre said he wouldn't race unless he could crowd. The judges, of course, said they could crowd. Fraser went into the race determined to win. He passed the other two easily and on turning the corners, he got the inside track, which kept McIntyre off the course. When the heat was finished Fraser was the length of the rink ahead, McIntyre second and the Indian third. The spectators were all certain it was Fraser's race, until one of the judges at the beginning of the third heat said it was the Indian's race. The reason for this was because they said Fraser made a foul during the heat, which he never did. When McIntyre fouled it was all right, but when Fraser did not foul it was all wrong. Fraser, who saw at once they were against him, dropped out. McIntyre and the Indian told Fraser that it should have been his (Fraser's) race. Mr. Fraser wishes the EXAMINER to state that he is ready to race McIntyre, the winner of the race, and Paudaush, at either Lakefield, Peterborough or Campbellford, conditions to be fixed by participants.

CRISP CURLING CHRONICLES.

What is Going on at the Rink Where Curlers Most do Congregate.

A ten end game between the old and young men took place at the Lakefield rink on Saturday last. The young men were defeated by a score of 10 shots to 5. The "antiquarians" were skipped by R. C. Strickland and the "juveniles" by J. C. Grylls.

The match for the oysters which was to come off at the rink this evening between skip Rutherford and skip Belleghem, has been postponed indefinitely.

Peterborough has won the Lindsay-Peterborough Challenge Cup twice in succession, Lindsay taking the trophy the first year it was competed for. Local curlers state there is a stipulation in the rules that if either club wins the cup three years in succession, it remains in their possession permanently. Accordingly if Peterborough gains the coveted prize this year it will be her rightful property for all time to come.

The twelve home rinks which will play the Granites here to-morrow are composed principally of the same skips and men as those who played in Toronto recently.

THE GRANITES HERE TO-MORROW.

The Granites of Toronto will be here to-morrow twelve rinks strong to play the return match with the Peterboroughs. Secretary McGill received word to this effect this morning. Six rinks of the visitors will arrive at noon and play at the rink here in the afternoon. Have a dozen more quartettes will arrive later on, and play six more rinks of the Peterboroughs in the evening, in all making a twelve rink competition. The rink here is only capable of allowing six rinks playing at once, hence the games in the afternoon and evening. At a meeting of the Peterboroughs held in Dumble & Leonard's office this morning, the following rinks and skips were selected to play in the afternoon and evening respectively:

AFTERNOON.

V McGill,	Rutherford,
Lewis,	Wood,
Dumble,	Matthews,
Attrill, skip	Connal, skip.
Knapman,	Symonds,
Belleghem,	Edmison,
Kell,	Edwards,
McGill, skip.	Weber, skip.
Snowden,	Brown,
Blade,	McClelland,
Clegg,	Brown,
Rutherford, T., skip	Hay, skip.

EVENING.

McKee,	Robertson,
McKee,	Rutherford,
Bradburn,	Stanger,
Davidson, skip.	McNeil, skip.
Schofield,	Thompson,
Montgomery,	Cochrane,
Salisbury,	Salisbury, J.,
Pentland, skip.	Ferguson, skip.
Leonard,	Morrow,
Hall, K. H. D.,	Peck,
Hatton,	Stevenson,
Boucher, skip.	Budden, skip.

Two thirteen point games between members of the Thistle division took place at the rink yesterday. In the morning Geo. Cochrane downed A. Blade by a score of 13 shots to 8, and in the afternoon John Stanger whipped Geo. Boucher by a score of 13 shots to 8. There are several other thirteen point games which the members of the Thistles have to play off before Feb. 25th.

In the second struggle this winter for the Peterborough-Lindsay challenge cup, the home curlers in a four rink competition were victorious by no less than 34 shots, thus more than redeeming the advantage which Lindsay gained over them some time ago. The two rinks, Skips Rutherford and Boucher, who went to Lindsay to play Skip MacLennan and skip Flavelle were successful by 5 shots. Skip Rutherford beat the doughty and practiced skip Flavelle by 7 shots in a 22 end game. The former's rink secured three fours in the contest, one in the 3rd, one in the 7th and one in the 11th ends. Skip Boucher fell only two shots behind skip MacLennan's quartette and thus the visitors defeated the Lindsayites by 5 shots. The game in Lindsay was watched by a great many spectators including many ladies. The ice was crooked but keen and considerable excitement was prevalent throught the whole struggle.

At the rink here things were also highly favourable for the home team, and the two home quartettes piled up the magnificent majority of 29 shots more, for the Peterboroughs, making as aforementioned the neat victory of 34 shots. Following are the results:

There will be one more battle this winter to determine who shall hold the Lindsay-Peterborough challenge cup for 1894. The trophy has been striven for for four years now, Lindsay won it the first year, Peterborough the next two, and has good prospects of holding it again this year.

An interesting interrink match of the Granites took place at the rink last night and was closely contested. Skip Budden defeated Skip Edmison in a fourteen end game by only one shot. Following is the score:

J McClelland,	R B Rogers,
F J Lewis,	Geo Matthews,
D W Dumble,	E A Peck,
W H Budden, sk....10	G Edmison, sk.....9

Another make up match, which was tightly fought, occurred between Skip Judge Weller and Skip T. F. Connal. The latter won by one shot. The score was:

H Fitzgerald,	Chas Tucker,
C J Leonard,	J S Knapman,
K H D Hall,	L M Hayes,
Judge Weller, sk....15	T J Connal, sk.....16

Skips E. B. Clegg and C. N. Brown had a stone throwing affray in which the former came out triumphantly as shown here:

FRUIT GROWERS' ASSOCIATION.

Annual Meeting—Financial Statements—Election of Officers—Interesting Discussions on Fruit Subjects.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Fruit Growers' Association was held in the council chamber to-day. There was a small attendance, including Mr. L. Woolverton, secretary of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association, and Professor Craig, horticulturist of the Dominion Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

The chairman presented the financial statement, showing a small adverse balance.

The Secretary, Mr. E. B. Edwards, made a report on the general condition of the Association. He said they had thirty-nine members in good standing and their influence extended considerably beyond that number. He referred in a feeling manner to the loss the Association had sustained, by the death of their late President, Geo. Hilliard, Esq. He pointed out some lessons to be learned by the maintenance of such a Society, and hoped they could induce those who make a business of fruit to come to our "Apple Board" as buyers now come to the cheese board.

The financial statement was referred to Messrs. Trotter and Stinson who reported same correct.

The election of officers for 1893 resulted as follows:

President.—E. B. Edwards.
Secretary.—C. L. Trotter.

OUR FRUIT AT CHICAGO.

The Chairman introduced Mr. Woolverton, and asked that the members give him an attentive hearing, as it was a special privilege to have him here with us.

Mr. Woolverton said it gave him pleasure to be present. You know, he said, that we have accepted your invitation to hold an annual meeting of the Provincial Association in Peterborough next December for two or three days, and he felt they would be able to make it very interesting for them. He urged upon them the importance of giving special attention to the collection of our Canadian exhibit of fruit at the Chicago Exposition this summer. What he wanted them to do was to make a special effort in making as valuable a collection of fruit from this section as possible to be sent every week to Chicago. He suggested that the association should ask for a grant from the county council to defray the expenses of collecting the fruit and shipping it to Chicago every week. He was glad to know that they had so many members here and that they had affiliated with the Provincial Association.

FUNGUS DISEASE.

Prof. Craig wished to say a few words on the manner of treating fungus diseases, more particularly those affecting the apple and grape. He pointed out the great loss to the fruit crops annually resulting from these microscopic foes, and that in number they far exceeded all the flowering plants known to botanists. There were two classes of them—one living on dead organic matter, the other subsisting on living plants, termed parasites. Bearing no flowers, they produced no seed, as in the case of ordinary flowering plants, but their multiplication was affected by means of spores, which when favourable climatic conditions were present multiplied with exceeding rapidity. Taking up the disease known as the "apple spot," Mr. Craig outlined its life and history, and by means of charts illustrated the results of his experiments in treating it by spraying with the copper compounds. The best results was attained from the use of the dilute bordeaux mixture, and ammoniacal copper carbonate. 42 to 46 per cent. of sound growth was obtained when the trees were sprayed with these fungicides, as against 18 to 20 per cent. from the unsprayed trees. When the dilute bordeaux mixture is used paris green was added, and second application made. The formula for the bordeaux mixture is as follows:—

Copper sulphate	8 lbs
Lime	8 "
Paris green	8 oz.
Water	100 gals.

This can be prepared at a cost of about one cent per gallon, and the expense of spraying should not exceed two dollars per acre for the season; treating apple trees 20 to 25 years planted. The formula for ammoniacal copper carbonate was as follows:

Copper sulphate	1 lb.
Sal soda	1½ lbs.
Ammonia	1 gal.
Water	100 gals.

Total cost, about $1.65 per 100 gallons. That was useful for the late treatment, as it did not stain the fruit or affect it for marketing. In summing up, Prof. Craig advised fruit growers to choose as far as possible varieties not liable to "spot," give them the best possible cultivation, manuring liberally, and spraying early, perseveringly and carefully. Prof. Craig's address was listened to very closely, and evoked considerable discussion and questioning.

AN OVERWHELMING VICTORY

For Queen's University Hockey Team in Their Combat With Peterborough for the District Championship—A Rather One Sided Tussle.

The Peterborough Hockey Club were badly defeated by the great score of 14 goals to 2 in their game played with Queen's University at the Kingston skating rink last night. The contest was for the championship of District No. 3, Eastern League Ontario Hockey Series. The boys arrived in the Limestone City about six o'clock and registered at the Hotel Frontenac. The match was witnessed by a small number of spectators. The following are the teams which faced each other shortly after 8 o'clock before Referee E. Cunningham":—

Queens.		Peterborough.
Giles	Goal	Wasson
Curtis	Point	Sawers
Taylor	Cover Point	Carmichael
Rayside, McClelland, Waldron, Tory	Forwards	Ritchie, Wonham, Montgomery, Phelan
	Goal Judges	T. H. Dumble

The Universityites were much heavier and stronger than the home team. The Queen's men would average in weight about 160 or 170 lbs., while the Peterboroughs weigh only 130 lbs. per capita. The Kingston rink is very much shorter than the one here and very broad—in fact it is almost a perfect square. The Peterboroughs not being used to "this state of affairs" could not play in their usual brilliant and clever form. However the home boys take their defeat—even though it was a bad one—in good grace and manfully acknowledge that Queen's outplayed them at every turn. Peterborough practically played a mere defence game—especially throughout the second half. Although they might not have come off conquerors, anyway, still their friends state that they never put up such a poor, unavailing exhibition of hockey this winter. Queen's men are good skaters, clever passers, expert rushers and play combinations with machine-like precision. Their stick-handling is also worthy of note. In the first half the knights of the gown secured seven goals and in the latter half duplicated the number. After Queen's had taken three goals shortly after the face off, Montgomery and Wonham, who played an expert game, scored for the home team, but their luck here ended and after that their opponents had nearly everything their own way, and won gaol after gaol quite handily. Queen's College accordingly captures the district championship, and have by their splendid playing abilities worthily won the title. The boys returned at five o'clock this morning. They measure sticks with Trinity College club, Toronto, here in a few days. The battle with Queen's was their second defeat of the season, but they are by no means discouraged.

A HOME DRESS.

A Beautiful One of Serge and Plaid.

Here is a serge toilette, with Scotch plaid surah silk waist and spangled belt. The serge is prune colored, the velvet black or very dark blue, and the Eton jacket of Scotch plaid, the pattern of which is of large green, and dark blue squares with intersecting black lines, which in turn are crossed by small yellow lines. The belt is of old gold passementerie alternated with imitation gold rings and is closed in front under a rosette. The skirt is perfectly round, just clearing the ground, and is lined with silk or satin, besides which it has an inner lining of muslin of moderate height. It consists of three breadths the front one being only sufficiently sloped to fit the hips. The two back breadths are so much gored that they only form very small pleats at the top. At the sides, however, they must be very slightly sloped. The folds at the back must not be lined, as that would make them too stiff, but must lie quite flat; in fact, in order to attain this effect, a single machine stitching may be run down them. The side darts must also be quite flat and well ironed before they are put on the lining. The bodice is tight fitting and hooks down the middle, and the part where it joins the skirt is hidden by a fancy belt. The back of the bodice is made of seamless surah in such a manner that it can be drawn in at the waist in a few small folds. The stiff collar, which is made of surah, is partially covered by a thick frill of velvet, as per engraving, and is fastened behind with hooks. The sleeves are leg-of-mutton shape, the lower part fitting tightly and the upper part gathered into folds.

FLORETTE.

A Universal Horseshoe.

A new horseshoe recently patented has for its special object the obtaining of better foothold and the lessening of concussion or jarring effect upon the animal's feet. The shoe is made with apertures extending through it, located between the positions usually occupied by the nails. The openings are of dovetailed form and the usual nail holes are provided in the intervening solid metal portions of the shoe. Projecting through the apertures are elastic rubber studs which are fixed on a strip of rubber or leather intervening between the metal shoe and the wall of the hoof and through which the nails are driven in the operation of shoeing. By this construction the grip of the horse's foot is immensely increased, especially on slippery pavements, and the tendency of the horse to leg disease is materially reduced.

SKELETONS.

Not the Family Ones but Those the Doctors Use.

Paris is the head centre of the skeleton trade.

The mode of preparation is a very delicate operation. The scapel is first called into requisition to remove the muscular tissues. Its work being done, the bones are boiled, being carefully watched meanwhile that they may not be overdone. After this cannibalistic procedure they are bleached in the sun. Even the spots of grease are sure to appear when they are exposed to heat. The French treat these with ether and benzine, securing thereby a dazzling whiteness, which is a distinguishing mark of their skeleton. They are warranted never to turn yellow and to stand the test of any climate. New York in midsummer is not too hot for them. They are put together by a master hand.

A brass rod with all the proper curvatures support the spinal column. Delicate brass wires hold the ribs in place. Hinges of the most perfect workmanship give to the joints a graceful and life-like movement. Cleverly concealed hooks and eyes render disjunction at pleasure possible. The whole construction plainly indicates the care and skill of an artist and a connoisseur.

Domestic skeletons are generally the work of amateurs. Janitors in medical colleges rescue bones from the dissecting rooms and cure and articulate them. They find purchasers among the students, who on the completion of their studies resell the skeleton, if happily the market is not glutted. A second-hand skeleton may thus be had at quite a reasonable figure—occasionally as low as $15.

The imported article, however, ranges from $50 to $400. The very high-priced ones are valued because of the preservation of the nervous and circulatory systems. Of course they are beyond the reach of modest purses, and, as a taste for medical and scientific research has not yet developed among the millionaires, very few $400 skeletons are sold. They are always a special order.

A very fine French skeleton may be had for $150, and that is about as high as the general run of purchasers care to go.

Skulls, hands and feet may be purchased separately, but to obtain a rib, an arm or a collar-bone, the whole affair must be bought.

A skull and cross-bones, suitable for decorative purposes, cost but $10. The skull has but one cut, and although it may be pretty, it is not artistic.

For $22 a skull that will unhinge and reveal its hidden contents is possible. The bones of the ear are comprised in this treasure.—Boston Herald.

An obedience to the simple laws of hygiene and the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla will enable the most delicate man or sickly woman to pass in ease and safety from the icy atmosphere of February to the warm, moist days of April. It is the best of spring medicines.

This makes six gross or 864 bottles purchased from you since January 10th, 1892, a little more than two months. The large demand is due to the merits of the preparation, as our customers to whom we have sold it certify. A Friend

Wishes to speak through the Register of the beneficial results he has received from a regular use of Ayer's Pills. He says: "I was feeling sick and tired and my stomach seemed all out of order. I tried a number of remedies, but none seemed to give me relief until I was induced to try the old reliable Ayer's Pills. I have taken only one box, but I feel like a new man. I think they are the most pleasant and easy to take of anything I ever used, being so finely sugar-coated that even a child will take them. I urge upon all who are of a laxative to try Ayer's Pills."—Boothbay (Me.) Register.

"Between the ages of five and fifteen, I was troubled with a kind of salt-rheum, or eruption, chiefly confined to the legs, and especially to the bend of the knee above the calf. Here, running sores formed which would scab over, but would break immediately on moving the leg. My mother tried everything she could think of, but all was without avail. Although a child, I read in the papers about the beneficial effects of Ayer's Pills, and persuaded my mother to let me try them. With no great faith in the result, she procured and I began to use them, and soon noticed an improvement. Encouraged by this, I kept on till I took two boxes, when the sores disappeared and have never troubled me since."—H. Chipman, Real Estate Agent, Roanoke, Va.

"I suffered for years from stomach and kidney troubles, causing very severe pains in various parts of the body. None of the remedies I tried afforded me any relief until I began taking Ayer's Pills, and was cured."—Wm. Goddard, Notary Public, Five Lakes, Mich.

DAINTINESS

In Many Instances is Only Another Name for Starchiness.

The hat sketched is of otter brown plaited chenille, trimmed with a large bow of velvet and ostrich feathers of a lighter shade. Its owner wore such a pretty gown! It had three ruffles of quite stiff stuff on the inside and they came almost to the knee. The bottom one was quite deep and had a wire run in the edge, the next was not so deep but had a wire, too, and the top one was without a wire and narrow and full. Of course all that made the skirt stick out, and, oh, how pretty and cute it looked. It is horrid to think of getting into a sort of cage that leaves you lonely and forlorn a-walking around away in the middle of your skirt, but to have the skirt full of crisp ruffles is not so bad. By the way, no fashion for many years has lasted at all, that has not had some kind of crispness to recommend it. Shirt fronts are crisp, bows and trimmings have long been wired into perky stiffness, even the soft Empire gown has to have stiff, crisp sleeves. Starch was all the rage once, and the countries where fashions do not change, among the peasantry I mean, are always characterized by crispness. Head-dresses and neckkerchiefs are as stiff as stiff can be, and such a lot of them to each one. Almost all such fashions have the skirt standing out, partly from fullness, and partly from numerous and starched petticoats. I think there must be something symbolic of feminine daintiness about starchiness, or stiffness that is crisp. How a woman delights in having a scrunchy sound follow her movements. When starched skirts were forbidden we got at once into the scrunchy silk ones. A woman to please herself must seem to not only have come out of a band-box, but to be habitually kept there, and to be out only for just as long as you happen to be looking at them.

FLORETTE.

Forest Wise People.

It has occurred to the long-headed, public-spirited citizens of Pennsylvania that the time has come to devise measures for the preservation of the forests of that state. Accordingly they have procured the introduction of a bill in the legislature which provides for the appointment of a forestry commission whose duty it shall be "to examine and report on the condition of the slopes and summits of the state and the presence or absence of forests thereon, for the purpose of determining the influence on the stage of the water in the rivers, the amount of timber remaining standing and how the supply can be increased and maintained.

The Convenience of Tiles.

The housekeeper who has a proper regard for her kitchen furnishing will have numerous tiles. Hot dishes placed on wooden tables invariably scorch the wood and generally leave a line of soot or grease that it requires a good deal of scrubbing to remove. The tiles will save this unnecessary labor, for they can be easily washed, and they will not burn. They can be bought for five cents apiece and will wear "forever." A row of them on the back of the kitchen table and another on the serving table will be found a great convenience.

Why Medical Science Makes Slow Progress.

In his "History of England in the Eighteenth Century," Mr. Lecky has the following passage: "Hardly any other of the great branches of human knowledge is at present so backward, tentative, and empirical as medicine, and there is not much doubt that the law of supply and demand is a main cause of the defect. Almost all the finer intellects which are devoted to this subject are turned away from independent investigations to the lucrative paths of professional practice; there time is engrossed with cases most of which could be treated quite as well by men of inferior capacity, and they do little or nothing to enlarge the bounds of our knowledge."

E. Jardine, North Sidney, C. B., says:—"I have used your Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with decided success, and would recommend them to any one suffering as I did from weakness and impoverished blood. Your pills have afforded wonderful relief and I believe them to be unequalled." All dealers or by mail, post paid, at 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50. Dr. Williams' Med. Co. Brockville, Ont.

Pale, Weak Women need a tonic strength giving, flesh building medicine like Milburn's Beef, Iron and Wine.

Couldn't Keep on His Feet.

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 31st, 1892.

To the Peterborough Medicine Company:

GENTLEMEN,—If there is any medicine in the world that I pin my faith to it is Membray's Kidney and Liver Cure. In my business I have to stand on my feet a good deal. About a year ago my back began to give out, weakening pains set in across my kidneys, I felt tired all the time and could hardly stand up to my work. I began to lose strength and at last had to give up work altogether. A customer advised me to try your cure which I did. Before half the bottle was used, I felt the pains and weakness leaving me and to-day I enjoy good health and can bear fatigue and work all right. One bottle was all I used.

ALF. HASKILL, barber.

A Pleasant Herb Drink.

The best cure we know of for constipation and headache is the pleasant herb drink called Lane's Family Medicine. It is said to be Oregon grape root, combined with simple herbs, and is made for use by pouring boiling water onto the dried roots and herbs. It is remarkably efficacious in all blood disorders, and is now the sovereign remedy with ladies for clearing up the complexion. Druggists sell the packages at 50c. and $1.

When in Despair.

When in despair of being cured of lung troubles, there is still a hope, and a strong hope of perfect cure in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This medicine cures even after all others have failed, and no one suffering from coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, hoarseness, etc., need despair of cure while Norway Pine Syrup is obtainable.

THE COAL MONOPOLISTS

ARE OVERTAKEN WITH DISASTER IN THEIR GREED.

They Were Reaching Out for the Earth and a Close Board Fence, and They Fell Into the Clutches of Other Wealth Abusers.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The Philadelphia and Reading Railway is in the hand of receivers. Its credit and its power in the financial world are gone and the ownership of its panic-blown, widely-scattered stock is unknown.

The rise and fall of one of the most extensive and ambitious railroad combinations ever attempted are embraced in the comparatively brief period of one year and a fortnight. It was just a year ago this month that the formation of the great Reading-Jersey Central-Lehigh Valley alliance was publicly announced. Railroad men and Wall-street financiers were surprised and impressed by the magnitude of the combination. In mileage it was the largest railroad system in the east, and its ownership of coal mines made it apparently the arbitrator of the coal markets of the country.

The hand of J. Pierpont Morgan was frankly disclosed in the new combination and the prestige of his name added much to the public confidence in the stability of the scheme.

Archibald McLeod was hailed as the saviour of Reading and praised as the coming railroad magnate of the world. His simple declaration of what he intended to do was popularly accepted as the statement of a thing accomplished.

Mr. McLeod has not been indolent in his high estate. His brief career, as president of the Reading system, has been marked by an uncommon exhibition of activity, energy and personal self-reliance. His administration forms a unique and theatrical chapter in the history of American railroads. The dissolution of the Reading combination which culminated to-day was begun by the opposition of the New Jersey authorities and courts to the formation of a coal trust.

It was the New England extension, which practically was a declaration of war against the powerful New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad corporation, that caused the successive uprising of obstacles over which Mr. McLeod has been stumbling for the past few months. By invading the territory of the consolidated system he antagonized strong financial interests represented by Drexel, Morgan & Co., which at the outset was his most powerful backer. The relations between Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan and the Reading management at once became strained, and it was not long before Mr. McLeod found his feet slipping off his financial basis.

The excitement in the New York stock exchange over the Reading stock to-day surpassed all previous movements in that stock. More shares than are represented in Reading's entire stock changed hands. The total number of shares of all kinds of stocks sold to-day aggregated 1,453,000. Of these 957,955 were Reading shares. This tremendous day's business breaks the Stock Exchange record.

BADLY SEWED UP.

The Reading Railway Co. Affairs in the Hands of a Receiver.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 21.—The application for a receivership for the Reading Railway Co was granted by Judge Dallas late this afternoon. The application was made by ex-Senator Thomas C. Platt of New York as a holder of the company's third preference bonds. The receivers appointed are: A. A. McLeod, president; Elisha P. Wilbur of the Lehigh Valley division of the Reading and Edward M. Parson, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of Pennsylvania. The receivers' bond is $500,000.

Fishermen's Luck.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—The fishing boats Charlotte and Jessie foundered in a storm in the boats were drowned.

A terrific storm has swept the northeast off Wick yesterday. All the 19 men coast of Scotland since early yesterday. Much wreckage has drifted ashore and reports of small losses of life at various points are received hourly.

African Feuds.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Mail advices from Cape Palmas, on the Liberian coast, state that the feuds of the natives at Rocktown culminated on Jan. 26 in a battle in which 40 natives were killed and 200 wounded. As the mails left hostilities were renewed.

Makes Flesh and Blood.

When the system is all run down and there seems to be no hope of obtaining nourishment for the body by the ordinary process of food supply and digestion, when the body is sinking fast, then is the time to use Miller's Emulsion of pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil. It always works wonders, because it is a flesh and blood maker, and contains all the constituents for nourishment found in wheat, in fact Miller's Emulsion is a perfect "staff of life" and has saved and cured thousands. In big bottles, 50c. and $1, at all Drug Stores.

Not a Particle.

A feature worth noticing in regard to Burdock Blood Bitters is that it does not contain one particle of poisonous matter. It cures and cures quickly without the use of any injurious ingredients. B.B.B is a purely vegetable specific for dyspepsia, constipation, bad blood, headache, biliousness and all diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels and blood.

Delay is Dangerous.

When the kidney's are out of order delay is dangerous. Any disease may follow and become so well established that months of suffering will follow. A gentle tonic like Dodd's Kidney Pills is always acceptable to the kidneys and protects them from disease. They are a kidney food.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for coughs and colds does it, is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle FREE, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c. and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

Reduced to a Science.

The treatment of disease is now almost reduced to a science. A scientific product of medical skill for the cure of all blood diseases from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore, which has held popular esteem for years and increases steadily in favor, is Burdock Blood Bitters. Its cures prove its worth.

Are free from all crude and irritating matter. Concentrated medicine only. Carter's Little Liver Pills. Very small; very easy to take; no pain; no griping; no purging. Try them.

News About Town.

It is the current report about town that Kemp's Balsam for the throat and lungs is making some remarkable cures with people who are troubled with coughs, sore throat, asthma, bronchitis and consumption. Any druggist will give you a trial bottle FREE OF COST. It is guaranteed to relieve and cure. The large bottles are 50c. and $1.

RIFLE ASSOCIATION.

DOMINION ORGANIZATION ELECTS LT.-COL. GIBSON PRESIDENT.

He Favors the Substitution of the Martini-Henri Rifle for the Snider—Lord Stanley's Graceful Interest in the Association.

OTTAWA, Feb. 22.—At the annual meeting of the Dominion Rifle Association, which took place in the Railway Committee room of the House of Commons yesterday Hon. Lieut.-Col. Gibson, vice-president for Ontario, in the absence of the president, Hon. Lieut.-Col. Kirkpatrick, occupied the chair. There were also present: Lord Stanley, with Major St. Aubyn; Mr. Patterson, Minister of Militia; Major-General Herbert and others.

The annual report of the association was taken as read. It showed that the affiliation fees from rifle associations last year amounted to $722, as against $703 the year previous. The receipts from special donations amounted to $930, as against $640 received in 1891, an increase of $290.

Entry fees to matches amounted to $4304.59 as against $4424.67 received in 1891, an increase of $79.92. The sale of ammunition amounted to $1287 as against $1101. Cash prizes and badges amounted to $7568, as against $7299 last year. The Bisley team expenditure amounted to $5720.21, as against $5556.15 in 1891; an increase of $164.06.

The receipts from all sources for the year amounted to $18,849.29, which, with the balance of $945.95 from last year, shows a total of $19,795.24 on the credit side of account. The expenditure amounted to $19,741.66, showing a balance of $53.58 in favor of the association at the end of the year.

Lieut.-Col. Gibson (chairman) spoke of the transactions of the year, and in doing so said that it was generally conceded by most riflemen nowadays that the Snider rifle should be abolished and that the Martini-Henri should in future be used in its stead. Speaking of the Bisley team, he said that the Canadians were neck and neck with the Mother Country team.

Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, in presenting a vote of thanks to His Excellency the Governor-General for his valuable contributions and other assistance always rendered the association, said that Lord Stanley had endeared himself to all riflemen and members of the militia during his stay in Canada. When Lord Stanley would leave Canada he would carry along with him the esteem of all Canadians. It was with some regrets that he left the militia, but these regrets were alleviated by the fact that one more able than himself had taken hold of that department.

Lord Stanley, in reply, said he was more than touched by the kind reference which Mr. Bowell had made to himself. He also desired to thank the association for postponing their meeting from last week, thus giving him an opportunity of being present with them. The cloud which then overhung his family was sufficiently lifted now to permit him to be amongst them.

He referred to the pleasure which it always gave him to associate with them as one of themselves. Since last year there was a change in the head of the Militia Department, Mr. Bowell being transferred to another sphere in the public service. What he knew of his successor, Mr. Patterson, although younger in the public service, he had always found him anxious and willing to advance the interest of the force.

He agreed with what Col. Gibson had said in regard to a better rifle for the force. [Hear, hear.] The Snider was an obsolete weapon. [Hear, hear.] He did not believe in waiting much longer and thought that the Martini Henri would be a suitable weapon for the Canadian militia for many years. The question of ranges while land was easily got ought to be considered. This was a matter which belonged to the department more than to the association. In conclusion he said that in leaving Canada he would bring along with him the most pleasant recollections of his intercourse with the association and its members. [Cheers.]

Lieut.-Col. Burland moved a vote of thanks to the Minister of Militia.

Mr. Patterson, in accepting the vote, said that the Dominion Rifle Association and the Dominion Artillery Association were kindred associations, which kept interest in the militia force alive in Canada. He agreed with His Excellency as to his remarks in regard to the Snider rifle, and he trused the association would carry them into effect in future, and that the Martini would be the weapon used in all rifle competitions. [Cheers.] He was glad to be able to say that the grant would be continued to the Canadian Rifle League. [Cheers.] He said it would be his duty to take the advice of the major-general commanding and throw the responsibility on him.

Both he and the General were of opinion that it would be better to have a smaller and more efficient force than one existing on paper. Those military men in the country who got up organizations for the sake of a military career would find their career very short-lived if they did not come up to the necessary standard. [Cheers.] The Militia Department he would not have selected for himself, but finding that he was now there, and that he was not consulted, he was going to do his duty no matter who he hit. [Cheers.]

Major-General Herbert did not agree with doing away with the Snider rifle at competitions as long as the militia was armed with it. As regards arming the force, the General favored not the Martini as it is now, but the Martini, converted into a small bore weapon, like the Lee-Metford, without the magazine attachment. The cost of such an arm would be little more than the simple re-arming with the Martini.

A letter was read from Hon. Lieut.-Col. Kirkpatrick, resigning the presidency and offering a challenge cup to the association for competition.

Mr. Patterson then moved the election of Lieut.-Col. Gibson as president. As a famous rifleman and colonel of the 13th Battalion, in addition to the high distinction he had attained in other walks of life, he would prove a worthy successor to Mr. Kirkpatrick.

Mr. Bowell seconded the motion. In doing so he said that he knew Mr. Gibson many years ago. Both at one time used to sling ink at each other when pressmen. They always continued to remain good friends, and he would like to see so worthy a successor to Mr. Kirkpatrick as Mr. Gibson.

Major-General Herbert in supporting the motion said that the Thirteenth Battalion, of which Lieut.-Col. Gibson was in command, was in a high state of efficiency, and carried off the honors for the district after a very severe test.

Mr. Gibson, in accepting the position, did so with all the more pleasure, seeing that the mover and seconder were political opponents of his. He would do all in his power to fill the office and discharge the duties connected with it to the satisfaction of the members of the association. [Cheers.]

Daily Examiner.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1893.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

OTTAWA, Feb. 22.—The budget debate was resumed yesterday by Mr. Smith (Ontario), who spoke for about half an hour, but who has the honor of having crowded more good matter into less space than any one who has yet spoken on the budget.

With regard to binder twine he said that the member for South Huron had boasted that the Ontario Government was making binder twine and selling it for nine cents a pound, but it must be remembered that the Ontario Government had no interest on investment to pay; no rent and cheap convict labor; and yet his year in his riding the price of binder twine was only 10 to 11 cents. In conclusion he said he was quite content with the promise made by the Government of revising the tariff next year.

Mr. Charlton followed at considerable length, speaking up to 6 o'clock and for an hour after recess. He went over most of the usual objections to the National Policy, and attacked the Government generally. He strongly opposed a re-imposition of the export duty on logs, and accused the Government of bad faith in the matter of a reciprocity treaty with the United States, because when an appeal was made to the people it was stated that negotiations were going on for a reciprocity treaty, but after the elections were over the Government made no effort to secure a treaty.

Mr. Charlton having stated in effect that the Canadian Government had announced that it was certain of getting a reciprocity treaty, Hon. Mr. Foster said: "I would like to have my hon. friend understand what he is saying and the result of such an assertion. I would like to ask him for proof of that assertion. He just now made the assertion in so many words that we were certain of getting a reciprocity treaty. Will he show the proof?"

Mr. Charlton: I will read the document.

Mr. Laurier: At all events there is no doubt that assertion is false. [Liberal cheers.]

Hon. Mr. Foster: I have not the least doubt that it is a false assertion in the mouth of the hon. gentleman. [Conservative cheers.]

Mr. Charlton went on to read from The Toronto Empire, amid cries of "Oh! oh! and where is your proof?" Was that not, he asked, an authorized source of information?

Mr. Charlton proceeded to read that, "It is understood that the Dominion Government have through Her Majesty's Government made certain proposals to the United States for negotiations looking to the extension of our commerce to that country. And the Canadian Government is of the opinion that, if the negotiations are to result in a treaty which must be ratified by the Parliament of Canada, it it expedient that the Government shall be able to deal with a parliament fresh from the people rather than a moribund house."

Hon. Mr. Foster: Miles away from your proof yet.

Mr. Charlton proceeded to say that what the Government stated was that they were at that moment negotiating and expected to successfully consummate a treaty. That was the plea upon which they went to the people, and they deceived the people. All Mr. Blaine had said was that there was nothing in the law to prevent the people of Canada from sending a commission to Washington if they chose, and if they came he should not, without discourtesy, refuse to see them. Yet we had this game played in connection with a political struggle in this country.

Hon. Mr. Foster: What assertion?

Mr. Charlton persisted in calling it an "assertion," and Hon. Mr. Foster defied him to show that there was any assertion about it whatever.

Hon. Mr. Laurier broke in with: "I will show that Mr. Blaine himself took Sir Charles Tupper to task for this statement." [Opposition cheers.]

Hon. Mr. Foster: Mr. Blaine did nothing of the kind.

After some further parrying Mr. Charlton complained that he was being embarrassed by interruptions, and went on to say that he had been asked to give Mr. Blaine's letter, and would do so.

Hon. Mr. Foster: Not at all; I did not ask you for that.

Mr. Charlton said that Sir Julian Pauncefote, when the pretended revelations were made, went to Mr. Blaine and apologized in the most abject manner for a seeming breach of faith on his part. [Cries of "Not at all" and laughter.]

Mr. Charlton went on to say that by a shameless administration this country had made the United States Government a catspaw to pull Tory chestnuts out of the fire in the election contests in Canada.

It being 6 o'clock the Speaker left the chair.

Dr. Wilson spoke briefly in support of the Government, and was followed by Mr. Calvin of Frontenac, who created a little surprise amongst Conservatives, and enthusiastic cheering on the Opposition side of the House by announcing that he intended to vote for Sir Richard Cartwright's amendment.

The debate was continued by Messrs. McMillan, Ross (Dundas), Semple and Boyd until midnight, when Mr. Davies moved the adjournment of the debate.

It is understood that the debate will be closed to-morrow, and a division will probably be reached early Friday morning.

Mr. Dickson Patterson is in town and at work on a portrait of Mr. Trudeau, late Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals, having received a commission therefor from the old associates in the department of the late deputy. They intend the portrait as a testimonial to Mr. Trudeau on his superannuation.

Hon. J. C. Patterson, Minister of Militia, gave the largest dinner party of the session in the Senate restaurant to-night. It included most of the knights, colonels, majors and captains in the House, all the ex-Ministers of War, the Major-General and the Governor-General's military staff. Mr. Laurier, Sir Richard Cartwright, Mr. Davies, Mr. Edgar and others of the Opposition were also present. The party numbered over 50.

Mr. Newcombe of Halifax, who was referred to in this correspondence some days ago as the probable [illegible] of Judge Sedgewick as Deputy Minister of Justice, has been appointed. He left for Halifax to-day and will return in about two weeks to enter on his duties.

Mr. Charlton to-day introduced a bill to amend the Customs Act in such a manner as to take from the Governor-General-in-council the power now possessed under the law of reimposing an export duty on logs. In explaining his bill he said that the Budget Speech of the Finance Minister had caused great disquietude in the lumber trade, because it was uncertain whether the export duty on logs would be reimposed or not. By this amendment the duty could not be reimposed except by Parliament. The bill was read a first time.

In reply to Hon. Mr. Laurier Sir John Thompson said that he would let him know to-morrow about the issue of the writ for South Middlesex.

Hon. Mr. Ouimet, in reply to Mr Coatsworth on the question of the unsuitability of the Government Buildings in Toronto for carrying on public business satisfactorily and the advisability of placing all the Government offices in Toronto in one building, said that the attention of his department had been called to the matter and a report had been ordered with a view to getting all the information possible on the subject.

Mr. Fremont to-night gave notice for copies of all correspondence, documents and letters in relation to the establishment of a rapid transit service between Great Britain and Canada.

Dr. Weldon appears determined to follow up his attack on the Nova Scotia coal deal, and to-night gives notice that he will move for an address to His Excellency for all correspondence, petitions and papers that are in possession of the Government relating to the disallowance of chapter 1 of the Acts of Nova Scotia dated 1892, "An act to amend and consolidate the acts relating to mines and mining," including the petition of David McKeen and others in respect to the act.

Dr. Sproule to-night gives notice of a bill to regulate private detective, financial and commercial agencies. It provides that all such agents must register and take out licenses annually. It also requires that some person must be named in each province to be served with papers in any suits, and that bonds must be deposited with the Receiver-General for the security of persons who may recover judgment for illegal injury done to their business.

In the Senate to-day the following bills were read a second time and referred to the Committee on Divorce: For the relief of James Balfour, for the relief of Edmund Holyoake Howard, for the relief of Robert Young Hebden and for the relief of Martha Ballantyne.

Senator Almon's bill, respecting the Nova Scotia Permanent Benefit Building Society, and Hon. Mr. Bowell's bill to extend the time in which members of the militia force who received scrip for services in the North-west can take up land, were read a second time.

THE MINING INSTITUTE.

The Annual Report Gives Plenty of Statistics.

MONTREAL, Feb. 23.—The annual meeting of the American Institute of Mining Engineers was opened here yesterday.

The annual report of the council was presented. The receipts during the year, including a balance of $1718.89, were $26,595.15, and expenditures $23,131.27, leaving a surplus of $3463.88. In addition to this the treasurer holds United States bonds to the value of $2900, and a special deposit of $4598, proceeds of United States bonds called in and paid by the Government, which fund has not been permanently reinvested.

Three meetings had been held during the year. One honorary member, 225 members and 30 associates were elected; 9 associates had become members; 7 members had been reinstated on payment of arrears. The deaths of 4 foreign members, 20 members and 3 associates had been reported; 4 associates had resigned and 53 members and 1 associate had been dropped for non-payment of dues. The total membership now was 2376, of which 15 are honorary members, 38 foreign members, 2136 members and 187 associates. The net gain in membership during the year was 154. Four deaths from the list of old foreign members and of 23 members and associates were reported.

The council having accepted, in the name of the Institute, the charge of the two divisions of mining and metallurgy of the International Engineering Congress to be held in Chicago during the week beginning July 31, 1893, no meeting of the Institute will be held after the present meeting and prior to said congress. The two divisions above mentioned will constitute regular meetings of the Institute as well as parts of the congress.

The secretary announced that the Columbian subscription now amounted to $4180.16, and that $4000 of this would be paid into the headquarters of the Joint Emergency Committee at Chicago.

Commercial Cable Company.

MONTREAL, Feb. 23.—The annual report of the Commercial Cable Company was mailed from New York to the shareholders. It shows gross earnings for the year 1892 of $1,890,377 and a net of $1,099,587, which is equivalent to about 14 1-4 per cent. on the capital stock.

The company paid off $600,000 of bonds on Jan. 15, 1892, and made provision to pay off $600,000 more on Jan. 15, 1893. The original bonded debt of $3,000,000 now stands at $400,000. The company reports its cables and plant in excellent condition.

Serious Accident.

WINGHAM, Feb. 23.—Mr. John Bell, one of the best known residents of Wingham and brother of Mr. Thomas Bell, proprietor of the Wingham furniture factory, had his foot and the lower part of the leg torn off while putting a belt on its pulley in his brother's factory. The doctors amputated the limb, but hold out faint hopes of recovery. He is the father of a family, all of whom are fortunately grown up and able to do for themselves.

One Killed, Twenty Injured.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Feb. 23.—At 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon a passenger train on the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad was wrecked two miles east of Columbia by a broken rail. The locomotive and baggage and mail cars passed over all right, but the smoking car and first coach left the track, turned over and went down an embankment 15 feet high. One man was killed and 20 injured.

Montreal Fire Rates.

MONTREAL, Feb. 23.—Insurance underwriters here are talking of advancing insurance rates, as a result of the recent big fires in Montreal. They claim that the brigade is badly mismanaged, and they cannot be depended upon in the event of a large fire. An investigation into the management of the brigade is asked for, and the agitation may lead to the appointment of a new chief in place of Chief Benoit.

R. & O. Navigation Company.

MONTREAL, Feb. 23.—The Board of Directors of the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Co. met yesterday and decided to make radical changes in the management of the line. A number of the old officials will have to go, and young men will be appointed in their places. The directors propose a more aggressive policy in the future.

TALKING CIVIL WAR.

Orangemen in the North of Ireland are Said to Be Arranging to Fight.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—It is reported from Belfast that the Orange societies in the North of Ireland are preparing for forcible resistance to a Home Rule Parliament, should one be established. It is being arranged that all the Irish opponents of Home Rule shall simultaneously withdraw their deposits from the postoffice savings banks, and purchase arms to be used in case physical force should become necessary to prevent the assertion of Irish Home Rule in Ulster.

Enquiries are already being made with a view to contracts for a supply of the latest improved weapons, and an Orange club at Dungannon has received an offer from a Birmingham factory of 1000 Martini rifles.

Excitement is running very high among the Ulster Loyalists, and many of them declare that in the event of the enactment of the Home Rule civil war will ensue.

ULSTER ORANGEMEN.

They Send Out a Vehement Manifesto Against Home Rule.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The Grand Orange Lodge of Belfast has sent out a vehement manifesto against Gladstone's Home Rule bill. The manifesto demands either union with Great Britain or complete separation from Great Britain. "We would accept the latter," says the manifesto, "sorrowfully but courageously as the only alternative left to a deserted and betrayed people, but we would resist to the death any attempt to force upon us a bastard combination of the two."

The manifesto names March 9 as the date of a great Unionist demonstration in Ulster Hall, when the men of Ulster will formally declare their uncompromising opposition to the Home Rule bill. The manifesto closes with the exhortation that the Unionists avoid anything calculated to cause disorder and thus likely to betray them into the hands of their historic foes.

Bank of Ireland's stock has fallen nine points since the introduction of the Home Rule bill.

BARKER'S FAILURE.

The Message Left in a Railway Car by a Suicide.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Hilton Barker, one of the principal members of the firm of G. Barker & Co., who failed June last, committed suicide yesterday in a railway carriage near Putney.

The failure created much excitement, being for the sum of $3,250,000. The Barkers were under arrest on charges of fraud. Hilton Barker had been despondent. He claimed his intentions had been honest and that he was simply unfortunate. He provided himself with a revolver before taking the train and put the revolver to his head, blowing out his brains. In one of his pockets was found a telegram addressed to the official receiver, saying, "Come and fetch your victim."

Strange Action of a Mayor.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—At the Grenoble assizes yesterday Blanche Deschamps, 13 years old, was placed on trial for having robbed and drowned a young girl. It came to light during the proceedings that the mayor of the commune in which the child lived had signed an agreement with her parents not to have her prosecuted in case they gave 85 francs. He received the money and yesterday said he regarded the agreement as equitable and mutually beneficial. The mayor is an uneducated peasant.

Canadian Immigration.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The Canadian Gazette came out with an editorial yesterday urging the Canadian steamship companies not to spoil the excellent immigration prospects by increasing their rates, especially in view of the activity of Canada's rivals, notably the Australian Colonies.

Canada's Merchant Marine.

MUST GIVE BONDS.

Employes of the Canadian Express Under New Instructions.

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—There has been considerable commotion of late among the clerks, drivers, messengers and other employes of the Canadian Express Company. The mandate of the directorate has gone forth that each and every servant of the company must furnish bonds for a specified amount or quit the employ of the company forthwith. This bit of unwelcome news has not yet been broken to the employes of the local branch, but at those offices of the company where the men have been notified of the order there has been considerable protest. In London the employes to a man have refused to sign and are practically on strike. The local agent there has declared that he will strictly enforce the order and here the matter stands.

Mr. R. G. Wilson, assistant local agent in Toronto gives as a reason that the Grand Trunk directorate, which has controlled the Canadian Express Company for the past year, had simply resolved to place the servants of the Express Company on the same footing as its other employes. "The management considered that servants who held responsible positions ought to give security. Mr. Wilson said old employes, who had been in the service of the company for 20 years, took it as a great hardship to be required to furnish bonds. The American Express Company when in operation in Canada had always exacted bonds from its employes."

Judge Baxter Dead.

THOROLD, Feb. 23.—Judge Baxter, County Court Judge, died of heart disease at his residence yesterday morning. He had been ailing for some time and his death was not unexpected. He obtained leave of absence last summer and availed himself of an ocean voyage and while in England consulted eminent London physicians regarding his condition. He returned not much improved in health. He was confined to his bed for four weeks before his death.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

In the afternoon the attendance was better, quite a number of additional members having made their appearance. Before the regular meeting began an interesting informal talk was held between the local members relating their individual experiences on various matters.

VALUE OF AN APPLE ORCHARD.

Mr. E. B. Edwards said that an orchard of apple trees was worth from $40 to $60 an acre. Orchard land in good bearin: he claimed was worth $1000 an acre. It may seem an extravagant figure, but after all it only represented about six per cent. on the investment. He recommended that a committee be appointed to see if it could not be possible to arrange for a more combined action in apple growing.

Mr. Trotter, manager for the Rochester Star Nurseries, said that a joint stock company had been formed in Berwick, N. S., for the purpose of putting in a large orchard of apple trees and other fruits for the purpose of making it a paying speculation. He was receiving large orders from farmers in Ontario, especially from the vicinity of Belleville, for orders of 500 apple trees and upwards, which showed that increased attention was being paid in Canada to fruit growing.

CAUSES OF FAILURE IN APPLE GROWING.

Mr. Wolverton said one of the great mistakes people made in growing apples was that they did not value the fruit after they got it. Not only as food for man, but as feed for stock it has proved to be a great success, by giving rations of apples every day to cows and horses. When horses were not at work, the addition of cull apples saved a large quantity of oats. With a bushel of cut hay, a quart of chop and a peck of apples, I have fed my horses with very great success. There is no reason why we can't make the apple orchard make up for other failures on the farm. A good many orchards are planted on a bad part of the farm. He himself had put his first orchard on the worst land he had, thinking that apples could get on anywhere. This was a mistake. The neglect to cultivate the orchard was another cause of failure. If we never turn up the soil and expose the roots around our orchards the chances are we can never have good fruit trees. Another mistake was starving our orchards. He knew of no crop that took so much from the soil as the apple orchard. The application of potash to our fruit trees was found to be of very great value. It was the seed in the fruit that exhausted the soil. There was nothing better than barn manure for apple orchard, and there was no place that it would be better to put it. The cheapest fertilizer of all, however, was wood ashes. Nothing can be applied that will do so much good to our apple orchards and nothing can be bought so cheaply as wood ashes. It was also one of the best things for the grapes—the vineyard needs potash, and the wood ashes should be applied liberally. Another error was the annual butchery of our orchards. He referred to the ruthless manner of cutting off the large lower limbs, and leaving a large short stump that would never heal over. To treat a tree in this manner was butchery, as this pruning was left until the summer when the leaves were all out. The fact is that if the leaves are stored up a large amount of the vitality of tree will be saved. Pruning should be done so as to favour the natural growth of, and shape of the tree, and do as little pruning as you can. When it is found necessary to make large cuts in a tree it ought to be protected with something to keep out the action of the air—common paint for instance or sherlac or varnish will do. But never prune close to the tree, and never in the winter time or cold weather. He then alluded to the neglect to fight the insects and moths. The curculio also effected our fruits, and the spraying mixtures referred to by Prof Craig in the morning, were highly recommended. Soft soap and washing soda—½ pound of the soda to the pail—mixed to the consistency of paint and applied with a brush was an excellent application. Another mistake was in the harvesting of apples. Shaking the trees of course was "played out," but careful picking and handling was still necessary. Winter apples ought to be picked as soon as they have reached their best colour. It will also pay to consider the size of barrels for packing apples. There was a legal size of barrel smaller than was generally used, which did not hold within a peck of the flour or sugar barrel. He also recommended smaller packages for extra fruit. This should be the time to ship apples to the old country. Instead of which we have all rushed our apples into the English market, and so glutted it that by Christmas time, prices had dropped very low. So that we must go in for cold storage and keep our apples until about this season of the year when high prices prevailed in the home markets.

Mr. Ferguson—What is the best time for packing apples?

Prof. Craig—As soon as possible after the seeds turn black. They should not be allowed to hang after that. He showed two samples of the "Wealthy,"—one pulled ten days earlier than the other. The early pulled apple was better colored, had a better appearance, and was sounder than the one pulled later.

BLOSSOMS, GRAFTING.

Prof. Craig gave a valuable exposition on this subject. He again illustrated his address by charts. He gave a very interesting explanation of the multiplication of the variety and the individual—diagnosing the apple blossom, and showing the perfect organism therein contained, until it reached the perfect fruit. He explained the process of budding—how the perfect bud in one tree was propagated on the wood of another tree; also the various methods of grafting, treatment of scions, their gradual growth, etc.

On motion of Mr. Davidson, seconded by Mr. Garbutt, a committee was appointed consisting of Messrs. Fred. Stinson, G. M. Roger, Jos. Giles, Jas. McKibbon, and Jas. Middleton, with the president and secretary, to take such steps as they may deem advisable for the collection of specimens of fruits for the Chicago Exhibition.

On motion a unanimous vote of thanks was tendered to Messrs. Craig and Wolverton, for their very valuable information on the various subjects brought before the association.

Both these gentlemen acknowledged the vote and congratulated the Association on the presence of representatives of the press, who would aid in disseminating the information given to members who had not been able to be present.

The meeting then adjourned.

Look at the size of the ordinary pill. Think of all the trouble and disturbance that it causes you. Wouldn't you welcome something easier to take, and easier in its ways, if at the same time it did you more good? That is the case with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They're the smallest in size, the mildest in action, but the most thorough and far-reaching in results. They follow nature's methods and they give help that lasts. Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, Sick and Bilious Headaches, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels, are promptly relieved and permanently cured.

"If we can't cure your Catarrh, no matter how bad your case or of how long standing, we'll pay you $500 in cash." That is what is promised by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Doesn't it prove, better than any words could, that this is a remedy that cures Catarrh? Costs only 50 cents.

Smart Weed and Belladonna combined with the other ingredients used in the best porous plasters, make Carter's S. W. & B. Backache plasters, the best in the market. Price 25 cents.

Life Assurance Written in 1892 by the Various Canadian Companies.

The SUN leads them all—a practical endorsement by the people of the most progressive liberal and best managed Company in the Dominion. Its record has never been equalled by any Canadian Company. The following figures taken from the "Insurance and Finance Chronicle" speak for themselves. The business written in 1892 compared with that written in 1891:—

BOOKS AS FURNITURE.

Their Value in This Regard Can Hardly be Overestimated.

Regarded purely from a utilitarian standpoint, with no reference whatever to their contents, but simply looked at as furniture, the value of books can hardly be overestimated. Although popularly supposed to be dear, books, considered as investments, are amazingly cheap. In no other direction does so small an expenditure go so far in returning good value for money spent.

To say nothing of the obvious fact that the presence of books in assemblages, so to speak, at once sets a stamp of cultivation on a household, giving it a certificate of refinement which neither costly brio-a-brac nor beautiful upholstery can confer, books are decorative. They lend themselves to the furnishing of alcoves and corners. They are beautiful in shape and charming in color, and marshalled in rows in bookcases tall and stately or bookcases low and cozy, they form agreeable points on which the eye can rest. A bright red book makes a spot from which other colors radiate pleasantly. It is garnered sunshine in a permanent form.

Books lying about on tables, or placed in quaintly carved racks, or standing on brackets, take away from the bareness of a room, and impart to it an exquisite living quality, a quality of life.

This is inseparable from the idea of a book, which is really a bit of embalmed personality, the exhalation of a human soul saved to an earthly immortality. Women always love their "things" in a clinging way to which men are usually strangers. But a man loves his books, loves to see them around him, loves to sit surrounded by them as by friends while he enjoys the ease of slippers and the homely luxury of an evening pipe.

Let nobody fancy herself extravagant when she buys a book. Books are to be owned, not to be borrowed. Is there lacking to your best room the nameless distinction which you have sought in vain, in rugs of price, in faintly toned and glimmering draperies, in billowy chairs and pillowy divans? Let the carpenter construct for you a set of shelves, of pine, if you do not desire a costlier wood. Pine is a fragrant, close-grained wood, beautiful in itself, and easily stained, if a deeper tone is required. Have your shelves low. On the upper one leave space for a bit of royal Worcester or of Lowestoft, for a statuette or a candlestick. Arrange your books below—Black and Besant, Hardy, Dickens, Scott, and others who have given you of their intellectual wealth. Your Shakespeare is of course a many volumed, annotated set—Rolfe's probably—for you must have a Shakespeare you can hold in your hand and slip under the pillow on your lounge. You need a shelf for Shakespeare. And when the book-shelves are made and filled, your room is no longer bare; it is well furnished.

In a little hamlet among the hills, remote from a railroad, in a region where the good wife still sews her rags into many-colored balls, and weaves her own carpet at her own hand-loom, there stands a house most simply, yet most luxuriously furnished. No curtains to hide the hills that go to sleep daily opposite the windows, and awake in the morning flushed and rosy like children opening sweet eyes to the new day. No rugs on the floors, few pictures on the walls, but everywhere books—in the mother's chamber, in the boy's room, in the father's study. And the house is abundantly furnished.—Margaret E. Sangster, in Harper's Bazar.

Curiously Worded.

Following is a copy of an advertisement which appeared in a late copy of the Lincolnton, Ga., News: "Wife wanted, by a young man 21 years old, 6 feet tall, auburn hair and mustache to match; has never killed anybody, nor voted the third party ticket nor taken a drink of whisky. Was educated at the University of Georgia, but was reared in South Carolina. Is good looking and affectionate, has no property, but his people are all rich and his chances are good. Any young lady desiring a husband address F. C. W., this office. When answering please send full description."

The Membership Increased.

"I've got a washing-machine here," began the inventor. The capitalist looked at him in the cold, calculating manner common to capitalists and answered, "Well, if I were you I'd run right home and use it." That night the anarchist band received another application for membership.

DECIMAL COINAGE.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Mr. Gladstone's Chancellor of the Exchequer, has declined to advise the Government to adopt a decimal coinage. Sir W. V. Harcourt is quite right. A decimal coinage is a very good coinage for capitalists, for merchants, for storekeepers, and for persons who keep accounts but it is a very bad coinage for the wage earner, and for those who have little money and have to buy their daily food and necessaries in small quantities. England's coin is the penny, and you buy for a penny all those small articles which in America cost five cents. Thus the same article is 150 per cent dearer in Canada than it is in England. If you meet Jim Willikins' little girl in London, you make her happy with a pennyworth of candies:—the same pleasure in Canada costs you five cents, or two pennies and a half-penny. But that is only a small matter, the important matter is this,—ten can be divided once, whilst twelve can be divided three times. Ten can be halved, but that is all, for if you quarter it there comes in a broken half, and that broken half in every day trading is lost to the purchaser and gained by the storekeeper. Twelve can be halved and quartered, and can be divided into thirds. You can buy half-a-dozen, or a quarter of a dozen, or the third of a dozen. If the decimal plan is so good, why are goods always sold by the dozen and not by tens? The difference to the workingman between the English coinage and the decimal coinage of this country may be fairly estimated as a loss to him of five per cent. on his wages. Sir W. Harcourt was right in refusing to give a decimal coinage. When Canada owns a government as is a government it will issue a two cent coin, and withdraw the five cent coin. Then we shall have a Canadian penny, and the workingman will be a little less defrauded.—Bobcageon Independent.

WARSAW.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The roads are in a very bad condition on account of Sunday's storm.

The village snow ploughs are being pushed pretty hard,

Mr. John Wason has completed his lumbering operations for the winter, having taken out 1,000 pieces of as fine hemlock and pine as has ever been landed on our lake—so say the oldest lumbermen.

The Rev. R. Hyde in his sermon on Sunday morning made a very earnest appeal to backsliders.

There was no service in the Baptist church on Sunday on account of the illness of the pastor, Rev. W. H. Stevens.

The anniversary tea in connection with the Presbyterian church was held on Wednesday night. Beyond a doubt this was by far the most successful tea held for some years. The fine roads and beautiful weather which favoured the occasion brought a large representation from Lakefield and other places. After tea the following gentlemen delivered very pleasing addresses: Rev. Carmichael and Buchanan, Norwood, Lewis and Hyde, Warsaw. Fine music was rendered by the choir.

Rev. Sylvanus Lane

Of the Cincinnati M. E. Conference, makes a good point when he says: "We have for years used Hood's Sarsaparilla in our family of five, and find it fully equal to all that is claimed for it. Some people are greatly prejudiced against patent medicines, but how the patent can hurt a medicine and not a machine is a mystery of mysteries to me."

TO BE OR NOT TO BE "IN IT."

A Life Agent called at a friend's place one day,
HE WASN'T IN IT;
He had seen "the bore" coming and fled from his way
HE WASN'T IN IT;
He had heard so much said, he was tired and sick
Of insurance and agents—'twas all a blank trick,
When one's coil must be shuffled to win it,
HE WASN'T IN IT.

A bit of a draft blew o'er his bald head,
HE WAS IN IT;
Pneumonia sent him straightway to his bed,
HE STAYED IN IT;
His doctor made of it a "quite special" case,
To save him for running still more of life's race,
But the grave took some chances to win it,
AND HE'S IN IT.

When approached by a gent for insuring your life,
GET RIGHT IN IT;
It's the right thing to do for your children and wife,
THEN STAY IN IT.
Remember that fires take your goods "out of sight,"

A Bank Manager's Opinion.
HE IS "IN IT."

The General Manager of one of the leading banks in Canada, writing to a personal friend, says:—"I have no hesitation in saying that I place the CANADA LIFE upon the highest platform. It is in my opinion carefully, economically and honestly managed; its Reserve Funds are well invested; its rates of Premiums are low, and its future is, I think better assured than a great majority of Companies. I have my own life insured in the Company for a round amount, and would not hesitate to increase the amount of my policies should I decide upon taking out further insurance."

A Government Insurance Actuary's Opinion
On the Relation between Ordinary and Tontine Service.

It is frequently asserted by Companies whose business is nearly all tontined, that although the CANADA LIFE may and does pay large ordinary profits, yet it cannot compare so favourably on a long term distribution or tontine period, and that in the end better results can be obtained on a tontine policy in a large American Co. than on an ordinary or tontine policy in the CANADA LIFE. To prove the absurdity of this statement, the following piece of common sense is quoted from Mervin Tabor, late Actuary of the Illinois Goverment Insurance Department. In his well known book, "The Three Systems of Life Insurance," he says: "A company that gives large dividends on the ordinary kind of policies, can give much larger on the same kinds when Tontined, and a company that pays but meagre dividends on the usual forms, adopting perhaps the Tontine system to "cover up" its small surpluses, cannot be relied on for large returns on surplus under the Tontine Forms of Insurance."

The CANADA LIFE does not "cover up" its Quinquennial profits as some Companies do, but publishes them throughout the country.

It can and does surpass other Companies on Quinquennial profits. It should and will surpass them on Tontine profits.

WHY TO BE "IN IT."

BISHOP HAWKE'S REASON:—"I claim that Life Insurance is not only a humane, but I might say a Christian Institution."

LORD LYNDHURST'S REASON:—"A Policy of Life Insurance is always an evidence of prudent forethought. No man with a dependent family is free from reproach if not insured."

WHEN TO BE "IN IT."

The younger, the cheaper. Therefore insure when young. Besides by insuring in the CANADA LIFE now, you will share in three years' profits.

WHERE TO BE "IN IT."

The best place to be "in it" is in the Company that gives the best returns for the least money, consistent with absolute security. Therefore, in order to be "in it," choose the

A Sterling Production.

So much has been read of Madeline Merli, said to be the new Bernhardt, that the company seems to have been forgotten. The management begs to state that the company is of the very best, and in every way suited to their respective parts, both in regard to appearance and ability. The theatre-goers should therefore show their appreciation of the manager's efforts in securing this attraction by giving him a packed house. There are very few really good attractions on the road, and they should be greeted by a full house whenever they visit us. At the Opera House, Saturday, Feb. 25th. Admission, 35, 50 and 75c. 1d

See What the Press Says.

Music goers should not forget the grand concert to be given in the Opera House on March 8th by the Bella Botsford Co., under the auspices of Otonabee Lodge, I. O. O. F. An exchange in speaking of the concert says:—"Miss Botsford who gives to the company its name, was right royally received. The familiar 'Faust Fantasia' was very cleverly executed, and elicited a hearty encore, to which she responded with Moskowski's 'Serenata.' Mr. Lythgoe who is yet quite fresh from his studies in Europe, gave the greatest surprise of the evening and immediately sprang into popular favour with his magnificent baritone voice. 'The Palms,' by Faure, is rarely sung so well, and the 'Two Grenadiers' in the second part of the programme, was grandly rendered. He displayed an excellent method of the modern Italian school." Tickets, 50 and 25 cents.

A New Ritual Received.

The Sons of Canada met in regular weekly meeting in their new lodge rooms last evening, with a large attendance. It may be mentioned that the commodious and well appointed new quarters over Mr. M. T. Ostrom's store, George street, are now thoroughly completed and all the furnishings in place. The rooms are palatially furnished and possess an ease, elegance, comfort and appearance second to no other society's rooms in town. In fact they are a perfect bower of beauty and richness, so costly and elaborate is everything in connection. Five propositions for membership were received at last night's meeting and the initiatory degree duly conferred upon two candidates. An entirely new ritual has been received from the Grand Lodge, and the initiatory ceremony is interesting, instructive and strikingly impressive. Final arrangements with respect to their last carnival of the season at the rink to-morrow evening were also effected.

The Purchase of a Chemical Engine.

The council met in committee of the whole last night with a fair attendance. Several matters were discussed in committee for about two hours. It was resolved to purchase 300 feet of Baker fabric hose, usual size, for the fire department. The principal portion of the evening was utilized in conferring regarding the purchase of a chemical fire engine. Mr. H. Evison, representing the Fire Extinguisher Co'y, Toronto, was present and made an address on behalf of the advantages, benefit and saving the town would reap by the purchase of this fire fighting appliance. It is understood that the preponderance of opinion was largely in favour of the purchase of a chemical engine. A resolution was passed that an engine be purchased on the condition that such would raise Peterborough's insurance to class "A" and if the payment of it could be extended over a number of years. A committee of three were appointed to visit a certain town or towns where a chemical engine is in use and make all necessary inquiries as to its saving of property, fire fighting qualities, etc. The matter was left entirely in the hands of the fire, water and light committee, who will probably bring in a report at the next meeting of the council.

THE SPIRITUAL LIFE.

Able Address Given in St. John's Church Last Evening by Rev. Mr. Symonds.

At the regular Wednesday evening Lenten service held in St. John's church last night there was a large attendance, Rev. J. C. Davidson officiated at the service, after which the address, which was a most admirable and scholarly one, was delivered by Rev. H. Symonds, M. A., rector of St. Luke's church, Ashburnham. The speaker's subject was "Spiritual Life," and he based his impressive remarks on the words found in Deuteronomy viii, and 3rd verse:

"Man doth not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord does man live."

The speaker thought it well to connect his words with his text which expresses the work of the great law giver, Moses, in founding the kingdom of God on earth. It was a land flowing with milk and honey, and throughout the book there is placed considerable stress upon the material things. But every now and then there is a caution not to forget that the things of this world are not the most important. There is another kind of need which has to be satisfied—the needs of the spirit. How could Moses express this thought more beautifully than in the words of the text. What is life? There were words which it was hard to define owing to us not being able to inquire back of them and trace their meaning and so with this word "life." It was a great mystery and could not be adequately explained. Though we could not find it out we knew the various manifestations of it. Life was not only a wonderful but a complex thing. When we strive to understand it, we must not take one class only of living beings as an instance of the complexity of life; look at the different ways in which a man uses his body. But there was something more than physical life, that which is made up of the same constituent we find in the world round about us. A man also makes use of his intellect and in addition

TO HAVING PHYSICAL LIFE

man is endorsed with intellectual life. As humanity rises it admits that intellectual life is higher than our physical capacities. Man may also worship. His soul is then filled with that which is above the physical and intellectual. He contemplates the things eternal and his soul then comes into play. He comes up before Almighty God and feeling his own weakness and utter insufficiency he falls down and worships. It is these things which we describe as spiritual. Man is a complete being and each of these lives are manifestations of the capacities with which he is endowed. Some may ask how do we know that man has such a thing as spiritual life. Physical life we can see and appreciate. We can follow it up and witness its results. The same with the intellectual. The knowledge we have of these is the same as we have of the spiritual. We only know the latter by its manifestations. The speaker described the thoughts and feelings going on in a man by which he became converted. How do we know that a man is converted. By results. The converted one becomes a changed man altogether. We all can bear witness to this fact. If we asked those persons they would say that the sphere of their revolution was the sphere of their physical life. Why cannot we say that such results are as tangible, real and true as in other lives. This was precisely the scientific way of looking at the question which the speaker did pretend to say was the best way. If we speak

OF THE SPIRITUAL LIFE,

we speak of it best as scientific life. We cannot tell when life begins, ends or dies. We know as much of the spiritual life as we do of the physical or intellectual. Although the latter may seem more real because realized by the senses, yet we are using scientific measure in bringing together facts and grouping together the laws which govern them, and thus we have knowledge of that subject. There were a great number of spiritual facts in this world and we could not group them together under certain heads, but we have the same in kind as in other life. There were men who called themselves secularists, looking only upon things of the world. It seemed to him that such a man was demonstratively in the wrong. The spirit life was as real and had facts as true as that which belongs to any other life. Some say, might not these things be a delusion? This was too true, because men have been deluded, but nevertheless this did not alter the fact of the existence of spiritual life. Man was not infallible in spiritual things, for spiritual things might go wrong, as whole ages have gone astray. But were not the physical forces deluded through ignorance of the proper functions of our bodies? Because these were abused, we should not say they did not exist. As it is necessary for us to take great pains in training our intellects and caring for our bodies, so in things spiritual. Because a thrust of worldliness it should inspire us the more to see that the spiritual life is healthy, and all its operations grow and flourish to that source from which we came—the perfect spirit. But let us look back at history; those men have always been looked upon as the greatest benefactors who have given their fellows spiritual teaching. The speaker pointedly illustrated this fact, instancing the case of Socrates, who appealed to the spiritual natures of his kind, Moses, the great teacher, who influenced men spiritually, Isaiah, calling to the people to turn and repent of their sins, and look at something better than material blessing. Look at Paul, the Apostle, and Luther, the great reformer. What are the books throughout the ages that have been the most popular and the most read? It was invariably those dealing with the cultivation of our spiritual natures. The Bible was the great spiritual directory, dealing with the souls of men and bidding them look upwards to Heaven. At the head of our race stood Jesus Christ, who proved himself to be the greast factor of the human race, living and walking among men, in simple actions, work and speech. What man ever did so much for the world as our teacher, although he was only three years teaching. Christ was the bread of life. He was the sustenance of that highest part of our natures, the spiritual nature. We should all strive to found and ground our lives upon that life which was life eternal—to know Him the only true God and Jesus Christ whom He has sent.

COMES OVER THE SPIRITUAL LIFE,

At the close of the address an offertory was made. The address on Wednesday evening next will be delivered by laymen Messrs. Claugher and Brown, of Toronto, two prominent Brotherhood of St. Andrews men.

Progress.

It is very important in this age of vast material progress that a remedy be pleasing to the taste and to the eye, easily taken, acceptable to the stomach and healthy in its nature and effects. Possessing these qualities, Syrup of Figs is the one perfect laxative and most gentle diruetic known.

The Home Circle.

Mr. J. C. Williamson, of Toronto, representing the order of Canadian Home Circles, is in town, organizing a branch Circle in Peterborough. This society is a friendly, benevolent and beneficiary one, and is one of the few that admits ladies into the circle with all the advantages of their gentlemen friends. It is also the cheapest insurance in the Dominion, the average annual cost for $3,000 benefit, including all lodge dues, age 39, about $16.80. If 24 years of age the annual cost would be about $12.18. It is purely Canadian and is deserving of a large membership. Mr. Williamson will be in town for a few days, and any person desiring fuller information may obtain same from J. C. Williamson or Chief Rossel.

His well known ability and energy in this line well qualify him for success.

Service at St. Luke's.

The regular Wednesday evening service at St. Luke's church, last evening was largely attended. Rev. Geo. Warren, of Lakefield gave the address from Matthew 15th, chapter, 26th and 27th verses. The speaker gave an admirable address from those words. He spoke of the Christian virtues often possessed by people outside the church, to a greater degree than those within it. The woman mentioned in the text was a Syro-Phœnecian and not being a Jew could no therefore become pious. But what a striking example of humility and tenacity was her faith. The preacher impressed upon his hearers the necessity of having more faith and dealt at some length with the power of faith in its different forms.

POLICE COURT.

THURSDAY, Feb. 23rd.

At the police court this morning the time of the court was taken up for nearly an hour in disposing of a dog case. John Black who resides on King street, charged Stephen Roadhouse, who resides on Louis street, with keeping a cross dog that attacked passers by. Mr. W. A. Stratton appeared for the defence. A score or more witnesses were examined, and although the dog had not bitten anybody, still the evidence went to show that the persons in that locality had a wholesome dread of the canine's barking and growling. The complainant alleged that the dog had attacked him twice and had sprung on him once, when, had not assistance arrived, he would have been bitten. He was compelled to carry a cane to protect himself. Mrs. Black, his wife, had also been badly frightened by the dog. The magistrate ordered the canine, which is a big black Newfoundland, to be shot within twenty-four hours.

Mr. J. M. Drummond, president of the Reform Association, took the chair and called the meeting to order. He said he was very much pleased to see so large and so signally representative a gathering present in spite of the unfavourable roads. Nearly every township in the extensive East Riding was represented. He added that the object of the meeting was to elect officers for 1898, and to make arrangements for the immediate political future. The matter of selecting candidates to contest the riding in approaching contests required attention and would receive the consideration of the meeting.

THE ELECTION OF OFFICERS

was then proceeded with and resulted as follows:

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED.

Moved by A. Watts, seconded by James Robb, and

Resolved, That this convention, believing that the discussion of questions relating to future forms of government in this country, either looking towards independence or annexation, is not within the range of practical politics;

And, whereas, certain unscrupulous wirepullers in the ranks of our opponents, have endeavored to fasten the stain of disloyalty upon the great Liberal party in this country, we hereby stigmatize all such attempts as the pitiful resort of men who are unable to meet argument with argument, and we desire to place on record our confidence in the existing form of government in this country, our admiration of British institutions, and our fidelity to British connection.

Moved by James Moore, seconded by George Stewart:

That this meeting, representing the Liberals of the East Riding of Peterborough, takes this occasion to condemn in the most emphatic manner the system of corrupt expedients, undue influences, and direct and indirect bribery, by which the present party in power at Ottawa, administers the affairs of this country; and also condemns in the most unmistakable manner the system of burdensome taxation and trade restriction, which the so-called "National Policy" creates; and declares unequivocally in favour of a radical modification of the present customs tariff in the direction of freer trade, which is endorsed as the political goal of the Liberal party.

The matter of selecting candidates for the coming elections was briefly discussed. Mr. Blezard in speaking of the matter referred to his position in relation to the candidature. He said he was not anxious for the position and would stand in the way of no man who might wish to become a candidate; at the same time he would be willing to act in the matter in the best interests of the party and of the riding whose interest it was to be represented by a Liberal. After some informal conversation on the subject of selecting candidates it was decided to leave the matter with the executive committee, with power to call a mass meeting at such a time as circumstances might decide was suitable and opportune.

MR. BLEZARD ADDRESSES HIS CONSTITUENTS.

Mr. T. Blezard, M. P. P., being called upon, delivered a stirring and forcible speech. He thanked the electors of the riding for the honour they had done in selecting him for their representative four times in succession. He had endeavoured to do his duty both to his constituents, the government and the country, honestly and to the best of his ability. He had, he confessed, like the best of men, made mistakes, and the government, as was inevitable had made mistakes, and Sir Oliver Mowat had made mistakes, but he made fewer mistakes than any man in the country, and as much as he admired Sir Oliver Mowat, at the beginning of his career, Mr. Blezard said, he admired him still more now as the most upright, honourable, straightforward and capable man in public life in Canada to-day. (Applause). And the ministers associated with him had caught his spirit and each one in his own department pursued the same policy of economy, capable management, careful administration and rigid honesty, which marked that of the veteran premier. Mr. Blezard reminded the audience that fifteen years ago Mr. Carnegie said that we were on the verge of direct taxation, but it had not come yet. He defended in a forcible manner the policy of the Government in the administration of the timber interests of the country, and pointed out that the Parliament buildings now nearly completed were built within the amount of money voted and without a single dollar for extras—a circumstance without parallel or precedent. Hon. Mr. Frazer's administration of his department, that of Public Works, was referred to specially and shown to be capable, economical and honest and efficient in every particular. The speaker said that since he had had a chance of addressing his constituents, the Ontario Government had added a Minister of Agriculture in the person of Hon. John Dryden, himself a practical farmer and one capable and willing, as he was showing by his efforts, to promote the interests of the farmers who formed seven-tenths of the population of the country, and whose rights and interests the Ontario Government had practically protected. The speaker instanced the many efforts the Ontario Government was making to instruct the farmer and protect his interests by promoting the interests of the most important of agricultural industries, dairying; by the practical instruction of young men, by the operations of the travelling dairy which would probably visit this county next year, for it had reached the borders of this district when the season closed last fall. The speaker closed a capital address by eulogizing the Ontario government and its record and giving reasons for the long and hearty support it had received from the country, and the grounds of public confidence were stronger than ever to-day, and resumed his seat amidst hearty applause.

MR. STRATTON ADDRESSES THE MEETING.

Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., West Peterborough, on rising to speak was very warmly received. He expressed the great pleasure it gave him to be present and the great additional pleasure it gave him to see so many present—representing every part of the riding—to consult not only for the best interests of the Liberal party but for the best interests of the county and the country at large. After referring briefly to the stainless and capable record of the leaders of the Liberal party the speaker referred to the importance and fitness of rural ridings being represented by farmers, men of their own calling who could sympathize with their needs in the way of legislation and administration, and had the practical knowledge of the wants of the farming community and were therefore best suited to legislate for the farmer's interests. In this connection he paid a warm tribute to the faithful and persevering representative services Mr. Blezard had rendered during his long tenure of a seat in the local legislature. Being a practical farmer he had not the time that members of different callings had and it was impossible for him to take the time and study necessary to holding meetings in different parts of the riding to explain the legislative work of the past session. Mr. Blezzard was not to blame for not having done so, for he, (Mr. Stratton), was the only member of the Ontario Legislature that pursued the policy of addressing numerous meetings of his constituents upon the subject referred to. In continuation of Mr. Blezard's remarks, the speaker confirmed what had been said respecting the manner of constructing the parliament buildings, and, referring to the revenue derived from crown timber, pointed out that the Ontario government had expended far more than it had received from this source in the construction and maintenance of public buildings, asylums, refuges, etc., whose existence and maintenance represented a direct saving of taxes to the farmers, who, if these institutions were not maintained by the government with the revenues from crown timber and other sources, would be obliged to pay a direct municipal tax for the maintenance of the unfortunate inmates of the institutions referred to. In reference to the latest timber sale, the speaker said the money derived from it was not the primary reason—the saving of the timber from destruction by forest fires, which the extending line of settlement into new districts made increasingly probable—was an important motive. The Ontario government had not only looked after the interests of the farmer in a score of ways, many of which Mr. Blezard had specified, but their action had broken the back of the binding twine combine, which was one of the most burdensome combinations which the farmers had been oppressed with. The Ontario Government had for some time past been quietly considering schemes for giving the inmates of the Central Prison profitable employment, and had hit upon the happy expedient of employing them to make binder twine, which would next harvest be supplied the farmers at, as near as possible, cost price. The speaker's remark that there was an element of poetic justice in making criminal robbers neutralize the exactions of legalized robbers, was warmly cheered. Not only was the Ontario Government's action a direct benefit to the farmer, but it had forced the Dominion Government to reduce the customs duty on binder twine from 25 per cent. to 12½ per cent. Ontario was the only province of the Dominion which could, after 21 years of Liberal administration, show a surplus of five millions, after having fully provided for every public service, construct Parliament buildings almost entirely out current revenue, and saved the people of the Province millions of dollars of taxation, which would otherwise be added to their municipal burdens. No government could be more worthy of support than the Ontario Government. (Cheers.) The speaker then turned his attention to Dominion affairs. He pointed out how all the main promises of the N. P. had been broken. The chief results that followed were burdensome taxation, rendered doubly severe by the restriction of our markets and the consequent low prices of grain. Figures were quoted to show that the price of wheat in the last year under the Mackenzie regime had decreased from year to year from $1.07 per bushel to as low as 60 cents at the present time. Opponents of the Liberals were fond of boasting of their loyalty, but the speaker said a man was truly loyal who was loyal to his own interest and that of his household, and enquired if it was true loyalty to the people's interests for the Dominion Government's fiscal policy to close our nearest market and rob the farmer of from 25 to 30 cents on a bushel of barley, the difference in price in Peterborough and Buffalo. In rearranging his N. P., Mr. Foster proposed consulting the manufacturers but he would not consult the farmers and the great consuming classes, who were of course left out in the cold and condemned to pay the shot, while the manufacturer profited by their contributions. The folly of such commissions was pointed out. We had the Trent Valley Canal Commission, and when it reported favourably, the work was abandoned. The speaker pointed out that as bad as the gerrymander was, it was a small matter to the iniquity of the Dominion Franchise Act—which involved immense expense, packed lists and a dishonest popular verdict; and contrasted the fair, inexpensive Ontario lists prepared on the basis of the returns of municipal officers, and which presented the freest opportunities for persons so entitled to be placed on the lists. The speaker went into a detailed comparison of the Ottawa tariff and the McKinley tariff. Selecting twenty-five or thirty articles used by the farmer, the speaker showed that although the McKinley Act was denounced as the summit of fiscal folly, the most barbarous and retrogressive tariff legislation and the most burdensome impost ever levied by a civilized country, the duties of the Ottawa tariff were on the articles dealt with, invariably higher than the McKinley tariff—the average percentage of taxation of the Ottawa tariff being 41 per cent. and of the McKinley Act, 25½ per cent. The United States electorate had knocked out the McKinley Act, and thus encouraged the tax-burdened citizens of the Dominion in their struggle for tariff reform, and the people were urged to continue the agitation for freer trade relations and the British privilege of buying in the cheapest and selling in the dearest market. But though the Liberals had been handicapped by the gerrymander, the Franchise Act and sundry undue influences, the prospect was encouraging for continuing the fight with hope of victory.

One of the most successful meetings of the kind, both in its eminently representative character and also in the splendid spirit of enthusiasm and interest in the work, ever held in the East Riding, was brought to a close by three cheers for Her Majesty, the Queen, Messrs. Mowat and Laurier and Messrs. Blezard and Stratton.

THE WAY SHE LOOKS

troubles the woman who is delicate, run-down, or overworked. She's hollow-cheeked, dull-eyed, thin, and pale, and it worries her.

Now, the way to look well is to be well. And the way to be well, if you're any such woman, is to faithfully use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. That is the only medicine that's guaranteed to build up woman's strength and to cure woman's ailments. In every "female complaint," irregularity, or weakness, and in every exhausted condition of the female system—if it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

ORIGINALITY.

Florette Advises Inventing Your Own Gown.

To-day's illustration shows a fancy jacket in prune cloth with yoke and frill. The sleeves are of brocaded velvet. Passementerie encircles the yoke, and the mother of pearl buttons are in a slightly darker shade than the material. With the jacket was worn a black hat with an aigrette and black feathers.

You may invent any sort of gown you want, so long as it is loose, and puffed about the sleeves, and you can put a name with "Louis" something to it, hold up your head and be in the style. Besides, your gowns need no longer fit to "absolution" as the seamstress said; the old time gowns didn't fit like the modern ones of the past few years. They creased at the hips, and were slashed over the breast because darts had not been thought of. Get the spirit of an old time dress in the method of the making and you are sure to accomplish a picturesqueness that will be stylish. A lovely gown, for instance, was of a dull cream white satin. The bodice came just over the hips. It was slashed at the hips and in the middle of the back from the waist, and hung open from the waist in front. It was cut round at the neck, just below the rise of the throat. A turn back collar wide enough to come to almost the waist in the back and to well over the shoulders, was set full around the neck. It was of lace with a pointed edge. The sleeves were slashed till they were ribboned from the shoulder to below the elbow. These ribbons were drawn in at the elbow, making two very big puffs, one above and one below. Through the spaces was seen another loose sleeve of lace. The skirt was plain, made full all around, but at the back it shaped away into a train. With it pearls were worn about the neck, and the hair was done in a soft knot at the crown of the head, which was surrounded with a string of pearls.

FLORETTE.

A CROW ORDEAL.

A Trying One to Which These Indians Subject Their Squaws.

A very curious religious custom of the Crow Indians is described in the very interesting if not always entirely reliable adventures of Beckwourth, who was adopted into the tribe and became a chief among them. As will be seen, it has a direct bearing on the ethnology of our own secret societies, as well as on some of our religious observances.

When a war party of Crows started out for a foray, it was their invariable custom to confess to each other their sins against the chastity of their neighbors' wives. These confessions were made under the most solemn pledges of secrecy. The members of the war party swore by their pipes, by their rifles and by the sun never to reveal what they had heard. The penalty of disclosing "the warpath secret" to a woman was death, and there was a better reason for this discrimination against women with the Crows than there is in our own secret societies, as will presently appear.

From time to time the whole Nation joined in the great religious festival of the "medicine lodge." Every woman in the tribe was entitled to go before this lodge, provided she had committed no unchaste act. If any unchaste woman ventured before it she was immediately killed and cut to pieces. As the women of the tribe were not allowed to share the warpath secret, they could have no idea that their sins were known, but as all the warriors in the war party, at which the confessions were made, would know of them, some of these warriors were certain to be present, at the medicine lodge, and if, as sometimes happened, a Crow wife who had "been talked about" should desire to re-establish her standing in society by going through the lodge, she had very little chance to come out alive. The woman who submitted to this ordeal entered the lodge where the men were seated in two rows, leaving a lane for her to pass between them. She walked to the other end of the lodge, where, as part of the ceremony, she was required to take up from the floor a handful of ashes and other articles to which emblematic significance attached. If she was guilty, the men in the lodge raised a cry that was both an arraignment and a death sentence, and in a moment more she was hacked to pieces with their knives. If innocent, she passed back between the lines and carried out of the lodge with her a certificate of good character all the more valuable because of the awful and mysterious danger of obtaining it. No woman was compelled to submit to the ordeal. But if she did challenge it to hide guilt, her death was almost inevitable as a result of the curious custom of confession when starting on the warpath.

Keeping Company.

Sweet homely phrase so often spoken
Among the kinder country folk,
When youthful love they smile to see
"These two are 'keeping company.'"
In fuller and in higher sense
Through years of rich experience,
Dear love 'tis true of you and me—
We've kept each other company.
In joy we've sought each others eyes
To share the gladness and surprise;
In pain, life's utmost test of ill,
Our hearts have clung together still.
In absence—word with anguish fraught—
We have kept company in thought.
And learned that leagues of distance may Serve but to spur love on its way.
In death—I pause with bated breath
Before the mystery of death.
Yet love is great! I seem to know
That where thou goest I will go;
And in God's great eternity
Our souls shall still keep company.

The Secret of Fascinating.

Fill your heart with good will to everybody, and then practice at all times the best manners you know, particularly at home. If you begin at home this charming manner will, so to speak, get settled on you and never leave you. Be just as polite to your sister as to your best girl. Strive to gain the good will of mother, father, and brothers and sisters and children exactly as you strive to gain good will abroad. There is no place for practicing manners like the home circle; no place where it will be so appreciated.—Jennes-Miller Monthly.

and I began to use them, and soon noticed an improvement. Encouraged by this, I kept on till I took two boxes, when the sores disappeared and have never troubled me since."—H. Chipman, Real Estate Agent, Roanoke, Va.

"I suffered for years from stomach and kidney troubles, causing very severe pains in various parts of the body. None of the remedies I tried afforded me any relief until I began taking Ayer's Pills, and was cured."—Wm. Goddard, Notary Public, Five Lakes, Mich.

AN ERA OF IMPORTANCE

IS THE TIME WHEN THE COLT SHOULD FIRST BE SHOD.

A Farmer, Talking to Farmers, Tells How It Should Be Done—The Importance of Having the Foot Exactly Level—Other Points to Remember.

The first shoeing will be largely experimental. If your colt is pure-gaited and strongly trotting-bred, he may acquire speed with very little change from the first shoeing. Again, it may be necessary to shoe him in many different ways before you get him just balanced. The first shoeing should approximate as nearly as possible to the conditions of nature, and shoes of about 6 oz. each are best for the first time. Weigh these, too, and know just what they weigh. It has been my custom to buy the steel in the bar and have the shoes forged. My experience has been that a bar 7-16 by ¼ or 5-16 inch will produce shoes weighing about 6 oz.; if 5-8 by ¾, 8 to 10 oz., and if 5-8 by ¼, 10 to 12 oz., which is as heavy as I have had occasion to use. I also buy my own nails, not because they are any better than the smith may furnish, but because few country smiths have use for such a light nail as the foot of the colt requires. I, being a farmer, am writing to farmers just as experience has taught me.

Again, no matter who may laugh or poke fun, weigh the shoes and insist upon having the work done as you require. Have the smith first rasp the foot to the proper level, and be sure that it is level. If you think so much precaution unnecessary, try the experiment upon yourself by nailing a piece of sole leather on either the inner or outer side of your shoe, throwing the bearing of the foot at an angle, and see how tired and sore your ankle will be after a few hours' wear.

Do not let the smith put a knife to the foot, unless it is to shorten the toe, and if the feet have been properly cared for this will not be necessary. Above all, do not have the heels opened, as it is called, which means cutting away the bars or all the support to the heel on each side of the frog. This support was put there to bear the weight of the horse in traveling and to protect the inner component parts of the foot and joints. Why a smith should cut away the foot at the very place where strength is most needed I could never understand.

I recall buying a mare that had a slight lameness, caused as I supposed by one foot being contracted. I took her to a shoeing expert, and he cut the sole of her foot until he could press through it with his thumb. Then he opened her heels, cutting away the bars and slashed off almost all of the frog; in fact, when he had finished there was but little left for the mare to stand on. It was just such shoeing that ruined her. The foot had been treated in this manner so often—robbed of the very covering that nature had placed there to protect the internal machinery—that an injury to some internal part of the foot had occurred, resulting in permanent lameness. The sole of a horse's foot is intended and constituted to receive and withstand the shock of travel, and to protect the delicate and intricate internal machinery from injury. Every time the smith cuts away this natural covering he invites permanent injury to some one of the delicate parts left wholly or partially unprotected.

If your colt is inclined to be mixed-gaited—that is, to shift from a trot into a pace, let the toe to the front feet remain moderately long, and have the heels lowered as much as is consistent. This will give him more ground surface and have a tendency to prevent his pacing.

After the feet have been prepared according to your ideas and best knowledge, have the shoes made to fit the feet. Let the heel of each shoe come round under the heel of the foot, not run out straight inviting injury to the pastern of the hind foot and leaving the heel of the foot without support. Unless calks are necessary to prevent slipping, have the shoes made plain with a short toe and heel calks on the shoes behind, as the hind legs and feet are really the propelling power. Many prefer a plain shoe without calks on all feet, but these are matters of little moment at this time.

Be sure and have a colt well protected by boots, as he will naturally be awkward and be liable to inflict injuries that would not be expected after becoming accustomed to the new order of things. Quarter boots are indispensable, and the majority will need scalping boots, toe boots for the hind feet. Many others will need shin and ankle boots forward, and possibly shin and ankle boots behind, but of these the owner or driver must judge by the general action and inclination to travel close. Do not take any chances of injury, for such injuries are oftentimes very serious.

With the youngster broken to drive between the poles, shod and properly booted, we are now ready to hitch to the jogging-cart or wagon.—L. C. Underhill, in Country Gentleman.

E. Jardine, North Sidney, C. B., says:—"I have used your Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with decided success, and would recommend them to any one suffering as I did from weakness and impoverished blood. Your pills have afforded wonderful relief and I believe them to be unequalled." All dealers or by mail, post paid, at 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50. Dr. Williams' Med. Co. Brockville, Ont.

Pale, Weak Women need a tonic strength giving, flesh building medicine like Milburn's Beef, Iron and Wine.

Couldn't Keep on His Feet.
PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 31st, 1892.
To the Peterborough Medicine Company:
GENTLEMEN,—If there is any medicine in the world that I pin my faith to it is Membray's Kidney and Liver Cure. In my business I have to stand on my feet a good deal. About a year ago my back began to give out, weakening pains set in across my kidneys, I felt tired all the time and could hardly stand up to my work. I began to lose strength and at last had to give up work altogether. A customer advised me to try your cure which I did. Before half the bottle was used, I felt the pains and weakness leaving me and to-day I enjoy good health and can bear fatigue and work all right. One bottle was all I used.
ALF. HASKILL, barber.

A Pleasant Herb Drink.
The best cure we know of for constipation and headache is the pleasant herb drink called Lane's Family Medicine. It is said to be Oregon grape root, combined with simple herbs, and is made for use by pouring boiling water onto the dried roots and herbs. It is remarkably efficacious in all blood disorders, and is now the sovereign remedy with ladies for clearing up the complexion. Druggists sell the packages at 50c. and $1.

When in Despair.
When in despair of being cured of lung troubles, there is still a hope, and a strong hope of perfect cure in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This medicine cures even after all others have failed, and no one suffering from coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, hoarseness, etc., need despair of cure while Norway Pine Syrup is obtainable.

TORONTO'S BYE-ELECTION.

Three Candidates Nominated—1 Liberal, 2 Conservative and 1 Labor.

TORONTO, Feb. 22.—One of the liveliest meetings which had been held in Toronto for a long time was that at the nomination of candidates for the Local House, which lasted three hours and a half yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Daniel Kelly proposed Alfred Jury as a candidate. Mr. Robert Fawcett was a prompt seconder. "That pure," said a friend, "England and Ireland make a good combination."

In return for the compliment Mr. Jury and Mr. Malcolm Gibbs nominated Mr. Daniel Kelly. Then came the nomination by Mr. Gibbs and Mr. Kelly of Mr. J. G. Jardine. "Who's he?" was the cry, and the answer was "the man who knows about the Muskoka wolves."

These nominations followed in quick succession: Mr. Phillips Thompson for the Labor Party; Dr. Ryerson, Conservative; Dr. Ogden, Liberal.

A poll was demanded by Mr. Lindsey on behalf of Dr. Ogden. Mr. Jardine withdrew. Said he: "I could not think of accepting a nomination for a city like Toronto after fighting the wolves of Muskoka and North Simcoe. It is a rural constituency I am desirous of representing." [Loud laughter.]

Mr. Kelly, having highly praised his friend Mr. Jury, withdrew in his favor, the latter in turn retiring in favor of Mr. Thompson.

Mr. Phillips Thompson was the next speaker. He declared himself the candidate of "the Progressive Party and the Trades and Labor Council." Then he enunciated his platform, principally that of the Nationalists and the Single Tax men. He was for the Swiss referendum and against the contract system. The temperance question he would refer to a popular vote.

INJURING IMMIGRATION.

Canadian Steamship Companies Raise Emigrant Rates.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Emigration circles in Great Britain are much perturbed by the action of the Canadian steamship lines in raising the emigrant rates 25 per cent. just when everything pointed favorably to a more than usually large flow towards Canada.

This increase if persisted in must check the movement of settlers to the Dominion, and it is feared that it will largely counteract the increased inducements offered by the Government and the Canadian railways.

New Zealand will profit by the move, for it is announced that the rates to that country have been lowered so as to better compete with Canada.

British Press Comments.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—The Daily News of yesterday said that nearly nine-tenths of the difficulties raised in debate by the opponents of the Home Rule bill have been removed by the publication of the text of that measure.

The Daily News discusses the financial clauses of the measure at great length, pointing out the immense cost of the troops and armed police in Ireland, which will be saved to the British taxpayers if the bill becomes law.

The Telegraph says the measure is even more recklessly perilous to the peace and safety of the Empire and more fruitful of difficulty and complication in details than the bill of 1886.

The Post says that the bill is essentially framed to catch by its brilliant vagueness the vote of all who might stickle over it were its lines more precise.

The World of this morning says that Edward Blake, the man from Canada, is in manner gauche. His voice was strident and his speech was painfully dull, although it had evidently been prepared with immense pains. His effort last Friday was contemptible to hear and unbearable to read. Had the Irish members of Parliament not risen in an ovation the speech would hardly have been noticed except as a curious novelty.

Good News for the Governor.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Hon. Arthur Stanley's condition continues to improve, though the fever has not yet fully subsided. Lady Stanley will reach here in a couple of days.

For South Middlesex.

DELAWARE, Ont., Feb. 22.—Robert Boston of the township of Lobo was selected by the Liberals yesterday to contest for the vacancy caused by the death of James Armstrong, M.P.

Near the White House.

ROCHESTER, Feb. 22.—The propaganda at Rome has decided that Monsignor Satolli shall make his official residence at Washington.

Makes Flesh and Blood.
When the system is all run down and there seems to be no hope of obtaining nourishment for the body by the ordinary process of food supply and digestion, when the body is sinking fast, then is the time to use Miller's Emulsion of pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil. It always works wonders, because it is a flesh and blood maker, and contains all the constituents for nourishment found in wheat, in fact Miller's Emulsion is a perfect "staff of life" and has saved and cured thousands. In big bottles, 50c. and $1, at all Drug Stores.

Not a Particle.
A feature worth noticing in regard to Burdock Blood Bitters is that it does not contain one particle of poisonous matter. It cures and cures quickly without the use of any injurious ingredients. B.B.B is a purely vegetable specific for dyspepsia, constipation, bad blood, headache, billiousness and all diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels and blood.

Delay is Dangerous.
When the kidney's are out of order delay is dangerous. Any disease may follow and become so well established that months of suffering will follow. A gentle tonic like Dodd's Kidney Pills is always acceptable to the kidneys and protects them from disease. They are a kidney food.

PRESIDENT HARRISON HAS WITHDRAWN HIS ORDER.

Canadian Vessels and Cargoes Will Not Be Overhauled Next Season, And Americans Will Not Growl About Discrimination on the Lower Lakes.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—As a result of correspondence between Secretary of State Foster and Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British Minister, a new "order in council" has been issued by the Canadian Government regulating the tolls of the Dominion canals for the season of 1893. The effect of this new order is to abolish the rebate on tolls and the regulation against transhipped goods, thereby removing all discriminations of which the Government of the United States has so long complained. In accordance with this diplomatic arrangement the President has issued a proclamation revoking tolls levied on Canadian vessels and cargoes in the Sault Ste. Marie Canal.

CANADIAN INLAND MARINE.

A Series of Resolutions Passed at the Annual Meeting of the Association.

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—Captain Crangle presided at the tenth annual meeting of the Canadian Inland Marine Association in the Walker House yesterday afternoon. There were present: Captains Fairgrieve, Sylvester, Towers, Trowell, Gaskin, Jackson, Neelon, Ewart and Messrs. Thompson, Marks, Polson, Miller, Kerman, Jaques, McKay and Barlow Cumberland.

Captain Crangle reviewed the business of last year and reported on the several deputations to Ottawa regarding canal tolls, shipping compass adjustment, tonnage dues and the incorporation of the association. Secretary-Treasurer W. A. Geddes read the financial statement, which showed equal disbursements and expenditures.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Capt. Crangle; vice-president, J. T. Matthews; second vice-president, Capt. Sylvester; secretary-treasurer, W. A. Geddes.

Mr. D. G. Thomson addressed the meeting at some length regarding canal tolls, asking whether the tolls at Sault Ste. Marie should be continued.

The secretary explained that he had written to Ottawa for the recent order-in-council on the matter, and that no action could be taken until the policies of the Governments at Ottawa and Washington were definitely announced.

This resolution was passed unanimously: "That in view of the keen competition for the carrying trade to the seaboard, via the New York and St. Lawrence routes, and in order to maintain the supremacy of the St. Lawrence route this association deems it essential that a public elevator with a capacity of 500,000 bushels be erected at Kingston, and as an inducement to capitalists to erect such elevator this association would urge upon the Dominion Government the granting of a site for that purpose."

"That the attention of the Dominion Government be called to the great loss sustained by the marine interests of Canada and the fact that the citizens are deprived of the labor of manufacturing in this country by the towing of logs across the lakes to American manufacturing points, thus depriving our vessels of the freighting of the timber, which would otherwise be manufactured in Canada and partly freighted by Canadian vessels.

THAMESVILLE, Ont., Feb. 23.—Last night between the hours of 9 and 10, as Mr. Jesse Lawrence, living about three miles from this village, who had drawn $650 from Mahew & Harmer's bank here, was on his way home, when opposite Aldis Mayhew's farm, about one mile out, was caught by some party who had evidently followed him, and as Mr. Lawrence is quite deaf he heard no one approaching until he was seized, robbed and thrown down into the snow. He then came back, found out a police constable, and a search for tracks was made, but no clue has been discovered as yet.

Serious Accident at Weston Last Night—A Number of Persons Injured.

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—The members of Humber Masonic Lodge, Weston, to the number of 100, held an at home last evening in the Oddfellows' Hall. The entertainment took place in the second story of the building. About 9.30 o'clock when the program was about half through those present were invited to go downstairs to partake of refreshments. Just as they started the floor collapsed owing to the thread on the bolt giving away and the entire party was precipitated to the lower story. Fortunately no person was killed, but three or four sustained serious injuries. The wounded:

W. FORSYTH, leg broken.
REV. JOHN LOCKE, leg broken.
MR. PEARSON, leg broken.
MRS. FRYERS, shoulder broken.
Woman, whose name it was impossible to ascertain, so seriously injured internally that it is feared that the results will be fatal.

SOMETHING TO LEARN OF INTERNATIONAL LAW.

A Polish Jew's Attempt to Defraud His Creditors in New York Results in His Arrest in Toronto—He Will Have to Straighten Out Matters.

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—Harris Abrams, a Polish Jew, carried on business as a cloak maker in New York for some years up to last summer. By representing that he had a surplus of assets over liabilities to the amount of $23,000 he obtained goods from Rosenheck, Brossel & Co., 466 Broome-street, New York, to the amount of $4000 in the summer of 1892. He failed to pay for them according to agreement, and in the following October failed disastrously in business. A true bill was found against him for grand larceny in the Supreme Court of the County of New York. This charge would be similar to false pretences in Canada.

Abrams left New York and went to Hamilton, Ont., but shortly after came on to Toronto. From here he corresponded with his brother-in-law, one P. Nathan of Second-street, New York, and tried to arrange a settlement with his creditors. The firm of Rosenheck, Brossel & Co. determined to follow Abrams when they learned that he was in Toronto, and despatched their agent, who arrived here on Tuesday last. He secured the services of Messrs. W. R. Riddell of Messrs. Millar, Riddell & Le Vesconte. The same afternoon a capias was obtained from Osgoode Hall for the arrest of Abrams. The bail fixed was $3934.35. The sheriff's officers were sent out to look for Abrams, but they failed to locate him and were compelled to call in the aid of Detective Hodgins. That officer was able to direct Sheriff's Officer McCormack and the representative of the American firm, T. F. Aits, to Abrams' hiding place in Queen-street west.

Abrams was arrested at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He will remain in the custody of the sheriff until he gives special bail in the sum mentioned or can show some reason why he should be set free. It is understood that he was about to take his departure for England, but the capias cut short that plan. His creditors are determined to have their rights if their rights can be had.

TERRIBLE MASSACRE.

Fight Between River Inlet and Kitkatalas Indians.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 23.—Stanley Smith, who arrived here from Bellacoola a few days ago, brings word that rumors are in circulation in that district of a terrible Indian massacre that took place a few weeks ago on Sorrow Island. Some River Inlet Indians went there to hunt otter, and on the island were some of the Kitkatalas tribe further north, also hunting.

The story is that a River Inlet man molested a Kitkatalas girl. Her tribe avenged the insult by killing the offending man. A general fight ensued and the River Inlet men were vanquished. All were killed with the exception of three chiefs who were spared because of their rank.

These chiefs were imprisoned in a hut. The victorious Indians held a pow-wow and it was decided that if the River Inlet chiefs were allowed to return their tribesmen would avenge themselves; so it was decided to act on the maxim, "Dead men tell no tales." They were therefore shot to death.

The story was told to Smith by some Indians, and he also heard it mentioned by several of the crew of the steamer Coquillon, which had just returned from a fishing cruise in the locality.

Sorrow Island is quite distant from any trading posts, so that it is probable the affair will not become generally known for several weeks. The Indian agent at Alert Bay has been notified of the matter and he is making an investigation.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

A BIG KICK FROM THE MARITIME PROVINCES.

Personalities Are Indulged in Quite Freely This Session—The Debate on the Budget Continues to Afford a Lively Ground For an Expression of All Sorts of Ideas.

OTTAWA, Feb. 24.—After routine in the House yesterday Hon. Mr. Foster introduced a bill relating to the moneys payable in connection with proceedings before Parliament, and in doing so said that it was intended that in future all moneys in connection with private bills should be deposited to the credit of the Receiver-General and payments made out of consolidated fund from a vote which would be taken. At present the clerk of the Committee on Private Bills receives the money, made the payments and deposited any balance there was. Bill read a first time.

Hon. John Haggart said, in reply to Mr. Gibson, that the Government did not intend making any change in the ferry service at Port Dalhousie.

Mr. Choquette and Mr. Bruneau asked for the names of the 37 manufacturers mentioned in the last census as existing in the town of Montagny and the 128 manufacturers mentioned as being in the town of Sorel.

Hon. Mr. Foster replied that the information for the census was collected by sworn enumerators, who were pledged not to make public the names or private information they received, but only to give the total results of their investigations. This had always been the practice with regard to the census.

Hon. Mr. Davies resumed the debate on the Budget, dealing with the subject from a Maritime Provinces standpoint. He claimed that the Maritime Provinces were suffering from the effects of the National Policy, but said the members from that section of the Dominion were to blame for continuing to support the Government. He drew a very doleful picture of the Maritime Provinces, and especially Prince Edward Island, and depicted the people as fleeing from the provinces as from a pestilence. He characterized the National Policy as a cause and claimed that over 400,000 people had been driven out of Canada in the last ten years. Canada had lost more men by the National Policy in the last ten years than France lost in all the bloody wars of Napoleon. He claimed that the exports from the Maritime Provinces during the last five years were less than they were from 1874 to 1879. He took up the question of pig iron, and argued that, while the duty imposed by the National Policy added over a million dollars a year to the taxes, the production was not only reduced, but the importations were largely increased. He, then touched on the reciprocity question, and concluded by referring to the Washington negotiations, taking the same line followed by Mr. Charlton last night.

Mr. Cockburn in reply regretted that the natural generosity of the last speaker had evidently been warped by absorption of the political poison which flowed so freely from the member for South Oxford (Sir Richard Cartwright), and that his patriotism had been affected by association with Mr. Charlton, and so it was he followed that gentleman's course in upholding the glories of the country across the line, to the detriment of the Dominion. He failed to agree that the amount of mortgages determined a country's depressions. On the other hand, very often it was an evidence of confidence, and it was a good showing indeed that, while the amount of mortgages lying at default in 1886 was 8.6, the default last year only amounted to 2.04. [Cheers.] It was no argument either to quote the depreciation in the value of land in Ontario, because in contributing to open up the Northwest the people of Ontario knew they were aiding to cheapen lands, but they knew also that they were adding by thousands per cent. to the assets of the country. [Cheers.] They did not look at it from the narrow view of the member for Prince Edward Island, who, by the way, said a few years ago that the C.P.R. would never be built because it was run over impossible grades. Well, the C.P.R. had been built, and last year it expended in Canada in wages to Canadians and for Canadian products eleven millions of dollars. [Cheers.]

The debate was continued by Messrs. Dawson, LaChappelle and Bruneau until 12.05, when Dr. Cameron moved the adjournment of the debate.

On motion of Sir John Thompson it was agreed that the budget debate be made the first order after 8 o'clock on Monday.

Mr. Foster announced that the supplementary estimates would be taken up to-day, as he was anxious to get some of the votes for the cufrent year passed.

House adjourned at 12.30.

In the annual report of the Department of Agriculture, laid on the table yesterday, Dr. Smith, inspecting physician at the Tracadie Lazaretto, says: "While on frequent tours of inspection during the year I found the disease cropping out in unexpected places, and I fear that for years to come we may expect to meet with new cases, especially in members of families at one time resident here. Only by prompt detection and isolation can the disease be kept in check, or stamped out, as leprosy, the world over, spreads from centres of

In the Senate yesterday Hon. Mr. Vidal moved for the papers relative to the appointment and proceedings of the Prohibition Commission, and in doing so charged the commission of neglecting the purpose for which it had been created. He thought it had acted absurdly in taking the opinions of liquor dealers and other interested parties as to the advisability of prohibition, instead of gathering facts for the guidance of Parliament in forming its opinion on the question. He said further that if, as had been stated, one of the commissioners had been supplied by the Dominion Statistician with information regarding the statements of certain witnesses, the public should have that information.

Hon. Mr. Gowan approved the action of the commission.

Hon. Mackenzie Bowell said he could see nothing in Senator Vidal's motion, and complimented the commission on the excellent way in which it was performing its duties.

Hon. Mr. Foster, replying to Mr. Mulock, said the attention of the Government had not been called to a statement which appeared in a portion of the press to the effect that certain cattle alleged to be suffering from tuberculosis were on or about Feb. 17 slaughtered at Toronto by order of the health officer of that city, and consequently no enquiry into the matter had been made. He added that the provisions of the Animals Contagious Diseases Act did not extend to tuberculosis.

Hon. Clarke Wallace, in reply to Mr. McMullen, said that Mr. J. J. Davidson was appointed dry goods appraiser at Montreal on Sept. 14, 1891, at a salary of $1600. He had been transferred to Toronto because an experienced man was required there.

Hon. John Thompson said in reply to an enquiry across the floor by Hon. Mr. Laurier that the writ for South Middlesex would be issued on Saturday.

Mr. D. Girouard, Q.C., has been retained as counsel for the Province of Quebec in the pending arbitration between the two provinces of old Canada and the Dominion on the subject of outstanding claims. The arbitrators are Judge Sedgwick, on behalf of the Dominion, Chancellor Boyd on behalf of Ontario, and Chief Justice Casault on behalf of Quebec. The first meeting of arbitrators will be held in Ottawa on March 17.

Mr. Bald, Mayor of Nicolet, was here yesterday in connection with the proposed extension of the Drummond County Railway from St. Leonards to Levis.

Sir Adolphe and Lady Caron invited the following ladies and gentlemen to dinner last evening: Sir John and Lady Thompson, Hon. Mr. Haggart, the Hon. Mr. and Mrs. Patterson, the Hon. Mr. and Mrs. Ouimet, the Hon. Mr. and Mrs. Daly, the Hon. Mr. and Mrs. Angers, the Hon. Mr. and Mrs. Ives, Hon. Senator and Mrs. Caughlin, Hon. Senator and Mrs. Kirchhoffer, Hon. Senator Macdonald, Hon. Senator and Mrs. Ferguson, the Speaker of the House of Commons and Mrs. White, Hon. Chief Justice and Mrs. Strong, the Hon. Sir Hector Langevin, the Hon. Mr. and Mrs. Laurier, Mr. Macdonald (Winnipeg) and Mrs. Macdonald, Mr. and Mrs. Northrup, Mr. and Mrs. Bergeron, Mr. and Mrs. Mackintosh, Mr. and Mrs. Maclean, Mr. and Mrs. Corby, Mr. Ross, (Liegar) and Mrs. Ross. Mr. Girouard (Jacques Cartier) and Mrs. Girouard, Mr. Cockburn, Miss Street, Miss Parker, Mr. Ferguson, Q.C.

Sir Hector Langevin gives notice that he will ask whether the Government of Canada has communicated with the Imperial Government calling their attention to the interest Canada has in Hawaii not being absorbed by a foreign power, and requesting the Imperial authorities to safeguard that interest in so far at least as telegraphic and steamship communication between Canada and Australia is concerned

WATFORD SUFFERS.

Fourteen Business Places Were Destroyed by Fire.

WATFORD, Ont., Feb. 24.—This place has again been visited by a most disastrous fire, in which 14 business places have been destroyed before the ravages of the flames were stayed. The fire originated about 3.30 this morning in the centre one of seven brick stores owned by Mr. Danks of London, and one occupied by Dr. Alexander, veterinary surgeon. The fire is supposed to have been caused by the explosion of a lamp which he always kept burning. He lost everything, barely escaping in his pants.

The flames spread rapidly both south and north, and so soon were Drs. McLeay and Auld's offices and rooms in flames that they also lost everything with the exception of a few books, Dr. McLeay having to jump from a second story window. No insurance.

It then spread to W. E. Fitzgerald's law office, which was soon consumed, but the greater part of his library and papers were saved; loss covered by insurance.

The next to go was Cook's cabinet warehouse. Most of the stock was removed and the balance covered by insurance. The fire was stopped on the south at Thomas & Kenward's bonding office, but while these buildings to the south were being consumed it was also spreading rapidly north, and, after a vacant store, Alexander Saunders' law office was the next to go, and then entered Fortune's block, consisting of four stores, all of which were destroyed, partly insured; the first of which was occupied by Fortune & Moore, bakers and confectioners. The stock was partly removed; some insurance.

Above the stores lived their baker, Mr. Mathew, and wife. They had just time to escape and lost everything; some insurance. The next one to go was Leigh's barber shop, then Wynne's banking office; some insurance on furniture and furnishings.

Then came Neff's feed, flour and seed store; stock nearly all removed; no insurance. Next came Annett's Block, which was insured for $1500, consisting of two stores, one occupied by himself as groceries, boots and shoes; stock partly removed; about $1200 to $1500 were burned; covered by insurance. The other was occupied by Mr. McKerracher for machinery and implements, all of which were removed.

The upper story of these were used as a Canadian Order of Foresters hall, whose property was mostly removed in a damaged condition; loss covered by insurance. The adjoining building, a frame one, occupied by Charles Abbott, harness-maker, was pulled down to stop the further spread of the flames.

Saw Mill Burned.

CAMPBELLFORD, Ont., Feb. 24.—The Rathbun Company's saw mill here was burned last night about 12 o'clock. The engine and boiler were saved by the firemen. Loss on building and machinery estimated at $6000, understood to be covered by insurance. Cause of fire unknown.

UNCLE RUFUS HATCH.

He is Now Operating in the Happy Hunting Grounds.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Rufus Hatch, the once famous Wall-street magnate, died yesterday at his residence in Spuyten Duyvil at 3 o'clock.

Mr. Hatch was 62 years old. He retired from "the street" two years ago and had been failing in health ever since. The immediate cause of his death was a complication of kidney, heart and liver troubles, which had confined him to his room for several weeks. Mrs. Hatch and all the members of the family, except Mrs. Kimball, a daughter living in California, were by the bedside.

Uncle Rufus Hatch was born in Wells, Me. He achieved a fortune in Chicago by bold operations in wheat, but lost it again at the close of the Crimean War. Then he came to New York and was prominent with the late Henry Keep, Governor Flowers' brother-in-law, in the manipulation of Chicago and North Western. But like many others of the darling men of the street Rufus Hatch was "up to-day and down to-morrow," and he got squeezed sometimes himself.

The last squeeze was in 1883, when he went down in the Villard-Northern Pacific disaster. He and James Keene were interested together in the famous corner of 1885, but Hatch never fully recovered his old place at the fore and is believed to have died comparatively poor.

PARIS HAS A SENSATION

"PLEASE BURY THIS CHILD IN PARIS GRAVEYARD."

The Body of an Infant Found on a Front Doorstep—A Coroner's Jury Enquiring as to Whether the Baby was Murdered or Frozen.

PARIS, Ont., Feb. 24.—The body of a female child, apparently only about three or four days old, was found on the front doorstep of the house in West River-street occupied by George Hayden, last night shortly after 10 o'clock.

The discovery was made by Mr. Hayden's daughter as she was entering her home. The body was wrapped in a white cloth, to which was pinned a piece of paper with the following words written on it: "Please bury this child in Paris graveyard. Its name is Bertha. Its mother lives in Brantford."

Mr. Hayden at once notified Constable Cook, and the body was removed by him to the town hall.

Whether the babe was murdered or died a natural death is as yet a matter of speculation. The supposition is that it was frozen to death.

Coroner Dr. Sinclair ordered a post mortem examination this afternoon in the town hall. Constable Cook says he has a clue as to the parentage of the child. The affair has caused quite a sensation, and is the talk of the town.

ABANDONED THE BABY.

Mr. Shier and His Daughter Have Visitors of a Surprising Kind.

KINCARDINE, Ont., Feb. 24.—Recently two women drove up to Mr. John Shier's house at Armow. One of them remained in the cutter while the other carefully carried a bundle into the house and in the presence of Mr. Shier and his daughter left it upon the table, at the same time remarking, "There is a young one to take care of." And sure enough the parcel turned out to be a pretty little child aged three or four months. The woman immediately left the house, hurriedly got into the cutter and drove off. Who the women were is only a matter of conjecture. It appears that as far as can be learned the two women with an infant arrived in Ripley the day before by train. They secured a livery horse in the village and drove out as far as Mr. Chris. Hewitt's, where they asked for and obtained accommodation for the night.

The next day they drove over to Mr. Shier's and left the infant. Constable Henderson has since made enquiries at Ripley and learned that the woman returned the horse to the livery stable afterwards. They were asked by the liverykeeper where they had left the "kid" which they took away with them. One of the women replied that the child was being well cared for and the other one, evidently the mother, commenced crying. They afterwards bought tickets at the station for Wingham. At the township council meeting on the 15th Mr. Shier brought the matter before the council and wished some provision to be made for the infant. The council refused to take any action. In the meantime Mr. Shier has persuaded Mrs. James Robinson of the north line to take charge of the child.

CUT IN TWO.

An Employe in a Sawmill Has a Horrible Death.

DURHAM, Ont., Feb. 24.—A horrible accident happened at Baird's sawmill in Northeast Glenelg on Tuesday. One of the employes, a man named Wiggins, was standing close to the saw talking to the proprietor when in some way his clothing caught the saw, upon which he was thrown and cut in two. Death came instantly.

This dreadful accident took place in sight of all the men, among whom was a son of the victim. The deceased was a middle-aged man.

Shook, Tracy City, Tenn.; treasurer, Theodore D. Rand, Philadelphia; secretary, Rossiter W. Raymond, New York.

The Silver Problem.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—The Herald's Philadelphia special says: President-elect Cleveland is determined to have the Sherman silver law repealed. The manager of his campaign is making enquiries as to the attitude of the new members. A most significant private letter has been sent to senators and representatives by Chairman William F. Harrity, acting for the Democratic National Committee. He first sends a query asking for a definition of the position occupied by a number of members of the next House. This communication has been sent only to those who are known to be sound money men. A blank form is enclosed and upon it the question is to be answered. What bearing this may have upon an extra session is interesting.

He Don't Like Cartwheels.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 24.—Allen W. Thurman proposes that silver dollars shall be the basis for National Bank circulation. The banks are to be required to deposit in the United States Treasury 90 per cent. in such dollars, upon which they are to be permitted to issue 100 per cent. of notes.

PROTECTION, says the Mail, failed to save Mr. McKinley's investments. He built the American tariff wall up into the clouds and then embarked in the manufacturing business. The loss of sixty or seventy thousand dollars will teach the arch-protectionist that the prescription for prosperity which he induced the United States to swallow did not suit his case any better than it did thousands of others.

ACCORDING to The Empire, Mr. Craig, M.P. for East Durham, disposed of those who complained of conditions in Canada in this manner:—"Let them as a contrast look to Russia, with her starving peasantry. Look to many parts of Europe where the workingmen seldom see butter, practically never see meat, and subsist on black bread and sour milk." It is strange that he chose high tariff countries for comparisons.

SAVING LIFE!

A Wonderful and Successful Plan!

HUNDREDS NOW BEING CARED FOR FREE OF CHARGE!

CURES REPORTED EVERY WEEK!

A well known and exceedingly popular Canadian institution, is now conducting a most remarkable work amongst the sick and suffering, and all those who have been pronounced as incurable by our regular physicians.

The work is done by sending free supplies of Paine's Celery Compound to the worthy and deserving in our land who are not in a position to purchase the great remedy that dispels disease and gives new life.

In the prosecution of this great and far-reaching work, a certain degree of caution must necessarily be exercised, in order to prevent imposition and fraud. The Wells & Richardson Co., before supplying their world-famed remedy to the deserving poor of Canada, demanded the fulfilment of but one condition, which read as follows:—"All applications must be recommended by some Clergyman, Mayor, Reeve, Justice of the Peace or Postmaster."

When such a recommendation is received, the deserving are carefully looked after free of charge. The Wells & Richardson Co. also have in their employ a first class physician, whose work is to prescribe and give free advice to those who may require it.

There is no medicine in the world that can attempt such a work in our land. Paine's Celery Compound takes hold of the work, because it is the only sure and unfailing cure—the only remedy that can restore health and strength.

As a proof of this it may be remarked that letters are coming in every week from those who are being cared for, all testifying to the wonderful results obtained from the great life-giver and healer.

A STORY WITH A MORAL.

Here is an extract from the Ottawa Free Press, in which a good story is made to serve an instructive purpose: "A great many Conservatives would like to treat Sir Adolphe Caron as they treated Mr. McGreevy, but they are afraid his place as procurer-general of campaign funds could not be easily filled. The premier sticks to Sir Adolphe. His situs minds one of the story of the two boys who were seated upon the wharf fishing, when one fell into the water. His companion gallantly plunged in and rescued him. A benevolent gentleman who had hastened to the scene of the accident complimented the brave boy who had risked his life to save that of another. 'Is the boy your brother?' asked the gentleman. 'Oh, no, he is no relation to me at all,' was the answer; 'but I saved him because he had all the bait in his pocket, and if he'd been drowned I'd have to go home without any fish.'"

Look at the size of the ordinary pill. Think of all the trouble and disturbance that it causes you. Wouldn't you welcome something easier to take, and easier in its ways, if at the same time it did you more good? That is the case with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They're the smallest in size, the mildest in action, but the most thorough and far-reaching in results. They follow nature's methods and they give help that lasts. Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, Sick and Bilious Headaches, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels, are promptly relieved and permanently cured.

"If we can't cure your Catarrh, no matter how bad your case or of how long standing, we'll pay you $500 in cash." That is what is promised by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Doesn't it prove, better than any words could, that this is a remedy that cures Catarrh? Costs only 50 cents

TARIFF REFORM NOTES.

The Leaven Spreading Among Government Supporters.

Mr. Craig, who sits on the Conservative side of the House of Commons, believes the tariff should be reformed, and is confident that the Government intends to carry out its pledges. This is evidently the attitude of a good many Conservatives. The Government has asked for an extension of time; and they propose to grant it in consideration of a small concession and large promises of future good behaviour.

Mr. D'Alton McCarthy, M. P., received a telegram from Brandon, Man., Wednesday afternoon of which the following is a copy: "The Patrons of Industry of Manitoba and the Northwest assembled here, endorse your action and that of your supporters. Petition by mail signed by 1,870 Patron voters asking for the abolition of duties on the binder twine and machinery. Convention also favours the abolition of the duty on coal oil, and justice must and will prevail. By order of the convention. W. C. Granam, secretary."

Some of the Conservative papers, not of the watch-dog type, are alive to the importance of the tariff reform movement. The Quebec Chronicle, an influential journal which generally gives the Government its support, says "It is evident that there will be a popular demand for the reduction of duties all round. The tax on illuminating oils and on binder twine will be cut down. Corn will follow, and the Toronto Board of Trade has just asked to have the duty on iron reduced. The Government, we feel sure, will do what the people ask. When Mr. Cleveland comes to power one of his first acts will be to teach the Carnegie iron foundrymen that their monopoly must cease. Canada will be wise to take a step in advance." The Ottawa anthorties have now had time to learn that tariff reform is not a device of the enemy, but a reasonable request for relief made by an over-taxed people.

The care shown by the SUN LIFE in the selection of its risks will be understood when it is known that the death rate in 1892 was less than that in 1891 by $16,000, notwithstanding the vast increase in business. The significance of this point will be clearly seen in the profits paid by the Company.

REV. A. OUELLET.

CLERGYMEN IN CANADA

SPEAK TO BENEFIT THE PEOPLE!

MINISTERS AND PRIESTS UNANIMOUS!

MERITED TESTIMONY!

The Best Ever Submitted to Intelligent People.

A Canadian gentlemen of wide experience, and a member of Parliament recently remarked: "Fortunately for our people, the manufacturers of worthless nostrums and medicines made here and elsewhere, have not been able to use the names of clergymen and others in high stations as baits to entrap the unsuspecting and wary. It is, however, pleasing to see, that men in all professions, and those occupying positions of honour have come out bodly in favour of Paine's Celery Compound, a remedy removed far above any other now claiming the attention of sick and diseased people."

Amongst the large number of well-known clergymen in Canada recently restored to health and strength through the wonderful curing properties of Paine's Celery Compound, we would now mention the case of the Rev. A. Ouellet, Parish Priest of Shediac. N. B. The reverend gentlemen is very popular and greatly respected in the Lower Provinces. Writing to the proprietors of Paine's Celery Compound regarding his recent cure he says:

SHEDIAC, N.B., Oct. 19th, 1892.

MESSRS. WELLS & RICHARDSON CO.

Dear Sirs,—Of Paine's Celery Compound I can speak from experience. I had been laid up with fever and rheumatic gout from the 5th of January till the middle of June; hence my system was fearfully run down. I was very thin and so feeble that for several weeks I could not move along without help. I then began to take Paine's Celery Compound according to prescription; and to-day I am as fleshy and strong as I was ten years ago.

I do not say that I am radically cured as yet from gout, but the attacks are much less frequent; in fact, I have not been one single day prevented from attending to my usual work since that time. I therefore take great pleasure in certifying to the wonderful efficacy of that marvellous medicine.

As a blood purifier, it has no equal, and its beneficial influence on the digestive system cannot be questioned. In view of these facts I do not hesitate to advise sick persons to give Paine's Celery Compound a fair trial in the various ailments for which it is recommended. As far as I am concerned I intend to follow up, if possible, the Celery treatment until a complete cure is effected.

I am faithfully yours,
A. OUELLET, P.P.

NORTH SMITH.

Presentation to Mr. Milson Blewett.

Mr. Milson Blewett, who has been a life-long resident of North Smith, has sold his farm to Mr. John Northey, and having purchased from Mrs. Edward Sanderson the farm belonging to the late John Sanderson, Communication Line, will, it is expected, remove to his new property about the first of March. Mr. Blewitt being a prominent member of the North Smith Dairy Company, having been a director for seven years, his associates in the directorate, wishing to recognize his services in that capacity as well as his merit as a neighbour and friend, accompanied by their wives, waited on him at his residence on Tuesday evening, Feb. 21st, and presented him with the following address, accompanied with the appropriate present of a handsome silver cheese dish:

To Mr. Milson Blewitt:

SIR,—We, the directors of the North Smith Dairy Company, take advantage of the occasion of your removal from our neighbourhood to recognize the value of your services as a director of our company for the past seven years. We desire to bear unanimous testimony to the zeal, earnestness and ability which you have shown in promoting the interests of our company.

We have always found you at the post of duty, always courteous and faithful in the discharge of your official duties.

Therefore, we would take this opportunity of showing you in some tangible manner our appreciation of your services and our respect for you as a gentleman. In token whereof we beg that you will accept this silver cheese dish, coupled with the wish that you and Mrs. Blewett may spend many years of useful and happy life in your new home.

The address was read by the president of the company, Mr. M. E. Sanderson, and the presentation made by Mrs. H. H. Braden. Mr. Blewitt was very greatly surprised, and thanked his friends in a heartily appreciative manner, not only for the beautiful present and flattering address but for all the kindness he had received at their hands during his past life, which was all the happier for having been spent among such good neighbours and good friends. During the evening the doubly-welcome visitors were very hospitably and handsomely entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Blewett.

The removal of Mr. Blewitt and his family from the neighborhood will be very generally regretted for they made themselves respected by the excellent qualities they possessed as kind and obliging neighbours.

People troubled with sick and nervous headaches will find a most efficacious remedy in Ayer's Cathartic Pills. They strengthen the stomach, stimulate the liver, restore healthy action to the digestive organs, and thus afford speedy and permanent relief

HIS SERVICES TANGIBLY APPRECIATED.

Mr. Wm. Collins, the Retiring Secretary of the Peterborough Central Exhibition Handsomely Remembered by the Directors.

A pleasant affair took place at the Morgan House Thursday afternoon when Mr. Wm. Collins, for the past five years secretary of the Peterborough Central Exhibition, and for a number of years a faithful and hardworking director, was on the resignation of his position, presented by the Board of Directors with a valuable fur coat as an appreciation of his past services rendered the society. Miss Collins who has ably assisted her father in the capacity of assistant secretary, was also made the recipient of a costly Persian lamb cap. Mr. President Elliott read the following suitably worded address and Mr. Wm. Rutherford made the presentation:—

PETERBOROUGH, Feb. 22nd, 1893.

To Mr. Wm. Collins:

DEAR SIR,—The Directors and others who take an interest in the Central Exhibition, while regretting that you have resigned the position of Secretary of the Association do not wish you to relinquish those duties you have so faithfully and efficiently performed without giving you some special token of our appreciation of your services in that and other capacities. As a member of long standing, as director, superintendent and secretary, you have done much for the success of the Society and its annual exhibition, and as a slight, tangible expression of our recognition of those services, we ask you to accept this coat, and also to accept for Miss Collins, who so efficiently shared the work of the Secretary's office, this cap, which we hope you will both live long to wear, and and at the same time continue your interest in the Society.

GEO. E. ELLIOTT, President.
W. J. GREEN.

Mr. Collins, though taken entirely by surprise, made a feeling reply to the directors for their kindness and good will and expressing pleasure that his past services had been appreciated. He would in the future, as in the past, strive to do his best to further the cause and interest of the West Peterborough Agricultural Society with which he had so long been identified.

Mr. A. P. Morgan added a few kind words expressing the valuable services always rendered the society by Mr. Collins. He cordially thanked the directors for making the presentation in his private apartments, and for their consideration of his ill health in doing so. It was a kindness he would not soon forget.

WAS VOTE AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT.

Mr. Calvin (Frontenac), an old time Conservative, attracted the attention of the house, and was listened to attentively, as he spoke the few sentences by which he announced his intention of voting against the government on this question. He first referred to the reduction of the duty upon binder twine. This musidering branch had only been broken so that it had shown how rotten it was. The finance minister had told the house that he must go about the country inquiring from all classes and in all places the desirability and description of the tariff relief which was wanted and that, after a few months, when this house met again, he would come with the combined and concentrated information and propose a revision. Up to this point the scattered occupants of the chamber did not many of them suspect what was about to follow. "I sincerely hope," he said, "and I say it with all sincerity, that the scheme to be born of this effort will command our admiration and our votes, but I desire to say that I regret that this delay is necessary, and that for this vote I shall be obliged to differ from my friends, because my voice is for revision and I vote against the government on this question." There was enthusiastic applause from the opposition benches when the new tariff revision recruit resumed his seat.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE "IN IT."

A Life Agent called at a friend's place one day,
HE WASN'T IN IT;
He had seen "the bore" coming and fled from the way,
HE WASN'T IN IT;
He had heard so much said, he was tired quite dead
Of insurance and agents—'twas all a blank head
When one's coil must be shuffled to win it,
HE WASN'T IN IT.

A bit of a draft blew o'er his bald head,
HE WAS IN IT;
Pneumonia sent him straightway to his bed,
HE STAYED IN IT;
His doctor made of it a "quite special" case,
To save him for running still more of life's race,
But the grave took some chances to win it,
AND HE'S IN IT.

When approached by a gent for insuring your life,
GET RIGHT IN IT;
It's the right thing to do for your children and wife,
THEN STAY IN IT.
Remember that fires take your goods "out of sight,"
And that accidents happen each day and each night.
While insurance protects every minute,
IF YOU'RE IN IT.

A Bank Manager's Opinion.

HE IS "IN IT."

The General Manager of one of the leading banks in Canada, writing to a personal friend, says:—"I have no hesitation in saying that I place the CANADA LIFE upon the highest platform. It is in my opinion carefully, economically and honestly managed; its Reserve Funds are well invested; its rates of Premiums are low, and its future is, I think better assured than a great majority of Companies. I have my own life insured in the Company for a round amount, and would not hesitate to increase the amount of my policies should I decide upon taking out further insurance."

A Government Insurance Actuary's Opinion

On the Relation between Ordinary and Tontine Service.

It is frequently assertedby Companies whose business is nearly all tontined, that although the CANADA LIFE may and does pay large ordinary profits, yet it cannot compare so favourably on a long term distribution or tontine period, and that in the end better results can be obtained on a tontine policy in a large American Co. than on an ordinary or tontine policy in the CANADA LIFE. To prove the absurdity of this statement, the following piece of common sense is quoted from Mervin Tabor, late Actuary of the Illinois Goverment Insurance Department. In his well known book, "The Three Systems of Life Insurance," he says: "A company that gives large dividends on the ordinary kind of policies, can give much larger on the same kinds when Tontined, and a company that pays but meagre dividends on the usual forms, adopting perhaps the Tontine system to "cover up" its small surpluses, cannot be relied on for large returns of surplus under the Tontine Forms of Insurance."

The CANADA LIFE does not "cover up" its Quinquennial profits as some Companies do, but publishes them throughout the country.

It can and does surpass other Companies on Quinquennial profits. It should and will surpass them on Tontine profits.

WHY TO BE "IN IT."

BISHOP HAWKE'S REASON:—"I claim that Life Insurance is not only a humane, but I might say a Christian Institution."

LORD LYNDHURST'S REASON:—"A Policy of Life Insurance is always an evidence of prudent forethought. No man with a dependent family is free from reproach if not insured."

WHEN TO BE "IN IT."

The younger, the cheaper. Therefore insure when young. Besides by insuring in the CANADA LIFE now, you will share in three years' profits.

WHERE TO BE "IN IT."

The best place to be "in it" is in the Company that gives the best returns for the least money, consistent with absolute security. Therefore, in order to be "in it," choose the

The Last Sad Rites.

The funeral of the late Madeline Davis took place yesterday afternoon and was largely attended. The solemnities were conducted by Rev. S. J. Shorey, of Napanee, assisted by Rev. J. H. Locke and Rev. George Edwards. The number of floral contributions was exceedingly large, those from her late schoolmates and teacher being particularly suggestive of the popularity which the deceased enjoyed amongst them.

A Social Event of Interest.

Remember that Court Peterborough, No. 20, Canadian Order of Foresters, will celebrate their fifteenth anniversary in their large hall, Hunter street, on Tuesday evening next. A fine programme will be produced which cannot fail to please all. Be sure that you secure a ticket for the Foresters' "at home" and supper, and you will thoroughly enjoy yourself.

Frou Frou.

Many people are not familiar with the play of "Frou Frou." It is a modern society drama, has had a run of over five hundred nights at the Theatre Francaise, in Paris. It is Bernhardt's principal play, and her favorite one. The ROLE of "Frou Frou" calls for most every human emotion, from the highest Comedy to the most desperate emotion and tragedy. Any actress that can play "Frou Frou" successfully must of necessity be a genius. Opera House Saturday night.

Christian Endeavour Meeting.

The local union of Christian Endeavourers held a meeting at the Auburn Mission church last night, which was, notwithstanding the boisterous weather, well attended—especially by the young people of that neighborhood. Mr. A. J. Hamilton, president of the local union presided, and the service was conducted on Christian Endeavour lines. Much interest was manifested in the plain and practical addresses given. The topic was "Hindrances, and How to Meet Them," on which several persons spoke. The prospects for establishing a Christian Endeavour Society in that part of the town are indeed excellent.

We call attention to the advertisement of Prof. Dorenwend, the leading manufacturer of hair goods in Canada. He will be at Phelan's hotel on Saturday, Feb. 25th, with a large stock of every conceivable form of hair goods coverings for both ladies and gentlemen. Our lady readers should call on the professor and see the great improvement that can be made in their appearance by using these goods. They are light and natural in appearance, and their detection is impossible. Gentlemen, there are thousands of the leading men of Canada who are wearing Dorenwend's half and full wigs. Why don't you use them rather than go around with your head bare when nature intended it to be covered? Call on the Prof, and be convinced that not only will your appearance be improved by using these goods, but greater comfort will be secured.

Revival in a Jail.

"Some fell on good ground and brought forth fruit." Some little time ago says the Napanee Beaver, one of the prisoners in the Napanee jail was stricken with remorse, and picking up a hymn book began reading and singing. An interest was aroused among the inmates, and all participated in the meetings. The result has been that a revival has taken place, and all the prisoners profess conversion. On Sunday last Rev. S. J. Shorey went up and delivered an address to them. When the revival began there were nine persons confined in the jail, eight vagrants and one for larceny; two have left, their time having expired. Our reporter paid a visit to the jail on Thursday last and heard each one give an experience that they had been redeemed. They take a great interest in reading their testaments, some having them nearly read through. They hold prayer meetings every night, and on several occasions have been led by one of themselves.

BAND IN ATTENDANCE!

An Artist in Request.

Mr. G. B. Sproule has good reason to be proud of the recognition he has received of his abilities as a photographic artist. He has been selected by the publishers of the Canadian Photographic Journal to furnish the photographic frontpiece for the May number. This frontispiece consists of a photograph finished in the highest style of the art. Mr. Sproule has also received another compliment coupled with a tribute to the beauty of Peterborough ladies. The Canadian Photographic Journal has been requested by Anthony of New York to furnish twelve of the most artistically difficult photographic pictures of ladies, illustrating types of Canadian beauty, and Mr. Sproule has been commissioned to supply six of these pictures. He will have less difficulty in finding subjects than in selecting six of the handsomest out of so many handsome ones.

A Fine Phonograph Concert.

The phonograph concert in the lecture room of the Charlotte street Methodist church last evening was a great success both musically and numerically. Mr. Lang operated the large lecture room phonograph in capital style and the many selections rendered by the wonderful instrument were admirably rendered and harmoniously produced. The opening piece "Sweet Bye and Bye," was tunefully rendered. Then came a stirling whistling tune "Way down on the Swanee River," and also a speech by the instrument. The melody which was sung by the Ball Jubilee Singers while here "Look away to the Heavens" was reproduced correctly. The 57th Battalion and Peterborough Fire Brigade band was present and played with clever execution three or four selections during the evening which were reproduced by the phonograph very creditably. The last selection was a quartette "God Save the Queen," which brought to a close a highly delightful musical entertainment.

SONS OF CANADA!

The Cash System Adopted.

There can be no doubt of the superiority of the cash system over the credit system in mercantile matters, both in the interest of the dealer and the customer. A merchant buying goods for cash gets them at a much lower rate and in selling for cash he can forego the large margin of profit the credit dealer is compelled to put on to cover bad debts, discounts, &c., and the buyer gets the advantage of lower prices for the same grade of goods. Messrs. Hall, Gilchrist & Co., as will be seen by their advertisement in this issue, have adopted the cash system, and will hereafter conduct their business on this basis and their customers will reap the benefit of the reduced prices for first-class goods which the firm, under the new system, will be able to give. In connection with the cash system, the sending out of goods on approbation will be impossible. Those desirous of procuring the best of goods at the very lowest prices will find it to their advantage to visit Hall, Gilchrist & Co.

TO-NIGHT! TO-NIGHT!

A Talented Lady.

The grand concert in the Opera House on March 8th, given by the Belle Botsford Concert Co., of Boston, under the auspices of Otonabee Lodge, I.O.O.F., is attracting considerable attention on account of the rare musical treat it offers to the public. Of Miss Botsford, the violiniste, an exchange says:—"A lady violinist on the public stage, in concert, invariably suggests to all music lovers and concert goers, Camilla Urso, the grand woman who first made public violin playing by a lady popular and possible in America. Miss Botsford has a handsomer face than Camilla Urso, and she plays with superior skill indeed. Her fine chords in the higher positions on the earth's king of instruments, the violin, her flute and fife imitations, her sudden correct transitions from the highest to the lowest tones, are simply wonderful. Thus, too, whilst she plays with the easy grace of a female, she gives the power of a male performer, and so gives fine shading its widest possible range." Tickets 50 and 25 cents. 1d46

The company, which is a thoroughly good one, includes singers, dancers, jugglers, sketch artists, Irish, German and negro comedians, gymnasts and musical specialists. The show concludes with a funny farce called "A Hot Pickle." Yesterday's audiences were unmistakably delighted. The show runs all week, with Wednesday and Saturday matinees. 1d gradually growing worse. Three years ago I got down so low that I could scarcely walk. I looked more like a corpse than a living being. I had no appetite and for five weeks I ate nothing but gruel. I was badly emaciated and had no more color than a marble statue. Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended and I thought I would try it. Before I had finished the first bottle I noticed that I felt better, suffered less, the inflammation of the bladder had subsided, the color began to return to my face, and I began to feel hungry. After I had taken three bottles I could eat anything without hurting me. Why, I got so hungry that I had to eat 5 times a day. I have now fully recovered, thanks to

AN ACTIVE FORESTER

Is Remembered by his Brethren of Court Peterborough, Canadian Order of Foresters.

A pleasing affair was enacted at the residence of Mr. A. D. Russell, Concession street, Ashburnham, last night when he was made the recipent of a valuable malacca silver headed cane presented to him by the members of Court Peterborough, No. 29, Canadian Order of Foresters. It was only learned a few days that Mr. Russell intended leaving for Belleville where he has accepted a situation with Messrs. Ritchie & Co., dry goods dealers In that city, and although the time was short, the members of Court Peterborough felt that they could not allow their Past Chief Ranger to take his departure for the City of the Bay without in some manner showing their hearty appreciation of his many admirable qualities and a practical acknowledgement of his vigilant and indefatigable labours in the interest of Forestry during the past seven years. Accordingly the following address was presented to him last night. Bro. Dr. A. R. Rose made the presentation and Bro. W. J. Hooper read the nicely worded address:—

To Bro. A. D. Russell, P. C. R., Court Peterborough, No. 29, Canadian Order of Foresters:

Having learned within the fast few days of your intention to sever your business connections with this town, and that your departure on Saturday next would lead to your making your home in another community, we hastily collected a few of our brethren of Court Peterborough, No. 29, C. O. F. We desire to express in a measure the regret we feel at the sudden sundering of the bonds of fellowship that have so agreeably existed between us. We feel that we cannot allow the occasion to pass without leaving with you some tangible mark of our esteem, which we hope you will accept as a slight token of our regard for one who has been a fervent, earnest worker in the noble cause of Forestry, and an agreeable companion among your brethren of Court 29. Accept this cane, carry it into your new field of labour, let it ever remind you of the many happy occasions when we have met and laboured to further the interests of liberty, benevolence and concord.

Signed on behalf of Court Peterborough,
BRO. W. J. HOOPER, C.R.,
" W. S. ROBINSON, P.C.R.,
" A. COMSTOCK, P.C.R.,
" W. MADILL, P.C.R.,
" A. R. ROSE, P.C.R.,
" H. LONG,
" JOS. GILLESPIE.

Mr. Russel though taken by consternation made a grateful and appreciative reply thanking the brethren for their kindness and high estimation of the work he had done in behalf of Court Peterborough. He was never tired of labouring for the advancement of Forestery, and any service that he had rendered in the past had been cheerfully and willingly given. He trusted that he might be instrumental in instituting a lodge of the Canadian Order of Foresters in Belleville, where he was sorry to state no such organization at present existed. The kindness of his friends in Peterborough he would never forget, and he wished them all deserving success and prosperity.

The handsome walking stick which was supplied by A. Stratton & Co., bore the following artistically engraved inscription:

Presented to Bro. A. D. Russell, P. C. R.,
By members of Court Peterborough, No. 29,
Canadian Order of Foresters.

Mr. Russell after a residence of many years here, leaves town carrying with him the very best wishes of his scores of friends for a felicitious future.

THEY STRUCK A 2:40 GAIT

AND THE GRANITE CURLERS WERE DISTANCED IN THE RACE.

Peterborough's Triumphant March—Not a Single One of the Home Rinks Defeated—Forty of a Majority Afternoon and Evening—A Few "Cannery" Remarks by the Visitors—Nothing but Straight Shot Allowed—"Here, there we Greet you in Toast and Song."

The famous Granite curlers of Toronto, known for their splendid playing abilities throughout the universe where the good old Scottish game predominates, met a Waterloo in Peterborough yesterday. Verily it was the greatest day for the local lovers of the stane and besom that they have seen, both in the number of rinks visiting our town and the more than satisfactory results to the most sanguine curler. It was a day which will long be remembered in the annals of the home club, for its significance, its joy to the sport and by its results—as one member of the visitors remarked—Peterborough has won the proud distinction of being the champion curlers of the world—excepting, of course, hyperborean Bobcaygeon. The Granites never sent twelve rinks to visit any other city or town in their history, and that Peterborough has been paid this signal honour, fills the breasts of the numerous lovers of the roarin' game with pardonable pride. The competition was in many ways unique in the history of curling. Six rinks of the Granites played six local rinks in the afternoon, and the latter were successful by the gratifying majority of 40 shots—not a single rink of the town team being defeated, but on the contrary downing their opponents by scores ranging from 2 to 21 shots. In the evening six more rinks of the Granites played another sextette of the home ice-sweepers, and the score was duplicated — Peterborough again emerging triumphant by a score of 40 shots. Truly it was a sensible answer that Vice-President Hatton gave to Mr. Geo. Anderson of the Torontos, when he was proposing the health of the Peterboroughskips at last night's supper. The speaker said he could not understand how it was that the unconquerable Granites could be so ignominiously defeated, and he would like to know the reason of Peterborough's signal achievement. Quick as a flash came the witty retort from the genial Vice-President of the Peterborough's: "They struck a two-forty gait." The remark simply brought down the house. Another striking similarity to the morning score was that not a single local rink in the evening was again beaten—each being victors by shots ranging from 2 to 13 in number. Just three weeks ago the Peterboroughonians of the roarin' game visited the Queen City and defeated the granites in a 12 rink competition by the narrow margin of 14 shots, and in the return combat last evening distanced their doughty rivals by 66 additional points. The visitors took defeat with good grace and smilingly bowed to the prowess of their enemies.

Play on the afternoon games was commenced at 1.30 o'clock, and continued until five, when the different battles closed in order that the visitors might catch the 5.45 C. P. R. train and return home, as many of them were desirous of doing. However a few by urgent entreaty on the part of the Peterboroughs were induced to remain over for the evening matches.

The remaining six rinks of the Granites arrived at 8.15 o'clock. The other six rinks of the Peterboroughs were at the station to meet them and gave them a hearty welcome. Play was commenced shortly after nine and continued with unabated interest until a few minutes after one. The affray was scanned with eager attention by a large company of spectators, both in the evening and also in the afternoon. The ice was keen and in prime condition, the Torontonians being loud in their praises of its magnificent state.

Following are the personnels and scores captured at the evening games:—

THE FESTIVITIES AFTER.

It was a jolly company of some seventy five—all curlers, most of them—who sat down to a tasty supper provided by mine host Wm. Snowden, after the crucial contest was over. Felicitous speeches, captivating songs and inoffensive raillery were the order of the evening. The Granites were tendered a flattering reception—the home team in a measure endeavouring to cancel in a slight manner at least their obligation to the Toronto men whose generosity was unbounded when Peterborough visited Toronto. After the veritable Scottish appetites, whetted all the more keen owing to the preceeding four hours violent exertion were satisfied, the merriment began and lasted until an early hour in the morn. In the absence of President Dumble, Vice-President Hatton made a most entertaining chairman, while the vice-chair was done due honour to by the genial Dr. Boucher. The Granites again and again thanked the Peterborough's for their liberality of sentiment and avowed that they were the very best of hosts. During the evenings songs were sung and rapturously encored by Messrs. Bruce, Creelman, Sparling, Bleasdill, Toronto; and Messrs. T. Dunn, A. Elliott, A. McNeil and others. Mr. H. Phelan contributed a facetious recitation. Capt. A. E. Bottum, of Bobcaygeon, was also present, and hailing from the hyperborean hamlet which won the Tankard, was in fine spirits. The Toronto contingent returned home at 4.45 o'clock this morning, and will long remember their excursion to Peterborough — considering, as they did, that it was an honour to be defeated by such an aggregation as the home team.

A great game is on for the oysters on March 1st, but it is coming off all the same, and although the participants wanted to keep it quiet, and have said nothing about it among their brother lovers of the stone, still as a great deal of speculation is indulged in the names are published:

THE STRIKE SUCCESSFUL.

The Decision at the Catholic Association Debate Last Night.

At the weekly entertainment in the Catholic Association rooms last night there was a good attendance, and both branches of the programme, musical and oratorical, was enjoyable.

The programme opened with a chorus, "Swing Those Gates Ajar," by the Association glee club, under the leadership of Mr. R. J. Hiller, who was attired in negro costume. The chorus was excellently rendered, and though this was their first appearance they acquitted themselves in fine style. Miss K. Hurley followed with a pianoforte solo, rendered with great taste and expression. The Harmony Quartette composed of Messrs. Hiller, Muncaster, McDonald and Mahoney, followed with "The Soldier's Farewell." The rendition of this number was excellent, and their singing created a very favourable impression.

The debate was, however, the chief point of interest. The subject was, "Resolved, that strikes are detrimental to the interests of the workingman." For the affirmative Messrs. G. H. Giroux, W. Rudkins, and W. Hogan appeared, and for the negative Messrs. Geo. Ball, R. Sheehy and W. H. Horkins. The debate was a very spirited one, the several speeches showing considerable research and skill in marshalling facts and arguments. The debate was conducted in a parliamentary manner, several lively personal tongue contests relieving the monotony of a dead level of oratorical agrument. Dr. Brennan and Messrs. Gus Gough and J. P. Hurley sat in judgment and after due deliberation decided that the preponderence of argument was in favour of the contention of the negative.

The programme concluded with a quartette, "Annie Lorraine," by Messrs. Hiller, Muncaster, McDonald and Begley, Mr. W. Watson singing the solo.

"MADAM, YOU MUST USE ANOTHER FOOD."

A Montreal physician, during the month of December last, was called to see a sickly young child of eight months. The mother was terribly alarmed about her baby's condition, and implored the family physician to use his best endeavours to save the little one's life.

The physician's keen perception enabled him to locate the trouble without any loss of time, and turning to the mother he asked, "How do you feed your child?" The mother informed him that she was regularly using a prepared food which her grocer had recommended to her.

The physician promptly said, said, "Madam, you must use another food." Before the doctor left, he strongly recommended the weary and heart-sore mother to procure a supply of the reliable Lactated Food Food, assuring her that the child's stomach would retain it, and that it would improve digestion.

The mother, after a month's trial of the Lactated Food, has written to the proprietors gratefully acknowledging the fact that her child was saved by Lactated Food.

This grand and well-tested food never fails in its work of building up and fortifying weak and delicate children.

A FULL STOMACH

ought to cause you no discomfort whatever. If it does, though—if there's any trouble after eating—take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They're a perfect and convenient vest-pocket remedy. One of these tiny, sugar-coated, anti-bilious granules at a dose regulates and corrects the entire system. Sick or Bilious Headaches, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach, and bowels are prevented, relieved and cured.

They're the smallest, easiest to take, cheapest and best. They're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or money is returned.

Which is the best to try, if you have Catarrh—a medicine that claims to have cured others, or a medicine that is backed by money to cure you? The proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy agree to cure your Catarrh, perfectly and permanently, or they'll pay you $500 in cash.

SHADES.

If You Would be Well-Dressed Consider Them.

The accompanying illustration shows a dress of sea-green silk, with small flowers and trimmed with cream colored embroidered tulle and with knots of satin ribbon. Now that we are wearing old brocades, and so on, remember that you must consider the colors in the quaint brocading. A gown of queer stuff—green and cream stripes—is thickly strewn with tiny rosebuds that show a touch of darker green in the bit of foliage, and a tip of scarlet at the bud. There is dark green velvet in the binding of the gown, and the inside ruffles are dark green for one, and scarlet for the other, and the stockings and shoes are scarlet. Thereby the rosebuds are brought out and have their full value in the gown, and in the material. If they had been ignored in the accessories they might as well not have been there at all. A gown of soft grey shows a tiny bit of scarlet in the quaint printed figure in the material. Now, if you put too much scarlet with the dress you will take from its grey character, yet the little scarlet should be allowed its value. Will you have a scarlet ribbon to your fan? Will you tuck a scarlet flower in your hair? Or will you have a scarlet centre to the grey rosettes on your old fashioned grey slippers? Of course, you may have scarlet heels if you like, but there again, there is a coquettry about such an introduction of red that interferes, or almost contradicts, the grey of the gown. All colors have their character, and gowns to have the right effect should partake of and carry out the character of the color used.

FLORETTE.

A Useful Official.

Boston notions are numberless and very apt to be good. In that city notices in English, French, German and Swedish are hung in the waiting-rooms of the railway stations and pier sheds warning young girls against strangers and stating at what hours a matron, who will be recognizable by her prescribed badge may be found to give all needed information and advice. In the same city, which is peculiarly the home and originating place of practical charities, a second good scheme is that of the Young Travelers' Aid society. Under its auspices matrons meet the chief trains, both incoming and out going, and aid by suggestion or information the traveler who needs it. A country girl, a foreigner, a mother wrestling with an unwieldy family of slippery children, particularly if she is a stranger in a strange land—these and similar helpless and distracted wayfarers are righted, relieved and sent on their way rejoicing.

Bethel's Black Bears.

The early settlers of Bethel, Me., were much troubled by black bears, which killed the sheep, robbed the beehives and raided the cornfields. A farmer whose corn, being in the milk, attracted the bears, placed a tub of new rum and molasses in the field. The next morning he found a large bear stretched out beside it, beastly drunk. The tub was empty. When bruin woke up he found himself securely chained.

Municipal Liquor.

The sale of intoxicating liquors in Scandinavia is controlled by municipal communities—cities, towns, etc. All the profits derived belong to the community, and are applied to the support of schools, hospitals and other public institutions. Only hotels are permitted to retail liquors, and the liquors sold in them must be purchased from the community. In Christiania alone the profits from the sale of liquors amount to many thousands of dollars annually.

Dyspepsia's victims find prompt and permanent relief in Hood's Sarsaparilla, which tones the stomach and creates an appetite.

FOUND HE WAS DEAD.

Remarkable Verdict in the case of the Penny Sound Suicide.

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—"Found dead with a bullet wound in his head" was the verdict returned last night by the jury which enquired into the death of David M. Whyte, Parry Sound, who was shot in the St. James' Hotel last Friday.

The evidence taken last night was short, but served to clear up some of the mysterious points in the tragedy.

Secretary McLean of the Conger Lumber Company, who had just returned from Parry Sound, where he had taken the body of the deceased, gave some important testimony. He said that when deceased left Parry Sound he had $11, which had decreased to $8 by the time he reached Utterson, the nearest station on the Northern Railway. Mr. McLean also positively identified the handwriting of the note in the watch case as that of the deceased.

Detective McGrath testified that he had not been successful in finding the mysterious stranger, M. K. Ostrom, who had been in the company of the deceased the day before the tragedy.

Coroner Johnson made a long presentation of the case to the jury. He said that M. K. Ostrom was wanted in Lindsay to answer a charge of fraud. He is alleged to have committed the offence while acting as agent for a "fake" photo-enlarging company. His last employer, J. H. Ford of Queen-street west, was also anxious to see him. The coroner also described minutely the room in which deceased was found. He noticed that though the note in the watch case was written in ink, there was no pen or ink in the room. The paper on which the note was written had red lines upon one side but only the ordinary ruling upon the other. The coroner gave ample directions to the jury as to the verdict they should bring in. He told them they ought not to bring in a verdict of suicide unless they were fully convinced that it was a clear case of felo-de-se. They must remember that the verdict remained on record and it would be a serious matter to tell the little son of the deceased when he came to manhood that his father had been a self-murderer. For this reason if for no other he would request them to bring in a verdict of "found dead" if they thought it was possible that someone else had caused Whyte's death.

In a short time the jury found the verdict already stated.

An obedience to the simple laws of hygiene and the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla will enable the most delicate man or sickly woman to pass in ease and safety from the icy atmosphere of February to the warm, moist days of April. It is the best of spring medicines.

A Friend

Wishes to speak through the Register of the beneficial results he has received from a regular use of Ayer's Pills. He says: "I was feeling sick and tired and my stomach seemed all out of order. I tried a number of remedies, but none seemed to give me relief until I was induced to try the old reliable Ayer's Pills. I have taken only one box, but I feel like a new man. I think they are the most pleasant and easy to take of anything I ever used, being so finely sugar-coated that even a child will take them. I urge upon all who are of a laxative to try Ayer's Pills."—Boothbay (Me.) Register.

In Need

"Between the ages of five and fifteen, I was troubled with a kind of salt-rheum, or eruption, chiefly confined to the legs, and especially to the bend of the knee above the calf. Here, running sores formed which would scab over, but would break immediately on moving the leg. My mother tried everything she could think of, but all was without avail. Although a child, I read in the papers about the beneficial effects of Ayer's Pills, and persuaded my mother to let me try them. With no great faith in the result, she procured and I began to use them, and soon noticed an improvement. Encouraged by this, I kept on till I took two boxes, when the sores disappeared and have never troubled me since."—H. Chipman, Real Estate Agent, Roanoke, Va.

"I suffered for years from stomach and kidney troubles, causing very severe pains in various parts of the body. None of the remedies I tried afforded me any relief until I began taking Ayer's Pills, and was cured."—Wm. Goddard, Notary Public, Five Lakes, Mich.

Early Hatching.

Set a few hens this month.

The early chick, with a few extra precautions at the outset, makes the heavy crower or the winter layer.

Do not try the sod prescription in making early nests for the setters. That will do later—warmth, not moisture, is needed now.

In making the early nest use dry material. Into a suitable box large enough to be roomy for the hen, put a thick layer of broken straw. Over this place a layer of feathers. Upon this some chaff or other light material.

Make the nest but slightly concave, just enough to hold the eggs in position but not enough to cause them to roll against each other. Too often the latter fault in nest-making is present, and broken eggs are the result.

Having made the nest, place therein as many nest eggs as it is desired the hen should cover, and then get the broody hen. She should be well feathered and should be thoroughly broody. Place her on the nest-eggs at night, and if she remains upon the nest, going off to feed and drink only, for two or three days, the signs are all right for setting the hen.

Select for this purpose not more than ten eggs of the size that the sitter would lay. Eight would be a better number. By this is meant that if the sitter is a Light Brahma eight to ten Light Brahma eggs, or if a Plymouth Rock eight to ten Plymouth Rock eggs may be used. Of course if a large fowl, like a Light Brahma, is set upon small eggs, a number that would occupy the space of the larger Brahma eggs can be used.

Some err by setting too many eggs under a single hen in cold weather. In their desire to get as many early chickens as possible, they use as many eggs as they would in warm weather, and the result is that they often fail to get a single chicken. Eight or ten eggs will usually produce more chickens at this season than twelve to fifteen eggs would under one hen. During cold weather an egg gets injuriously chilled by a much less exposure than in warm weather, and where a full sitting is given a hen she is apt to expose one or two eggs at a time until perhaps the whole clutch is spoiled. With the best of precautions and the most painstaking care, one ought not to get his expectations too high.

As a rule, owing, perhaps, to the close confinement to which the fowls are necessarily subjected, to the lack of exercise due to such confinement, to the interruption or total lack of green food, and to the absence of the genial warmth that brings on a tide in the blood incident to the natural breeding season the eggs are not so fertile as could be wished. Early chickens are desirable; but then they are not altogether easy to obtain.—American Agriculturist.

A Neglected Fodder Crop.

Peas are an excellent food for milch cows, or for hogs. Take a piece of fall plowing and harrow it well to make a good seed bed. Sow broadcast two and one-half bushels of the small Canada peas, or three bushels of marrowfats, and plow under four or five inches. The pea is a deep-rooted plant and should be put well down. Sow on top of the ground one bushel of oats to hold the peas up. For hogs they come in as a green forage after clover, and may be cut with a scythe, and thrown in to them, or a movable fence may be put around a small portion of the field. Good success has been obtained by putting the peas and oats in the silo. Or they may be cut and cured, threshed and ground into meal. Try two or three acres as an experiment the coming spring.—American Agriculturist.

Couldn't Keep on His Feet.

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 31st, 1892.

To the Peterborough Medicine Company:

GENTLEMEN,—If there is any medicine in the world that I pin my faith to it is Membray's Kidney and Liver Cure. In my business I have to stand on my feet a good deal. About a year ago my back began to give out, weakening pains set in across my kidneys, I felt tired all the time and could hardly stand up to my work. I began to lose strength and at last had to give up work altogether. A customer advised me to try your cure which I did. Before half the bottle was used, I felt the pains and weakness leaving me and to-day I enjoy good health and can bear fatigue and work all right. One bottle was all I used.

A Pleasant Herb Drink.

The best cure we know of for constipation and headache is the pleasant herb drink called Lane's Family Medicine. It is said to be Oregon grape root, combined with simple herbs, and is made for use by pouring boiling water onto the dried roots and herbs. It is remarkably efficacious in all blood disorders, and is now the sovereign remedy with ladies for clearing up the complexion. Druggists sell the packages at 50c. and $1.

When in Despair.

When in despair of being cured of lung troubles, there is still a hope, and a strong hope of perfect cure in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This medicine cures even after all others have failed, and no one suffering from coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, hoarseness, etc., need despair of cure while Norway Pine Syrup is obtainable.

A BARN FOR SHEEP.

Plans of a Structure for Only Hundred and Fifty Animals.

Our Illustration is of a barn designed to shelter 150 sheep. It is 36x30 feet with a "lean to" shed on the south and east. The lambing pen, 12x12 feet, shearing floor or shepherd's room, 12x12 feet, and grain bin 6x12 feet, occupy a space 12 feet wide across the south end. The lambing pen is divided into two parts by a partition running north and south and each half can be again divided into three pens by movable partitions indicated by the dotted line in the figure.

A root cellar under the shearing-room is reached by a trap door and stairway. The grain bin is divided into apartments for oats, corn, oil-meal, bran, etc. A feeding alley 4 feet wide runs from the shearing room to the north end of the barn dividing this portion into two sections, E and G. These two parts are divided by the movable partitions indicated by dotted lines. The shed, A, is 54 feet long by 12 feet deep and will accommodate 55 average sheep. In the ground plan, the feed racks are marked I. Give each sheep 1 1-4 feet of space at the feed rack. Should the barn be filled to its full capacity, more feed racks would be needed.

Additional ones can be placed at the ends of the shed and along the east and west sides of the barn for the sheep inside. The feed racks under the sheds were purposely omitted in the perspective as they would have been too small to give an idea of their construction. In a subsequent issue we will give one or more plans of racks which can be used in any barn. Two large windows and two smaller ones above the doors on the east, the same number on the opposite side, with those in the south and west sides of the lambing pen, give ample light and ventilation. The shearing floor is lighted by the windows J J, and the small one in the door at O. With this arrangement the shepherd can see the sheep in any part of the barn without leaving his room. There is a hay well, H, at each end of the feeding alley down which hay is thrown for the sheep inside. The barn is 10 feet high at the eaves and the floor of the mow 6½ feet above the ground floor. The shed roof joins the barn 2 feet above the floor of the mow and the hay for the sheep in the shed is thrown out through a small sliding door at the south end of mow.

Double doors on each side of the barn and the movable partitions allow a wagon to be backed into it for loading the manure. The shed is open to a height of 4 feet. By digging shallow trenches for the wheels a wagon will pass under it. At 3 pounds per day a sheep would require about 125 cubic feet of hay in 6 months. At that rate the barn will hold enough to feed 150 sheep nearly three months. This mow space can be increased by building a higher barn. Build the sheep barn on high dry ground. The dimensions can be varied to suit the individual needs of different flock owners.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Mother.

No more queenly title exists than "mother," no sweeter sound will ever reach the ears than the lisping utterances of that name by childish voices. The flattery and adulation of the world soon pass away—another favorite treads the boards, a younger and more vigorous hand takes up the pen, and the one-time idol is thought of no more, but in the home, the passing years, the loss of beauty, the lack of showy qualities have no power to change the love of those who find in "wife and mother" the truest embodiment of all that is best and sweetest in womanhood.

Makes Flesh and Blood.

When the system is all run down and there seems to be no hope of obtaining nourishment for the body by the ordinary process of food supply and digestion, when the body is sinking fast, then is the time to use Miller's Emulsion of pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil. It always works wonders, because it is a flesh and blood maker, and contains all the constituents for nourishment found in wheat, in fact Miller's Emulsion is a perfect "staff of life" and has saved and cured thousands. In big bottles, 50c. and $1, at all Drug Stores.

Not a Particle.

A feature worth noticing in regard to Burdock Blood Bitters is that it does not contain one particle of poisonous matter. It cures and cures quickly without the use of any injurious ingredients. B.B.B is a purely vegetable specific for dyspepsia, constipation, bad blood, headache, billiousness and all diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels and blood.

Delay is Dangerous.

When the kidney's are out of order delay is dangerous. Any disease may follow and become so well established that months of suffering will follow. A gentle tonic like Dodd's Kidney Pills is always acceptable to the kidneys and protects them from disease. They are a kidney food.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for coughs and colds does it, is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it a sample bottle FREE, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c. and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.

Reduced to a Science.

The treatment of disease is now almost reduced to a science. A scientific product of medical skill for the cure of all blood diseases from a common pimple to the worst scrofulous sore, which has held popular esteem for years and increases steadily in favor, is Burdock Blood Bitters. Its cures prove its worth.

Small sugar-coated Burdock Pills do not gripe or sicken. They are mild and effectual.

News About Town.

It is the current report about town that Kemp's Balsam for the throat and lungs is making some remarkable cures with people who are troubled with coughs, sore throat, asthma, bronchitis and consumption. Any druggist will give you a trial bottle FREE OF COST. It is guaranteed to relieve and cure. The large bottles are 50c. and $1.

IS IT A BREACH OF TRUST

THE APPEAL PLEA IN THE PANAMA SCANDAL CASE.

The Case Now Before the Court of Cassation—The Defence Reads Like Rather a Breach of Reason—Probably a Sympathetic People Will Back It.

PARIS, Feb. 24.—Charles de Lesseps, Marius Fontane and M. Sans Leroy, who were committed for trial by the Judicial Chamber of Feb. 7 for giving or receiving bribes, appealed to the Court of Cassation yesterday for a reversal of the committals.

Their counsel argued that the bribery clause in the code contemplated only the offences of executive and administrative officials and not members of Parliament. The deputies who received the Panama money, therefore, as well as the persons who gave them, could not be charged correctly under the law with bribe-giving or bribe-taking. The offence in question was rather a breach of trust.

This line of argument was especially intended to exculpate M. Sans Leroy, who sold his vote as a deputy when the lottery loan was under consideration in the Chamber.

Charles de Lesseps' counsel pleaded moreover that in the case of M. Baihaut, the Minister of Public Works, who was bought by the Panama Company, the money was exhorted from the directors and not offered by them voluntarily as a bribe.

The Panama Canal.

PANAMA, Feb. 24.—A majority of the members of the Chamber of Commerce of this city are favorable to the granting of an extension of time to the Canal Company. At the meeting to be held under their auspices they will probably express confidence in Liquidator Monchicourt's ultimate success in his efforts to reorganize the company, and will petition the Government at Bogota to grant the management an extension of one year's time.

There is a strong native element here which is opposed to extension, and they threaten to attend the meeting and interrogate the French delegates. The preservation gangs along the lines of the canal have been informed that their wages have been reduced to 40 cents a day, and they have struck.

Anarchy In France.

PARIS, Feb. 24.—The police have seized several large parcels of revolutionary proclamations imported by local Anarchists from London.

BEHRING SEA COMMISSION.

Proceedings Formally Opened In Paris—A Half-hour Session.

PARIS, Feb. 24.—The Commission of Arbitration on the Behring Sea controversy between the United States and Great Britain met to-day in the Foreign Office to formally open the proceedings. There were present Justice Harlan of the United States Supreme Court, American arbitrator; Lord Herren, British Arbitrator; Marquis Visconti Venosta, Italian Arbitrator; Baron Aldonese de Courcel, French Arbitrator; C. H. Tupper, Canadian Minister of Fisheries, here as British agent; J. T. Williams, counsel for the United States; Sir Richard Webster and Sir Charles Russell, counsel for Great Britain. Judge Cram of the Christiania Supreme Court, the Swedish Arbitrator, will not come to Paris until next meeting.

Baron de Courcel was elected to preside. The proceedings, which lasted but half an hour, were purely formal and the commission adjourned until March 23.

M. Develis expected to preside at the first meeting of the whole commission. The arbitrators and their counsel attended last evening a ball given in their honor at the Elysee.

No Designs On San Domingo.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Mr. Sagrario, Secretary and Charge d' Affairs of the Spanish Legation called at the State Department to learn if this Government had any official information regarding the customs concession made by the Government of San Domingo to a syndicate of residents of the United States or was interesting itself in the matter.

The ground of the inquiry was a telegram from Madrid to the effect that the granting of a customs-concession had occasioned a feeling likely to lead to a revolution and that Captain General Aricio of Cuba, had hinted at interference by the United States in Dominican affairs.

Mr. Sagrario was told that this Government had no official information regarding the affair, and that there was no ground for the intimation that the United States was interfering with San Domingo in any way.

Unrest In Hayti.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—The Sun says: The Haytian revolutionary party is taking advantage of the Hawaiian annexation proceedings now going on at Washington to urge the people of the Black Republic to arise and overthrow President Hippolyte. Gen. Manigot, who is now the recognized leader of the revolutionists, is in Jamaica, and from there he is exercising a sort of literary campaign against the party in power. Ever since the negroes of Hayti were freed from slavery they have had a dread of being annexed by a foreign power and again becoming servants of the white man.

Trouble Between Islanders.

PANAMA, Feb. 24.—Jamaica papers of recent date announce that war is imminent between Hayti and San Domingo.

THE HAWAIIAN QUESTION.

A Telegram And a Letter From Minister Stevens Made Public.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The following telegram from Minister Stevens at Honolulu has been made public:

HONOLULU, Feb. 8, via San Francisco, Feb. 13.

Secretary of State, Washington, D.C., Care of Secretary of the Navy:

The affairs of state continue to be hopeful. Holding flag in protection of this Government was expected. Subjects who were doubtful now for annexation.

The natives show unexpected regard for the United States flag. Prudent conduct of Capt. Wilkes, the officers and crew of the Boston credit to the navy. Cannot send by mail. STEVENS.

Among the correspondence on the Hawaiian situation sent to the Senate by the President was a confidential letter from Minister Stevens to Secretary of State Foster, written last November.

In it Mr. Stevens gave a full statement of the financial, agricultural, political and social condition of the islands. The following paragraph, in view of the appeal of the Princess Kaiulani to the American people, sent out from London a few days ago, is of peculiar interest.

"The Princess heir-apparent has always been, and is likely always to be, under English influence. Her father is British in blood and prejudices, firmly intrenched here as collector of customs, an important and influential office.

"She has been for some years, and still is, in England, her patron there, who has a kind of guardianship of her, T. H. Davies, is a Tory Englishman, who lived here many years, who still owns large property in the islands, and is a resolute and persistent opponent of American predominance by literally denouncing even the American acquisition of the Pearl Harbor.

"Mr. Wodehouse, the English Minister, has long resided here. His eldest son is married to a half-caste sister of the Crown Princess, another son is in the Honolulu Postoffice, and a daughter also is married to a resident of one of the islands.

"The death of the present Queen, therefore, would virtually place an English princess on the Hawaiian throne, and put in the hands of the ultra English the patronage and influence of the palace.

"In the existing state of things, with non-American intervention these palace influences skilfully handled are nearly equal, frequently superior, to the power of the Legislature. Add to this palace power an irresponsible mob of hoodlums, and there results a state of things which would put it in the power of Canadian and ultra-British schemers with a subsidy fund of $50,000 to secure control of the Legislature and by prompt and vigorous action secure Canadian and British franchises, privileges and rights entirely legal, to get rid of which would cause embarrassment and expense to the United States and her allies here."

Insanity Killed.

MONCTON, N.B., Feb. 24.—This yesterday the English mail train bound west struck George L. Elgett, who was walking on the track at Hall's Creek, and he was instantly killed. Both legs were cut off, his skull crushed in and the body otherwise mutilated. Deceased was 42 years old, a school teacher and brother of Rev. Robert Elgett, Methodist minister.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

LIVELY DEBATE ON THE FAST ATLANTIC SERVICE.

Mr. McMullen Referred To Hon. Mackenzie Bowell as an Old Horse Turned Out To Die—Sir John Thompson Gives an Indignant Retort.

OTTAWA, Feb. 25.—When the House adjourned Thursday it was expected that Friday would be devoted to considering the supplementary estimates for the current year, but the greater part of the afternoon was taken up with a discussion of the winter port and fast Atlantic mail questions, and the ventilation of a personal grievance by Mr. Prior of Victoria, and it was nearly 5 o'clock before the House got into Committee of Supply.

On the motion to go into Committee of Supply, Mr. Kenny of Halifax read a telegram from a friend in that city stating that the mail steamer had taken 13 days and 21 minutes to make the trip to Halifax. Mr. Kenny called attention to the fact that this was at the rate of only about seven miles an hour, and strongly advocated the establishment of a fast Atlantic service. He complained that the vessels now carrying the Canadian mails only stopped a few hours at Halifax and made all their disbursements in Portland.

Sir. John Thompson thought that the steamer must have met with a mishap, but the matter would be enquired into. As to a fast Atlantic service the Government quite agreed with the member for Halifax (Kenny) as to its desirability.

Hon. Mr. Laurier said it was five or six years since the Minister of Finance had promised a fast service in a short time, but so far nothing had been done. He had heard that there were strong objections to a fast service on account of the dangers of navigation. He would like to hear what the member for Halifax had to say about that.

Mr. Kenny: I do not exactly know what route the leader of the Opposition refers to.

Hon. Mr. Laurier: I refer to the St. Lawrence route.

Mr. Kenny said he should imagine there were difficulties connected with the St. Lawrence route which did not exist at Halifax.

Mr. Hazen advanced the claim of St. John as the winter port of the Dominion.

Mr. Forbes spoke in favor of Louisburg.

Hon. John Hearn advocated the claims of Quebec.

Mr. Gilmor suggested St. Andrews as the best port.

Mr. Flint put in a good word for Shelburn.

After a few remarks the matter dropped.

Mr. Prior read from The Victoria Colonist an account of an interview between its Ottawa correspondent and Hon. C. H. Tupper, in which the latter challenged the veracity of the two members from Victoria with reference to the condition of the hospital at that place. He strongly protested against the statement made by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

Sir John thought that the interview would hardly bear the construction put upon it by the member for Victoria, but he would call the attention of the Minister of Marine to the matter on his return from England. No doubt had the minister been in the House he would have been able to give to give a satisfactory explanation.

The House then went into supply.

After recess the House again went into supply and passed a number of items. A long discussion took place on the item of $150 to reimburse Judge Williams for expense incurred in connection with the voters' list, the Opposition holding that, as the judge had made a mistake, he ought to pay the penalty himself. Finally a count in committee was taken, and the item passed on a vote of 42 to 15.

On the vote of $2652 for census there was a long discussion, the Opposition endeavoring to get the names of the persons mentioned in various towns and cities as manufacturers and the Government declining to furnish on the ground that the information obtained was confidential.

Finally Sir John Thompson said he would see whether the names of the parties could be given without any details as to capital invested, etc., and the item passed.

Some discussion took place on the item of $1600 for six months' salary of the Deputy Minister of Trade and Commerce as to the necessity for creating the department, it being claimed it was brought into existance for the purpose of finding a place for a minister

Mr. McMullen referred to Hon. Mackenzie Bowell as an old horse turned out to die.

Sir John Thompson indignantly resented the attack on his confrere. He said he and his colleagues were accustomed to such insults from the Opposition and did not usually think them worthy of notice, but he could not allow such a remark about an old and valued public servant who had been a member of the House for many years and who was still a member of the Government, to pass unchallenged and unreproved. He stigmatized any person who would refer to the Minister of Trade and Commerce as an old horse turned out to pasture as unworthy of notice. Mr. Bowell had for 15 years been at the head of one of the most arduous departments in the public service, and he was still capable of presiding over a very important department, and he hoped he would be for many years to come.

He defended the bringing into force of the act creating the department, and claimed that it was not only necessary, but would prove extremely useful. In conclusion, he said that the observation that the Minister of Trade and Commerce was a political hack was unworthy of the gentleman who made it and unworthy of the House.

It being 6 o'clock the Speaker left the chair.

The statement of exports for January shows the total exports for the month to have been $4,975,175, of which $4,772,944 was produce of Canada and $202,231 produce of other countries. This is a decrease of $667,987 from January, 1892, of which $126,662 is in the produce of Canada and $541,325 in produce of other countries.

For the seven months the total exports have been $79,233,982, as compared with $77,410,211 last year. In goods the produce of Canada there has been an increase of $5,676,148 and in the produce of other countries a decrease of $3852,377.

The Railway Committee of the House of Commons held its first meeting to-day for the purpose of transacting business, the previous meeting being merely for organization. An act to revive and amend the act to incorporate the Mount Forest, Markdale and Meaford Railway was reported.

An Act to incorporate the Buffalo and Fort Erie Bridge Company was also passed with amendments. This bill provides for building a tunnel under the Niagara River at Grand Island.

An Act respecting the Grand Trunk and Georgian Bay was also reported, as was also the Central Counties Railway. The latter bill provides for building a branch road from Vankleek Hill to Rockland in Russell County. Mr. Bain (Soulanges) was in charge of the bill. The bill also gives power for building a bridge over the Ottawa at Rockland.

An act to incorporate the Calgary Irrigation Company and another to incorporate the Calgary Hydraulic Company were held over at the request of Sir John Thompson, who said that he would call the attention of Mr. Daly to the matter with the view of his introducing a general act dealing with the subject. The Western Counties Railway Bill was reported.

The statement of goods entered for consumption during January shows a total of $9,100,404, and duty collected of $1,705,083, which shows an increase in value of $1,904,127, and in duties collected of $312,288.

To-day's Canada Gazette will contain the appointments of Mr. Sedgwick as puisne judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, of Mr. Henry as puisne judge of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, and of Judge Jamieson as revising officer for the County of Wellington.

Dr. A. E. Wills of Regina has been appointed Assistant Surgeon of the Northwest Mounted Police, and Sergeant-Major Robert Belcher has been promoted to an inspectorship.

Deposits in postoffice savings banks for January show an increase of $153,796 over withdrawals.

Letters patent of incorporation have been issued to the Central Electric Company of Montreal, capital half a million; to the Gurney Foundry Co., Toronto, capital $40,000; and to the Hugh Cann Shipping Co. of Yarmouth, N.S., capital $11,100.

Mr. D'Alton McCarthy last night gave notice that he will ask on Monday what was the value of the raw material, and what was the output, according to the best census, of the cotton industry; the same information as to the wool cloth industry and also the number of wall paper establishments, the number of employes, value of raw material and output; also the value of the raw materials in the foundries and machine-working industries and the output therefrom.

Mr. Guillat is after American silver with a sharp stick, and will ask on Monday what is the percentage of alloy in American and Canadian silver respectively, and also is the Government aware that it is proposed to largely increase the coinage of American silver? Is the Government aware that American silver currency containing less than 50 per cent. silver is being introduced into Canada at par? Is it the intention of the Government to take measures to prevent American silver from displacing our gold standard paper currency and much purer silver currency?

Mr. W. A. Smith, representing the Standard Coal and Coke Company of Williamsport, Penn., had an interview with Hon. Mr. Foster this morning, and urged the removal of the duty of 50 cents a ton on coke.

A complete set of plans made by Mr. Palmer, C.E., of the borings and surveys in connection with the proposed Prince Edward Island tunnel have been placed on exhibition in the Commons smoking room. Mr. Palmer contends that the project is feasible.

The treaty with France is not yet made known, but a talk with some of the parties interested in its provisions would indicate that French wines, which now came in on a specific duty of 25c per imperial gallon and an ad valorem duty of 30 per cent., will by the new treaty be let in on the specific duty alone. This arrangement will fairly protect the native Canadian wines from the cheap and worthless trash of France and let in the better clarets and other wines of France on better terms. Canadian cheese, eggs, etc., will receive more favorable treatment on going into France.

The first move towards the closing of the session was taken to-night by Sir John Thompson giving notice that he will move on Monday that Government business have precedence on Thursdays, after questions put by members, for the balance of the session.

Information was received in the city today of the death of Lieut.-Col. Bernard, C.M.G., and Ex-Deputy Minister of Justice, at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, at 7 o'clock this morning. The deceased was a brother of Baroness Macdonald, and well-known in Ottawa.

The Power of Revolver.

PARSONS, Kan., Feb. 25.—Wednesday night just after the Missouri, Kansas and Texas passenger train No. 2 pulled out of Adair Station, T.T., three desperadoes confronted the agent and robbed him of $800. Eighteen citizens who appeared on the scene were made to hold up their hands and were marched at the point of the bandits guns to one of the commercial stores in the town, which was robbed of $300. The robbers then marched the men to the stock yards, where their horses were hitched. They then mounted and departed.

He Didn't Want a Hearse.

HAMILTON, Feb. 25.—The remains of the late George Long of Burlington were interred at the East Plains burying ground yesterday. The funeral was largely attended. Deceased had reached his 86th year. He had been in Canada for over 60 years and was a successful farmer. Mr. Long desired that the obsequies should be conducted simply and inexpensively, and that no hearse should be used.

ROME, Feb. 25.—Owing to the exhaustion attendant upon the audiences and other functions to which the Pope has given assiduous attention during the jubilee celebration, the Pope's medical advisers have directed His Holiness, as a matter of precaution, to remain in his apartments for the present, and the audiences appointed for yesterday and to-day have been postponed.

BEHRING SEA AFFAIR.

THE CASE TO BE PRESENTED BY THE UNITED STATES.

It is the Same Old Contention of Great Britain Having at One Time Made No Effort to Interfere With Russia's Supreme Claim.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—The United States claims in the Behring Sea controversy as they will be laid before the tribunal of arbitration when it reassembles in Paris, March 23, are as follows:

That prior and up to the time of the cession of Alaska to the United States, Russia asserted and exercised an exclusive right to the seal fisheries in the waters of Behring Sea, and also asserted and exercised throughout that sea the right to prevent, by the employment when necessary of reasonable force, any invasion of such exclusive right.

That Great Britain, not having at any time resisted or objected to such assertions of exclusive right, or the exercise of such power, is to be deemed as having recognized and assented to the same.

That the body of water now known as Behring Sea was not included in the phrase, "Pacific Ocean," as used in the treaty of 1825 between Great Britain and Russia, and that after said treaty and down to the time of cession to the United States, Russia continued to assert the same exclusive rights and to exercise the same exclusive power and authority as above mentioned.

That all the rights of Russia in respect to the seal fisheries in Behring Sea east of the water boundary established by the treaty of March 30, 1867, between that nation and the United States, and all the power and authority possessed and asserted by Russia to protect said rights, passed unimpaired to the United States under that treaty.

That the United States have such a property and interest in the Alaskan seal herd as to justify the employment by that nation upon the high seas of such means as are reasonably necessary to prevent the destruction of such herd and to secure the possession and benefit of the same to the United States, and that all the acts and proceedings of the United States done and had for the purpose of protecting such property and interest were justifiable and stand justified, and that compensation should be made to the United States by Great Britain of the amount of the losses of the United States or such other sum as may be deemed to be just, and that should it be considered that the United States have not the full property or property interest asserted by them it be then decreed to be the international duty of Great Britain to concur with the United States in the adoption and enforcement against citizens of either nation such regulations as will effectually prohibit and prevent the capture anywhere upon the high seas of any seals belonging to the said (Alaskan seal) herd.

The claim for damages referred to is of course indefinite in amount, but includes the losses of both the Government of the United States and of the Alaskan Commercial Company, owing to the limitation of the catch necessitated by the diminution of the herd as the result of pelagic sealing. These losses will be calculated on the basis of the number of seals above the limit fixed by the modus vivendi, 7500, which the arbitrators find might have been taken without danger of diminishing the supply. It is contended for the United States that the number for a basis of calculation is 20,000.

The case and counter-case for the United States comprise several volumes of printed matter and two portfolios of maps of the territory in dispute and of the seal rookeries.

AN APPEAL TO THE COUNCIL.

Request to Forbid Posting of Immoral and Obscene Play Bills—Charity Orders to be Given to Temperance Groceries.

The following letter signed on behalf of the W.C.T.U. by the president and secretary has been sent to the town clerk to be read at next meeting of the town council:

To the Mayor and Council of the town of Peterborough:

GENTLEMEN,—The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Peterborough beg leave again to call your attention to the character of the play bills that are from time to time conspicuously displayed in the streets of our town. These are often of such a vulgar, and in some cases really obscene and criminal character as to sadly subvert the morals of our boys who are always attracted by the pictures and who thus take their first lessons in vice through the most direct of channels, the eye. We believe that we voice the desire, not only of all Christian parents, but of all morality-loving citizens, when we pray your honorable body to pass a bylaw forbidding the display of all demoralising playbills in our town and to make provision for the strict enforcement of such a by-law. Another request that we would respectfully prefer is that orders for groceries from the charity fund of the town be given to temperance stores. A large part of our work is for the relief of the poor and as these are often of the drinking class, we strongly object to temptation being thrown in their way, especially as the liquor stores of our town are not observing separate entrances; also we do not approve of our money going into the till of those who by putting the cup to their neighbour's lips have helped to create the poverty and misery which we, in common with other benevolent societies are striving to alleviate.

We hope and pray that these subjects may receive your careful consideration, and that judicious action may be taken.

IS IT RIGHT?

To the Editor of the Examiner:

I have been a heavy taxpayer in the town for a number of years, and have paid heavy rents as well as taxes. I, with many others in the same line of business, am seriously affected by men and boys peddling fruit, vegetables and fish from door to door all over the town, paying nothing for the privilege of doing so. Our principal corners on George street are decorated with unsightly stands, goods are offered for sale that many of our merchants are trading in. For such privileges the council ask no consideration. Other places—Toronto, Hamilton, Belleville, London, etc.—either charge a high license or do not allow any peddling. I think, therefore, it is high time the councillors representing No. 2 ward should look after the interests of those merchants in the ward they represent who are all affected by it, and if peddling, etc., is to be allowed, let those who would follow it, pay well for the privilege.

I remain, Mr. Editor, yours, etc.,
MERCHANT.

NORWOOD WINTER RACES.

(Special to the Examiner.)

The first day of the Norwood races was very successful. A large number were in attendance from Norwood, Campbellford, Peterborough, Hastings and other places. The named race was very exciting. The entries were McGregor's "Boxer," Conway's "Royal Ruby, Coughlin's (Dr.) "Busy Bee" and Coughlin's (J.) "Fanny C." The following was the standing at finish:

1 McGregor's "Boxer"	1	1	1
2 Conway's "Royal Ruby"	2	4	2
3 Dr. Coughlin's "Busy Bee"	4	2	3
4 J Coughlin's "Fanny C"	3	3	4

The three-minute trot was very interesting and the event of the afternoon. The entries were E. F. Jones' "Alvie," Cobourg; J. Newhall's "Gladstone," Peterbrrough; Jas. McGuire's "Lucilla M," Belleville. The standing at finish was:

1 E F. Jones' "Alvie"	1	1	1
2 J Newhall's "Gladstone"	2	2	2
3 McGuire's "Lucilla M"	3	3	3

The judges were W. Clancy, Peterborough; A. B. Spellman, Hastings; C. S. Gillespie, Campbellford.

Worms cause serious sickness Dr. Low's Worm Syrup destroys and expels all kinds of worms quickly and surely.

Look at the size of the ordinary pill. Think of all the trouble and disturbance that it causes you. Wouldn't you welcome something easier to take, and easier in its ways, if at the same time it did you more good? That is the case with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They're the smallest in size, the mildest in action, but the most thorough and far-reaching in results. They follow nature's methods and they give help that lasts. Constipation, Indigestion, Billous Attacks, Sick and Bilious Headaches, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels, are promptly relieved and permanently cured.

"If we can't cure your Catarrh, no matter how bad your case or of how long standing, we'll pay you $500 in cash." That is what is promised by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Doesn't it prove, better than any words could, that this is a remedy that cures Catarrh? Costs only 50 cents

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

A Very Successful Meeting of the North Smith and Harvey Association.

The second annual convention of the North Smith and Harvey Sunday School Association was held in Wesley church, North Smith, on Friday, Feb. 17th. In the absence of the president, who, however, arrived soon after, Rev. Mr. Boyce conducted the opening devotional exercises at 10.30. After routine, reports of schools were received. The summarized attendance was:

	On roll.	Av. Att.
Wesley School	55	31
Nogie's Creek	69	42
Chemong	57	45
Buckhorn		25
Government Road	No report.

These schools were open all the year and were well supplied with papers, lesson helps, etc. Lakehurst was open only six months. New schools have been opened at Deer Bay and Galway Road.

Mr. Merril spoke on "How I prepare my Sunday School Lesson." Every lesson suggested it own method. Much depended on Divine help. He studied geography and biography of lessons. The end in view was spiritual application.

Mr. Craft recommended careful reading of lesson on Sunday previous, so that it could be thought out during the week. He had found "Banner of Faith" of great use.

Rev. A. MacWilliams recommended first, earnest prayer; there could be no success without light of Holy Spirit. Study the biography and history of lesson, and illustrate geography with black board. The doctrines of lessons must be carefully taught. Effective teaching must be systematic—the teacher must know just what he is going to teach.

THE ELECTION OF OFFICERS

at the afternoon session resulted as follows:

President—Mr. Craft.

Vice-Presidents—Ministers within convention bounds.

Sec.-Treasurer—A. E. Kennedy.

Committee—Messrs. S. Harrison, W. A. Stephenson, and — Bradley.

Mr. Brock led the conference on the use and abuse of Sunday school helps. The latter should be graded but not used in classes. Some were in favour of dispensing with them but the convention was not only decidedly in favour of helps but held that no teacher could be at his best who did not use the best helps. No teacher should come to the work unprepared. At this stage Mrs. (Dr.) Harrison read a very practical paper on preparing lessons. She impressed the necessity of personal consecration and thorough preparation.

Mr. Bradley introduced "Mistakes in Sunday school teaching," which were indicated as lack of proper classification and adaptation of subject to class. Pictures should be used to illustrate and impress. Lack of perfect attention and personal interest of teacher in the lesson was to be avoided as well as lack of definite plans. "The class for Jesus" should be the sole aim.

Mrs. (Dr.) Harrison, who is an excellent worker, took the children's meeting, and the manner in which she elicited answers and information from the pupils was interesting.

In the absence of Dr. Harrison, Mr. S. R. Armstrong, of Peterborough, took his subject. "The relation of the Sunday school to the home" was pointed out as being of a co-operative character. The duty of parents to their children in connection with the Sunday school was insisted upon. The question drawer was very ably and fully dealt with by Rev. A. McWilliams.

At the evening sitting Rev. Mr. Osterhout conducted the opening devotional exercises. Rev. Mr. McWilliams gave an address on the "Teacher's Influence." He pointed out that the first object of the teacher should be to lead children to Christ, and to do this he must be a diligent student, enthusiastic in his work, giving a good example and strive to know the home life, influences and associations of his pupils. "Character Building" was taken up by Mr. Armstrong, who showed the necessity of early beginning to train the child in the right direction, and keeping the child in a pure religious and moral atmosphere. Rev. Mr. McWilliams led the conference on "Reviews." He advised reviews of last Sunday's lesson, and reviews at the end of each month and quarter. Mr. Day, provincial secretary, spoke on Eye-minded people, showing that of the gateways to knowledge by the five senses, the eye was the most important and best. The humour with which his remarks were spiced tended to make them impressive. The proceedings of the Convention were greatly enlivened by the beautiful singing of Wesley choir during the morning session and by the Chemong Indian choir during the afternoon and evening sessions. The latter sang "O, for a Thousand Tongues" in Indian dialect, and it was greatly enjoyed.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the people of North Smith for their hospitably, to the Chemong Indian and Wesley choirs, and to all the speakers and all who had contributed to the success of the convention. Total collections, $9.77. Thus ended one of the most lively, interesting and best conventions it has ever been our good fortune to attend.

People troubled with sick and nervous headaches will find a most efficacious remedy in Ayer's Cathartic Pills. They strengthen the stomach, stimulate the liver, restore healthy action to the digestive organs, and thus afford speedy and permanent relief

When in Despair.

When in despair of being cured of lung troubles, there is still a hope, and a strong hope of perfect cure in Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This medicine cures even after all others have failed, and no one suffering from coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, hoarseness, etc., need despair of cure while Norway Pine Syrup is obtainable.

WELL-KNOWN AND POPULAR!

A large proportion of the people of Canada are thoroughly acquainted with the virtues of Harvard Bronchial Syrup in distressing cases of sore throat, coughs and colds. No other remedy in our country has been so severely tested by the public, and no other has gained so many signal victories.

Harvard Bronchial Syrup is now one of our standard household remedies, and has the approval of the medical profession. The majority of cough remedies are manufactured simply to sell; with Harvard Syrup, the great object is to cure. Letters of testimony come in daily from our best people in favour of this scientific preparation. These letters tell of wonderful cures in obstinate cases of sore throat, hacking cough, croup and bronchial troubles.

We strongly recommend our people to procure at once a large 25c bottle of this magnificent remedy, and give it a fair trial. Do not be persuaded to take something else if your druggist happens to be out of the popular article.

THE KEENE CARNIVAL RACE.

KEENE, Feb. 24th.—Your Norwood correspondent under the heading of Norwood news, writes in reference to the mile race which took place at Keene carnival. Now I am sorry that your correspondent was misinformed, for he certainly must have been to make such statements. I was present during the whole race and can give an exact account of it. I do not think that Mr. Fraser was used in any way that could be called ungentlemanly, and think it is hardly fair to circulate such a report. In the first heat your correspondent says: "Fraser left his opponent easily." Now, that is incorrect, for McIntyre was right with him, and at the first corner they were even. He certainly came in contact with Fraser, but not enough to put him off his balance, and at the second corner was only a few feet in advance of him. I do not say that McIntyre did not foul but I do not think he did it intentionally. Now in the second heat at the first corner Fraser deliberately pushed McIntyre into the corner out of the course altogether so that when McIntyre got in shape again Fraser was nearly at the other end of the rink. Well I will leave it to the good sense of the reader to say whether that was a foul or not; I should say it was. When the judges would not give Fraser that heat he "got up on his ear" and would not run again, but I think he was glad to stop. The judges were not all Keene men. One was from Keene, one from Hiawatha and one from Hastings. Mr. McIntyre has been waiting for a challenge from Mr. Fraser but it has not come to hand yet. Now Mr. Fraser if you would like to test your speed, Mr. McIntyre is open for a challenge, and will race you in Campbellford for any reasonable sum, say $50 or under; if you mean business attend to this and let Mr. McIntyre hear from you.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE "IN IT."

A Life Agent called at a friend's [illegible]
HE WASN'T IN IT;
He had seen "the bore" coming and fled [illegible]
HE WASN'T IN IT;
He had heard so much said, he was tired [illegible]
Of insurance and agents—'twas all a blank [illegible],
When one's coil must be shuffled to wit it,
HE WASN'T IN IT.

A bit of a draft blew o'er his bald head,
HE WAS IN IT;
Pneumonia sent him straightway to his bed,
HE STAYED IN IT;
His doctor made of it a "quite special" case,
To save him for running still more of life's race,
But the grave took some chances to win it,
AND HE'S IN IT.

When approached by a gent for insuring your life,
GET RIGHT IN IT;
It's the right thing to do for your children and wife,
THEN STAY IN IT.
Remember that fires take your goods "out of sight,"
And that accidents happen each day and each night.
While insurance protects every minute,
IF YOU'RE IN IT.

A Bank Manager's Opinion.

HE IS "IN IT."

The General Manager of one of the leading banks in Canada, writing to a personal friend, says:—"I have no hesitation in saying that I place the CANADA LIFE upon the highest platform. It is in my opinion carefully, economically and honestly managed; its Reserve Funds are well invested; its rates of Premiums are low, and its future is, I think better assured than a great majority of Companies. I have my own life insured in the Company for a round amount, and would not hesitate to increase the amount of my policies should I decide upon taking out further insurance."

A Government Insurance Actuary's Opinion

On the Relation between Ordinary and Tontine Service.

It is frequently assertedby Companies whose business is nearly all tontined, that although the CANADA LIFE may and does pay large ordinary profits, yet it cannot compare so favourably on a long term distribution or tontine period, and that in the end better results can be obtained on a tontine policy in a large American Co. than on an ordinary or tontine policy in the CANADA LIFE. To prove the absurdity of this statement, the following piece of common sense is quoted from Mervin Tabor, late Actuary of the Illinois Goverment Insurance Department. In his well known book, "The Three Systems of Life Insurance," he says: "A company that gives large dividends on the ordinary kind of policies, can give much larger on the same kinds when Tontined, and a company that pays but meagre dividends on the usual forms, adopting perhaps the Tontine system to "cover up" its small surpluses, cannot be relied on for large returns of surplus under the Tontine Forms of Insurance."

The CANADA LIFE does not "cover up" its Quinquennial profits as some Companies do, but publishes them throughout the country.

It can and does surpass other Companies on Quinquennial profits. It should and will surpass them on Tontine profits.

WHY TO BE "IN IT."

BISHOP HAWKE'S REASON:—"I claim that Life Insurance is not only a a humane, but I might say a Christian Institution."

LORD LYNDHURST'S REASON:—"A Policy of Life Insurance is always an evidence of prudent forethought. No man with a dependent family is free from reproach if not insured."

WHEN TO BE "IN IT."

The younger, the cheaper. Therefore insure when young. Besides by insuring in the CANADA LIFE now, you will share in three years' profits.

WHERE TO BE "IN IT."

The best place to be "in it" is in the Company that gives the best returns for the least money, consistent with absolute security. Therefore, in order to be "in it," choose the

The Plan Now Open.

The grand concert in the Opera House on March 8th, given by the Belle Botsford Concert Co., of Boston, under the auspices of Otonabee Lodge, I.O.O.F., is attracting considerable attention on account of the rare musical treat it offers to the public. Of Miss Botsford, the violiniste, an exchange says:—"A lady violinist on the public stage, in concert, invariably suggests to all music lovers and concert goers, Camilla Urso, the grand woman who first made public violin playing by a lady popular and possible in America. Miss Botsford has a handsomer face than Camilla Urso, and she plays with superior skill indeed. Her fine chords in the higher positions on the earth's king of instruments, the violin, her flute and fife imitations, her sudden correct transitions from the highest to the lowest tones, are simply wonderful. Then, too, whilst she plays with the easy grace of a female, she gives the power of a male performer, and so gives fine shading its widest possible range." Tickets 50 and 25 cents. Plan now open at Sailsbury's bookstore.

A pleasing Sunday school entertainment was held at the Riverdale Sunday school building last night and was well attended. The building was crowded to the doors and the programme which was rendered by the children was enjoyably and successfully presented. Mr. N. Maybee presided in a capital manner. Among the contributors last night were Miss Maggie Stevens, who sang a solo in a fine manner. She also sang a beautiful duet with her brother, Mr. Harry Stevens, Miss Hamilton favoured with a recitation, which was applauded. The songs, duets and recitations by the children were also loudly cheered. Mr. Geo. Schneider was the efficient accompanist of the evening.

Don't mistake the dates, as I am there on time:—Will visit Peterboro, Oriental hotel, Saturday, March, 4th, 1893; Belleville, Queen's hotel, Saturday, March 11th, 1893. The Value of the Chemical Fire Engine.

The Toronto Times in the course of an illustrated article dealing with the Hamilton Fire Brigade says:—"Perhaps the most important invention for use in the department is that of the chemical engine which is now in use in Hamilton, Toronto and other cities. This engine promises to eclipse in efficiency any other appliance of that character . . . In 1891 there were 149 fires resulting in the small loss of $22,-880.82. This may be owing to the chief's use of his chemical engine, whereby a great saving is effected, there being no loss from damage by water." Chief Atchison himself claims that 90 per cent. of the fires in Hamilton are put out by the chemical engine.

Gus Hill.

The Kansas City Journal says:—At the Ninth street Theatre yesterday afternoon and last evening large audiences laughed at the fun produced by the New York Vaudeville Stars, who held the boards and the audience, too, with complete sway. The troupe is composed of artists who deserve their well-earned eminence if yesterday's opening performances of "A Hot Pickle" are indicative. The merits of individual performers are so evenly and universally distributed that to mention any and not all would be partiality, and to do justice to all would be injustice to readers in other departments of the Journal. The entire farce sparkles with happy hits, new and witty, and is well worth an evening to every one. Opera House March 1st.

St. John's Church Notes.

The Bishop of Toronto will hold an ordination in St. John's church to-morrow at 11 a.m., when the Reverends W. M. Loucks and W. H. Morning Prayer will be said as a separate service at 10.15 a.m. The service at 11 a.m. will consist of a celebration of the Holy Communion and the Ordination Service with sermon by the Rev. Rural Dean Loucks of Picton.

Visitors to St. John's to-morrow are invited to the evening service, when the sermon will be preached by the Bishop of Toronto.

His Lordship will arrive to-day, accompanied by his examining chaplain, the Rev. A. J. Broughall, rector of St. Stephen's church, Toronto.

The Rev. Rural Dean Loucks will preach in St. John's Mission in the evening.

Get the Best.

The public are too intelligent to purchase a worthless article a second time, on the contrary they want the best! Physicians are virtually unanimous in saying Scott's Emulsion is the best form of Cod Liver Oil.

BEAUTIFUL NEW BANK PREMISES.

The Fine Business Home of the Bank of Toronto.

The new business offices of the Peterborough branch of the Bank of Toronto, occupy the most prominent site in the town—corner of George and Hunter streets—and if the position did not assure notice the elegant exterior of the premises would attract attention. The double front extending about fifty feet on each street is composed almost entirely of plate glass. Above the line of light the cornice is resplendent with the name of the bank twice repeated, in heavy block letters in gold. Double semi-circular doors, glassed above with bent plate glass, admit to a circular vestibule, communicating by double acting doors with the public hall of the bank, substantially floored with encaustic tile. This space affords ample room for the public and is provided with a customers' desk and communicates conveniently with every department of the bank, each of which is indicated by gilt labels. At the south end of the hall is the local manager's private office, elegantly fitted and provided with an angle, open-gas burning fire place said to be the only one of its kind in town, and an elegant oak desk. Next in order is the accountant's office, and next to it the teller's stall, grated in on every side and at the top; next his is the office of the ledger keeper, and next that the office of the collection clerk. All these offices, except the manager's, are behind an elegant counter, in native cherry, beautifully designed by J. K. Belcher and finished in Queen Anne style by D. Belleghem, and surmounted with a screen glazed with bevel plate glass pierced with the necessary wickets. The teller's and ledger keeper's wickets are protected in front by rich nickel plated gratings. There is abundant vault room,

FIRE AND BURGLAR PROOF,

one vault on the main floor for the books and cash in daily use, another in the basement, the "old book" vault, the counterpart in size and strength of the one on the main floor. The basement also contains the hot water furnaces which not only heat both the bank offices proper but the solicitors' offices on the next floor above. There are elegantly and completely fitted lavatory and toilet rooms, and in fine, every convenience that can be desired. The office of the solicitor of the bank being directly over the bank offices, everything is convenient and compact to a degree. The compactness and ready relative accessibility of the several compartments greatly facilitate business, while there is abundant room. Not the least commendable feature of the new offices is the splendid light that pours in through the long stretch of plate glass. Artificial light is furnished by incandescent electric lamps supplemented by gas fixtures in circumstances of emergency.

The general appearance of the offices is very fine; the walls and ceilings are elegantly papered, the latter broken into artistically treated panels, and divided in the middle by a heavy moulded beam. The deep frieze of the side walls is finished below by a band of gilt moulding. The harmony of colours and tints do credit to Watson's artistic taste and the wall paper capacity of the Peterborough bookstore.

On the whole the bank offices are bright, cheerful, compact, convenient and will serve the purposes of the bank far better than the recently vacated premises. The present staff of the bank is as follows: Local manager, Mr. P. Campbell; (solicitor, Mr. W. H. Moore); accountant, Mr. A. St. A. Smith; teller, Mr. R. W. Grubbe; ledger-keeper, Mr. W. R. Carmichael; collection clerk, Mr. A. H. Amys; bank porter, Mr. I Richardson.

The new offices were entered on Thursday, but had just become nicely settled at the visit of the EXAMINER representative this morning.

THE SECOND DAY'S RACES.

At Norwood Were Well Conducted and Hotly Contested.

The second day's races at Norwood passed off very successfully yesterday. The track was rather heavy, but all things taken into consideration, good time was made. A large crowd of sports were present. The judges were Messrs. Gillespie, Campbellford; A. B. Spellman, Hastings; and Wm. Clancy, Peterborough. The first event was the green race. In this there were three entries, and all the three victors captured their respective places in three straight heats, still the struggle was keen. Beatty's colt, Norwood, took first money, a Campbellford mare second, and "Soda Water Bob," owned by Mr. Harris, of Toronto, third. Dr. Coughlin's mare, Hastings, was a poor fourth. The race was for a purse of $60, and the time made about 2.50. The free-for-all was a capital one, and the battle for first cash, between J. E. McIntyre's Clan Alpine and a Simcoe horse named Rurick F., was tight indeed. Both animals exhibited pretty speeding qualities, but Rurick F. was successful in three straights, Clan Alpine second, and Mayflower, owned by Wm. Dixon, of Toronto, not a very satisfactory third. Sunday, owned by Mr. Wilson, of Dundas, fell in the third heat but did not get a place anyway in any of the preceding heats. The time was 2.33. The purse was $100—1st $60, 2nd $25, and 3rd $15. Wm. Sherin, town, drove Clan Alpine, while Daniel Lambert, of Dundas, handled the ribbons over Rurick F.

AN INCANDESCENT LIGHT BURST.

Another Fire in Lindsay—A Dry Goods Establishment is Scorched.

Peterborough is not in it any longer, as far as fires are concerned. Lindsay is away out of sight in that particular. Last night that burg had another blaze. About 11 o'clock an incandescent lamp, in the window of Messrs. J. Warner & Co's extensive dry goods house, Kent street, burst and set fire to the goods displayed. Some passers by saw the blaze, burst in the doors and extinguished the fire with the aid of the firemen. The goods destroyed were mainly staples such as cottons, linens, etc., and the loss is estimated at $500 or $600, which is fully covered by insurance in half a dozen companies.

CRISP CURLING CHRONIQUES.

What is Going on at the Rink Where Curlers Most do Congregate.

The Prospect Park rink of Toronto will play the return match with the Peterborough curlers here on Wednesday next. A fine match is expected.

The list of thirteen point games among the members of the Granites has resolved itself into the second to last draw. W. J. Montgomery is pitted against J. H. Connal and E. Rutherford has the bye. The winner will play off with the bye.

The points game will be played by the members of the Granites on Tuesday afternoon and evening next.

In military circles, in his public position as postmaster of Peterborough, or in the more secluded sphere of private life, his strict integrity, unflinching devotion to duty, and at the same time kind consideration for others, have made him one of the most popular men in the county."

in ends of 4 to 4½ yards, which we will offer at less than half regular prices. This is an opportunity that seldom presents itself. Do not fail to see these goods.

We will also offer special value in White and Grey Cottons, Prints, Table Linens, Towels, Towellings and General Staple Goods. You will do well to see these goods and note our prices before buying.

This is an age in which bottom values are sought after and expected. The days of high credit prices are gone. The community in general, especially those engaged in the agricultural industry, have signified their endorsement of the above in unmistakeable terms. The question now is, how close can the loom and the consumer be brought together? It is an admitted fact that no better terms can be made, to produce bottom values, than CASH RIGHT DOWN ON THE NAIL. All our goods are bought for cash and will be offered to you on the same basis at prices that will convince. Our aim will be to obtain reliability in every article offered. We won't and don't keep rubbish at any price.

The time for this great offering will be Saturday, Feb. 25th.

AN APPEAL FOR FUNDS.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—Under the above heading the Irish representatives in the House of Commons, England appeal to the klusmen and friends of Ireland everywhere.

I have been waiting for some prominent Home Ruler amongst us to move in the direction of the above appeal; but as no one has taken the initiative, I may perhaps as an humble supporter of the cause of Ireland, be pardoned for doing so.

I would, therefore, without further preface, respectfully suggest to our leading Irishmen, that a meeting be called at an early day with the view of renewing our pledges of sympathy, and supplying financial aid to "the men in the gap." The present is the most extreme crisis in the long history of Ireland's woes and struggles for her rights, or a portion of them.

With the blessing of God this may probably be the last call of the kind that will ever be made upon Irishmen at home and abroad.

Let us respond to it.

HOME RULER.

BRIDGENORTH.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Court Bridgenorth, Canadian Order of Foresters, gave a delightful entertainment in their hall last night which was exceedingly well attended. A few Foresters from Peterborough courts drove out to take part in the interesting proceedings. Bro. H. Nesbitt, D.D.H.C.R., presided. A pleasing feature of the evening was the presentation of a valuable Forester's pin to Bro. Little, who is removing to Garden Hill. Bro. Telford, C. R., read the address and made the presention. The recipient made a happy reply. During the evening suitable speeches were delivered by the chairman, Bros. Dr. Rose, P.C.R., and W. S. Robinson, P. C. R., of Court Peterborough, and others. At the close the ladies served refreshments in abundance. A very enjoyable time was spent by everyone present.

GLADSOME GLACIAL GAIETY.

THE SONS OF CANADA CARNIVAL A NOTABLE SUCCESS.

The Night was Fine—The Spectators Happy—Gorgeous Costumes—Many Masqueraders—Who Won the Prizes—An Exciting Mile Championship Race—The Elaborate Decorations.

The second and last grand carnival given under the auspices of Peterborough Lodge, No. 13, Sons of Canada, occurred at the Charlotte street rink last night and was a notable success. The number of masqueraders was considerably larger than at the previous carnival held some weeks ago, while the costumes as a whole were of a better and prettier type. Some of the characters impersonated showed elaborate work in make-up, and presented a fascinating appearance. The attendance of citizens, while not as large as formerly, was quite satisfactory, and the large company present which lined the long galleries on every side seemed to enjoy themselves to the utmost viewing the brilliant costumes, the attractive decorations, and listening to the charming music rendered by the band. The work of the judges in awarding the various prizes and selecting those most worthy out of so large a number of characters was not a delectable position, but all will agree that they gave their decisions in an impartial manner, and as a result very few complaints were heard. The ladies and gentlemen who kindly consented to fill this too often thankless position were Mr. and Mrs. R. Max Dennistoun, Mr and Mrs. A. Stevenson, and Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Schofield. They occupied a finely upholstered and elaborately ornamented stand on the eastern side of the rink, where they could obtain a splendid view. The list of names and the characters represented, as complete as could be obtained, are as follown:

THE RACES WERE EXCITING.

Gentlemen's mile race (16 times around the rink) open to all amateurs in the town and county of Peterborough for the championship of Peterborough and a silver medal, valued at $10. This was the speeding event around which most of the interest was concentrated. At 9 o'clock the icy square was cleared of masques and the championship race called. The number of entries was seven but they gradually dropped out of the chase after the fourth or fifth time around the rink, and Gus Sawers who gradually forged ahead from the start soon took first place and by clever skating held to the end, winning by nearly a lap over J. C. Ridpath, of Lakefield, who was the only one of the other contestants to finish. Sawers was loudly cheered for the admirable race he made.

The next race was a funny one, the potato race for boys under 16, prize a pair of skates, value $1.50. There were four entries in this. Potatoes were scattered in rows up and down the rink, and these had to be picked up one by one and dropped in a box. Won by Jos. Lavasseur.

Three-legged race three times round the rink, cash prize, $2. There were three starters in this and much excitement was aroused. Won easily by Roger Davidson and L. King.

The curling match for a box of El Padre cigars was fought unevenly on the eastern ice. Skip Sailsbury's quartette easily downed skip Pentland's by the big majority of 17 shots, and now the victorious rink will inhale the aroma of pure Havanas for a few days at least. Fourteen ends were played as follows:

E Rutherford		A Fawcett
A E Thompson		C Rutherford
T F Conrad		J Stargis
W Sailsbury, skip	23	J B Pentland, skip	6

PENCILLINGS.

The members of the committee desire to render their cordial thanks to the judges for their services in acting as such.

The decorations, which were tasteful and bright, were the handiwork of Messrs. J.J. Turner & Son.

The management of the carnival was complete and everything carried out in a desirable manner.

Skating was kept up until nearly eleven o'clock to the enlivening waltzes discoursed by the band.

DON'T BE FOOLED

by the dealer who brings out something else, that pays him better, and says that it is "just as good." Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is guaranteed. If it don't benefit or cure, you have your money back. No other medicine of its kind is so certain and effective that it can be sold so. Is any other likely to be "just as good"?

As a blood-cleanser, flesh-builder, and strength-restorer, nothing can equal the "Discovery." It's not like the sarsaparillas, or ordinary "spring medicines." At all seasons, and in all cases, it purifies, invigorates, and builds up the whole system. For every blood-taint and disorder, from a common blotch or eruption, to the worst scrofula, it is a perfect, permanent, guaranteed remedy.

COULD anything be more suitable for brisk outdoor walking than the costume pictured in the initial illustration. It has an open cloak and a vest of velvet. The material is of wool in a gray blue tint. The vest is of gray blue velvet and the cloak of the same color, but of lighter cloth and trimmed with camel's hair braid. The skirt is taken in the width, so that no seam is needed except in the back, which is gored so that it looks like any other skirt. In front it needs some small pleats; in the back the folds turn toward the centre. The skirt is lined with silk or satin and has a balayeuse. The waist is plain and may be worn with or without the velvet vest. The long jacket can also have a vest which is buttoned to it directly. If the waist is worn without the vest, a velvet belt is used which crosses at the back. The dress material has no seam in front except the darts and fastens at the shoulders, arm hole and under the arm with very small hooks. If you do not want to cut the material the front of the bodice can be pleated. The sleeves are Russian in form with deep cuffs. The velvet vest is low cut in front and in the back as shown in the picture and is kept in position by whalebones. It reaches only to the skirt band and hooks in front, carrying the side point to be hooked at the side of the belt. The skirt of the cloak crosses in the back by an added fold. In the front it is box pleated and sewed at the waist, so as to fall loosely. The jacket is silk-lined and has a little cape which is trimmed with braid. The sleeves are also trimmed with braid.

It seems a pity to begin to use organdies and silk muslins till summer comes in, but they are so pretty it is hard not to. Besides they give an effect of vogue to the somewhat passe gowns of the season, at this time when one hardly wants to buy entirely new outfits. A very pretty Nile green silk that had grown a little soiled about the edge of the skirt, and marked about the arms as a pretty dress, was brightened into charming freshness by a deep ruffle of silk organdie set in festoons at the foot of the skirt. The top of the ruffle was headed by three rows of ribbon, pink, rich green and gold, these being the colors in the organdie. The ribbons were jewelled with amber, black jet and emerald beads. The upper part of the bodice was covered with the organdie, making a sort of yoke outlined by a band of the pink ribbon that crossed the breast and passed to the back under the arms. Big ruffles of the organdie fell over the shoulders. And the dress was certainly a lovelier one than ever it had been when first made. Another afternoon gown of rose silk had the entire skirt covered with a delicate silk muslin, all misty with a combination of lilac cream and pink design of flowers. At the foot of the skirt there was a ruffle of rosetted folds, the sleeves of silk were taken out entirely, and muslin ones substituted. These were full at the shoulders and extended to below the elbows. A feather fan in cream and lilac hung by a pink ribbon from the waist. Still it is almost a pity not to wait till summer with its garden parties and soft warm moon-light. But that is the way with us now. Green peas and violets at Christmas, and organdies in February!

The next picture shows an embroidered theatre wrap. The fur plastron which comes down to a point in front is surrounded by a double frilled collar, which fastens in front. Beneath the plastron the long front breadths begin. These are fastened on with large safety-hooks and held in position in front by a very broad girdle that is sewn on one side and hooked on the other. This belt or band is very stiffly lined and is adorned with bead work. It is straight on the lower edge and at the top is cone-shaped. The whole of the front breadths lengthwise and around the edge are bordered with fur. They are made of straight material and are slightly gathered in at the top under the yoke and collar. Where they join the back breadths they are very much sloped so as to fit the figure in the fashion of an ordinary long cloak. Either changeable velvet or silk can be used as lining; for our model, brown velvet with large velvet brocaded flowers on it are used. The double collar was of yellow velvet and so was the girdle, which was embroidered with brown beads. With the wrap was worn a very small turban-shaped cap of yellow velvet trimmed with yellow ostrich plumes and an antique buckle.

Another outer garment for evening wear is presented in the next picture. It is an opera cape with double velvet collar. The cape is made of striped mauve and pink lined with woolen material, which serves instead of the ordinary silken lining and is also warmer. The mauve stripe of the lower part of this opera cloak merges into a greenish shade and the pink stripes have narrow diagonal lines which give the impression of being raised or embossed. The velvet collar is cut round, so that it stands out on the shoulders, and is but little gathered at the neck. The lining of the changeable velvet collar must be cut out first and properly fitted. It is alike back and front and is sewn in at the same time with the long cape.

The Empire gown when modified by the train and petticoat effect, admits much elaboration as in the example pictured. The petticoat part may have at the foot a border as costly and elegant as you like. It may be lace, knots of ribbon, flowers, or rich beading. The material may be of the richest, and may either match or contrast with the train. The train is of heavy stuff and, of course, lined with rich material, because it is entirely loose from the petticoat. Its edge may be embroidered heavily with rich jeweling and beading. The lining may contrast with the outside. About the waist, the waist of course being close under the arm, passes a bodice girdle of the material of the train. The bodice should be so heavily embroidered that it seems merely a Persian-like band of rich needle work. The big puffed sleeves, of the material of the train are finished at the edge with a narrower band of the same embroidery. This must not be applique embroidery, and it should be of real metal thread, and of jewels as costly as you please, or can afford. If you fancy the Empire style suits only the simpler materials, you are making a great mistake. One thing may be said for the Empire: Maybe a woman may look a bit queer standing, but seated she can hardly help being a picture. If she will only hold her head well and try to do justice to her gown, the rest of her will be all right. The woman with a very long waist held in by a fearfully tight corset, is not only miserable when she is seated but she looks it, and she can neither sit down or get up gracefully. The Empire clad girl should be able to do both if she is not dressed all wrong beneath the gown.

MODIFIED EMPIRE GOWN.

Be careful in selecting your purples, especially in cloth. Many purples seem to be an ugly brown at night. The right purple should take a richer and deeper tone by gas light. Black in combination with purple brings out the latter color by day as well as by night, into added brilliancy. Purple seems to suggest furs and velvet and richness. It is by all means a color for winter and cold weather. Also remember that the revived "royal purple" does not shade off into lighter colors and lavender as did our violet of a season or so ago. Purple is essentially a color by itself, and merges itself into no other color. It permits near it only such shades as will lend themselves to its own regality. Just remember that when you contemplate putting a purple veil over your rosy cheeks, and don't do it. As for green veils, what can one say! The woman who will wear one is beyond advice. As well leave her to her own destruction, and what is worse, let her disturb every one who looks at her. By the way, the purple we find in old brocades makes the modern purple seem harsh and garish. The modern purple has a stone greyness of tone; the old purple has a soft, almost rosy shade. Let this be a word to the wise.

Miss Jogannadham, who was the first Hindoo woman to study medicine in England, was for a while resident medical officer in the Edinburg hospital for women and children, and is now house physician at the Cama hospital in Bombay. Inspired by her success another Hindoo woman, Miss Gorindurajulu, has begun a course in Surgeon's Square, London.

A Friend

Wishes to speak through the Register of the beneficial results he has received from a regular use of Ayer's Pills. He says: "I was feeling sick and tired and my stomach seemed all out of order. I tried a number of remedies, but none seemed to give me relief until I was induced to try the old reliable Ayer's Pills. I have taken only one box, but I feel like a new man. I think they are the most pleasant and easy to take of anything I ever used, being so finely sugar-coated that even a child will take them. I urge upon all who are of a laxative to try Ayer's Pills."—Boothbay (Me.) Register.

In Need

"Between the ages of five and fifteen, I was troubled with a kind of salt-rheum, or eruption, chiefly confined to the legs, and especially to the bend of the knee above the calf. Here, running sores formed which would scab over, but would break immediately on moving the leg. My mother tried everything she could think of, but all was without avail. Although a child, I read in the papers about the beneficial effects of Ayer's Pills, and persuaded my mother to let me try them. With no great faith in the result, she procured and I began to use them, and soon noticed an improvement. Encouraged by this, I kept on till I took two boxes, when the sores disappeared and have never troubled me since."—H. Chipman, Real Estate Agent, Roanoke, Va.

Ayer's Pills

"I suffered for years from stomach and kidney troubles, causing very severe pains in various parts of the body. None of the remedies I tried afforded me any relief until I began taking Ayer's Pills, and was cured."—Wm. Goddard, Notary Public, Five Lakes, Mich.

HIGHLY TINTED.

Millinery That Sports the Colors of the Rainbow.

We have learned to expect expenditure in color, and a certain amount of tinselry and jewelry of its kind, in the millinery provided for autumn and winter, but we have not heretofore been warranted in looking for color and gloss as distinctive of spring millinery. However, the time has come when my readers may prepare themselves to see nature outdone in the hues and tints which are to appear in the headgear of the gentle season. Jets seem complimented by perennial favor, holding their own despite all the mutations of the mode. They have come out again in buckles and other jewelry devices, but the heavier jet ornaments will doubtless be forced to yield to lighter devices, while the light creations of jets mounted on fine wire, jet aigrettes, and all delicate devices in jet will have place in the spring millinery. The ornaments specially devised for the spring millinery are of barbaric richness in design and aglow with colors. Varying jets—we shall have bands, buckles, brooches, etc., in mock filigree gold, oxidized and bright silver, set with mock emeralds, rubies, amethysts, and other precious and semi-precious stones, picked out with Rhine crystals or paste diamonds; great brooches of mock stones, surrounded by diamonds, and all imaginable fancies of the kind. Pins with cherry-sized heads of smoke pearl, amethyst, garnet, etc., ringed with diamonds, confine the great ribbon bows on hats, and fasten the drapery on hats and bonnets. The laine or parti-colored tinsel ribbons, set with mock stones, of which we had premonitions in a few pieces that came out in the winter, will be out in full force this spring; and from this glittering material there have been made Alsace bows, leaves, wings and other devices in millinery trimming. The hat in the illustration is of green felt, trimmed with one of these Alsatian bows, of green velvet, green shaded feathers, strings of green velvet, and a large paste buckle is fastened into the centre of the bow.

FLORETTE.

The First, "Only a Working Woman,"

More than a generation ago Virginia Penny wrote the first book ever published to help working women. Miss Penny was full of enthusiasm for her own sex when working women were not the fashion, as they are now. At her own expense she traveled through the most thickly settled portions of the union, gathering facts and figures about the work of women outside the three occupations then open to the sex—housework, teaching and sewing. There were not many railroads then and no elevators in business houses. The slender girl traveled by stage and wagon and climbed the staircases afoot. She visited hundreds of stores, shops and factories, making careful note of all the facts bearing on the question of women's wage-earning employments, actual and possible. As she progressed it became clear to her that many of the things men did for a living women could do as well. The information was written out in admirable English and published and republished in book form, under different names, first, "Employments for Women," then "Five Hundred Occupations for Women," and again "How Women Can Make Money." But it never profited the author financially, though thousands of volumes were sold. Miss Penny is now 65 years old and destitute. Happy women are following in the paths she pointed out, some of them earning $3,000, $5,000, and $10,000 a year. Women owe it to her to make Virginia Penny's last days comfortable and it must be done at once. Mrs. Eliza Archard Conner, of New York city, asks the women of America to help raise a fund for that purpose. Miss Penny will acknowledge by letter the receipt of all remittances sent to Virginia Penny, 350 East Seventy-first street, New York city.

E. Jardine, North Sidney, C. B., says:—"I have used your Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with decided success, and would recommend them to any one suffering as I did from weakness and impoverished blood. Couldn't Keep on His Feet.

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 31st, 1892.
To the Peterborough Medicine Company:
GENTLEMEN,—If there is any medicine in the world that I pin my faith to it is Membray's Kidney and Liver Cure. In my business I have to stand on my feet a good deal. About a year ago my back began to give out, weakening pains set in across my kidneys, I felt tired all the time and could hardly stand up to my work. I began to lose strength and at last had to give up work altogether. A customer advised me to try your cure which I did. Before half the bottle was used, I felt the pains and weakness leaving me and to-day I enjoy good health and can bear fatigue and work all right. One bottle was all I used.

THE CHURCH IN WALES.

Home Secretary Asquith in Moving in His Disestablishment.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Mr. Asquith, the Home Secretary, introduced in the House of Commons to-day a bill suspending the creation of new interests in churches in Wales. The measure is the first practical step in the direction of disendowing and disestablishing the church in Wales, to which the Liberal party is distinctly pledged.

Mr. Asquith, introducing the bill, said that the membership of the established church in Wales included hardly one-fourth of the population. The question of disestablishment, he added, was in the main a Welsh one. The decision of the people given at the last general election had distinctly shown this fact. Out of the 34 members of the House of Commons who represent the Welsh Parliamentary districts, 31 had been returned pledged to support measures to disestablish the church. The statement was greeted with cheers.

Sir John Gorst, Financial Secretary to the Treasury under the last Salisbury Cabinet, moved the rejection of the bill presented by Mr. Asquith.

Lord Randolph Churchill, in supporting the motion, charged Mr. Gladstone with having abandoned all his former principles so as to secure votes favorable to his scandalous Irish policy.

Mr. Gladstone, arising at 11.30, congratulated Lord Randolph upon his skill in making his opposition to the bill a cover for a general attack upon the Government at an hour when a proper defence was out of the question. The Government, however, would not refuse the challenge. They were redeeming their pledges to the country, whilst the noble lord was trying to play Welsh disestablishment against Home Rule and Home Rule against Welsh disestablishment.

Mr. Gladstone then analysed Lord Randolph's objections, which he pronounced quite illusory. He admitted that the bill in question was a disestablishment bill. It was demanded, he said, alike by a policy of justice and the voice of the Welsh people.

Sir John Gorst's motion was rejected eventually by a vote of 301 to 245 and the bill passed the first reading.

W. W. Beach, Conservative, for West Hampshire, directed attention to the fact that the bill had been passed with the assistance of Irish votes.

A meeting of the union has been called to consider the matter, as it is believed the membership in the order was the cause for the discharge.

JOHN W. MACKAY SHOT.

WHILE ON HIS WAY TO A TRAIN IN SAN FRANCISCO.

The Wound is Not Fatal—His Assailant Then Attempted Suicide by Shooting Himself Over the Heart—An Old Grievance Dating Back to Mining Days.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 25.—John W. Mackay, the famous capitalist, was shot yesterday at the Lick House in this city by an old man named Rippi, aged about 73 years.

Mr. Mackay was standing in the paved court in the rear of the Lick House, and was fired at without a moment's warning by Rippi.

He fired one shot at Mackay, the bullet entering his back and then shot himself over the heart.

Mackay was at once placed in a carriage and driven away. His wound is not fatal. Rippi was removed to the receiving hospital.

Rippi, it is now stated, had a grievance against Mackay, dating back to mining days, and sought in this manner to kill him.

A white-haired man was noticed walking around Sutter-street, acting very nervously during the early portion of the morning, throwing his hand back towards his hip pocket.

After firing the shot, the would-be murderer supplemented his crime by turning the pistol on himself and firing a shot into his own body. The self-inflicted wound was serious, but as long as he could walk he followed Mr. Mackay up, trying to fire at him again, but he was so weak that he could not pull the trigger.

He then threw up his hands, exclaiming: "My God, I am satisfied."

Mackay put his hand behind his back, and some one raised his coat. As he drew his hand out it was covered with blood, and he exclaimed to one of his friends that the shot had taken effect in the middle of his back.

Mr. Mackay was placed in a buggy and taken to the Palace Hotel, where medical assistance was rendered him.

Mr. Mackay made the following statement: I was walking down Sutter-street bound for my room to pack my valise, as I intended to go to Virginia City this afternoon. When I reached Lick-alley I thought it would be a short cut to the hotel. I had hardly taken two steps into Lick-alley when I heard a pistol shot. I paused for a moment rather startled, for I had not seen anyone in the alley when I entered it, and did not at first know from which direction the report of the pistol came.

Suddenly a voice exclaimed: "Mr. Mackay, you have been shot," and looking up I saw the gentleman who brought me to my room.

"No, I am not shot," I replied. "Yes, your are," he insisted, "for I saw dust fly from your coat when the bullet struck you."

I put my hand around under my coat and sure enough when I looked my hand was covered with blood. I then felt pain in my back.

It all happened in a second, and turning half way round I saw my assailant standing at the head of the alley with his pistol pointed at me. I then hurried across to the east side of the alley, and as I did so I saw the old man put a pistol, as I thought, to his mouth and fired it again.

He then reeled and fell, and I continued up the alley until we reached Mr. Bonner's cart, and he drove me to the Palace Hotel.

When Mr. Mackay was asked if he knew the man who had shot him he said: "I never knew of a man named Rippi. I had a good look at the old man who shot me and I am certain I do not know him. I cannot give any reason for the assault."

Soon after 2 o'clock physicians extracted the bullet. Dr. Morse says that the wound was not necessarily fatal, but that the patient was by no means out of danger. He added that in case of gunshot wounds there was always danger of blood-poisoning or lockjaw.

William G. Rippi was well-known to old-timers in San Francisco and was a familiar figure around 1220 Powell-street, where he made his home.

From the people in the house it was learned that the old man had been very despondent of late, and that nearly all his means had been swallowed up in stock speculations. Rippi was born in Cincinnati and leaves a wife and family there.

When the murderer was taken to the receiving hospital in a patrol wagon he was conscious, but couldn't articulate. The patient was placed on the operating table, when blood was seen to ooze through his clothing about the upper portion of his body. Further examination revealed that the bullet had entered his left breast, passed through the trunk and come out just below the left shoulder blade. The bullet was found just under the skin.

In his pantaloons left hand pocket was found a 48-calibre revolver of the bulldog pattern, and all cartridges intact. Also in his pocket was a purse containing 20 cents and an envelope containing a paper on which was written, "De I. R. Linton, La Palace Hotel. End not yet."

A letter addressed to the Examiner read as follows: "Food for revolution. Paid $150,000 for a sapphire to place on the jaded person of his wife. A sufficient amount to have saved 500 of his paupers from a suicidal grave. Just think of it!" Inscribe on his tomb: "End Not Yet."

At 11 p.m. the nurses in attendance on Mr. Mackay report that he is sleeping peacefully and has not suffered any inconvenience whatever from his wound since the doctors extracted the bullet.

The Lick House is one of the old-time popular hotels in San Francisco, and is located in Montgomery-street, one of the leading business avenues. The court in the rear is used by the frequenters of the bar and the underlings and deliverers of supplies.

The trouble over mining days probably commenced when Mackay was piling up his first millions from the famous Consolidated-Virginia mine in Nevada. There are so many stories current on the coast about Mackay's grab-and-crush style of making money when millions were in sight, that doubtless Rippi is one of the men who was crushed.

POLITICS IN GERMANY.

THE FARMERS' LEAGUE IS GROWING VERY POWERFUL.

Its Platform Is the Overthrow of Caprivi, Protection to the Agricultural Interests and a Return to Bi-Metallism—Prince Bismarck Inciting the Agitators.

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—Emperor William was present at an official dinner given Saturday by Dr. von Boetticher, Secretary of the Imperial Home Office and representative of the Chancellor. His Majesty led the conversation, which was devoted to the absorbing topic in political circles, the formation of a great Agrarian party.

Chancellor von Caprivi, the anniversary of whose birth it was, was the only Minister who was not present. The Emperor in offering a toast to the absent Chancellor alluded to his sacrificing his personal feelings to service to the State, and to his fidelity to his Emperor, in such terms as inspired the conviction among his hearers that Chancellor von Caprivi will only be driven from office when the Emperor shall have been forced to succumb before an overwhelming defeat of the Imperial policy. The Agrarian coalitions, while affecting loyalist reverence for the Emperor, practically demand a radical change in the Imperial policy.

The strength of the agitation led by the Farmers' League develops daily. Since the league formulated its program, every day has seen adhesions to it from kindred interests. The Congress of German Agriculturists and the Peasants' League, with 40,000 members of the Financial and Economic Reform Union and the Bi-metallic Association, have successively announced their full agreement with the objects of the Agrarian League. The wire-pullers behind all these associations are the same, but as to the stage changes different persons appear on the scene. The plot tends to one denouement—the overthrow of Caprivi, protection to the agricultural interests and a return to bi-metallism.

The leaders of the coalition already feel powerful enough to declare that nothing short of a reversal of the whole policy of the Government will content them. As the Emperor cannot be expected to assent to their demands, the party aims at a dissolution of the Reichstag at the earliest possible moment. Formidable in itself, the coalition is further fortified by a union with the Anti-Semitics. The Peasants' League in agreeing to dissolve and merge itself into the Agrarian League passed a resolution declaring that the Agrarian interests must consolidate so as to show a bold and united front to Radicalism, Socialism and Judaism. The resolution found an hundredfold echo throughout the country. The Freisinnige press at first treated the movement with pretended contempt, but the agitation is too obviously potent now to be discussed otherwise than seriously.

An election at Leignitz, hitherto a stronghold of the Freisinnige party, giving at the last preceding election only 150 votes to the Anti-Semitic candidate, nearly resulted on Tuesday in a Freisinnige defeat. Hertwig, an advocate, who was the Anti-Semitic candidate, received upwards of 5000 votes against 6000 cast for the Freisinnige candidate. Herr Hertwig's sole claim to the votes of the electors was that he was counsel for Rector Ahlwardt in the recent libel suit brought against the noted Anti-Semitic. He owed his heavy poll to Conservative votes. A second vote is necessary and this will probably result in the return of the Freisinnige candidate. In the meantime the enormous increase in the Anti-Semitic vote has dismayed the Liberals, who are regarding their chances as second in the less hopeful districts.

The Emperor is following the movement with close attention. He directed Herr Lucanus, the chief of his private Cabinet, to send trusted agents to attend the Agrarian meetings and to telegraph reports from the various centres of the country.

Prince Bismarck is in the closest touch with the Agrarian leaders. He has responded to expressions of devotion sent to him from a number of meetings with assurances that he is in full sympathy with the Agrarian agitation. The Hamburger Nachrichten, in a series of articles obviously inspired by Prince Bismarck, incites the leaders of the movement not to abate their attacks upon the Government, and predicts their eventual triumph.

Rector Ahlwardt was released from the Ploetzensee jail Saturday, his sentence having expired. His release was made the occasion of a demonstration by the Anti-Semitics. Ahlwardt was heartily cheered upon declaring that he was prepared to forfeit his liberty again if by so doing he could only hasten the deliverance of the Fatherland from the loathsome plague of Judaism. Ahlwardt took his seat in the Reichstag Saturday.

In response to enquiries made at the Foreign Office as to the truth of the reports that negotiations are being conducted for a German-American commercial treaty it was learned that no communications of any kind are proceeding. The rumors had their basis in requests sent by the Foreign Office to the different industrial centres for reports as to how exports had been affected under the operations of the McKinley tariff. The enquiry indicates that Chancellor von Caprivi intends to sound the Cleveland Government on some commercial arrangement. While looking into this matter it was also learned that the War Office had finally decided against using maize as a regular mixture in rye bread. The War Office tried 26 different kinds of maize mixtures with flour, rye, etc., but none was found satisfactory.

The Centrists celebrated the Pope's jubilee with a banquet at the Hotel Kaiserhof, Prince Anton von Radziwill presiding. Telegrams from Herr Ballestrem, the Centrist envoy, state that the Pope has endorsed the party's policy in the Reichstag making Centrist support of the Army bill dependent upon the Government permitting the recall of the Jesuits. The bill has been hanging in committee since November. The Centre party will now give a quicker movement to the proceedings with a view to a proposal for the recall of the Jesuits being accelerated in the Reichstag. Hitherto the Centrists have avoided supporting the agricultural movement. If the Government opposes the return of the Jesuits many members of the party will unhesitatingly coalesce with those supporting that movement. In the meanwhile a most friendly feeling toward Catholics prevails in official quarters.

Gen. Von Loe, the German envoy to the Vatican, who is a Catholic, is, it is reported, meeting with a most cordial reception from Cardinal Rampolla, Pontifical Secretary of State.

It having been stated in certain newspapers that Chancellor Von Caprivi was about to marry a widow, the Chancellor sent the following message through his adjutant, Major Ebmyer: "My compliments, but I am much too old for such a step."

In the last week the Government apparently has made no progress toward obtaining a majority for the Army bill. There are no signs of the renewal of the negotiations between the Radicals and Chancellor Caprivi, in fact there has been much to indicate that the Government is inclined to make terms with the least liberal parties, if such an understanding would result in the parliamentary majority so fervently desired.

The Emperor's most gracious reception of the deputation from the Central Agricultural Association of the eastern provinces, and the presence of Herr Von Hayden, Minister of Agriculture, at Wednesday's meeting of the congress of fiscal and agricultural reformers are regarded as symptoms of the Government's new change of base. Discouraged by their failure in other quarters, the Emperor and Count Caprivi are believed to have resolved that instead of persistently flouting and antagonising Agrarianism and its companion-piece, anti-Semitism, they might better try to lead the movement in question into less perilous channels.

This resolution, however, was not due altogether to strictly political reasons. The Government as well as politicians of modern views throughout the empire have been alarmed by the growing power of the alliance, now admitted to have been arranged between the Agrarian Conservatives and the anti-Semitics. Fresh evidence of this power was given in the Parliamentary election in the Leignitz district last week to fill the seat left vacant by the death of the Radical deputy, Gustav Lange. An analysis of the returns shows conclusively that 75 per cent. of the Conservatives, instead of voting for the highly reputable Conservative Count Leo von Rothkirch-Trach, gave their suffrages to the Jew-baiting Lawyer Hertwig, who as prisoner's counsel in the Ahlwardt-Loewe trial, threw up his brief in court and then having gained admission to Ahlwardt's cell under the false pretense of still being his counsel gave him medicine to cause illness and thereby secure a postponement of the court proceedings. Although even so the Conservatives failed to elect Hertwig.

They brought over to him so many votes that another election will be necessary to determine whether Herr Jungfer, the Radical candidate, or this disgraceful lawyer shall represent Leignitz district in the Reichstag. This unexpected event of the election has given the Government and all Liberal Germans the greatest shock they have felt since the seating of Ahlwardt, and many editors and politicians are directing attention to the perils threatened by the fondness of the Conservatives for anti-Semitic candidates.

If the proportions in the Leignitz district hold good throughout the empire, and 75 per cent. of all Conservatives were ready to vote for Jew-baiting candidates, the country undoubtedly would be on the verge of a race war, compared with which the Kulturkampf was child's play. The best informed politicians, however, estimate that only about 40 per cent. of the regular Conservatives have coalesced with the anti-Semitics. But as this faction includes the noisiest and most aggressive Conservatives it is able to make a disturbance far in excess of anything justified by its size and influence.

The Government hopes now, by a few concessions and by cautious legislation, to prevent the anti-Semitic agitation from spreading further. It has been influenced undeniably to adopt this more conciliatory attitude by the vigor with which Prince Bismarck has sprung to the defence of the Agrarians. With his support manifested through The Hamburger Nachrichten the Agrarians, either with or without the Anti-Semitics, could rally a powerful opposition in the Reichstag.

How far the Government will go to temper the Agrarians' antagonism is uncertain, but it is improbable that it will do more than is necessary for the patching up of a temporary peace.

Count Von Caprivi is not a protectionist, and rather than make the concessions demanded by the extreme Agrarians would leave his office. His opposition to the extreme protectionists was evidenced in his negotiation of the Customs union treaties, and from the policy thus developed by him he is not likely to make any radical departure despite the fact that in these treaties is to be found the source of this last revival of agrarian agitation.

An unique feature of this present situation in domestic politics is the occasional endorsement of the Government's attitude by the Social Democrats. Speaking of the commercial negotiations between Germany and Russia The Verwaerts, organ of the social democracy, said two days ago:

Five marks per two hundred weight heretofore taken from the people's pockets by the corn laws, we learn, have been reduced to three and a half marks. If the commercial treaty between the German Empire and Russia be effected, this will be one of the high crimes of which the Government will be held guilty by the Agrarian party. This is the reason for the rebellion of the landed aristocracy, now starving on champagne and oysters. The Government ought to keep these people on short rations for a while and abolish their privileges. But unfortunately it looks as if all might end in nothing being done.

"The State seems to be almost helpless in hands of the land-owning nobility. This is not, however, because the new Chancellor is unequal to his predecessor in political wisdom. On the contrary, by his despairing cry, I cannot force the markets of the world; I cannot force the laborers to do what the land-owners wish, Chancellor Von Caprivi, in a few minutes showed himself to be more statesmanlike than did the iron ex-Hercules and a quarter of a century of unlimited dictatorship.

Count Von Caprivi is reported to have declared Saturday that if the Agrarians would keep their demands within the bounds of reason the Government would be ready to consider a compromise with them. The items of the memorial presented by the Agrarians to the Emperor, he added, were impossible in their entirety, but the whole memorial might be taken as the basis of an understanding.

The Government would go perhaps halfway, but no farther. The proposals of the memorial are for adequate veterinary inspection of all imported cattle, to be especially strict in the cases of importations from Russia, alteration of the laws making paupers chargeable upon the parishes in which they were born, reduction of railway brought charges, seventeen-cent [illegible] on the canals, special privileges for the wood industries, maintenance of drawbacks on manufactured sugar, abandonment of the plan for an increase of taxation upon spirituous liquors.

THE SEA THEIR GRAVES.

Five Volunteer Life-Savers Drowned Off the Massachusetts Coast.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Feb. 27.—At a late hour yesterday news was received of a lamentable disaster off Cuttyhunk, one of the Elizabeth Islands separating Buzzard's Bay from Vineyard Sound. The steamer Volunteer, which arrived from the island, had on board Capt. Bosworth of the Cuttyhunk life-saving station, who said that about 8 o'clock last evening Willie Kinney, son of the lighthouse keeper at the west end of the island, came running into the house and told his father he had seen the lights of a vessel off Sow and Pigs Reef.

The report was soon verified, and it was ascertained that the vessel had struck. The boat belonging to the Massachusetts Humane Society was got out and a volunteer crew of six men put off in her despite the heavy swell and the warnings of the captain of the life-saving station. The men were determined to rescue the crew of the vessel if it were possible to do so. They had a long, hard and perilous pull amid the angry waves, which threatened every moment to engulf them, but at last succeeded in getting under the lee of the vessel. A rope was thrown to the boat, but just as a landing was about to be effected a great wave capsized the boat and in an instant the men were struggling in the ice-cold water. One man of the boat's crew, Joseph Tilton, caught a rope which was thrown and was drawn on board the vessel, but the others were all drowned. They were: Capt. Timothy Akin, jr., Isaiah H. Tilton, Hiram Jackson, William Brightman and Frederick Akin. A rope was thrown to Capt. Akin, which he caught and tied around himself three times, but it slipped off and was lost. All the men but Brightman lived on the island. Capt. Akin leaves a wife and seven children, Jackson a wife and two children, and Tilton a wife and two children.

Communication was subsequently established with the land, and when it was ascertained that the crew were all lost but one, a heartrending scene ensued. The wives and children searched the shore agonisingly for the bodies of the dead, and they were joined by nearly all the populace of the village, none of whom slept all night.

The wrecked vessel was ascertained to be the brig Sagua, laden with sugar and bound from Cuba for Boston. It is thought that the brig will be lost. The captain and crew of the brig were saved and landed on Cuttybank.

The body of Frederick Akin was washed ashore this morning.

A DOUBLE MURDER.

One Shot While Lying Ill in Bed—The Other Killed in the Kitchen.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 27.—Yesterday Miss Julia Force, 38 years of age, shot and killed her two sisters—Florence, 30 years old, and Minnie, 25 years old. She then walked to the police station and gave herself up, saying she had committed a crime and desired protection. This was the first knowledge of the murder.

It is believed the woman is insane. She has been considered irresponsible at times and had frequently threatened to kill members of her family. She says she has for a year been writing out a statement of the family troubles and has just completed it.

To-day when her mother was absent from the house she sent the servants out on errands, then, going to the room where her sister Florence lay sick in bed, she placed a pistol to her right temple and shot her dead. Then going to the kitchen, where her other sister was, she shot her in the same manner. None of the neighbors heard the shots.

Miss Force then calmly locked the door and went to the police station as described. The bodies of the women were found by a brother, to whom she had sent a message to the effect that her sister Florence was worse. In response he went home and found the bodies of his dead sisters.

Maritime Centenarians Dead.

HALIFAX, Feb. 27.—Three of the oldest people in Nova Scotia died this week. They were Mr. Malcolm McMullin, aged 105 years. He lived at Catalone, C.B., in the house with his son, grandson and great-grandson. For years past it was a daily occurrence to see the four generations working in the fields together. Mrs. Catherine Ross of Cape Breton, died, aged 101, leaving 208 grandchildren. Mrs. Donald Chisholm, aged 102, died at Guysboro. Two of her brothers were priests. On the same day, 50 years ago, two brothers, Joseph S. and Edward Palmer, married two sisters, Phœbe and Caroline Chesley. Both couples and their families celebrated their golden weddings at Salem, Annapolis, a few days ago.

The Strike Is Off.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 27.—The threatened strike in the Western Union offices of the twin cities will not occur, the differences having been adjusted yesterday. All the operators, with one exception, who were discharged on Wednesday were reinstated. Each, on resuming his place, was required to sign an ironclad agreement that he was not now and did not intend to become a member of any telegraphers' union.

President Carnot Will Be Re-Elected.

LONDON, Feb 27.—The Paris correspondent of the Times says: The choice of M. Ferry ensures the re-election of President Carnot. Even if he aspires to the position of President, M. Ferry cannot dream of obtaining it so soon. He can well afford to wait, and rectify public opinion respecting him.

Big Fire in St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, Feb 27.—Fire Sunday destroyed the property of the Minnesota Shoe Co. and the adjoining premises. Total loss $200,000. One fireman was fatally injured by falling walls.

A CAMPER'S OUTFIT COMPLETE.

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Son, will Exhibit Some of Their Skillful Work and Patents at the Columbian Exposition.

Saturday afternoon a reporter of the EXAMINER was shown a handsome camper's tent and complete camp furnishings for it which will be exhibited in the main building of the Columbian Exhibition which opens at Chicago on May 1st, next. The whole thing is the handiwork of Messrs. J. J. Turner & Son, the well known tent and awning makers. The tent is what is known as an Egyptian tent, in dimensions 10x10, and manufactured of waterproof Yarmouth duck. No poles are required at all to erect it. The sides of the tent continue perpendicularly for three feet, then begins to slope angularly until at the apex of the canvass structure it is some eight feet high. On either side are small canopies coming out over minature aperatures covered with netting. These admit ventilation and also keep out all rain and wet. The tent is complete in every way and will alone occupy all the space in the main building at Chicago, which Mr. J. S. Larke, the acting executive commissioner, was able to apportion Mr. Turner owing to the terrible crush for room. The camper's furnishings of the tent, which can be used for camping out, hunting, fishing or any other purposes desirable, are replete, convenient and thoroughly adapted for comfort and ease of transportation. A handsome tapestry carpet gives the interior a bright appearance. There are also a couple of folding camp beds, and folding arm chairs, all of which can be taken apart and done in a parcel not larger than a loaf of bread. A four-legged table is also a marvel of skill and wormanship, and a neat automatic structure it is, too. A small stove about 1½ foot long by 9 inches wide, communicates with a large cylinder oven by pipes, and from the oven the pipes lead up to the top of the tent and form a central support. The beauty of this is that not only does the smoke escape by this means, but when the stove is not utilised the pipes are used for ventilation purposes also. The stove and pipes when taken apart can be packed in the cylindriform oven. The whole tent and furnishings are a regular moving household, and can be stowed away in an ordinary Saratoga and yet when erected are ample accommodation for a family of half a dozen people. Messrs. Turner & Son have secured a patent for all their furnishings.

Mr. Turner is also manufacturing a gigantic awning, 16 x 35, the largest one they ever made, for Gough Bros., and they are also filling an order for one of a nearly equally large size for Mr. R. Barrett, dry goods merchant, Oshawa.

MARKET MEMORANDA.

A Great Market Saturday Morning—Prices Rule High.

On account of the blockaded state of the roads for the past few days the market on Saturday morning was unusually large and prices in consequence ran away up. The grain market is fairly active at present and considerable is being offered in all kinds at good firm prices. Spring wheat 63c (standard), fall 63c (standard), oats 31 to 32c, peas 58 to 61c, mummies 66c, barley 35 to 40c, none offering, rye 45c, buckwheat 43c, very little on. Hay is selling readily at $8.50 to $9.00 per ton, while straw brings from $2.50 to $3.00. The wood market keeps up well and prices are a little firmer on account of the diminished quantity which has been drawn to town lately. A large supply of butter sold from 20 to 24c., but the prevailing price was 22 and 23c. Messrs. S. Fife, of Otonabee, and S. Pentland, Toronto, purchased on the market one thousand dozen of eggs in the morning for shipment to Mr. C. H. Winch, Montreal. The price paid was 20 to 22c., and had it not been for this unusual demand sellers state that the price would have dwindled down to 10c., owing to the largely increased quantity offered. A fine supply of poultry was on deck. Turkeys were disposed of at 12½c. per lb., geese, 75 to 80c. per pair, chickens, 55 to 65c., no ducks offered. Apples were selling at 50 to 90c. per bag, according to grade and quality. Potatoes sold readily at 75 to 80c. The meat market is fairly active. Beef sold at 5 and 5½c. front quarter, and 5½ and 6c. hind quarter, lamb, 8 to 9c., mutton, 7 to 8c., dressed pork sold at $8 per cwt. A few other quotations are: Parsnips, 10c. per peck, turnips, 25c. per bag, carrots, 13c. per peck. No other changes.

Sunshine comes, no matter how dark the clouds are, when the woman who is borne down by woman's troubles turns to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. If her life is made gloomy by the chronic weaknesses, delicate derangements, and painful disorders that afflict her sex, they are completely cured. If she's overworked, nervous, or "run down," she has new life and strength.

"Favorite Prescription" is a powerful, invigorating tonic and a soothing, strengthening nervine, purely vegetable, perfectly harmless. It regulates and promotes all the proper functions of womanhood, improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and vigor. For every "female complaint" and disturbance, it is the only remedy so sure and unfailing that it can be GUARANTEED.

If it doesn't benefit or cure, you have your money back.

A Cure for Constipation and Headache

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick-headache in one night. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c. a package.

As a pick-me-up after excessive exertion or exposure, Millburn's Beef, Iron and Wine is grateful and comforting.

BRINGING DOWN THE ESTIMATES FOR 1893!

Opening of Parliament for the People!

GOUGH BROS.' CABINET FORMED AND A POLICY DECIDED ON!

February is the month of clearing up. Goughs have re-organized business for 1893 and start out to clear off the slate for spring. Trade for 1892 has been larger than ever. Profits have been smaller. Goughs have cut their prices to meet the low price of wheat; and if wheat goes lower, down go Goughs' prices. They will not be undersold by the farmer or see the farmer undersold.

CLEARING UP THE STOCK FOR SPRING.

Stock-taking is over. A lot of odd lots remain. These must go. Goughs will almost give them away to clear. Come in and run through the counters and see your opportunity.

Clothing, Overcoats, Boys' Suits, Underclothing, Boots & Shoes

LETTER OF CONDOLENCE.

At a recent meeting of L. O. L. No. 457, the following letter of condolence was passed:—

To W. E. Chamberlain:

DEAR BROTHER,—The members of L. O. L. No. 457, desire to convey to you an expression of their deep sympathy in the affliction with which it has pleased Almighty God to visit you. They are conscious that words can afford but little consolation in the presence of so great a bereavement, but it may help you in some measure in bearing it to be assured that so far as others can enter into such a sorrow, your brethern are mourning with you, and praying that He who alone can comfort you may be pleased to do so. We often feel we would like to have our loved ones spared to us, but God has higher places for them. To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with Me on My throne even as I overcome, and am sat down with my Father on His throne.

The Advertising.

Of Hood's Sarsaparilla is always within the bounds of reason because it is true; it always appeals to the sober, common sense of thinking people because it is true; and it is always fully substantiated by endorsements which, in the financial world would be accepted without a moment's hesitation.

For a general family cathartic we confidently reccomend Hood's Pills.

WEAR A SMILE ON YOUR FACE.

Man's face is like the dial plate of a clock,
Though it does not tho days in hours divide,
Nor mark time's progress by its tick or stroke,
It shows there is a working power inside.

Brain, like the mainspring, rules the clay-built tower,
Propels and holds each faculty in place;
Mind moves and acts by silent unseen power
That stamps its impress on the human face.

Not from without, but from an inward source,
The motives swell to cause a frown or smile;
The rising thoughts show with a vivid force,
Whether they spring from innocence or guile.

If all within in tranquil peace repose
Upon the visage good results we trace;
Appearance proves; the lineaments disclose
By the glad smiles bright beaming on his face

Where fallen nature holds the sway, unchanged,
Leaves its foul track like some polluted brook,
The gloomy mind, the fount of thought d-ranged,
Reveals the man by his dark sullen look.

The cheerful spirit cannot be concealed,
Grief clouds may dim, but cannot it erase.
Like the sun's rays its beauty is revealed,
Reflects contentment in a smiling face

There are some faces try a smile to wear,
To all appearance genuine, true and bright,
Hard to detect, deception seems so fair;
That's the forced smile of a real hypocrite.

A numerous class compares the smile to sin,
A cheerful, pleasant countenance disgrace,
Some wear a mask to hide defects within,
With a long serious, sanctimonious face.

Keep me from such; I say, of them beware,
Their thoughts, their hearts could you but penetrate,
The old man, self, you would find lurking there,
Clothed in deceit, but outward sad, sedate.

I read of one long years before the flood,
His God-lent smile to sullen looks gave place.
And why, because he shed his brother's blood—
Wear not his frowns, but show a smiling face.

How to Court-Plaster a Cut.

In case of a serious cut, fold a piece of court-plaster a little larger than the wound lengthwise through the middle, and cut into narrow strips from the fold to within a quarter inch or so of the two edges that lay together as in Fig. 1.

Unfold the piece of court-plaster, clip loose the narrow strips at opposite ends, alternately, as in Fig. 2, and you will have two comb-shaped pieces of court-plaster, as in Fig. 3.

Now stick the straight edges of the two pieces firmly to the flesh, one on each side of the cut and a little way from it, the narrow strips (the teeth of the "combs") lying across the cut.

THE WAY TO CUT THE COURT-PLASTER.

All is now ready for closing the wound. Take a strip from each side and draw the flesh together and stick them over on opposite sides. When all the strips are in place the wound will be evenly and safely closed.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE "IN IT."

A Life Agent called at a friend's place one day,
HE WASN'T IN IT;
He had seen "the bore" coming and fled from his way
HE WASN'T IN IT;
He had heard so much said, he was tired and sick
Of insurance and agents—'twas all a blind trick
When one's coil must be shuffled to win it,
HE WASN'T IN IT.

A bit of a draft blew o'er his bald head,
HE WAS IN IT;
Pneumonia sent him straightway to his bed,
HE STAYED IN IT;
His doctor made of it a "quite special" case,
To save him for running still more of life's race,
But the grave took some chances to win it,
AND HE'S IN IT.

When approached by a gent for insuring your life,
GET RIGHT IN IT;
It's the right thing to do for your children and wife,
THEN STAY IN IT.
Remember that fires take your goods "out of sight,"
And that accidents happen each day and each night.
While insurance protects every minute,
IF YOU'RE IN IT.

A Bank Manager's Opinion.

HE IS "IN IT."

The General Manager of one of the leading banks in Canada, writing to a personal friend, says:—"I have no hesitation in saying that I place the CANADA LIFE upon the highest platform. It is in my opinion carefully, economically and honestly managed; its Reserve Funds are well invested; its rates of Premiums are low, and its future is, I think better assured than a great majority of Companies. I have my own life insured in the Company for a round amount, and would not hesitate to increase the amount of my policies should I decide upon taking out further insurance."

A Government Insurance Actuary's Opinion

On the Relation between Ordinary and Tontine Service.

It is frequently assertedby Companies whose business is nearly all tontined, that although the CANADA LIFE may and does pay large ordinary profits, yet it cannot compare so favourably on a long term distribution or tontine period, and that in the end better results can be obtained on a tontine policy in a large American Co. than on an ordinary or tontine policy in the CANADA LIFE. To prove the absurdity of this statement, the following piece of common sense is quoted from Mervin Tabor, late Actuary of the Illinois Goverment Insurance Department. In his well known book, "The Three Systems of Life Insurance," he says: "A company that gives large dividends on the ordinary kind of policies, can give much larger on the same kinds when Tontined, and a company that pays but meagre dividends on the usual forms, adopting perhaps the Tontine system to "cover up" its small surpluses, cannot be relied on for large returns of surplus under the Tontine Forms of Insurance."

The CANADA LIFE does not "cover up" its Quinquennial profits as some Companies do, but publishes them throughout the country.

It can and does surpass other Companies on Quinquennial profits. It should and will surpass them on Tontine profits.

WHY TO BE "IN IT."

BISHOP HAWKE'S REASON:—"I claim that Life Insurance is not only a humane, but I might say a Christian Institution."

LORD LYNDHURST'S REASON:—"A Policy of Life Insurance is always an evidence of prudent forethought. No man with a dependent family is free from reproach if not insured."

WHEN TO BE "IN IT."

The younger, the cheaper. Therefore insure when young. Besides by insuring in the CANADA LIFE now, you will share in three years' profits.

WHERE TO BE "IN IT."

The best place to be "in it" is in the Company that gives the best returns for the least money, consistent with absolute security. Therefore, in order to be "in it," choose the

A Sad Case of Affliction.

Agnes Ward, relict of the late David Eastwood, of Cavan, died yesterday morning at her residence, 688 George street, at the advanced age of 87 years. Deceased was highly respected and much beloved by a large circle of acquaintances. Her demise is all the more sad following so closely on that of her eldest daughter, who died only on Friday last. The family have the heartfelt sympathy of a host of friends in their unusually sad bereavement. The funeral will take place to St. John's church cemetery, Ida, to-morrow morning at 9.30 o'clock.

Our enlarged premises will afford ample room and facilities when completed, and the work will be pushed as speedily as possible. Remember the removal for four weeks only to Kidd's old stand. R. Another Proof of Peterborough's Excellent Market.

Mr. Jos. Rightmyer, his wife and three sons, have removed from Wooler, Murray township, to town. Mr. Rightmyer has leased for a term of years Mr. Wm. Bell's place in North Monaghan about two miles south of Peterborough, and will go into gardening and fruit raising on a very extensive scale. He and his sons have had over 20 years experience in these lines in Murray township, but were handicapped considerably by the want of good market accommodation. Mr. Rightmyer states that he lived 25 miles from Belleville which was the nearest market available and that this was too great a distance to travel in order to dispose of his produce. He had often heard of the enterprising town of Peterborough and her first class market, hence he decided to remove and take up his residence here. Peterborough people should certainly feel proud of their large market which attracts, every Saturday especially, farmers and gardeners, not only from every part of this county, but from within two or three miles of Lindsay, Port Hope, Cobourg, Grafton and other places.

A Veteran Remembered.

This afternoon Mr. Michael Sanderson, ex-reeve of Smith, met at the court house three members of the special committee appointed at the late session of the county council to present to him the complimentary resolution passed on the occasion of his retirement from municipal life. Mr. Jno. Burnham made the presentation with a complimentary speech on the lines of the resolution which he read, and then presented to Mr. Sanderson. Mr. Sanderson made a feeling reply, thanking the council for its appreciative kindness, and referred briefly to his past career in connection with the council, and the pleasant memories associated therewith. It gave him great pleasure on retiring to find that the affairs of the county were in as good a position as they ever were. Addresses were also made by Mr. Moloney, Mr. Belcher and others. The address was beautifully engrossed and framed and may be seen in the window of the Peterborough Bookstore in a couple of days.

FORESTERS' ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.

The Principles of Individualism and Socialism Ably Expounded by Rev. Richard Symonds.

The members of Court Peterborough, No. 29, Canadian Order of Foresters and Court Young Peterborough No. 8, attended annual divine worship at St. Luke's church Ashburnham, yesterday afternoon. The turnout of the brethren was a representative one, no less than 150 Foresters being in the procession. They met in their hall, Simcoe street, at three o'clock and marched two deep to the church. On arrival they occupied the central pews and together with the other worshippers the nave of the church was well filled. The order of service was printed and copies distributed among the members. Rev. H. Symonds, rector, preached a masterly anniversary sermon to the brethren from Galatians VI chapter and 2nd and 5th verses:

"Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfil the law of Christ."

"For every man shall bear his own burdens."

In these texts, the preacher said St. Paul appeared to contradict himself. A mere theorist might accuse the apostle of inconsistency, but the man who ponders the case saw two apparently contradictory statements. There are times when we feel we are alone and no other soul can enter into our feelings; there are other times when sympathy and support has lifted the burden from our shoulders and let in the rays of hope. In the life of man there is laid upon him the duty of self help and honestly and manfully fighting the battle of life. We all feel this a very noble and inspiring sight. The man is shaping his own shoulders to bear his own burdens. The principle of self help was the first principle of the text. Suppose the man lived alone, he would belie the promises of his early years and see only half of his self. Self help was

ONLY ONE SIDE OF LIFE.

We were surrounded by our fellows of like nature to ourselves, but perhaps of not equal opportunities. He instanced a man laying aside, by frugality and industry, a sufficiency for the future for himself and family. But an accident happens him and the amount which he has gathered together as a safeguard against poverty is utilized in paying the physician. Had we no duties toward such a one? Could we not give him a little help here, and had we no interest in his behalf? Self help was good, but it was also good to help each other. Mutual help and self help not only operate on individual man, but operate upon whole societies of men. Half a century ago the principle of self help ruled supreme. Political economy said help yourself and do not mind others. Competition is the law of the world and ever shall be. Christianity was said to be a thing between yourself and your God. Men who thought differently from this were called fools, but it was the fanatic who extolled self help and the law of competition who had in turn become the fools. The preacher quoted eminent authorities on the terrible condition of the poorer classes in England during the practices of this gospel of political economy, which had been substituted for the principles of Christianity. The new law then was to make money and make the most of opportunity. Labour was an article of trade, and such was the outcome of preaching the one side only. The seeds of brotherhood, of mutual trust, were now bearing fruit, and the other half of the truth prevailing. The old thought that individualism was the whole truth and social bonds mere figments, had been reversed, and society was incorrectly regarded as everything, by some extremists. There should be better relations existing between capital and labour—master and servant. The principle of mutual support is felt to be.

THE NECESSARY ACCOMPANIMENT

of self help, and enters into every side of its life. What had the questions of socialism and individualism to do with us today? These two leading principles appeared to be the leading principles of their order to-day and it was good to see the motives they were promoting and know how they were affecting others. Every order had some special truth which was good for others. How did they promote the principle of self help. Each member had by his industry and efforts to pay a certain amount into the order for its privileges and membership. He thus had to rely on self help. He was surrounded by men of industry and virtue and heard idleness and vice denounced. The speaker urged as the likeminded ran together, and a man was known by the company he kept, to select a good society. If we had sound principles in our natures and joined a good society we would have these principles strengthened and developed to stimulate us on in self help which was cultivated by the society. But it was also true that united self help was equally encouraged. It was in their power as a brotherhood. to sympathize with those in distress to alleviate suffering and care for the sick. The principles of love and co-operation lay at the bottom of the Forester's order. It was not a case of the sharpest man getting the most out of it. Closer bonds between man and man were the principles of the Order. Their object was to enable a member to do something for himself which he could not otherwise do and also to help others similiarly circumstanced. The healthy man thanked God that he has health and strength and was able to assist a fellow man, while the unhealthy man who had kept up his dues, but had become ill, did not feel that he was a pauper. Here were business and charity, common sense, individual and social self help all bound together. These principles were evolved from the law of Christianity, and the speaker would urge all to remember that no laws could stand unless they represented the feelings of men. Law was the expression of public opinion. As long as we bowed down and owned supremacy to Jesus Christ as men who are disciples of the master and earnestly seek to learn, so must we cherish here on earth that he is the Father and all we are brethren. The preacher closed by impressing upon all mutual love and esteem, and that we should bear that love which we have for one another, towards all mankind.

After the service the procession reformed and marched back to the Foresters' hall, where unanimous votes of thanks were tendered Rev. Mr. Symonds for his practical and eloquent sermon, the churchwardens for the use of the church and to the choir for their splendid music. The meeting then adjourned.

CRISP CURLING CHRONIQUES.

What is Going on at the Rink Where Curlers Most do Congregate.

At the rink on Saturday night, a make-up match occurred between Skips D. Belleghem and Geo. Brown. The furniture king had a complete walk over, defeating his opponent's quartette by a score of, 8 shots to three.

Another match was played between quartettes skipped by Messrs. E. B. Edwards and Dr. Boucher. The latter's rink was successful by a score of 15 to 10 points.

A report was in circulation to-day that Lindsay would play the third struggle for the Lindsay-Peterborough challenge cup with the home team here to-morrow. No definite word has as yet been received to this effect.

Prospect Park curlers will play the return match with Peterborough on Wednesday. They are coming down six rinks strong, at least, if not eight. Toronto will play here on Friday 12 rinks strong.

Owing to to-morrow being the last day of the month the points game which was to have been played by the members of the Granite's division has been postponed until Saturday night.

CHURCH CHIMES.

Rev. Mr. Symmonds will conduct services at Asphodel on Tuesday night.

The Sunday evening prayer meetings at the close of the service have been resumed in the George street church.

Mr. R. M. Gray sang a solo "The Holy City" in St. Andrews church last evening which was much appreciated.

Rev. Mr. Goldsmith will deliver a lecture in St. Paul's church on Tuesday, March 7th, entitled "Religion and Politics."

The members of the quarterly board of the George street Methodist church are requested to meet on Wednesday night next.

The choir of St. Andrews church rendered an anthem in fine style last night, Miss L. McClelland taking the solo part very effectively.

Venerable Archdeacon Allen, of Millbrook, will deliver the address in St. Luke's church at the regular Wednesday evening Lenten service.

At St. Andrews church yesterday morning the choir sang, "Praise ye the Lord" with much taste. Miss Denzil took the solo part in a rich voice.

Mr. Ballard, of Trinity College, Toronto, conducted the services at St. Mark's church, Otonabee, yesterday, and assisted at the services at Luke's also.

Rev. J. H. Locke in the George street church last night gave a powerful exhortation on "The Soul," his remarks making a deep impression upon his numerous hearers.

The Local Union of Christian Endeavourers will hold a special service at Auburn mission again on Thursday night when addresses will be delivered by active workers. The prospects for establishing a Y. P. S. C. E. society at Auburn are very favourable.

In the Charlotte street church yesterday Rev. Geo. Edwards, both morning and evening, preached from I. Corinthians, 10th chapter and 30th verse. He made some vigorous remarks against the tobacco and whiskey traffic, and strongly advised all to abstain from these sinful habits.

The regular Wednesday evening Lenten service in St. John's church will be addressed by Mr. T. R. Clougher, publisher of the Week, Toronto, and Mr. R. J. Brown, of the G.T.R. freight sheds, Toronto, both of whom are well known Brotherhood of St. Andrew men. The subject will be, "Co-operation and Work."

A number of Christian Endeavourers including Miss Quinn, Miss Barker, Mr. Ward, Keene, Mr. and Miss Kennedy, Mr. W. Matchett, and Mr. A. J. Hamilton, drove out to Springville on Sunday evening and held a Christian endeavour meeting in the Presbyterian church there. The edifice was filled, Mr. Ward presiding. The topic was, "Joy in God's service and joy in God's house." All the visitors took part and delivered earnest addresses. The meeting was of a very impressive character, and at the close a consecration service was held presided over by Miss Kennedy.

Completely Cured by HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

"When I was 4 or 5 years old I had a scrofulous sore on the middle finger of my left hand, which got so bad that the doctors cut the finger off, and later took off more than half my hand. Then the sore broke out on my arm, came out on my neck and face on both sides, nearly destroying the sight of one eye, also on my right arm. Doctors said it was the they ever saw. It was simply awful! Five years ago I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. Gradually I found that the sores were beginning to heal. I kept on till I had taken ten bottles, ten dollars! Just think of what a return I got for that investment! A thousand per cent? Yes, many thousand. For the past 4 years I have had no sores. I

A Sad Case of Affliction.

Agnes Ward, relict of the late David Eastwood, of Cavan, died yesterday morning at her residence, 688 George street, at the advanced age of 87 years. Deceased was highly respected and much beloved by a large circle of acquaintances. Her demise is all the more sad following so closely on that of her eldest daughter, who died only on Friday last. The family have the heartfelt sympathy of a host of friends in their unusually sad bereavement. The funeral will take place to St. John's church cemetery, Ida, to-morrow morning at 9.30 o'clock.

Our enlarged premises will afford ample room and facilities when completed, and the work will be pushed as speedily as possible. Remember the removal for four weeks only to Kidd's old stand. R. Another Proof of Peterborough's Excellent Market.

Mr. Jos. Rightmyer, his wife and three sons, have removed from Wooler, Murray township, to town. Mr. Rightmyer has leased for a term of years Mr. Wm. Bell's place in North Monaghan about two miles south of Peterborough, and will go into gardening and fruit raising on a very extensive scale. He and his sons have had over 20 years experience in these lines in Murray township, but were handicapped considerably by the want of good market accommodation. Mr. Rightmyer states that he lived 25 miles from Belleville which was the nearest market available and that this was too great a distance to travel in order to dispose of his produce. He had often heard of the enterprising town of Peterborough and her first class market, hence he decided to remove and take up his residence here. Peterborough people should certainly feel proud of their large market which attracts, every Saturday especially, farmers and gardeners, not only from every part of this county, but from within two or three miles of Lindsay, Port Hope, Cobourg, Grafton and other places.

Mr. Sanderson made a feeling reply, thanking the council for its appreciative kindness, and referred briefly to his past career in connection with the council, and the pleasant memories associated therewith. It gave him great pleasure on retiring to find that the affairs of the county were in as good a position as they ever were. Addresses were also made by Mr. Moloney, Mr. Belcher and others. The address was beautifully engrossed and framed and may be seen in the window of the Peterborough Bookstore in a couple of days.

FORESTERS' ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.

The Principles of Individualism and Socialism Ably Expounded by Rev. Richard Symonds.

The members of Court Peterborough, No. 29, Canadian Order of Foresters and Court Young Peterborough No. 5, attended annual divine worship at St. Luke's church Ashburnham, yesterday afternoon. The turnout of the brethren was a representative one, no less than 150 Foresters being in the procession. They met in their hall, Simcoe street, at three o'clock and marched two deep to the church. On arrival they occupied the central pews and together with the other worshippers the nave of the church was well filled. The order of service was printed and copies distributed among the members. Rev. H. Symonds, rector, preached a masterly anniversary sermon to the brethren from Galatians VI chapter and 2nd and 5th verses:

"Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfil the law of Christ."

"For every man shall bear his own burdens."

In these texts, the preacher said St. Paul appeared to contradict himself. A mere theorist might accuse the apostle of inconsistency, but the man who ponders the case saw two apparently contradictory statements. There are times when we feel we are alone and no other soul can enter into our feelings; there are other times when sympathy and support has lifted the burden from our shoulders and let in the rays of hope. In the life of man there is laid upon him the duty of self help and honestly and manfully fighting the battle of life. We all feel this a very noble and inspiring sight. The man is shaping his own shoulders to bear his own burdens. The principle of self help was the first principle of the text. Suppose the man lived alone, he would belie the promises of his early years and see only half of his self. Self help was

ONLY ONE SIDE OF LIFE.

We were surrounded by our fellows of like nature to ourselves, but perhaps of not equal opportunities. He instanced a man laying aside, by frugality and industry, a sufficiency for the future for himself and family. But an accident happens him and the amount which he has gathered together as a safeguard against poverty is utilized in paying the physician. Had we no duties toward such a one? Could we not give him a little help here, and had we no interest in his behalf? Self help was good, but it was also good to help each other. Mutual help and self help not only operate on individual men, but operate upon whole societies of men. Half a century ago the principle of self help ruled supreme. Political economy said help yourself and do not mind others. Competition is the law of the world and ever shall be. Christianity was said to be a thing between yourself and your God. Men who thought differently from this were called fools, but it was the fanatic who extolled self help and the law of competition who had in turn become the fools. The preacher quoted eminent authorities on the terrible condition of the poorer classes in England during the practices of this gospel of political economy, which had been substituted for the principles of Christianity. The new law then was to make money and make the most of opportunity. Labour was an article of trade, and such was the outcome of preaching the one side only. The seeds of brotherhood, of mutual trust, were now bearing fruit, and the other half of the truth prevailing. The old thought that individualism was the whole truth and social bonds mere figments, had been reversed, and society was incorrectly regarded as everything, by some extremists. There should be better relations existing between capital and labour—master and servant. The principle of mutual support is felt to be.

THE NECESSARY ACCOMPANIMENT

of self help, and enters into every side of its life. What had the questions of socialism and individualism to do with us today? These two leading principles appeared to be the leading principles of their order to-day and it was good to see the motives they were promoting and know how they were affecting others. Every order had some special truth which was good for others. How did they promote the principle of self help. Each member had by his industry and efforts to pay a certain amount into the order for its privileges and membership. He thus had to rely on self help. He was surrounded by men of industry and virtue and heard idleness and vice denounced. The speaker urged as the likeminded ran together, and a man was known by the company he kept, to select a good society. If we had sound principles in our natures and joined a good society we would have these principles strengthened and developed to stimulate us on in self help which was cultivated by the society. But it was also true that united self help was equally encouraged. It was in their power as a brotherhood, to sympathize with those in distress to alleviate suffering and care for the sick. The principles of love and co-operation lay at the bottom of the Forester's order. It was not a case of the sharpest man getting the most out of it. Closer bonds between man and man were the principles of the Order. Their object was to enable a member to do something for himself which he could not otherwise do and also to help others similarly circumstanced. The healthy man thanked God that he has health and strength and was able to assist a fellow man, while the unhealthy man who had kept up his dues, but had become ill, did not feel that he was a pauper. Here were business and charity, common sense, individual and social self help all bound together. These principles were evolved from the law of Christianity, and the speaker would urge all to remember that no laws could stand unless they represented the feelings of men. Law was the expression of public opinion. As long as we bowed down and owned supremacy to Jesus Christ as men who are disciples of the master and earnestly seek to learn, so must we cherish here on earth that he is the Father and all we are brethren. The preacher closed by impressing upon all mutual love and esteem, and that we should bear that love which we have for one another, towards all mankind.

After the service the procession reformed and marched back to the Foresters' hall, where unanimous votes of thanks were tendered Rev. Mr. Symonds for his practical and eloquent sermon, the churchwardens for the use of the church and to the choir for their splendid music. The meeting then adjourned.

CRISP CURLING CHRONIQUES.

What is Going on at the Rink Where Curlers Most do Congregate.

At the rink on Saturday night, a make-up match occurred between Skips D. Belleghem and Geo. Brown. The furniture king had a complete walk over, defeating his opponent's quartette by a score of, 8 shots to three.

Another match was played between quartettes skipped by Messrs. E. B. Edwards and Dr. Boucher. The latter's rink was successful by a score of 15 to 10 points.

A report was in circulation to-day that Lindsay would play the third struggle for the Lindsay-Peterborough challenge cup with the home team here to-morrow. No definite word has as yet been received to this effect.

Prospect Park curlers will play the return match with Peterborough on Wednesday. They are coming down six rinks strong, at least, if not eight. Toronto will play here on Friday 12 rinks strong.

Owing to to-morrow being the last day of the month the points game which was to have been played by the members of the Granite's division has been postponed until Saturday night.

Brown, of the G.T.R. freight sheds, Toronto, both of whom are well known Brotherhood of St. Andrew men. The subject will be, "Co-operation and Work."

A number of Christian Endeavourers including Miss Quinn, Miss Barker, Mr. Ward, Keene, Mr. and Miss Kennedy, Mr. W. Matchett, and Mr. A. J. Hamilton, drove out to Springville on Sunday evening and held a Christian endeavour meeting in the Presbyterian church there. The edifice was filled, Mr. Ward presiding. The topic was, "Joy in God's service and joy in God's house." All the visitors took part and delivered earnest addresses. The meeting was of a very impressive character, and at the close a consecration service was held presided over by Miss Kennedy.

Simply Awful

Worst Case of Scrofula the Doctors Ever Saw

Completely Cured by HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

"When I was 4 or 5 years old I had a scrofulous sore on the middle finger of my left hand, which got so bad that the doctors cut the finger off, and later took off more than half my hand. Then the sore broke out on my arm, came out on my neck and face on both sides, nearly destroying the sight of one eye, also on my right arm. Doctors said it was the Worst Case of Scrofula

they ever saw. It was simply awful! Five years ago I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. Gradually I found that the sores were beginning to heal. I kept on till I had taken ten bottles, ten dollars! Just think of what a return I got for that investment! A thousand per cent? Yes, many thousand. For the past 4 years I have had no sores. I Work all the Time.

Before, I could do no work. I know not what to say strong enough to express gratitude to Hood's Sarsaparilla for my perfect cure." GEORGE W. TURNER, Farmer, Galloway, Saratoga county, N. Y.

BERNHARDTS "FROU FROU."

Produced in a Highly Satisfactory Manner at the Opera House Saturday Night.

The audience which greeted the Italian star actress, Madeline Merli in her special production of Bernhardt's emotional drama, "Frou Frou" at the opera house on Saturday night, was lamentably small. It was, however cultured and intellectual, and duly appreciated the splendid merit of the play which was superbly enacted. The leading character was of course, Miss Merli; who is a polished and versatile actress and captivated her audience. In the emotional scenes of the play, which deals largely with marital life, the operas and the social atmosphere of the gay capital of France, she excels and moves the house deeply, Mr. Hal Clarendon in the role of Henri de Sartoys, portrays the husband who loves madly, but whose affections are not reciprocated by his wife who thinks lightly of the hallowed influences of her home, her husband and child, and was realistic, Miss Lola Stuart as "Louise" and sister of Sartoy's wife, had a difficult part to perform, but she did it well. Her sacrifices for her sister and her noble resolves made for her happiness were touching. Mr. H. J. Holmes as "Baron de Bamble" and Mr. E. H. O'Connor as "Pitou" and Zanneto (a sunny Italian), were capital and furnished the humorous element of the play which is very serious and effective. Their parts afforded an appreciable relief from the high nervous tenson which all along stirred the audience. Miss Beatrice Constance as "Baronne de Cambri," (a woman of the future), passionately fond of excitement, dress and society, was splendid. The support was good and high class, and on the whole deserved a much better patronage than was accorded it. Prof. Butcher's orchestra supplied excellent music.

A VOICE FROM THE NORTHWEST.

Mr. D. D. Galletly, writing from Canmore, N. W. T., says of the severe weather there (as well as elsewhere):

CANMORE, Feb. 14th, 1893.

DEAR SIR,—We have had a very severe winter here, quite unprecedented, the oldest settler having never seen anything approaching to it. Fifty degrees below zero and a strong easterly wind blowing. Got my nose and ears slightly frost-bitten going to church on Sunday before last. Weather has moderated somewhat within a day or two. Cattle, that have no buildings to shelter themselves in, must have suffered terribly. Wild animals are hovering near settlements. Can scarcely sleep at night for the shrill, ventriloquist-like yelp of the coyotes. Saw two large wolves yesterday from the office window running over the plain, skirting the foothills.

ADVANCED FROM THE DIACONATE TO THE PRIESTHOOD.

Rev. W. M. Loucks and Rev. W. H. Manning Admitted to Holy Orders—The Impressive Ceremony at St. John's—A Large Congregation—Sermon Special to the Occasion.

An exceedingly large congregation assembled in St. John's church yesterday morning to assist in the impressive ordination service, by which Rev. W. M. Loucks, assistant curate of St. John's, and Rev. W. H. Manning, of St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, were advanced from the order of the diaconate to the order of the priesthood. The ordination service was preceded by the usual morning service conducted by Rev. J. C. Davidson, assisted by Rev. A. J. Broughall, rector of St. Stephen's, Toronto, and the bishop's examining chaplain.

Rev. Rural Dean Loucks, of Picton, father of one of the candidates, Rev. W. M. Loucks, preached the sermon from the text, the latter portion of the fifth verse of St. Paul's second epistle to Timothy, fourth chapter—"Do the work of an evangelist, make full proof of thy ministry." His subject dealt with the position, dignity, responsibility and duties of the Christian ministry; of hindrances in the work, and the dangers to which ministers were exposed. The ministery held a position of, at once, great dignity, as the ambassador of the King of Kings, and of great humility, as the representative of Him who had not were to lay His head. St. Paul had given special prominence to the ministerial character of his work—continually referring to the ministry which he had received of the Lord Jesus. All priests of the church must regard their work as a ministry—in every aspect, public and private—not in their own strength, but with God's sufficiency. The nobility of the ministry was shown by its being presided over by God himself and by its great function—preaching Christ. It was a vocation whose chief aim was the glory of God and the temporal and eternal welfare of God's creatures. The Christian ministry, though glorious in its relations and character, had its difficulties and discouragements. The minister and his work might be compared to the pitchers of Gideon whose light was not visible till they were broken. So the glorious results of the Christian minister's work were often not manifest till the earthen vessel had been shattered by the hand of death. The hindrances to the work of the ministry specified by St. Paul—the opposition of principalities and powers, etc—were a type of the hindrances and opposition the ministers of every age experienced. Sin in all its formidable and varied aspects continued to be a hindrance. There were dangers to which the ministry was exposed—the danger of the present age to regard the ministry, as a profession, from which it differed on one very material point, for zeal, energy and ability were of no avail without the co-operation and blessing of God. If ministers possessed all possible human advantages they would be powerless unless equipped with the power of Christ. The danger of the secularization of the office of the minister, through yielding to the generally held opinion that a minister was to be regarded as public property, was to be avoided. While the minister should assist in the promotion of praiseworthy objects of a more secular nature, he should not fail to give the first attention to the duties of his office—both pastoral and priestly. The reverend gentleman concluded a very appropriate and eloquent discourse by a brief address to the candidates for ordination. They were to especially remember that only by the help of the spirit of Christ could they hope that their ministry would be successful; and the great responsibility they assumed through the ceremony which made them duly ordained ministers of Christ.

At the conclusion of the sermon began. Rev. J. A. Broughall presented the persons to be advanced from the diaconate to the priesthood—Rev. W. M. Loucks and Rev. W. H. Manning of St. James Cathedral, Toronto, to the bishop, sitting at the altar, with the words,—"Reverend father in God, I present unto you these persons, present, to be admitted to the order of priesthood." After the prescribed questions as to the fitness of the persons to be ordained, the bishop, commended them to the prayers of the congregation and then sang the Litany.

THE ORDINATION SERVICE

Then followed the Communion service with the special collect, Epistle, (Ephesians, iv., 7,) and Gospel, (St. Matthew, ix. 36.)

Then followed the solemn prescribed address by the bishop to the candidates, and the latter in answer to the bishop took the prescribed vows including their expression of confidence in their call to the ministry; their belief in the sufficiency of the Holy Scriptures for all doctrine necessary for salvation, their determination to teach nothing "but that which may be concluded and proved by Scripture"; to "give their faithful diligence always so to minister the doctrines and sacraments and the discipline of Christ as the Lord hath commanded and as the Church hath received the same"; "to be ready wth all faithful diligence to banish all erroneous and strange doctrines"; "to be diligent in prayers and in the reading of the Holy Scriptures"; "to be diligent to frame and fashion themselves and their families according to the doctrines of the church"; "to maintain and set forward, as much as in them lieth, quietness, peace and love amongst all Christian people"; "to obey their ordinary and church minister."

The Bishop's prayer that the candidates might have strength and power to perform the vows then taken, was followed by the congregation all bowing for a few minutes in silent prayer "for all these thing." The "Veni Creator Spiritus" was then said antiphonally by the bishop and the congregation. When the bishop concluded the prayer prescribed, the candidates kneeling, he placed his hand upon the head of each and said: "Receive the Holy Ghost for the office and work of a Priest in the Church of God, now committed unto thee by the imposition of our hands, etc." Then the Bishop delivered to the hand of each candidate the Bible, saying, "Take thou authority to preach the Word of God, and to minister the Holy Sacraments in the congregation where thou shalt be lawfully appointed thereunto." The newly ordained priests remained kneeling during the remainder of the service of the communion, which they took together.

CHURCH UNITY.

At St. John's church last night Rev. J. A. Broughall, took the evening service, and His Lordship the Bishop of Toronto preached the sermon, which was an eloquent appeal in favour of church unity. His text was the latter part of the 12th verse of the 4th chapter of St. Paul's Epistle to the Ephesians, "For the edifying of the body of Christ." The preacher said that the church was presented under the similitude of a building, and the several material and figurative terms, converged unto the one great ideal, the great body of Christ. The picture of the one church of Christ as drawn by the great apostle was one worthy of the most profound contemplation. The preacher pointed out that there were two features in the earthly church which attracted attention,—these were lack of unity and failure in growth. There was amongst the various bodies of Christians a desire for closer unity of the separated bodies of the church, and this earnest desire was one hopeful sign of its accomplishment, which he hoped the great Church of England would have a large share in bringing about. From the fact of it possessing a strongly distinct church sentiment which the other denominations lacked, it was fitted to become a rallying centre of Christian union. This fact, eloquently elaborated, was read as a reason why the members of the Church of England should take pride in her and take an active part in promoting her growth, the lack of which was an element of defect if not of reproach, in the Church. One cause of this lack of growth was the failure of the Church to get a hold on the working classes through a failure to understand their wants and the system of rented pews in churches, and the class distinctions engendered thereby was cited as a cause of the failure of the Church in this regard. The Bishop was glad to say that in the eighty-nine churches built during his episcopate, nearly all had free sittings. The sermon closed with an eloquent appeal to the congregation to remove the reproach of indifference to the material welfare of the workingmen, who should properly be the bone and sinew of the church.

During the offertory, Master Maitland Doswell sang with excellent effect, "Abide with Me." by Torrington.

AN OPEN LETTER

For the Benefit of Every Canadian Sufferer.

DEAR FRIEND,—

Owing to our firmly established position in Canada, and having the confidence of our people because of the great and glorious work that we have already accomplished through our wonderful remedy, Paine's Celery Compound, we believe that duty strongly calls upon us to offer you counsel, advice and comfort; ng assurance.

In your present condition, when you have failed with other medicines and the treatment of physicians, you cannot hope to remain long on earth among the living. You feel that hope has deserted you, and that the sands of time are fast sinking. You are in a truly terrible position; your condition is extremely perilous.

Upbraiding and reproving you for past follies and errors in medical treatment we will not attempt; the fault lies with those who failed to cure you, but who quietly and calmly accepted your money.

Our first object, dear friend, will be to give you the comforting assurance that while the vital spark of life-fire burns, there is hope. Having given you this grand assurance, let us counsel you to act with decision and speed. You have another grand and mighty chance for life and health. To secure, this, you must take hold of that agent that gives you new life. This precious agent, known as Paine's Celery Compound, has saved thousands who were brought as low as you are just now. Paine's Celery Compound has "plucked brands from the burning," after the best physicians had given up all hope.

Will you make a trial of this priceless medicine? Can you trust our advice and exhortation sufficiently to make a beginning? We desire to benefit you—to save you; may Heaven give you confidence and faith enough to make one trial. That you may be saved, renewed and made whole, is the earnest prayer of your friends,

BAD, BOLD BURGLARIES.

A Couple of Crimes Committed in Peterborough Between Saturday and Monday.

A most daring burglary was committed between eight and nine o'clock on Sunday night, when the residence of Mr. Alfred Dundas on Aylmer street near the C. P. R. station was entered by some miscreant and the sum of $77 in bills stolen. Mr. Dundas was absent at the time but it is supposed the entrance was effected through the front door which remained unlocked. The women of the house were home, but did did not hear anyone enter or go upstairs. The money taken belonged to a boarder of the house and was extracted from a bureau drawer in an upstairs bedroom. There is no clue to the perpetrator of the deed, but the general opinion prevails that it must be someone well acquainted with the lay of the surroundings.

A HORSE TAKEN FROM ITS STABLE.

During Saturday night the stable of Mr. Wm. Abbott, a carter, who resides in Ashburnham, was opened by some evil-disposed individual and a bay horse taken out. When Mr. Abbott went to the stable on Sunday morning he found the animal and its blanket missing. The stable doors stood ajar and there was a light burning. Mr. Abbott at once started in pursuit and took the road through Douro to Warsaw. He found the missing animal running loose on the road. The animal had evidently been ridden about ten or twelve miles and then let loose.

Mr. Chas. Haystead, manager of the Black Flag, who was registered at the Grand Central Hotel, missed a five dollar bill which he alleged had been stolen from his room some time during Sunday and suspected his agent, Ned Barton, of taking the cash. This morning Barton made an attempt to leave on the 4.45 C.P.R. train without Mr. Haystead's knowledge, but the express being late he was intercepted by the police and Mr. Haystead, and it is understood "divied up." He went west and is said to have been discharged by Mr. Haystead.

The Great Scientific Food.

There is quiet as much science in the composition of a perfect food for the baby, as there is involved in the discovery of a planet in the heavens, and the marking of its proper course.

Thousands of young lives are daily dependent on prepared foods, for subsistence and life. It therefore requires a perfect scientific knowledge of food elements, as well as a thorough knowledge of the complexities of the digestive system, in order to give to mothers a food that can take the place of mother's milk, when this is lacking in quality and quantity.

Medical evidence clearly proves that up to the present time, science has given to the world but one perfect food, known as Lactated Food. This wondorous composition is pure, wholesome and nutritious, and is peculiarly adapted for the formation of flesh boue and muscle. Experienced mothers declare that Lactated Food has been of inestimable value in the home; and letters are sent to the manufactures daily by loving mothers asserting that this great food is a life-saver. No other artificial food can show such a record of successes amongst infants and young children.

Mother, we advise you to give it a trial at once, if your babe is not doing well with other foods. If you wish to test Lactated Food, send in your Post Office address to the Wells & Richardson Co., Montreal, and a full sized can will be sent free of charge.

Interesting, If True.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—The Legislative Committee investigating the sweat shops of Chicago secured Saturday what they regard as the most important testimony yet given. It was to the effect that clothing made in the New York State Prison at Sing Sing was handled by nearly every wholesale clothing firm in Chicago. These goods are the very cheapest quality, the witnesses said, and it is competition with them that has reduced wages in Chicago sweat shops to the present starvation level. This discovery will lead to the introduction of a resolution in the Legislature calling on Congress to restrict the sale of convict-made clothing to the state in which it is manufactured.

If your children are troubled with worms, give them Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator; safe sure and effectual. Try it, and mark the improvement in your child.

HE LOVED good bread, pie, and pastry, but his stomach was delicate. SHE LOVED to cook, but was tired and sick of the taste and smell of lard. She bought Cottolene, (the new shortening) and THEY LOVED more than ever, because she made better food, and he could eat it without any unpleasant after effect. Now THEY ARE HAPPY in having found the BEST, and most healthful shortening ever made—COTTOLENE.

AT HOME.

You Will be Well Clad in Either of These Dresses.

I have sketched two beautiful house dresses for the readers of to-day's paper. The lady who is, presumably, admiring her reflection, has reason to be complacent in such a gown. It is a dress of heliotrope broche silk, the bodice trimmed with passementerie of the same tone, with full sleeves and a plastron and a flounce of velvet. The skirt is cut according to the improved umbrella pattern. It is finished with a flounce at the bottom, cut on the cross and about six inches wide. This flounce is closely drawn about one inch from the top, so as to form a little heading. The bodice is plain, and is cut from the ordinary bodice pattern. The lining having been fitted, it is covered with velvet similar to that of the flounce, and the seams sewn, pressed, and boned, with the exception of those of the shoulder and the under arm. The basque forms a point, both at front and back, about two inches deep, but it is only one inch deep on the hips. When the bodice is ready the back is covered diagonally with bands of passementerie, carefully pinned in position. Then it must be sewn with strong silk. The fronts fasten with hooks and eyes. At the top, a small silk plastron is drawn. The passementerie should slightly pass the right side of the fastening, especially at the waist, so as to hide the hooks and eyes. The sleeve is of the same material as the skirt, and has a tight fitting lining surmounted at the top by a large puff. The collar is high and covered with passementerie.

The other dress is of woollen material, with large spots of copper and otter brown chenille. It has a full front and a belt of otter bengaline. A band of fur edges the skirt. Its embroidered jacket is very stylish and fashionable. It can be embroidered either to match the rest of the costume, or can be of entirely different material; but in the latter case, the corselet belt ought to be of the same shade as the jacket. The band around the edge of the skirt is of fur, but either a band of velvet or embroidery to match the jacket can be substituted.

FLORETTE.

Alligator's Teeth.

There is a large trade in alligators' teeth in the south, for they are treasured as mementoes by tourists. In Jacksonville one may have them mounted with aluminum, gold or silver as vinaigrettes, and they are sometimes prettily marked and tinted. A good many bears' teeth are sold for those of alligators, but the difference between them is decided, those of the bear curving in a quarter circle, while those of the alligator are rounder and nearly straight. Apropos of both animals, there is nothing that gator likes better than fresh pork and he will toddle three miles from water for a Florida razorback. In cold weather he buries himself in mud and becomes dormant until it grows warm. Hunters still make a living by killing him for his hide and teeth. The killing of alligators from the decks of river steamers in Florida has been stopped by law.

Is This Sarcasm?

A police judge of San Francisco has stipulated that in his court a woman must always be spoken of as a lady. A point in etiquette, backed by the dignity of the bench, can only be ignored by those willing to run the risk of being in contempt. The saleslady has already won her place, with the kitchenlady a good second and the scrublady a likely candidate. To demand that a policeman shall say, "Yer honor, I arrested this lady in Tar Flat howling drunk," and the court responds, "The lady is fined $6," does seem at first to be stretching politeness, but doubtless the public can be educated up to it.

Blow, blow, blow! That disagreeable catarrh can be cured by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, the constitutional remedy.

Cures Others

Will cure You, is a true statement of the action of AYER'S Sarsaparilla, when taken for diseases originating in impure blood; but, while this assertion is true of AYER'S Sarsaparilla, as thousands can attest, it cannot be truthfully applied to other preparations, which unprincipled dealers will recommend, and try to impose upon you, as "just as good as Ayer's." Take Ayer's Sarsaparilla and Ayer's only, if you need a blood-purifier and would be benefited permanently. This medicine, for nearly fifty years, has enjoyed a reputation, and made a record for cures, that has never been equalled by other preparations. AYER'S Sarsaparilla eradicates the taint of hereditary scrofula and other blood diseases from the system, and it has, deservedly, the confidence of the people.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

"I cannot forbear to express my joy at the relief I have obtained from the use of AYER'S Sarsaparilla. I was afflicted with kidney troubles for about six months, suffering greatly with pains in the small of my back. In addition to this, my body was covered with pimply eruptions. The remedies prescribed failed to help me. I then began to take AYER'S Sarsaparilla, and, in a short time, the pains ceased and the pimples disappeared. I advise every young man or woman, in case of sickness resulting from impure blood, no matter how long standing the case may be, to take AYER'S Sarsaparilla."—H. L. GRAND CENTRAL BARBER SHOP!

I TAKE PLEASURE IN STATING TO MY old customers and friends that I have commenced business again in the Grand Central Barber Shop, lately occupied by Mr. Potvin. FEEDING DAIRY COWS.

Intelligent and Economical Methods Pay Owners the Best.

I believe that the true way to feed dairy cows for profit—and profit is what we are all after—is to feed the proper food for the production of milk to the full capacity of the animal's power to digest, assimilate and manufacture these foods into milk. This way of feeding or "forcing," as some term it, is objected to on the ground that this cow machine will soon be worn out. Suppose for a moment that position is correct. Is there a sensible man who would think of running any other machine that takes a certain number of hands to attend, and a certain amount of power to get up speed enough to do any work at all, who would run his machine at one-fourth or one-half its capacity, for the sake of making his machine last a little longer?

To make the greatest profit in dairying the cow should be fed and managed in such a way as to make her consume as much as possible of good milk-producing foods. To do this she should have the greatest possible variety of foods. Her appetite—her like and dislikes—should be catered to as much as can be consistently. In summer her pasture should contain a great variety of grasses. And when my cows are put in the stable to milk twice a day they have some good clover hay, and they never fail to eat some, no matter how good the grass in the pasture is. They also are fed in summer, except some of them that are dry a short time at that season, all the grain—corn and oat meal or bran—they will eat, which, of course, is not nearly as much as they eat in winter. In winter they have as great a variety of fodder as possible each day—clover and meadow hay, corn fodder and straw, with a grain ration, in two feeds, of from 12 to 13 pounds. I observe the greatest regularity possible in feeding, having the same kind of food given at exactly the same time each day, so that they are never worried or disappointed by having one kind of food thrust before them when they are expecting another kind.

To produce milk as economically as possible, I try to provide the necessary elements in that food which will cost the least, having due regard all the while for the likes and dislikes of the cow herself, for I believe her pleasure should be consulted as much as the housewife consults the pleasure of her family when providing food for them. If oats are cheaper than corn meal and bran, I feed oats mainly for a grain ration; but if two tons of oats will buy three tons of bran, then I make the exchange. Chemical analysis seems to indicate that good clean wheat bran is fully as good as oats for milk production, but my observation seems to prove that oats are, at least, a little better. Corn is usually a very cheap grain food, but it is too carbonaceous and should not be used for more than about one-third of the grain ration. Corn ensilage made from well cared corn is the cheapest food I can provide for my cows; but it is not of itself a perfect ration, and needs to be balanced up with bran or oats and clover hay. —By C. P. Goodrich, in London Farmer's Advocate.

A Stone Boat.

Our illustration represents a stone boat, useful on every farm, and especially so about a dairy, for removing the manure from the barn. If an unusually strong one is desired, it is made as shown in the illustration. Two 4x4 inch white oak timbers 8 feet long, are rounded up at one end like sled runners. Fasten together by means of 2-inch boards, 3 1-2 or 4 feet long. These can be bolted or firmly spiked to the runners. A clevis, similar to those used on plows, is fitted to the end of each runner. To these is attached a chain or strong rope, by which the double-tree of a team is connected with the boat.

A STONE BOAT.

For ordinary purposes runners three or even two inches wide will answer very well. This stone boat is handy in Spring during cleaning up time, when logs, stumps, troughs, iron kettles and other heavy articles are to be removed. One, two or more horses can be used as is necessary.—Orange Judd Farmer.

More Valuable Than Diamonds.

Cod liver oil from the cod fish when combined with hypophosphites of lime and soda, as in "Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil," will build up the cellular tissues and create new blood. This is just what consumptive patients need. It has cured thousands of people who would otherwise have been at this time occupying narrow spaces in the graveyards of our country. Miller's Emulsion is worth a trial. In big bottles, 50c. and $1, at all drug stores.

For Sprains, and Bruises.

No other remedy cures sprains, bruises, cuts, wounds, chilblains, sore throat, rheumatism, etc., so promptly as Hagyard's Yellow Oil. It is an old standard remedy that has given perfect satisfaction for 30 years.

Couldn't Keep on His Feet.

PETERBOROUGH, Jan. 31st, 1892.

To the Peterborough Medicine Company:

GENTLEMEN,—If there is any medicine in the world that I pin my faith to it is Memburn's Kidney and Liver Cure. In my business I have to stand on my feet a good deal. About a year ago my back began to give out, weakening pains set in across my kidneys, I felt tired all the time and could hardly stand up to my work. I began to lose strength and at last had to give up work altogether. A customer advised me to try your cure which I did. Before half the bottle was used, I felt the pains and weakness leaving me and to-day I enjoy good health and can bear fatigue and work all right. One bottle was all I used.

ALF. HASKILL, barber.

Ask your neighbors if they use Dodds Kidney Pills? They strengthen the nerves, tone the system, and the most stubborn cases of kidney disease yield to their influence. They are especially appreciated by the old. Ask your neighbors about them.

From the Far North.

In northern climates people are very subject to colds, but the natural remedy is also produced in the same climate. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup cures coughs, colds, hoarseness, asthma, bronchits and all throat and lung troubles. Price 25c. and 50c.

Dyspepsia in its worst forms will yield to the use of Carter's Little Nerve Pills, added by the use of Carter's Little Liver Pills. They not only relieve present distress but strengthen the stomach and digestive apparatus.

ANYTHING GOES THERE

Mahommedan Webb Has Commenced to Convert the U. S. to Islamism.

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—Alexander Russell Webb is here. He is an American Mahommedan whom the wealthy Mussulmen of India and the East have sent to introduce the faith of Islam among the "civilized" Christians of the West.

Eight weeks ago thousands of rich and influential Moslems gathered in Bombay to give the American convert a great send off and wish him success in his mission.

Mahommed Webb's mission was undertaken in earnest and is backed by unlimited wealth and zeal.

The Mahommedans hope and expect to establish their religion in the United States. This is the first attempt, and Mahommed Webb, and those who are behind him in the movement, are confident of its ultimate success.

AN APPEAL IN VAIN.

The Panama Recolters Must be Tried At the Assizes.

PARIS, Feb. 25.—The Court of Cassation to-day announced its decision, rejecting the appeal heard yesterday of Charles de Lesseps, Marius Fontane and M. Sans-Leroy from the indictment charging the two former with corrupting members of the Chamber of Deputies and the latter with receiving a bribe while a member of the chamber.

The court holds that a deputy is a public official within the meaning of the law, making it a crime to corrupt public officials.

The trial of Charles De Lesseps and his fellow defendants will therefore proceed in the Assize Court.

Jules Ferry Elected.

PARIS, Feb. 25.—Jules Ferry was Friday elected President of the Senate by a majority of 143 votes.

A New Situation.

PARIS, Feb. 25.—Jules Ferry, in speaking of his election to the presidency of the senate last night, said: "The Senate is tired of the free-and-easy kind of politics which has prevailed for so many years past, and it now desires to give M. Carnot and M. Ribot a warning in selecting a man who, as a minister, has shown how it is possible to govern with firmness." Everybody is of the opinion that the election of Ferry has created a new situation.

France's Aggrandizement.

PARIS, Feb. 25.—A group of deputies resolved Friday in a meeting, at which M. Eugene Etinne, member for Oran, Algeria, presided, to urge that the Government take energetic measures to annex the valley of the Me Kong river in southeastern Asia.

Taxing Time Bargains.

PARIS, Feb. 25.—The Chamber of Deputies Friday, by a vote of 436 to 41, passed the bill providing that a tax shall be levied on time bargains on the bourse. The Chamber then rejected a proposal to impose a tax on time bargains in produce and merchandise.

Another Liberal Gain.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—A Parliamentary election was held in Gateshead Friday to fill the vacancy caused by the succession o Walter Henry James to the peerage. William Allan (Lib.) received 6434 votes, P. Ralli (Lib.-Unionist) 5566 votes.

Another Liberal Gain.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—The Liberals have recaptured Cirencester, Mr. Harry L. W. Lawson the Liberal candidate, being elected by a vote of 4687 to 4445 for Mr. Colchester Master, Conservative. The victory is regarded with great satisfaction by the Liberals, as showing that the agriculturalists of England are true to Mr. Gladstone and his policy.

Radicals Want Salaries.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—The Radical members of the House, at a meeting held Friday, decided to advocate the payment of salaries to all members of the House.

An Anti-Parnellite Elected.

DUBLIN, Feb. 25.—Mr. Hogan, the anti-Parnellite candidate, was elected yesterday without opposition, to the seat in Parliament for Middle Tipperary, made vacant by the death of John F. McCarthy, anti-Parnellite.

The Cotton Strike.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—A quarter of a million cotton spindles were started at Oldham Friday at a reduction of 2 1-2 per cent. in wages, or just one-half the amount of which the masters federation has insisted.

E. Jardine, North Sidney, C. B., says:—"I have used your Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with decided success, and would recommend them to any one suffering as I did from weakness and impoverished blood. Your pills have afforded wonderful relief and I believe them to be unequalled." All dealers or by mail, post paid, at 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50. Dr. Williams' Med. Co. Brockville, Ont.

A Cure for Dyspepsia.

Dyspepsia is a prolific cause of such diseases as bad blood, constipation, headache and liver complaint. Burdock Blood Bitters is guaranteed to cure or relieve dyspepsia if used according to directions. Thousands have tested it with best results.

Rough Skin.

Caused by cold weather, is made perfectly smooth by one application of Dyer's Jelly of Cucumber and Roses. Try it. Druggists keep it. W. A. Dyer & Co., Montreal.

Ladies appreciate Anti-Dandruff from the fact that it not only thoroughly removes Dandruff with three applications, but stops falling of the hair, restores fading hair to its orignal color, and makes it soft and pliable without leaving any indication of a dressing being used. Clear as crystal, clean to use, it is a valuable toilet preparation.

Bad Blood Cured.

GENTLEMEN,—I have used your Burdock Blood Bitters for bad blood and find it, without exception, the best purifying tonic in use. A short time ago two very large and painful boils came on the back of my neck, B.B.B. completely drove them away. SAMUEL BLAIN, Toronto Junction.

A Great Surprise.

Is in store for all who use Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs, the great guaranteed remedy. Would you believe that it is sold on its merits and that any druggist is authorized by the proprietor of this wonderful remedy to give you a sample bottle free? It never fails to cure acute or chronic coughs. All druggists sell Kemp's Balsam. Large Bottles 50c. and $1.

Ministers, Lawyers, Teachers, and others whose occupation gives but little exercise, should use Carter's Little Liver Pills for torpid liver and billousness. One a dose. Try them.

A Valuable Hint.

When you are attacked by cough or cold do not delay but commence at once to use Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. This old standard remedy removes all irritation, loosens the phlegm, and heals the mucous surfaces, curing coughs and colds of all kinds.

JENNIE WONCH'S CRIME.

COLLINGWOOD HAS A SENSATION OF A HORRIBLE KIND.

Charged With Killing Her Mother and Child With an Axe Handle Because She Wanted to Marry "Jim"—Her Brother Tells the Story of the Crime.

COLLINGWOOD, Ont., Feb. 27.—Yesterday Chief of Police Lewis brought to town the dead bodies of an aged woman and a child, both supposed to have been murdered by Jennie Wonch, daughter of the former and mother of the latter.

The alleged crime was committed on Thursday night at a place near Craigleith. Both the victims were beaten to death, and then an attempt was made by the accused to burn their bodies and so destroy all traces of the crime.

John Wonch, brother of the accused, tells this story of the crime: "I went on Thursday night and saw my sister strike my mother on the head with the ax handle. I saw my sister kill the baby with the ax handle. She had no reason for it. She said there was a young fellow named Jim said he would marry her if she got rid of her mother and the baby.

"Jim's father used to run a mill. Jennie made me help to bury mother and the baby, and said she would do me if I said anything. I was afraid. I got a pig's head when I was in town. Jennie got papers and tried to burn the bodies.

"Mother's toes and feet are all peeled, like frozen. We buried her in the snow near the track in a hole. We put the baby under the floor."

John became a little mixed and said afterwards his mother was dead when he got home, and that it was Friday the murder occurred; but he corrected himself on this point and volunteered the information that he had seen the reporter in Foreman's store on Thursday.

He added that his sister took the train for Meaford on Friday morning and said she would be back on Saturday. He did not know where she was, nor could he tell the names of parties whom she would be likely to go to.

Dr. A. R. Stephen, coroner, will hold an inquest here to-morrow in the town hall at 2 o'clock. There is a great deal of popular feeling over the crime, and crowds of people viewed the bodies of the dead today.

THE PANAMA SCANDAL.

Report of the Government Agent Who Investigated the Accounts.

PARIS, Feb. 27.—M. Flory, the Government accountant appointed to examine the accounts of the Panama Canal Company, reports that the total amount received by contractors for real and alleged work on and supplies for the canal was 462,620,064 francs. Of this amount 102,358,444 francs represent labor alleged to have been paid for according to the roll of wages and sums expended on various undertakings. In the absence of vouchers it is impossible to ascertain whether the labor and other operations charged for were actually executed. The American Dredging Company's charges for its operations, plant, etc., amount to 69,305,396 francs. No vouchers or documents are obtainable whereby the profits of the contractors can be estimated. The account of the American Dredging Company included an unexplained indemnity item which nothing appeared to justify and which amounted to 10,800,000 francs. Another American firm's account for operations and plant amounted to 16,280,684 francs. The books of this firm, M. Flory says, have been so irregularly kept that the admitted balance of profits, amounting in the total to 7,978,511 francs, must be accepted with reserve.

The Company of French Engineers declares its expenditures on operations and plant to have been 35,398,810 francs. This account ostensibly shows a loss of 6,142,955 francs. M. Flory points out that this includes allotments and commissions to the Societe Depots et Comptes Courant of which Charles de Lesseps and Henri Cottu were directors. Another contractor received 76,211,002 francs on which the admitted profit was 20,723,285 francs, Charles de Lesseps and Henri Cottu again sharing in the profits as directors of the Societe Depots. Another firm obtained 50,858,944 francs, of which 11,437,381 francs was admitted to be purely profit divided between the firm and the principal financial agent of the Panama Canal Company. Still another contractor received 37,027,836 francs, the clear profit on which was 12,513,382 francs. M. Eiffel's charges for operations and plants amounted to 73,653,226 francs, on which the net profit was 38,073,455 francs.

M. Flory calculates the total traceable profits of the contractors at 77,757,504 francs. The names of all the firms spoken of in the report are to be published with the report of the Committee on Inquiry of the Chamber of Deputies.

M. Pelletan charges the Government with the suppression of the figures in M. Flory's report, which has been obtained for publication without the sanction of the authorites.

M. Andrieux, who has figured prominently in the Panama revelations, says that he will divulge on the evening of the next election the names of several high personages involved in the Panama Canal Company scandals, and will give conclusive proof of their guilt. It will be, he declares, a thunder clap to the politicians of Paris.

Filibusters Getting on Famously.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 27.—A firm in this city has received an order from the provisional government of the Hawaiian Islands for military clothing in all respects like that of the fatigue uniforms of the United States army, to be shipped by steamer from San Francisco March 14 for the use of the National Guard. The order is signed by John H. Soper, colonel commanding N.G.H. The army consists of 496 men. A dark blue silk battalion flag is also ordered, similar in size to the United States regulation flag, but with the coat of arms of Hawaii on a blue shield in the centre, surmounted by one star. In the centre of this shield is another shield with three white and four red vertical stripes, bearing a resemblance to the United States shield. Over this shield is "Hawaii," and below is the date of the revolution, "Jan. 17, 1893." Some of the army officers have said they were pleased to see an order for uniforms like those of Uncle Sam.

Rotter Mill Burned.

ATTON, Ont., Feb. 27.—A fire here last night destroyed the flour mill and one storehouse of N. Winger & Bros. The fire started about 8.20 in the evening, in the storehouse in which a chopper was run, and although strenuous efforts were made by the villagers to save the mill, which stood about 40 feet distant, owing to absence of fire protection, they were unable to do so.

The mill, which had a capacity of about 200 barrels per day, was one of the best equipped roller mills north of Guelph, and was full of wheat and flour. The loss is heavy, being in the neighborhood of $40,000, on which there is an insurance of $18,000.

Fatal Runaway Accident.

BESSEMER, Ala., Feb. 27.—Yesterday afternoon John Collins was out riding with Miss Gambler, a young lady. The horse, which was a spirited animal, became frightened at a train and ran away. Both were thrown out and the buggy was smashed. Miss Gambler's neck was broken and she died instantly. Collins was not badly hurt.

Brigands' Cruel Work.

Bicycle Racing in France.

PARIS, Feb. 27.—The 1000 kilometre bicycle race in Machinery Hall on the Exhibition Grounds ended Saturday. Terront covered the distance in 42 hours and defeated Corre, who came in second, by 10 kilometres.

A Wedding and Tragedy.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 27.—While a peasant wedding party was crossing the Dneiper Saturday at Ekaterinaslav, the ice broke and two sledges with 10 persons disappeared under the water. All were swept under the ice and were drowned.

THE JENNIE WONCH CASE

A CORONER'S INQUEST TAKES PART OF THE EVIDENCE.

Jennie Has Been Arrested—She Says Her Mother and Child Were Burned During Her Absence—Her Brother Says Different.

COLLINGWOOD, Feb. 28.—Developments in the Jennie Wonch case indicate that the woman and her brother John will have difficulty in clearing themselves of suspicion of having killed the old woman and child. The boy says his sister is a murderess. She says she knows not how the victims were burned so badly. She is under arrest.

If it is possible to look for any benefit to accrue from the tragedy it will be in the complete breaking up of a family that has been a terrible disgrace to the neighborhood in which they have outraged decency for several years. The wonder arises as to why the people of Craigleith permitted for so long a time the presence of a family so debauched in social life, more especially as the Wonch shanty was visited continuously by people who sought to add to the infamy of the place and its occupants.

THE EVIDENCE.

The Inquest Adjourned to Wednesday—No Post Mortem Yet.

COLLINGWOOD, Ont., Feb. 28.—Dr. A. M. Stephen, coroner, held an inquest here yesterday on the body of Mrs. Wonch. The following gentlemen were empanelled as a jury: J. W. Archer (foreman), Dr. Donaldson, David Anderson, John Lockton, James Wild, W. C. Miller, R. Patterson, Capt. George Collins, John Shaw, George C. Brown, L. Brillinger, D. Peterman, Hugh Currie, H. McConnell and N. Saunders.

The jury adjourned to the drill shed, where the bodies of the deceased woman and child were lying. After viewing the body the following witnesses testified:

John T. Rice, sworn, said: I am a farmer. Jennie Wonch came to our place and said a neighbor was going to take the old lady and child. I thought Chief Lewis had taken them away. Inquired of him and he replied in the negative. Saw James Wonch. He came up in the evening and looked for them, but did not find them.

I searched for them, and after following tracks in the snow discovered the body of the old lady. This was on Saturday evening. I followed the tracks and dug away the snow and just found the hand.

Where was John Wonch at the time?

I do not know. He was not at home. I last saw Jennie Wonch on Friday morning, coming down the railway towards Collingwood. Jennie came to my place Thursday night between 10 and 11 o'clock, to haul wood, she said. This was on Thursday night. She seemed kind of queer at that time, as if afraid she was going to be taken away. I next saw her on Friday morning when she brought back the sleigh which she borrowed.

They have lived near me for nearly two years. I have seen them quarreling; they were always quarreling.

By juror: When did you last see her?

On Friday, coming down the railway.

When did you see the old lady last?

It is a long time. The house is about 300 yards from my place.

Chief Lewis sworn said: On Saturday forenoon met Mr. Rice, the last witness. I asked him how the Wonchs were getting along, knowing they lived close by. He told me they were not there, and asked me if we had taken them away. I told him that we had not taken them away, and he said they were gone from the shanty. I then had suspicion.

I then found James Wonch, jr., grandson of the deceased woman. I told him that I was suspicious there was something wrong there. I asked him to go and see and find out where they were. He said he would do so and report to me. He went then and got his father and went up with Mr. Rice, the last witness, and discovered the body in the snow. John Rice and James Wonch, sr., came to my place on Saturday night about 7 o'clock and reported that they had discovered the body. Immediately afterwards I notified the coroner and the Police Magistrate and arranged with constables to go there.

Next morning we made search for the body and found it about 30 rods from the shanty, naked and buried in the snow. Found tracks of hand sleigh going there. After taking the body out on the sleigh, brought it to the shanty and then made further search for the missing child.

I knew there was a child there and suspected it had been foully dealt with. I went out around the shanty and dug up some snow which appeared to have been disturbed. I found there a child's petticoat about two-thirds burned. I then went into the house and examined the floor, pulled up a board and found that the sand had been disturbed, and on digging I found the body of the child buried about a foot down underground. I took the body out and brought both bodies to Collingwood.

The bodies were naked and had the appearance of being badly burned. The house is a little single board shanty about seven feet square. In the shanty there was a box stove, a chair, frame of an old lounge and some pots and tinware. There did not appear to be any bedclothes, or any other kind of clothes. Very little signs of fire in the shanty; a few little spots on the floor, such as would be made by coals out of the stove. I could not see how the bodies could be burned inside in the house without burning the hut. The stove was in good condition. Could see no trace of fire inside. Shanty can be seen from Rice's house. The child's body was not frozen.

Elisabeth Rice, sworn: I went over on Wednesday morning and found the old lady and child well. The old lady very hungry. I spoke to the old woman, and chatted with the child. Talked to Jennie and then went home. Did not see her till Thursday evening about 9.30, when she, Jennie, came down to our place. She sat awhile and acted in a very excited manner. After a while she said, I must go home to get John's supper. She came back again about 10.30 in the evening. She called my husband and I out to the wood, and said, What would she do, as she was going to be sent away—her to the workhouse and John to the Orillia asylum?

Mr. Rice said: I cannot give you any advice. Stand your ground. She came in and sat down and still acted in the excited manner. Mr. Rice went to bed. She sat awhile longer and asked to borrow the hand sleigh, and I told her she could have it, but asked her what did she want with it. She replied: To get a load of wood that John, her brother, had cut near the railway. On going out she took the sleigh with her.

I did not see her again till 7.30 o'clock Saturday morning. She came in shivering. She said she had been up all night. I said, Where were you?

She said, I was up at Mr. Campbell's. He took the old woman to his place, and she said that she had taken her child to Mr. McArthur's, near Craigleith, and that on Friday evening Mr. Campbell was going to take Mrs. Wonch, her mother, down to Mr. James Wonch's, her son's residence. She wanted me to go over to the shanty on Friday. I went and saw that things were changed. I saw neither the old woman nor the child. I found things different. Paper which hung on the wall, also all the rags and bedding were gone. I stopped awhile and she said she was going to Meaford on the 6 o'clock train Friday evening. I went home after that. My son brought in a pail with bloody water. I did not see John on Friday morning, but heard him chopping wood. His brother Anthony came along and asked him what he did with the old woman and child, and he refused to tell.

Dr. Aylesworth, sworn: I examined the bodies and found evidence of severe burns. I found no wounds unless it would be on the head of the child. There were two or three points on the head of the child where the scalp had been abrained and the hair removed. I think the burn on the old woman was sufficient to cause death. I think the child was also burned sufficient to cause death. I think the burns occurred either before death or immediately after, before the body became cold.

I am not positive what caused death. If the woman had been dead before she was burned she probably would not have been in the present contorted state.

Thomas Gilleon, sworn: I was asked by the chief on Saturday night to go up to the Wonch homestead on Sunday morning. I went in company with the rest; called at Mr. Rice's house and he took us over to the shanty and where the old lady was found. I took a spade and dug in the snow in company with another man and uncovered the body of Mrs. Wonch. We lifted the body up, laid it on the sleigh and put a sheet over it and brought it out to the shanty. We started digging around the shanty in search for the child. I left that and went inside of the shanty, and in company with Chief Lewis pulled up some boards and found some sand, quite soft, at the north end of the shanty. I dug, and the first thing I saw was a little foot. Mr. Harbart came inside and started to dig the hole larger, and dug up the child, took it out and laid it on the door of the shanty.

I was up there this morning and found that the end of the lounge was burned to a crisp. There are quite a few spots on the floor, which I should judge is not done by coals. There is a streak on the floor east of the stove which is scorched by fire, and I think not from coals.

We brought down a chair and knife with blood on from the house. I should judge the knife was a table knife.

John Wonch, not sworn: My mother was dead when I got home. I was down to Collingwood Friday evening about dark. I found my mother dead in the house. My sister was carrying her child around. I asked her what was the matter with the child. She said it was burned. When I went to the house my mother was lying on the bed on the floor. She was covered up good. My sister was outside. My sister says she could not sit up and was nearly gone. I cannot tell you how she was burnt. She was burned when I went home. I saw the burns on her finger. She had a sore on her arm and she kept picking it to pieces. I went to bed. I wanted to go to tell my mother was dead, but was not allowed.

My sister borrowed Mr. Rice's hand-sleigh and took my mother out and buried her, and she got me to help her. The child was not in the bed. I did not see it, and I asked where the child was, and she said she gave it out. I did not go to bed that night. We were up that night. I helped my sister to carry out my mother. I had no hand in burying her. She scooped the snow out with a tin dish. I was standing by at the time. I helped her to pull the sleigh out when my sister made the hole. She put my mother in herself. I had no hand in it. When my sister came with the sleigh she said she was going to draw wood. I had some matches, but they were not down low.

After burying my mother we came back to the shanty. The child was all right then. The next morning there were pieces of burnt cloth on the floor. I had a small bottle of coal oil which I got for my arm. It was a long time after my sister got the sleigh that we buried my mother. My mother was doubled up when I saw her first.

My sister dug the hole in the sand with a pan. I do not know if Jennie struck the deceased with an ax handle. (Ax handle from shanty produced.) I did not wash the pig head in the pail, but I saw the bloody water in the pail.

This was the last evidence taken this evening and the jury adjourned till Wednesday evening, during which time a post mortem examination will be made.

THE ARREST.

Jennie Says She Does Not Know How They Were Burned.

MEAFORD, Ont., Feb. 28.—Jennie Wonch, the alleged Craigleith murderess, was arrested by Chief Constable R. Daley yesterday afternoon and lodged in the lockup here.

She was employed as kitchen maid in the Royal Hotel since Friday. She talks freely about the affair, and says she dragged the bodies to a snowdrift and buried them; then came to Meaford to earn money to get a coffin to bury them in.

She says she does not know how they came to be killed. When she came in from gathering wood she found her boy and mother burning between the stove and door. She says she did not tell any person about it because she thought they would blame her for it, and says that she has only been out of the Reformatory a short time, and did not want to go back again. She has asked the constable several times if she will be hanged.

She is a sister-in-law of Cook Taits, who was hanged in Owen Sound in 1884. She was a prominent witness at the trial. She is evidently insane and will be taken to Collingwood to-morrow by the noon train.
